'THE EXORCIST'
Rain Dampened The Devil

By REBECCA LARSEN

"The Exorcist" opened in San Rafael last night without causing any members of the audience to throw up, faint, hide in the washroom or even drop their boxes of popcorn.

When the demon-possessed little girl star vomited chartreuse toothpaste, there were a few gasps and averted eyes, but everyone seemed to be sitting it out.

"I wasn't really that scared," said Jean Williams of Santa Venetia on her way out of the Rafael Theater. "For some parts I put my hands over my face. But most of it wasn't too bad."

The film's Marin debut started off slowly. Damp weather kept the size of the 7 p.m. crowd to only 330, about one-third of what the house could hold.

"The rain really did us in," said manager Charles Ruble. "We were expecting a bigger night."

However, by the time of the second showing, a block-long line of people were waiting for tickets.

Ruble and his crew had prepared for the event as though they were producing a Broadway show. He had nine ushers — triple the usual number. Stacks of reserve popcorn bags stood in a side room.

A cigarette dispenser was moved to a more convenient spot for film-goers. "People seem to like to smoke more during this show," he said.

The majority of the early crowd was teen-agers, and most of them were more curious than anxious.

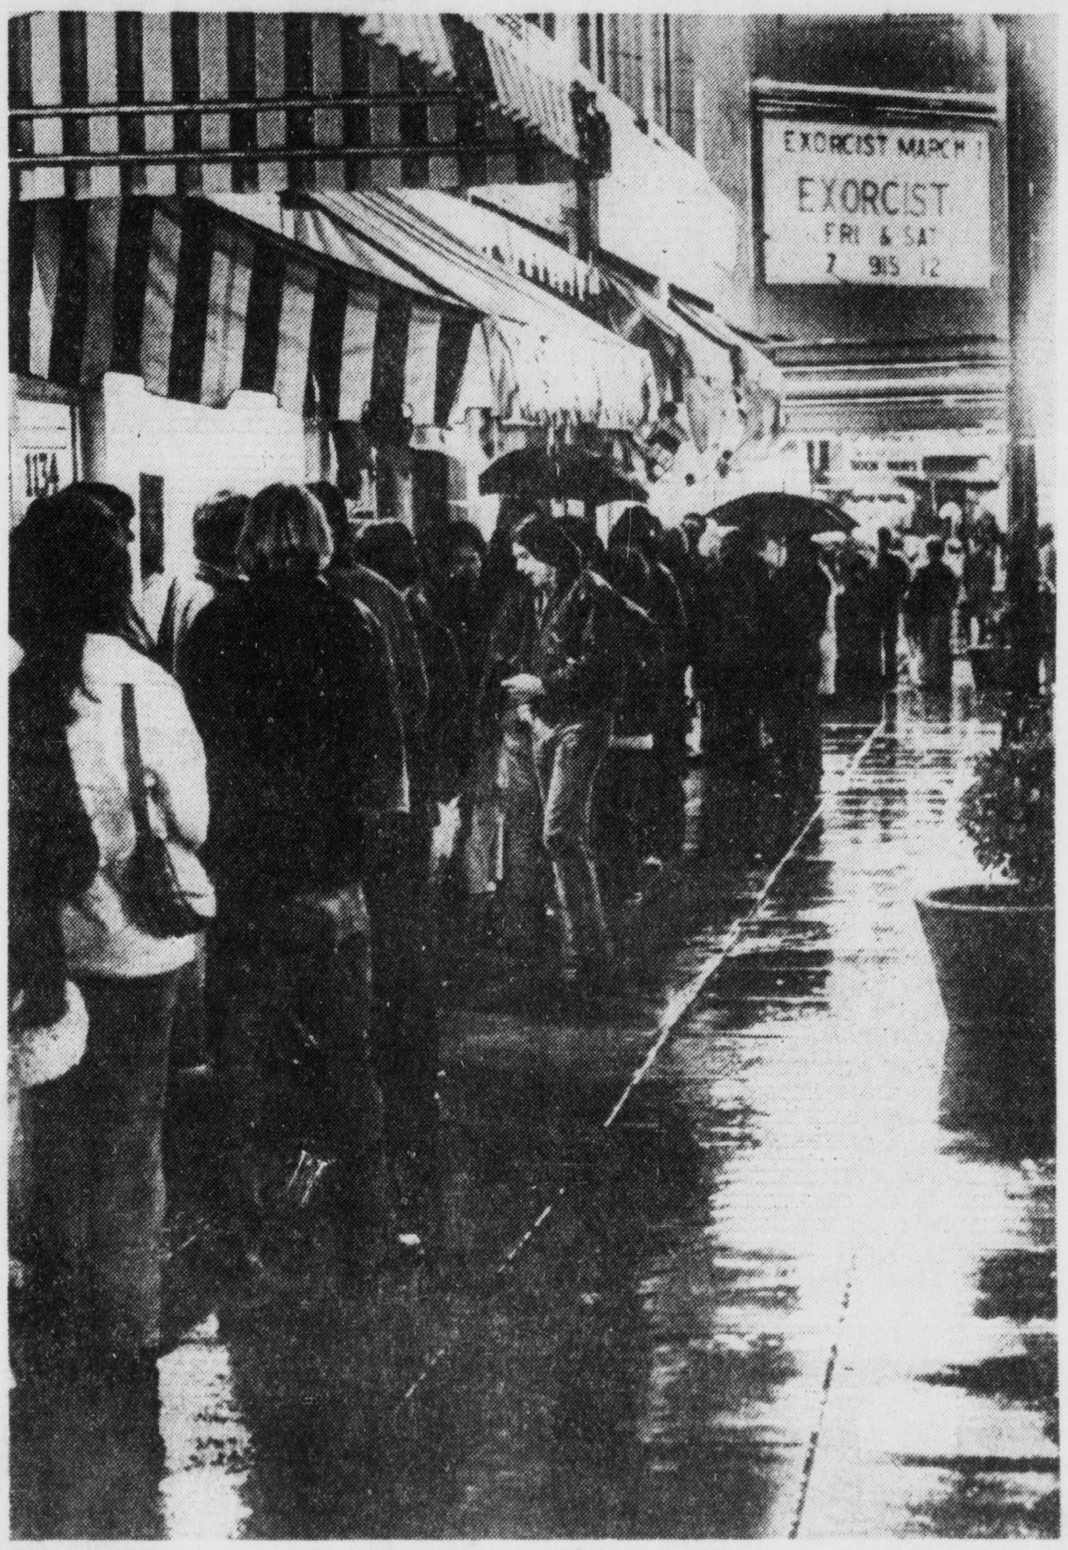
"My 18-year-old brother saw it in the city and told me not to go," said Brian Saunders, 16, of Peacock Gap. "So I had to find out what it was all about. That night he slept on the floor in my parents' room in a sleeping bag."

All but one brave reporter for the Independent-Journal had turned down the job of covering the opening. But last night's experiences seemed to show that even the most fainthearted probably could have endured the strain.

To someone who had walked out on "The Devils" and Fellini's "Satyricon," "The Exorcist" ranked in scariness with the fourth remake of "The Phantom of the Opera."

But the story of the exorcism of a demon from the body of a young girl was still a compelling and interesting one.

"This is the second time I've seen it," said Ed Brown of Corte Madera at the movie's end. "Once in Vancouver and once here. It was spooky and well done. I had to see it again so I could see how they did the thing with her neck (at one point the little's girl head turns 180 degrees on her neck) and the stuff coming out of her mouth."



LINING UP — Fearless Marin moviegoers brave rain as well as evil spirits at the opening of "The Exorcist" at the Rafael Theater. Although the 7 p.m. show last night was two-thirds empty, by 9 p.m. the intrepid crowds had started to gather.

Heath Is Making An Alliance Bid To Liberal Wing

Leader Of Minority Government Confers On Stalling Laborites

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, battling to stay in power at the head of a Conservative minority government, appealed to the third-ranking Liberal party today for an alliance to keep the Labor party out.

Heath, whose governing Conservatives suffered a narrow defeat in Thursday's general election, conferred at his No. 10 Downing Street office with Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe and parliamentary whip David Steel.

An announcement from Heath's office said the Prime Minister invited Thorpe to meet him "to discuss the political situation."

Heath's Conservatives suffered a severe blow in Thursday's election, losing its majority in the House of Commons. But the opposition Labor party did not win a majority of seats, either, touching off the political crisis.

Government officials said there was no question of Heath inviting the Liberals to join in a coalition government. He already has ruled that out.

But with no party holding an overall majority in the new parliament, Heath desperately needed a pledge that the 14 Liberal party lawmakers would at least tacitly support a minimum program for several months until new elections.

The election plunged Britain into its worst political crisis since 1929, the last time no party held a majority in the House of Commons.

Final results for the 635 seats in the new House of Commons were 296 Conservatives, 301 seats for Labor, 14 for the Liberals.

The rest were divided among seven Scottish Nationalists, two Welsh Nationalists, 11 Northern Ireland Protestant militants, one Northern Ireland Social Democratic and Labor Party, one Independent Labor, one Democratic Labor and the speaker who has no vote.

Even with Liberal support Heath still would fall short of an overall parliamentary majority.

After a day of suspense and uncertainty, Heath drove to Buckingham Palace Friday evening and told Queen Elizabeth he had decided not to quit but would try to hang on with a minority government.

He reached the decision after the Labor Party, which has the largest number of seats, although not a majority in the new House of Commons, put in its bid to form a minority Labor government under party leader and former Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

But Conservative party officials said Heath acted constitutionally and within his rights in refusing to resign.

They argued that even if the Conservatives won fewer seats than Labor, they got nearly 250,000 more popular votes.

They argued that the combined Conservative and Liberal popular votes totalled about 18 million as against 11.6 million for Labor and that, therefore, there was no national mandate for a Labor government. The new parliament meets Wednesday to elect a speaker and to swear in the new lawmakers. Its first formal session will open March 12.

Pamela Lloyd Will Seek Water Post

PAMELA LLOYD
Seeks water post

Pamela Lloyd of Mill Valley, long active in local planning and water issues, today announced her candidacy for the Marin Municipal Water District seat being vacated by Dr. L. Martin Griffin.

Mrs. Lloyd, the first candidate to announce for the Division Four seat, said she views the next few years as a "critical time for water resource planning" in Marin County.

"Water resource planning is an integral part of general land use planning," she said. "It is one which requires in-depth study and, because it deals with a finite natural resource, the highest level of environmental sensitivity."

How Marin's water resources are handled will affect not only the implementation of the county general plan but also "the kind of Marin we leave to future generations," she said.

The 40-year-old candidate served as campaign chairman for Griffin's successful campaign last year. He represents Mill Valley, Kent Woodlands, part of Kentfield and Corte Madera west of Highway 101.

Mrs. Lloyd said she thinks the district's moratorium on new water connections should continue and supports the current board's efforts to find "new water sources" instead of damming Northern rivers.

She was born in Oakland, reared in San Francisco and has lived in Mill Valley for the last 12 years.

She graduated in 1955 from the University of California at Berkeley with a degree in English.

Currently, Mrs. Lloyd is chairman of the environmental quality committee and a member of the executive committee of the City-County Planning Council which developed the county general plan.

She also is a founder and co-chairman of the Committee for Regional Water Planning, a group actively opposed to construction of the Warm Springs Dam in Sonoma County until more study is made of its impact.

Mrs. Lloyd said that after her years in land use planning she would "like to focus my energies and apply my particular background and orientation to an area of great importance to our county and to me."

She said she has a "strong personal commitment to environmentally sound, controlled growth planning."

"It is mandatory that long-range and regional considerations frame the water planning decisions which are made today," she said.

The present moratorium is required because of the threatened water shortage, she said.

Mrs. Lloyd lives at 30 Beverly Terrace in Mill Valley with her husband and four children.

She is the Mill Valley representative to the countywide plan committee of the Marin Co. Conservation League.

A VOTER SPECIAL IN MARIN LIVING

On Tuesday, many Marin and Southern Sonoma residents will go to the polls to help select men and women who will sit on their town and city councils.

It's an important decision, and to help in the choice of candidates who best reflect the voter's views, today's Marin Living section of the Independent-Journal is devoted largely to the biographies and the platforms of the scores of candidates in a dozen Marin and Sonoma cities.

Kissinger Discusses Oil Embargo With Saudi Arabia's King Faisal

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, armed with an Israeli-Syrian agreement to hold indirect talks in Washington, met with King Faisal of Saudi Arabia today to discuss chances for ending the Arab oil embargo against the United States.

A senior American official said Kissinger had won Israeli and Syrian agreement to send negotiators to Washington later this month to continue indirect talks for troop withdrawals in the Golan Heights.

Kissinger, who got the Israeli-Syrian talks started in his current Middle East drive, left the Syrian capital of Damascus early Saturday and flew to Riyadh for the talks witt the conservative Saudi Arabian monarch.

The American officials said Israeli and Syrian proposals for troop disengagement were as far apart as ever, despite the agreement to hold the talks in Washington. He called the differences "substantial."

Kissinger's talks with King Faisal lasted an hour, informed sources said. He then flew on to Amman, Jordan for talks with King Hussein.

"We are confident after these talks that we are proceeding with firm steps along the right path and that relations between the two countries are strong and firm," Kissinger said before leaving the Saudi capital.

"We will work to strengthen and promote these relations in the future."

Saudi Foreign Minister Omar Sakkaf called the talks "good and constructive."

In Riyadh, American officials said they expected Kissinger to discuss with the 68-year-old Faisal the prospects for lifting the 4 ½-month-old Arab embargo on oil supplies to the United States.

Rain Expected To End Tonight In The North Bay

The weatherman has predicted a bleak end to the weekend with showers probably continuing tonight and cloudy skies hanging over Marin tomorrow.

There is also a chance of local frost since temperatures tonight are expected to drop to the 30s and 40s. It will be cool tomorrow as well, with the mercury hanging in the 40s and 50s, according to the National Weather Service.

The worst storm to hit the Bay Area so far this year already has wreaked widespread damage, blown roofs off houses, felled trees and broken windows.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. said that more than 10,000 customers were affected by electrical blackouts throughout the Bay Area.

Rainfall reported in various areas in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today included: San Anselmo, 1.45 inches; Novato, .85; Woodacre, 1.21; Sausalito, 1.20; Petaluma, .68, and Point Reyes, 1.20.

Independent Gas Pumpers Cite Frustration, Anger

By MARY LEYDECKER

Marin's independent service station operators, who account for more than 90 per cent of the gasoline sold in the county, are frustrated and angry. (See other gas stories, page 32.)

They view themselves as caught in a mess they didn't create — trapped between federal and state authorities and the big oil companies on one side and long lines of waiting customers on the other.

Most of their wrath, though, is directed against the oil companies — for whom they see themselves as "glorified managers."

Like many members of the gasoline-buying public, many of the service station operators don't believe the gasoline shortage is real.

"It happened too fast," a Novato service station operator said. "One day we were all involved in promotions —the next we were on allocation (of gasoline)."

Furthermore, the independent operators, think that the oil companies are putting the squeeze on them in the present situation, holding them to agreements they cannot meet.

For example, a San Rafael operator said, his company is still penalizing him by charging him more rent because he is not selling his agreed-upon minimum gallonage per month. This, he said, is in spite of the fact he cannot get delivery of the minimum amount.

Three service station operators, representing Chevron, Shell and Mobil stations in the county, agreed "we are not making it on two hours a day" despite yesterday's 2-cent a gallon price increase.

What the service station men call "back room business" — servicing of autos — and the sales of such items as batteries, tires and accessories has dropped drastically.

"We just don't have time" to look under the hoods of cars, said Bob Smith, who runs a Mobil station in Novato. Tony Sarganis, operator of a Shell station in San Rafael, said he and his employees, also, had been too swamped to do more than fill tanks. But recently, he has told his men to look under the hoods anyway.

A large number of dry batteries, low oil and other problems were found, Sargannis said, adding that he worries about the motorist who gets out on the highway with a car not in good running order.

At any rate, Sarganis added, he must pull two mechanics off their jobs to man the gasoline pumps during the two hours a day he is usually open. And, although he and other operators agreed "you can't let your men

Operator Says He's Only Following Orders

By JEFF GREER

Why does a gasoline station that for years was the lowest-priced outlet in Marin County suddenly start charging 66.9 cents a gallon?

The price signs atop pumps yesterday at the Simas Brothers station at Third and A streets in San Rafael spurred a flood of calls to the Independent-Journal, the Internal Revenue Service and to the station itself. Tone of the calls ranged from bewildered to truculent.

Internal revenue price watchers in San Francisco said they were checking. They'd heard complaints about the independent chain's stations throughout the Bay Area.

Joginder Randhawa, manager of the San Rafael Simas station, mournfully said that he was charging what his home office told him to charge. He had even had to make a noontime trip out into the rain yesterday to hike pirce signs two cents, to 66.9 for premium.

Rhandhawa couldn't say why. He was referring all callers to the firm's headquarters in Oakland.

The telephone of Brendan Horan, Simas Brothers' retail marketing manager, was awash with calls. Finally reached by the Independent-Journal, Horan explained that IRS agents had just spent two hours reviewing the firm's books.

"They found we aren't gouging anybody," Horan said.

By then, it was past 4:30 p.m.

David's Indictment Views

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's son-in-law, David Eisenhower, expects the Watergate defendants will be cleared.

David

"We hope and expect they will be vindicated when they have all the rules of evidence they are entitled to," he said Friday at a Young Republican Leadership Conference.

The 25-year-old grandson of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower added: "An indictment is an accusation. Their guilt or innocence will be determined at a trial."

Asked if he is a candidate for any office, David, who is a freshman at George Washington University Law School, replied: "I'm sure not. I'm too young."

Uprising Wans

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — A military uprising threatening the authority of Emperor Haile Selassie waned today with the withdrawal of rebel troops from the Ethiopian capital and the northern town of Asmara.

Diplomats said the pullbacks could mean the military meant to give new Prime Minister Endalkachew Makonnen time to form a cabinet and institute reforms to get this ancient mountainous kingdom into the 20th Century.

Big Favorite

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George Cerley Wallace emerged a lopsided favorite yesterday to win a record third term as governor of Alabama, a power base he intends to use in 1976 to launch a fourth presidential campaign.

As qualifying closed in the Democratic and Republican primaries, Wallace's only major opposition appeared to be Democratic state Sen. Gene McClain of Huntsville, a lawyer and developer who has never run a statewide race.

River Battles

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government infantrymen, backed by artillery and air strikes, battled insurgents today in intense fighting along the Mekong River close to the Cambodian capital.

An Execution

MADRID (UPI) — A young Catalan anarchist was put to death today in Barcelona, the first execution in Spain for a political crime in more than a decade, the Europa Press news agency said.

Salvador Puig, 26, a member of the small, left-wing Iberian Liberation Movement (MIL), was garrotted—strangled by an iron collar tightened by a screw—for the killing of a policeman last September.

Democrats Adopt New Rules For Choosing Convention Delegates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic Party has adopted new rules for choosing its national convention delegates that could end the era of firstballot presidential nominations.

The guidelines were adopted by the Democratic National Committee yesterday after nearly a year and a half of discussion and debate within the party. The new rules do not outlaw a first-ballot blitz by a future candidate, but they will make it more difficult to achieve.

The new rules wipe out the last vestiges of "unit rule" and "winner-take-all" practices in the delegate selection process—from the precinct level through state conventios. They require that any presidential aspirant who can command the support of 15 per cent of party members must be given delegates proportional to his strength.

Except for the controversial California primary of 1972, most statewide winner-take-all practices were abolished earlier. The new rules require that "proportional representation" now be applied at "all stages of the delegate selection process."

Both Democrats and Republicans have nominated their presidential candidates on the first or second ballots for several decades.

Post Reports A Secret Jury Document On Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate grand jury yesterday gave U.S. Judge John J. Sirica a secret report expressing its belief that President Nixon was involved in a conspiracy to obstruct justice in the Watergate case, the Washington Post said today.

Quoting "informed sources," the Post said the secret report was given to Sirica in a sealed envelope along with the indictment charging seven former White House aides and Nixon re-election campaign officals with involvment in the coverup. President Nixon was not mentioned in the actual indictment.

The Post said the secret grand jury report contained approximately 50 paragraphs of evidence concerning the President, including specific acts by Nixon and a theory that he conspired to obstruct justice by participating in the cover-up.

The grand jury requested the report be given to the House Judicary Committee, which is determining if grounds exist to impeach the President.

The Post said the sources told it the grand jury was considering indicting President Nixon but decided not to after Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski told them the Constitution barred indicting an incumbent chief executive.

The story, written by Post reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward, said Jaworski had been trying to find a way to forward evidence against the President to the Judicary Committee.

The Post said Sirica now has several options, including examining the evidence himself to decide if it should be forwarded to the House committee, or returning it to the grand jury so they can indict Nixon. The grand jury has not been dismissed and will meet again in two weeks.

The Post said President Nixon's lawyers could file motions to examine the report themselves or move to keep it out of the hands of the Judicary Committee.

A GI Takes Tank Trip

BERLIN (UPI) — An American soldier stole a 50-ton Patton tank from his armored unit today and went on a wild, 30-mile drive througt West Berlin to two East German border checkpoints.

While East German and Russian soldiers looked on, the soldier swung his tank turret with its 105mm cannon around threateningly several times, West German customs police said.

But there was no shooting and the soldier, identified by a U.S. Army spokesman as Spec. William A. Thompson Jr., 22, of Columbus, Ga., surrendered to his commanding officer, Capt. Thomas Grace, of Kimball, Neb., on East German territory.

Grace was given permission by Russian and East German authorities to drive up in a jeep, talk to the soldier and lead him away in handcuffs.

"We do not know his motives," the American spokesman said. "We are investigating the incident."

A Guilty Plea Is Made To Check Counts

A Berkeley woman arrested in September with three other persons, one of whom was charged with killing a Marin park ranger, pleaded guilty yesterday to check forgery.

Kathryn Mary King, 25, was sentenced to a year in Marin County Jail by Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best.

She and the other three were arrested by federal agents in a raid on a Homestead Valley house Sept. 14.

Agents were looking for evidence in connection with the shooting death of Ranger Kenneth C. Patrick, whose body was found at Point Reyes National Seashore in August. He was the first National Park ranger murdered in the line of duty.

One of those arrested at the house, Veronza Leon Bowers, 27, subsequently was charged with Patrick's death, along with Alan W. Veale, 24. Bowers is due to go to trail March 18 and Veale April 18, in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

Miss King was charged in Marin with four counts of cashing stolen, forged checks at Marin stores between June and August.

She also is awaiting trial in Alameda County on a variety of charges, arising from burglaries and forgery cases in that county.

Under the terms of a plea bargain, she pleaded guilty in Marin to one forgery count and was placed on a year's probation. In addition, Best agreed to let her serve the jail sentence concurrently with any prison sentence she may draw as a result of the Alameda case.

Bridge Decision Held Until May

OAKLAND (AP) — After a lively discussion, the Metropolitan Transportation Commission has voted to delay until May a decision on the proposed Napa River bridge and connecting freeway.

A large contingent of Napa County officials sounded an endorsement Wednesday of the $20 million project, while a handful of environmentalists blasted the scheme.

The bridge would eliminate an existing section of SR 29 and replace a narrow bridge over the river. The proposal also would do away with the funneling of highway traffic through city streets.

Cigarette Tax Shares Announced

Marin County received $9,883 and Sonoma County, $35,511 as their share of the cigarette tax for February, according to the state controller's office.

Cities in Marin and Southern Sonoma and the amounts received were: Belvedere, $775; Corte Madera, $6,290; Cotati, $1,317; Fairfax, $2,667; Larkspur, $4,772; Mill Valley, $5,756; Novato, $13,381; Petaluma, $14,376; Rohnert Park, $4,058; Ross, $775; San Anselmo, $5,119; San Rafael, $30,268; Sausalito, $4,931 and Tiburon, $2,505.

Computer Working On Carpooling

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — About 10,000 questionnaires from Bay area commuters who want to carpool were put into a computer here yesterday at offices of the state Department of Transportation.

The effort, which is designed to match up riders and drivers who live and work near each other, is known as RIDES and is sponsored by a group of businesses and government agencies.

Questionnaires were distributed to the public during February and have been returned at the rate of 1,000 per day during the last ten days, according to sponsors of the free, voluntary program. Others interested can call 621-3833.

RIDES organizers are: The California State Automobile Association, Hibernia Bank, KPIX-TV, KSAN-Radio, the state department of transportation, the Federal Highway Administration, the U.S. Bureau of the Census, the Association of Bay Area Governments and the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

Hearst Food Leader Wants SLA Contact

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The man in charge of the Hearst food handouts thinks it's about time the kidnapers of Patricia Hearst let him know how he's doing.

A. Ludlow Kramer, Washington secretary of state and administrator of the "People In Need" grocery giveaway, asked the Symbionese Liberation Army yesterday to "contact us immediately" if it's unhappy about the program designed to win the 20-year-old girl's release.

go," they have been forced to cut hours for employees.

"What have we gained?" Sarganis asked, about the 2-cent a gallon raise. In his case, with dwindling service and sales profits, he also faces only a 60 per cent allotment of gasoline in March.

(The allotments are based upon the amount of sales in the same month in 1972 — a period which Marin operators feel is unfair because it was the time of a gasoline price war in San Francisco which led many commuters to buy the bulk of their fuel there.)

The service station men know that many consumers believe "you guys are makin' it in two hours a day now," but they are tired of this remark and say there is no truth in it.

On top of dwindling gasoline supplies and drying up of other sales, the operators complain about various oil company policies.

Art Baptiste, president of the Marin County Independent Service Station Operators who runs Northgate Chevron, said Standard Oil Co. has "forgiven" him the penalty included in his lease for not meeting minimum gallonage sales.

Since the company will not deliver the minimum amount for many operators to sell, this seems a reasonable reaction, but not all oil companies have followed suit.

A spokesman for Shell Oil Co. said the matter still "was under consideration" by company executives.

Other operators' compalints about the oil companies center around their leases. Most said that leases, even those now being written, call for long opening hours and other activities not possible during the gas shortage.

To some operators, this means that"the whole thing, the shortage, is going to be over as quick as it started."

A spokesman for Standard Oil Co., however, said that lease requirements that stations be open 18 or more hours a day still were being included "because if there is a more abundant supply (in the future), there will be more competition" in gasoline sales.

A spokesman or Shell agreed. He said that the gasoline situation "could conceivably change" and that the business has been traditionally very competitive.

"The games and giveaways that you remember," he said were a necessary part of a competitive industry. At any rate, he added, Shell discontinued such practices last year and has gone to "institutional" advertising, which advises motorists how to conserve fuel, not use more.

The local operators are not convinced, however, as they are pressed into signing leases they view as unrealistic under present conditions.

And many of them agree with a statement made by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Hollywood, who called the operators "little more than serfs" for the oil companies.

But they do not think the companies are tyring to force the independents out of business altogether.

"They'd never be able to hire people to work the long hours we work," one tired station operator said.

Legal Snarl Over Order To Petaluma

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Argument over legal language has delayed the formal order declaring Petaluma's growth limit ordinance unconstitutional.

U.S. District Court Judge Lloyd H. Burke yesterday ordered revision of a statement from the attorney for the building groups which brought suit against the Petaluma ordinance limiting housing construction to 500 units a year.

Burke ruled orally on Jan. 17 that the growth limit violated the constitutional rights of citizens who might wish to move to Petaluma and settle there.

He instructed attorneys to cooperatively draft the order and findings to make his ruling effective.

Robert T. Anderson of Oakland, Petaluma's special counsel, and Malcolm A. Misuraca, representing Sonoma and Bay Area building industry associations, argued yesterday over the wording of the document.

Both lawyers said they wanted language to present the issue effectively because they believe it will eventually be settled by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Peatluma City Council has yet to make a decision on whether to appeal Judge Burke's ruling. However, the city has not returned an estimated $10,000 which other city and county governments donated to help finance an appeal.

City officials said a decision will be made after the written District Court order is drafted.

Hunt For Boy Is Called Off

Several units of sheriff's deputies, county firemen and California Highway Patrolmen hunted yesterday in Nicasio Valley for a little boy who had phoned in an alarm saying his mother had fallen down and needed an ambulance.

All that deputies knew was that the boy's name was Chris and he was 6 years old. He described his house as white with a porch and wash house. The phone number he gave was incorrect.

The house-to-house search went on for two hours before patrol units gave up.

Deputies said they thought the incident might have been a prank.

San Quentin Inmate Is Stab Victim

A San Quentin inmate, serving a one year to life sentence, was in "serious but stable" condition today at Marin General Hospital after he was stabbed yesterday while walking in the prison's east block.

Prison officials said E.L. Machado, 26, was found walking across the facility's main yard toward the hospital at about 6:30 p.m. yesterday, with two stab wounds in his chest, two in his left arm and one in his lip. He had descended four flights of stairs following the attack.

A spokesman said there were no suspects and no apparent motive, but said "it was a bit tense in the east block" after the incident.

Machado was sentenced to one year to life imprisonment on a robbery conviction from Stanislaus County and had an escape conviction.

An investigation was underway today. Yesterday's incident was the seventh stabbing reported at San Quentin this year. Last year there were more than 40.

An Exit Made After Examination

A pregnant county jail inmate escpaed from a doctor's office in San Rafael yesterday after a prenatal examination.

Clara Frost Serrano, 23 — whose trial on charges of swindling a woman of $2,400 ended Thursday in a hung jury — disappeared about 2:30 p.m. from the county medical center at Fourth and Grand streets. She is expecting a child in two months.

"After her examination, she apparently walked out the back door," said Sheriff's Capt. Harvey Teague.

Mrs. Serrano, of Los Angeles, and Gwendolyn Annette Ivy, 33, of Oakland, were tried this week before Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire on grand theft charges arising from an alleged "pigeon drop" scheme in San Rafael.

They were accused of bilking one woman and trying to swindle another, but the jury could not reach a verdict.

Kissinger Sees King On The Oil Embargo

yadh Nov. 8 and Dec. 14, Kissinger found the bearded king firmly opposed to lifting the embargo.

Arab press commentators said they believed progress toward obtaining an Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory still was not sufficient for the Arabs to lift the embargo.

Furthermore Saudi Arabia, the Arab world's largest oil producer and a prime mover in development of the Arab "oil weapon" during the 1973 Middle East war, is not alone able to decide on lifting the embargo, the commentators said.

This must be decided by the ministers of the 10-nation Organization of Arab Oil Exporting Countries (OAPEC), who are expected to meet later this month.

The senior American official said when Kissinger returned to Damascus with the Israeli ideas on military disengagement Friday, he feared there was a "50-50 chance" his attempt to get talks started might break down.

Under the plan approved by Israeli and Syrian leaders, the two sides will shuttle negotiators to Washington to present their proposals to Kissinger. The official said an Israeli negotiator would travel to Washington before March 16.

He said the meetings in Washington might last two or three weeks.

If a chance of agreement develops, he said, the two sides would have to meet face-toface, probably in the military committee set up by the Geneva Middle East peace conference.

The procedure was basically the same principle that Kissinger used to win the EgyptianIsraeli disengagement agreement, due to be completed Tuesday.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has made Syrian-Israeli disengagement an essential condition for resuming the Geneva conference.

In Cairo, diplomatic sources said Saturday the Israeli and Egyptian withdrawals would be completed one day ahead of the March 5 deadline worked out by Kissinger.

The sources said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held talks with President Anwar Sadat Saturday on the latest Middle East devlopments.

American officials in Riyadh gave no indication of the rival Syrian and Israeli views on disengagement.

Jail Term Drawn On Burglaries

Salvatore Sabella, 23, of San Francisco, pleaded guilty yesterday to two burglaries and was sentenced to eight months in jail and four years' probation.

Sabella admitted burglarizing homes on Cornelia and Summit avenues in Mill Valley Jan. 4. In exchange, Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court dismissed a car theft charge.

Mill Valley police said they went to the Summit Avenue home on a tip and found Sabella sitting in a car reported stolen the previous day in San Francisco.

Inside the car were television sets, cameras and jewelry from the two residences, police said.

After Sabella completes his jail time, he must enter the Delancey Street Foundation in San Francisco or another live-in rehabilitation program to overcome his drug use, Best ruled.

OBITUARIES

BERTHA KOCHER

Funeral for Bertha Kocher of San Rafael, will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Kocher died Thursday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 85.

She was born and reared in Wisconsin. She and her husband, the late William H. Kocher, moved to San Francisco in 1929. He owned his own trucking business in Wisconsin and worked for Bekin's Moving and Storage after moving here.

Mrs. Kocher was a homemaker all of her life. She moved to San Rafael five years ago.

Mrs. Kocher is survived by a son, Warren W. Kocher of Jackson, Amador County; three daughters, Leona Simone of Menlo Park, Lucille E. Pesce of San Bruno and Joyce A. Gay of Sebastopol; a sister, Hilda Berg of Wisconsin, 11 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

MARIE McGUSHIN

A Mass of the Christian Burial for Marie C. McGushin of San Rafael was offered yesterday.

Mrs. McGushin, 83, died Wednesday in a local hospital.

Prior to her retirement, she had managed a dress store.

Mrs. McGushin was a native of San Francisco and had lived in San Rafael seven years.

Survivors include a nephew, Harrison P. Fox of San Mateo.

Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

PRICE

and the IRS headquarters was closed until Monday, so the I-J couldn't confirm Horan's statement.)

"It's a long, sad story," the Simas official said.

"We just can't buy gas at competitive prices," Horan explaind. "Our supplier's refinery is in Texas. He has to use crude oil from Venezuela that has gone way up in price, and we have to pass that cost along, together with the high cost of shipping it here.

"For 40 years, Simas Brothers always had the lowest prices in town. All of a sudden, things have turned topsy turvey. And the big refineries won't sell us anything," Horan said.

He said the supplier had been cut back to 53 per cent of the fuel the firm handled in the 1972 base period.

But, despite the record high prices, "we could sell 150 to 200 per cent of what we get, to the poor customers. They're captives, almost. It's a sad thing," Horan said.

He explained that Simas Brothers prices are based on the actual cost of the gasoline they buy at wholesale, plus a fixed profit margin. When the wholesale prices go up, the IRS allows the firm to pass the increase on to customers at the pump, he said.

Computer Working On Carpooling

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — About 10,000 questionnaires from Bay area commuters who want to carpool were put into a computer here yesterday at offices of the state Department of Transportation.

The effort, which is designed to match up riders and drivers who live and work near each other, is known as RIDES and is sponsored by a group of businesses and government agencies.

Questionnaires were distributed to the public during February and have been returned at the rate of 1,000 per day during the last ten days, according to sponsors of the free, voluntary program. Others interested can call 621-3833.

RIDES organizers are: The California State Automobile Association, Hibernia Bank, KPIX-TV, KSAN-Radio, the state department of transportation, the Federal Highway Administration, the U.S. Bureau of the Census, the Association of Bay Area Governments and the Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

Hearst Food Leader Wants SLA Contact

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The man in charge of the Hearst food handouts thinks it's about time the kidnapers of Patricia Hearst let him know how he's doing.

A. Ludlow Kramer, Washington secretary of state and administrator of the "People In Need" grocery giveaway, asked the Symbionese Liberation Army yesterday to "contact us immediately" if it's unhappy about the program designed to win the 20-year-old girl's release.

yadh Nov. 8 and Dec. 14, Kissinger found the bearded king firmly opposed to lifting the embargo.

Arab press commentators said they believed progress toward obtaining an Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory still was not sufficient for the Arabs to lift the embargo.

Furthermore Saudi Arabia, the Arab world's largest oil producer and a prime mover in development of the Arab "oil weapon" during the 1973 Middle East war, is not alone able to decide on lifting the embargo, the commentators said.

This must be decided by the ministers of the 10-nation Organization of Arab Oil Exporting Countries (OAPEC), who are expected to meet later this month.

The senior American official said when Kissinger returned to Damascus with the Israeli ideas on military disengagement Friday, he feared there was a "50-50 chance" his attempt to get talks started might break down.

Under the plan approved by Israeli and Syrian leaders, the two sides will shuttle negotiators to Washington to present their proposals to Kissinger. The official said an Israeli negotiator would travel to Washington before March 16.

He said the meetings in Washington might last two or three weeks.

If a chance of agreement develops, he said, the two sides would have to meet face-toface, probably in the military committee set up by the Geneva Middle East peace conference.

The procedure was basically the same principle that Kissinger used to win the EgyptianIsraeli disengagement agreement, due to be completed Tuesday.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has made Syrian-Israeli disengagement an essential condition for resuming the Geneva conference.

In Cairo, diplomatic sources said Saturday the Israeli and Egyptian withdrawals would be completed one day ahead of the March 5 deadline worked out by Kissinger.

The sources said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held talks with President Anwar Sadat Saturday on the latest Middle East devlopments.

American officials in Riyadh gave no indication of the rival Syrian and Israeli views on disengagement.

Jail Term Drawn On Burglaries

Salvatore Sabella, 23, of San Francisco, pleaded guilty yesterday to two burglaries and was sentenced to eight months in jail and four years' probation.

Sabella admitted burglarizing homes on Cornelia and Summit avenues in Mill Valley Jan. 4. In exchange, Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court dismissed a car theft charge.

Mill Valley police said they went to the Summit Avenue home on a tip and found Sabella sitting in a car reported stolen the previous day in San Francisco.

Inside the car were television sets, cameras and jewelry from the two residences, police said.

After Sabella completes his jail time, he must enter the Delancey Street Foundation in San Francisco or another live-in rehabilitation program to overcome his drug use, Best ruled.

Shoreline Trustees Set Vote On Bond

Voters in the Shoreline Unified School District will have a chance to vote June 4 on a $1 million school construction project that would add 33.5 cents to their tax rate.

Trustees on Thursday called for an election on a lease purchase plan to construct a Tomales Middle School, fourth through eighth grades, at the Tomales Elementary School site.

Trustees picked the lease purchase plan, which requires a majority voter approval, over a bond measure, which requires a two thirds approval, three bond measures for school construction have been defeated in the district in recent years.

Under the 25-year term leasing program, the district would lease and eventually own the buildings — seven classrooms and a multipurpose room, which would serve as cafeteria, gymnasium and meeting room.

The Tomales School fourth through eighth graders are now housed in portable classrooms at the Old Tomales High School site.

Supt. Kenneth L. Barnes estimated the program would cost $1,000,145 if construction started next April.

The board adjourned until 7:30 p.m. March 21 at Bodega Bay School.

Another Tunney Plans To Make Political Bid

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Gene L. Tunney of Glen Ellen, former Belvedere resident, has announced his candidacy for Sonoma County District Attorney.

The 43-year-old deputy public defender is the brother of U.S. Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., and the son of former heavyweight champion Gene Tunny.

He is a 1957 graduate of Yale University and studied law at Yale Law School and at the University of San Francisco, graduating in 1968.

In 1964 he managed his brother's successful campaign in Riverside County for the House of Representatives, and he was active in his 1970 Senate bid.

A four-year resident of Marin, Tunney moved to Sonoma in 1971 to take the public defender's job.

He was adeputy district attorney in Alameda County from 1968 to 1970.

On a world-wide average, fresh water is consumed at the rate of 500 tons a person a year.

Coffee For Usher

The City of Mill Valley will hold a get-acquainted coffee for new City Mgr. Ronald L. Usher and his wife from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Mill Valley Library on Throckmorton Avenue.

Wine Brew Said Big At Quentin

Hundreds of gallons of illicit wine are brewed behind San Quentin's walls each year, prison information officer William D. Nyberg reported yesterday.

He said about 10 gallons of various fermented concoctions, popularly known as "pruno," are confiscated at the prison each week.

The situation came to light this week when an article in the San Quentin News suggested, tongue-in-cheek, that inmates might make pruno legally by applying for federal winemaking permits as "heads of households." (Nyberg dismissed the idea.)

The beverage is made with fruits and vegetables, even tomatoe puree, and secretly brewed in rubber inner tubes, plastic sacks, or any closed container, he said.

Nyberg added that the wine is continually discovered in minibreweries despite the fact that an essential ingredient — yeast — is kept under lock and key.

Some inmates drink the stuff, while others are in business to make money, he said.

As for pruno's taste, "it depends on what kind you're tasting," Nyberg said.

Restaurant Due Restudy

The Novato Council will reconsider its rejection of plans for a Taco Bell restaurant at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

Councilmen turned down plans for the mission-style restaurant at Novato square in January by a 3-to-2 vote.

Councilman George C. Quesada, who voted against the restaurant, asked for reconsideration in the hope Taco Bell would change its architectural plans.

Critics said the restaurant proposed for the southwest corner of Grant Avenue and Machin Street would not be in harmony with other buildings in the area.

New Hours For Novato Schools

Classes will start a half-hour earlier Monday at Novato Unified School District's elementary schools and two of the district's junior high schools.

Elementary pupils will start school at 8:30 a.m. and San Jose and Hill Junior High sudents will start at 9 a.m.

The starting times were set back a half-hour in January because of daylight savings time.

Sinaloa Junior High School and the district's high schools already have switched back to regular times.

Firm Is Granted Fill On 26 Acres

McPhail Inc. has been granted a permit to fill 26 acres between the Highway 101 bypass and Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. tracks, north of Novato Creek.

Novato Zoning Administrator Charles J. Linthicum, who granted the permit, said the firm is considering using the site for an industrial park.

WATERGATE AFTERMATH

Nixon Plans A Quiet Weekend With Family

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon planned a quiet weekend with his family in the aftermath of Watergate indictments against former White House associates that included three of his closest friends and most loyal aides.

There were no official appointments on his today schedule, leaving open the possibility he might motor to the Camp David presidential retreat for a change of scene and a chance to digest the new developments.

In his own response through a spokesman to Friday's indictment of seven former associates, including John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. (Bob) Haldeman, Nixon expressed hope the public would withhold judgment of the men until they are tried and that the trials would be speedy.

"The President has always maintained that the judicial system is the proper forum for the resolution of the questions concerning Watergate," press spokesman Gerald Warren read from a prepared statement.

In earlier days, Haldeman, Nixon's one-time chief of staff, and Ehrlichman, his one-time domestic affairs adviser, would have been spending all or most of the weekend at Nixon's elbow. Mitchell, former attorney general and Nixon's closest confidant and adviser, would have been in frequent touch by telephone.

The White House mood in the wake of the indictments was variously described by insiders as "uptight" and "somber." Nixon was said to be especially concerned about the personal tragedies besetting his former associates and their families.

His daughter, Julie Eisenhower, who had planned to return to her own home Friday after a two-week White House stay while she recovered from abdominal surgery, chose instead to remain with her parents.

Last night the Nixons held a black-tie dinner for some 60 guests chosen from the President's friends and supporters in Congress.

Next Thursday a dinner party is planned for the nation's governors and their wives. Nixon's schedule for the remainder of the month is heavy with out-of-town trips, a number of them for public appearances.

Dystrophy Unit Names Officers

Richard Sommery-Gade of Novato has been elected president of the Marin-Sonoma Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

Other new officers are Erick Yarchin, San Anselmo, vice president; Terrie Sommery-Gade of Novato, secretary; Elizabeth Doherty of Novato, treasurer and Melvin Priestly of Novato, second vice president.

Janet Graves of Mill Valley will represent the chapter on the Combined Health Agencies Drive Committee.

Defendant In 'Blue Box' Phone Case Fined $300

who pleaded guilty to possessing a "blue box" used to make free long-distance phone calls, was fined $300 yesterday and placed on four years' probation.

The 32-year-old Point San Pedro man admitted two misdemeanor counts of possessing a device to defraud the telephone company, and three other charges were dismissed in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman also ordered Kosman to repay Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. for the calls he made during three weeks in November and December, although it was unclear just how many calls are involved.

The "blue box" is a device with 10 buttons which emit musical tones when pressed. With the box, the user can bypass the automatic telephone billing equipment.

Highway Users Tax Shares Set

Marin County received $161,970 and Sonoma County, $237,485 as their share of the February highway users tax, according to the state controller's office.

Cities in Marin and Southern Sonoma Counties and the amounts they received were: Belvedere, $2,468; Corte Madera, $7,278; Cotati, $2,304; Fairfax, $6,496; Larkspur, $10,247; Mill Valley, $10,943; Novato, $28,490; Petaluma; $24,495; Rohnert Park, $9,621; Ross, $2,581; San Anselmo, $10,864; San Rafael, $35,949; Sausalito, $5,309 and Tiburon, 5$340.

VIRGINIA B. RUSSELL, Realtor opened the Novato office in March, 1973 after owning and operating Associated Developers for 6 years.

After 6 short months as a Red Carpet Realtor in Novato, it was apparent that southern Sonoma County was the logical place for a second office to serve the needs of the homeowners and buyers in the area many of whom commute to San Francisco. The office currently has a staff of six professionally trained salespeople and one secretary.

Mrs. Russell is a member of both Marin and Sonoma County Boards of Realtors and the Multiple Listing Services of both counties.

VIRGINIA B. RUSSELL

Virginia has been a member of the Marin County Board of Realtors since 1961 and has served on numerous committees. She was a director for 2 years prior to serving as Secretary of the Board in 1973.
She was awarded the designation G.R.I., "Graduate Realtors Institute", earlier this month.
Virginia is also a member of the American Business Women's Association; charter member of Novato Soroptimist Club; and past-president of San Rafael Toastmistress Club. She resides in Novato and the one hobby she does find time for is showing her miniature Schnauzers.

Corte Madera

STEWART ASSOCIATES, REALTORS. In 1959 the firm began in one small corner of its present building and as it grew it overflowed into the entire building. After three major alterations we now have an office that is attractive and efficient.

Stewart Associates was opened in Corte Madera by choice. Corte Madera's central location affords convenient access to most of central and southern Marin. Leading all the local offices in both listings and sales in 1973 (according to MLS statistics), we have found that our location attracts not only buyers for Larkspur or Corte Madera, but those who are considering various areas in Marin.

Our firm has concentrated on giving professional real estate service to its clients. To this end we have not only equipped the office with the most up-to-date equipment and services, but have also installed special equipment for making investment analyses by computer. In addition to equipment, the associates have all increased their professional knowledge and experience by attending numerous seminars, training sessions and taking advantage of special training tapes and films. We feel very confident to handle almost all real estate needs for our clients.

Joe H. Stewart is a Graduate, Realtors Institute (G.R.I.) and Real Estate Certificate Institute (R.E.C.I.). He is past President of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce, past State Officer of the California Jaycees. He is past Education Chairman of the Marin County Board of Realtors, current Public Affairs Chairman and a member of the College of Marin Real Estate Advisory Committee. He has been in real estate for ten years and has lived in Marin County since 1947. Joe has two lovely daughters of whom he is quite proud.

Joe H. Stewart, Sr. has been a real estate Broker for 23 years, opening his own office at its present location in Corte Madera in 1959. He was a member of the Marin County Board of Realtors Board of Directors for three years and its President in 1964. He is presently a member of the College of Marin Real Estate Advisory Board and has been an instructor in real estate subject there for eight years. Joe, Sr. lives in Corte Madera with his wife Helen. They have four children who are all grown and gone.

who pleaded guilty to possessing a "blue box" used to make free long-distance phone calls, was fined $300 yesterday and placed on four years' probation.

The 32-year-old Point San Pedro man admitted two misdemeanor counts of possessing a device to defraud the telephone company, and three other charges were dismissed in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman also ordered Kosman to repay Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. for the calls he made during three weeks in November and December, although it was unclear just how many calls are involved.

The "blue box" is a device with 10 buttons which emit musical tones when pressed. With the box, the user can bypass the automatic telephone billing equipment.

Highway Users Tax Shares Set

Marin County received $161,970 and Sonoma County, $237,485 as their share of the February highway users tax, according to the state controller's office.

Cities in Marin and Southern Sonoma Counties and the amounts they received were: Belvedere, $2,468; Corte Madera, $7,278; Cotati, $2,304; Fairfax, $6,496; Larkspur, $10,247; Mill Valley, $10,943; Novato, $28,490; Petaluma; $24,495; Rohnert Park, $9,621; Ross, $2,581; San Anselmo, $10,864; San Rafael, $35,949; Sausalito, $5,309 and Tiburon, 58340.

WATERGATE AFTERMATH

Nixon Plans A Quiet Weekend With Family

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon planned a quiet weekend with his family in the aftermath of Watergate indictments against former White House associates that included three of his closest friends and most loyal aides.

There were no official appointments on his today schedule, leaving open the possibility he might motor to the Camp David presidential retreat for a change of scene and a chance to digest the new developments.

In his own response through a spokesman to Friday's indictment of seven former associates, including John N. Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. (Bob) Haldeman, Nixon expressed hope the public would withhold judgment of the men until they are tried and that the trials would be speedy.

"The President has always maintained that the judicial system is the proper forum for the resolution of the questions concerning Watergate," press spokesman Gerald Warren read from a prepared statement.

In earlier days, Haldeman, Nixon's one-time chief of staff, and Ehrlichman, his one-time domestic affairs adviser, would have been spending all or most of the weekend at Nixon's elbow. Mitchell, former attorney general and Nixon's closest confidant and adviser, would have been in frequent touch by telephone.

The White House mood in the wake of the indictments was variously described by insiders as "uptight" and "somber." Nixon was said to be especially concerned about the personal tragedies besetting his former associates and their families.

His daughter, Julie Eisenhower, who had planned to return to her own home Friday after a two-week White House stay while she recovered from abdominal surgery, chose instead to remain with her parents.

Last night the Nixons held a black-tie dinner for some 60 guests chosen from the President's friends and supporters in Congress.

Next Thursday a dinner party is planned for the nation's governors and their wives. Nixon's schedule for the remainder of the month is heavy with out-of-town trips, a number of them for public appearances.

Dystrophy Unit Names Officers

Richard Sommery-Gade of Novato has been elected president of the Marin-Sonoma Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

Other new officers are Erick Yarchin, San Anselmo, vice president; Terrie Sommery-Gade of Novato, secretary; Elizabeth Doherty of Novato, treasurer and Melvin Priestly of Novato, second vice president.

Janet Graves of Mill Valley will represent the chapter on the Combined Health Agencies Drive Committee.

VIRGINIA B. RUSSELL, Realtor opened the Novato office in March, 1973 after owning and operating Associated Developers for 6 years.
After 6 short months as a Red Carpet Realtor in Novato, it was apparent that southern Sonoma County was the logical place for a second office to serve the needs of the homeowners and buyers in the area many of whom commute to San Francisco. The office currently has a staff of six professionally trained salespeople and one secretary.
Mrs. Russell is a member of both Marin and Sonoma County Boards of Realtors and the Multiple Listing Services of both counties.
VIRGINIA B. RUSSELL
Virginia has been a member of the Marin County Board of Realtors since 1961 and has served on numerous committees. She was a director for 2 years prior to serving as Secretary of the Board in 1973.
She was awarded the designation G.R.I., "Graduate Realtors Institute", earlier this month.
Virginia is also a member of the American Business Women's Association; charter member of Novato Soroptimist Club; and past-president of San Rafael Toastmistress Club. She resides in Novato and the one hobby she does find time for is showing her miniature Schnauzers.

Corte Madera
STEWART ASSOCIATES, REALTORS. In 1959 the firm began in one small corner of its present building and as it grew it overflowed into the entire building. After three major alterations we now have an office that is attractive and efficient.
Stewart Associates was opened in Corte Madera by choice. Corte Madera's central location affords convenient access to most of central and southern Marin. Leading all the local offices in both listings and sales in 1973 (according to MLS statistics), we have found that our location attracts not only buyers for Larkspur or Corte Madera, but those who are considering various areas in Marin.
Our firm has concentrated on giving professional real estate service to its clients. To this end we have not only equipped the office with the most up-to-date equipment and services, but have also installed special equipment for making investment analyses by computer. In addition to equipment, the associates have all increased their professional knowledge and experience by attending numerous seminars, training sessions and taking advantage of special training tapes and films. We feel very confident to handle almost all real estate needs for our clients.
Joe H. Stewart is a Graduate, Realtors Institute (G.R.I.) and Real Estate Certificate Institute (R.E.C.I.). He is past President of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce, past State Officer of the California Jaycees. He is past Education Chairman of the Marin County Board of Realtors, current Public Affairs Chairman and a member of the College of Marin Real Estate Advisory Committee. He has been in real estate for ten years and has lived in Marin County since 1947. Joe has two lovely daughters of whom he is quite proud.
Joe H. Stewart, Sr. has been a real estate Broker for 23 years, opening his own office at its present location in Corte Madera in 1959. He was a member of the Marin County Board of Realtors Board of Directors for three years and its President in 1964. He is presently a member of the College of Marin Real Estate Advisory Board and has been an instructor in real estate subject there for eight years. Joe, Sr. lives in Corte Madera with his wife Helen. They have four children who are all grown and gone.

Lacrosse Is Growing At Mt. Tam

Only Marin School To Have Team

By LEW CODDINGTON

INSTRUCTION — Coach Jon May (front) explained a point yesterday to the Mt. Tamalpais School lacrosse team. The school is the only one in Marin with a lacrosse program. (Photos by Jim Kean)

In the rapidly-changing world of athletics it is foolish to hang the label "minor sport" on a particular game, because five or ten years can change its status drastically.

Within recent memory, golf and tennis have emerged from obscurity Soccer now figures to do the same, and then you have lacrosse.

The key to popularizing any sport is to get youngsters playing it, and that is just what is happening with lacrosse. Mt. Tamalpais School in Ross has placed its foot firmly in the door by becoming the only Marin school to field a lacrosse team this year.

"A couple of boys approached me," said Rothwell (Rusty) Taylor, athletic director at the school. "They had played lacrosse back east, and hoped we could start a team here."

Taylor called for signups and got 15, a significant percentage of the student body at the small (enrollment: 105) school. Few had played before, but this bothered neither Taylor nor coach Jon May.

"Northern California is in its infant years for lacrosse," said May, 23, a graduate student at the University of San Francisco. "Anything I can do to get the sport rolling on a younger level, I'm glad to do."

May played one year of lacrosse in high school in Mamaronek, N.Y., and then four years for Cornell University, which won the Ivy League all four years and the national title in 1971.

He was attending a meeting of the Northern California Lacrosse Association when he heard Taylor's plea for a coach and answered. May himself plays for San Francisco's Golden Gate Lacrosse Club in the NCLA.

"The sport is fun to play," May says. "It has movement, excitement, hitting, and a fair amount of scoring. When I coach, I play. I put on gloves, a stick, etc., and get out on the field."

Mt. Tam plays in the Ira Markwett junior program with five other Marin teams. Its first game was scheduled this morning. The school also may schedule games with some of the few other Northern California schools which play, such as Menlo School of Menlo Park and Robert Louise Stevenson of Pebble Beach.

"We don't have a single senior on the team," May said. "We will be on the small side, and most people outweigh us.

"When we started practice we had only sticks, balls and gloves, but no pads or goals," he said, "so we worked primarily on fundamentals. We've become proficient stickhandlers, which is the essential part of the game. In scrimmages so far, we've showed our lack of experience, but not our lack of stickhandling."

Only four of the players had previous experience, including Ned Pinger and Court McKean, the boys who approached Taylor. Ironically, Pinger dislocated a shoulder in an early scrimmage. Both are attack men. Middie Eric Chilton and goalie Matt Stone also are experienced.

"The others are really gung-ho," May said. "When people turn out for lacrosse, they stay out. It's really a fun sport to play — frustrating at first, but if people stick with it, they can have a tremendous time."

PARTICIPATION — Moments later, the team members went onto the field to practice what May had told them.

Sonoma State In Playoff After Loss

ARCATA — After three successive defeats, Sonoma State College today is in trouble.

The last-place Lumberjacks, who had won only one previous Far Western Conference basketball game, have forced defending champion Sonoma State to share the 1974 league title with Chico State.

The Lumberjacks (2-9) upset the Cossacks last night 104-94 and Chico State's Wildcats beat visiting University of California Davis 73-67

That made Sonoma and Chico co-champions with 9-3 records. The two play Monday night to determine which goes to the National Collegiate Athletic Association at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo next weekend.

In other games, San Francisco State won on its home court in overtime, 74-72 over Hayward State and earned a tie for third with Davis at 8-4. Sacramento State edged Stanislaus State 67-66.

Sonoma had a 54-47 halftime lead. Humboldt went ahead to stay at 80-78 on two free throws by Rick Cook with eight minutes left.

All five Sonoma starters scored in double figures, led by Bob Le Brun with 25 points. Bill Belander scored 20 points, Jim Bristol 17, Steve Tiedeman 14 and Tom Fitchie 10.

Bruce Fernandez paced Humboldt with 20 points, and Bruce Matvlich added 18.

Sonoma 54 40—94
Humboldt 47 57—104

Sonoma — Bristol 6-5-17, Heien 1-0-2, Fitchie 3-4-10, Tiedeman 6-2-14, Long 2-2-6, Belander 9-2-20, LeBrun 9-7-25. Totals: 36-22-94.

Humboldt — Waterman 4-0-8, Fernandez 9-2-20, Spears 8-1-17, Pugh 3-0-6, Benson 5-0-10, Cook 2-3-7, Welsh 7-2-16, Matvlich 8-2-18, Huber 1-0-2. Totals: 47-10-104.

Danger Determines Insurance Rates

THE TIPOFF:

The National League soon will be forced to consider institution of a designated hitter if it wants to keep up with the American League. If baseball had any kind of commissioner, the rules would be uniform already.

Q. Are life insurance premiums higher in one sport than another? — G. Lyle, Levittown, Pa.

Insurance magnate Ralph Wilson, who also happens to own the Buffalo Bills (and O.J. Simpson), is my actuarial expert and says that boxers, wrestlers, high divers, racing drivers and all high hazard athletes have to pay an extra $7.50-per-$1,000 loading charge. All others, including skiers, pay the standard rate of $13 per $1,000 of ordinary life at age 25. A team like the Bills does carry a catastrophe policy to insure loss of income for the team in case of a major disaster such as a plane crash, in the sum of $7.2 million. The Players Association has a policy on the lives of the players.

Q. The Hall of Fame for Pro Football is in Canton; baseball in Cooperstown, basketball in Springfield, Mass. What halls of fame exist for other minor sports and where are they? — Lynn Theisen, N. Versailles, Pa.

Besides hockey noted above, there is a swimming hall in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., golf at Palm Beach Gardens in the same state, tennis at Newport, R.I., boxing in the offices of Ring Magazine in New York, skiing at Ishpeming, Mich., and horse racing in the quarters of the Racing Form. But go easy on the designation of "minor" for them.

Q. Right after the Super Bowl, I read a story that didn't get much publicity about Grady Alderman having cancer. Is it true? — Ollie Russell, Superior, Wis.

The veteran offensive tackle of the Vikings, sole remaining "original" of the expansion team in '61, was told by doctors he had a malignancy — BEFORE the Super Bowl. He played and went into a Minneapolis hospital immediately after and was successfully operated on. Right now, teammates Francis Tarkenton and Mick Tingelhoff have taken Grady, along with all their wives, for a vacation in Acapulco, Mex.

Q. Will you find out the name and address of the new magazine that Billie Jean King and her husband are promoting? There are probably many other people besides myself who would appreciate subscription information on this new sports magazine. — LaVerne Sharp, Oakland.

WomenSports (no space, please) should start appearing on the newsstands in May from headquarters at 1 Peninsula Place, 1660 So. Amphlett Blvd., San Mateo, Calif., 94402. But us guys aren't being shut out. There will be men on the staff — no doubt to cover the locker rooms.

Q. Why isn't there, by now, a black manager in baseball, after the proven success of black coaches in the National Basketball Association? — Bob Hayes, Alameda, Calif.

It's a question I find impossible to answer, I would have thought that by now, men like Junior Gilliam or Frank Robinson, within the baseball hierarchy, or Bill White and Maury Wills would have qualified for recent vacancies, like at San Diego and New York. It's going to become a red hot social issue for a sport which showed seven blacks among the top 10 batters in the American League and eight blacks among the top 10 in the National League. There'll be a rebellion of the elite.

PARTING SHOT:

Warriors' owner Franklin Mieuli has a special antipasto room in his Oakland Coliseum Arena. It was for a siesta by Bobby Dylan durins his recent concert tour, "Now," brags Franklin, whose bearded presence fit right into the Dylan scene, "we'll label it, 'Bobby Dylan slept here.'" (Newspaper Enterprise Assn).

A FALL — University of California's Carl Meier (40) last night sprawled for the basketball during the second half in the Oakland Coliseum Arena. UCLA's All-American center Bill Walton (left) stood by under the basket. UCLA won, 83-60. (UPI Telephoto)

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

UCLA Can't Shake Pesky USC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

UCLA's basketball team seems to have found itself after that lost weekend in Oregon, but the mighty Bruins can't shake off persistent USC.

The Bruins looked as awesome as ever in demolishing Cal 83-60 last night at the Oakland Coliseum Arena as Bill Walton and Keith Wilkes both did the things that will probably land them on the All America team.

Wilkes hit 19 and made all the right moves while Walton added 17 and grabbed 22 rebounds.

But thanks to those two upset losses in Oregon a couple weeks ago, UCLA is 10-2 in the Pacific-8 and 21-3 for the season.

And that is exactly what USC's record is after the Trojans squeaked by Stanford 62-59 in a game many thought Stanford might win.

Gus Williams was the difference as he took a court-length pass and converted into a three-point play with 1:18 to go to put the Trojans five points up and later hit the two free throws with 22 seconds left to ice it. He wound up with 18 points while Mel Arterberry had 19 for the Cards.

USC is at Cal this afternoon and UCLA at Stanford tonight with the Trojans and Bruins meeting next Saturday in the big one. Oregon (8-3) prays for a few upsets in the Bay Area as it plays at Washington tonight while Oregon State is at Washington State.

The West Coast Athletic Conference and Pacific Coast Athletic Association end their seasons tonight.

University of San Francisco leads Seattle by one game in the WCAC and hosts St. Mary's while Seattle is at home to Santa Clara.

St. Mary's, which already has locked up its first winning season in a decade, fell 86-80 to Santa Clara last night when Jerry Belotti hit 24 for the winners and Maurice Harper 22 for St. Mary's. In more WCAC action, Loyola downed Nevada Reno 82-70. Nevada Reno is at Pepperdine tonight.

The PCAA's spot in the National Collegiate Athletic Association joust is up for grabs as UC Santa Barbara calls on Los Angeles State with the winner in the NCAA. Ineligible Long Beach State hosts University of Pacific and can wind up with its best season's record in history with a victory. San Jose State is at San Diego State.

Typical of the close races along the Coast this season is the Far Western Conference, which wound up with four teams a game apart.

Last place Humboldt State stunned Sonoma State 104-94, which dropped the losers into a tie with Chico State, which edged University of California at Davis 73-67 with Dave Moore hitting 23. Both finished with 9-3 while the Cal Aggies finished 8-4. So did San Francisco State, which edged Hayward State 74-72 when Mike Miller hit with eight seconds left in the overtime. Sacramento State nipped Stanislaus State 67-66 in more FWC action.

Chico and Sonoma will go at it Monday in a playoff game.

The small-schooltigers square off tonight at La Mirada when U.S. International (22-4) meets Westmont (17-9) and Whittier (19-7) battles Fresno Pacific (19-6). On Monday the USI Westmont winner meets Azusa Pacific (26-4) while the Westmont-Whittier winner gets a bye until Wednesday's finals to determine who goes to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tourney in Kansas City.

In other action last night, Portland State took Puget Sound 97-69, Northridge beat Fullerton 90-73,' Riverside beat Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 67-46 and Cal Poly Pomona downed Bakersfield 78-77.

Memphis State edged Hawaii 63-59 and the two teams will meet again in Honolulu again tonight. They both hope to meet again in the National Invitational Tourney.

Hawaii's Kamakana Selected Aptos Pro

APTOS, Calif. (UPI) — Henry Kamakana, one of Hawaii's all-time best tennis players, has been named resident head pro at the Aptos Seascape Racquet Club.

Kamakana, currently ranked No.4 in singles and No.2 in doubles in Northern California, comes to the Aptos coub after seven years as head pro at the Los Altos Golf and Country Club. Before that he was the pro at Ladera Oaks Swim and Tennis Club and the Alpine Hills Tennis and Swim club.

A's Players Grumbling About '73 Series Rings

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — The big news in the World Champion Oakland A's camp today doesn't concern this season but last.

Yesterday, the A's 1973 World Championship rings, courtesy of owner Charles O. Finley, arrived in camp, and immediately there was a round of grumbling.

The rings were not what the A's expected.

"I think the rings are horse meat," said ace pitcher Jim Hunter. "This ring isn't even as good as my high school ring. I hope it's a joke because the ring looks like a joke."

After the A's won the World Championship in 1972, Finley presented each player with a ring valued at $2,000. No price has been set on the 1973 rings but to listen to the players they obviously are inferior.

Finley recently lost five of nine salary arbitration cases, which is going to cost him about $100,000 more than he expected to spend this year. The A's payroll, lowest in the majors a couple of years ago, now ranks with the highest.

Back to the rings.

Ace reliever Rollie Fingers said Finley sent the rings by parcel post "because he didn't have the guts to come down here and hand them out himself the way he did last year"

"They have to be the worst World Series rings I've ever seen," added reliever Darold Knowles.

"I'm disappointed," said catcher Ray Fosse.

Reggie Jackson, trying to figure out why Finley did what he did, said it probably was the owner's way of getting even with the players for sticking up for Mike Andrews during the World Series.

"I'd bet my raise on it," said the 1973 American League Most Valuable Player.

Heard's Gamble Pays Off

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Jerry Heard walked up to the 15th tee in the $150,000 Citrus Open and thought, "What the hell?"

Why not take a trick from Lee Trevino's bag? He knew he was ahead, anyway. So he put the ball on the ground, shunning a tee, and slammed a long drive that put him in position to go on to an eagle on the 510-yard, par five hole and he held a one-stroke lead going into today's play.

"It was a gamble, but I don't have any negative thoughts in my head," said the six-foot Californian who won the Citrus in 1972. Heard, posting a 68—135 at nine under par, explained that driving from the grass makes the ball carry farther.

Jim Colbert, with a pair of 68s, was alone in second place going into the third round at eight-under-par 136. The reigning champ of the Greater Jacksonville Open, who missed the cut at last week's Jackie Gleason Inverrary, picked up six birdies but bogeyed twice in a threesome with Lanny Wadkins and Larry Ziegler, who both shot a 67.

Wadkins, a 24-year-old Wake Forest grad who banked $200,455 on the tour last year, was in a tie for third with Leonard Thompson, the Gleason winner who carded a 69— 137.

Arnold Palmer shot a "terrible" 73 yesterday, after a spectacular up-and-down opening round, and finished in a pack at 141, six strokes behind the leader but still in the running.

But it was a black Friday for four other former Citrus winners who failed to qualify with the 80 players at one-over-par 145 or better.

Casualties of the cut were Julius Boros, Dan Sikes, Ken Still and Bob Lunn, the consecutive victors on this 6,929-yard Rio Pinar layout from 1967 through 1970. Napa's Ron Cerrudo also missed the cut with a 75-74-149.

Trevino, one of the pretournament favorites with Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf and Gary Player among the missing, sneaked under the wire with a 73—144.

First round co-leader Dick Crawford started today at 138, three strokes behind Heard.

Redwood Crew Wins Opener

OAKLAND — Redwood High School's varisty eight-oared crew yesterday rowed a 1,300-meter course on Lake Merritt in 5:21 to defeat Skyline High of Oakland (5:51) in its season-opening match.

In the shell for Redwood were Tod Moody (bow), Robert Garlan, Doug Morse, John Moody, Tony Fritz, Tom McMurry, Jim Carbone, Brennan Agajan and Robert Simpson (coxswain).

The Redwood junior varisty also won on an 800-meter course in 3:21 to Skyline's 3:44.

Only four of the players had previous experience, including Ned Pinger and Court McKean, the boys who approached Taylor. Ironically, Pinger dislocated a shoulder in an early scrimmage. Both are attack men. Middie Eric Chilton and goalie Matt Stone also are experienced.

"The others are really gung-ho," May said. "When people turn out for lacrosse, they stay out. It's really a fun sport to play — frustrating at first, but if people stick with it, they can have a tremendous time."

Sonoma State In Playoff After Loss

ARCATA — After three successive defeats, Sonoma State College today is in trouble.

The last-place Lumberjacks, who had won only one previous Far Western Conference basketball game, have forced defending champion Sonoma State to share the 1974 league title with Chico State.

The Lumberjacks (2-9) upset the Cossacks last night 104-94 and Chico State's Wildcats beat visiting University of California Davis 73-67

That made Sonoma and Chico co-champions with 9-3 records. The two play Monday night to determine which goes to the National Collegiate Athletic Association at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo next weekend.

In other games, San Francisco State won on its home court in overtime, 74-72 over Hayward State and earned a tie for third with Davis at 8-4. Sacramento State edged Stanislaus State 67-66.

Sonoma had a 54-47 halftime lead. Humboldt went ahead to stay at 80-78 on two free throws by Rick Cook with eight minutes left.

All five Sonoma starters scored in double figures, led by Bob Le Brun with 25 points. Bill Belander scored 20 points, Jim Bristol 17, Steve Tiedeman 14 and Tom Fitchie 10.

Bruce Fernandez paced Humboldt with 20 points, and Bruce Matvlich added 18.

Sonoma 54 40—94
Humboldt 47 57—104

Sonoma — Bristol 6-5-17, Heien 1-0-2, Fitchie 3-4-10, Tiedeman 6-2-14, Long 2-2-6, Belander 9-2-20, LeBrun 9-7-25. Totals: 36-22-94.

Humboldt — Waterman 4-0-8, Fernandez 9-2-20, Spears 8-1-17, Pugh 3-0-6, Benson 5-0-10, Cook 2-3-7, Welsh 7-2-16, Matvlich 8-2-18, Huber 1-0-2. Totals: 47-10-104.

Danger Determines Insurance Rates

THE TIPOFF:

The National League soon will be forced to consider institution of a designated hitter if it wants to keep up with the American League. If baseball had any kind of commissioner, the rules would be uniform already.

Q. Are life insurance premiums higher in one sport than another? — G. Lyle, Levittown, Pa.

Insurance magnate Ralph Wilson, who also happens to own the Buffalo Bills (and O.J. Simpson), is my actuarial expert and says that boxers, wrestlers, high divers, racing drivers and all high hazard athletes have to pay an extra $7.50-per-$1,000 loading charge. All others, including skiers, pay the standard rate of $13 per $1,000 of ordinary life at age 25. A team like the Bills does carry a catastrophe policy to insure loss of income for the team in case of a major disaster such as a plane crash, in the sum of $7.2 million. The Players Association has a policy on the lives of the players.

Q. The Hall of Fame for Pro Football is in Canton; baseball in Cooperstown, basketball in Springfield, Mass. What halls of fame exist for other minor sports and where are they? — Lynn Theisen, N. Versailles, Pa.

Besides hockey noted above, there is a swimming hall in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., golf at Palm Beach Gardens in the same state, tennis at Newport, R.I., boxing in the offices of Ring Magazine in New York, skiing at Ishpeming, Mich., and horse racing in the quarters of the Racing Form. But go easy on the designation of "minor" for them.

Q. Right after the Super Bowl, I read a story that didn't get much publicity about Grady Alderman having cancer. Is it true? — Ollie Russell, Superior, Wis.

The veteran offensive tackle of the Vikings, sole remaining "original" of the expansion team in '61, was told by doctors he had a malignancy — BEFORE the Super Bowl. He played and went into a Minneapolis hospital immediately after and was successfully operated on. Right now, teammates Francis Tarkenton and Mick Tingelhoff have taken Grady, along with all their wives, for a vacation in Acapulco, Mex.

Q. Will you find out the name and address of the new magazine that Billie Jean King and her husband are promoting? There are probably many other people besides myself who would appreciate subscription information on this new sports magazine. — LaVerne Sharp, Oakland.

WomenSports (no space, please) should start appearing on the newsstands in May from headquarters at 1 Peninsula Place, 1660 So. Amphlett Blvd., San Mateo, Calif., 94402. But us guys aren't being shut out. There will be men on the staff — no doubt to cover the locker rooms.

Q. Why isn't there, by now, a black manager in baseball, after the proven success of black coaches in the National Basketball Association? — Bob Hayes, Alameda, Calif.

It's a question I find impossible to answer, I would have thought that by now, men like Junior Gilliam or Frank Robinson, within the baseball hierarchy, or Bill White and Maury Wills would have qualified for recent vacancies, like at San Diego and New York. It's going to become a red hot social issue for a sport which showed seven blacks among the top 10 batters in the American League and eight blacks among the top 10 in the National League. There'll be a rebellion of the elite.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

UCLA Can't Shake Pesky USC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

UCLA's basketball team seems to have found itself after that lost weekend in Oregon, but the mighty Bruins can't shake off persistent USC.

The Bruins looked as awesome as ever in demolishing Cal 83-60 last night at the Oakland Coliseum Arena as Bill Walton and Keith Wilkes both did the things that will probably land them on the All America team.

Wilkes hit 19 and made all the right moves while Walton added 17 and grabbed 22 rebounds.

But thanks to those two upset losses in Oregon a couple weeks ago, UCLA is 10-2 in the Pacific-8 and 21-3 for the season.

And that is exactly what USC's record is after the Trojans squeaked by Stanford 62-59 in a game many thought Stanford might win.

Gus Williams was the difference as he took a court-length pass and converted into a three-point play with 1:18 to go to put the Trojans five points up and later hit the two free throws with 22 seconds left to ice it. He wound up with 18 points while Mel Arterberry had 19 for the Cards.

USC is at Cal this afternoon and UCLA at Stanford tonight with the Trojans and Bruins meeting next Saturday in the big one. Oregon (8-3) prays for a few upsets in the Bay Area as it plays at Washington tonight while Oregon State is at Washington State.

The West Coast Athletic Conference and Pacific Coast Athletic Association end their seasons tonight.

University of San Francisco leads Seattle by one game in the WCAC and hosts St. Mary's while Seattle is at home to Santa Clara.

St. Mary's, which already has locked up its first winning season in a decade, fell 86-80 to Santa Clara last night when Jerry Belotti hit 24 for the winners and Maurice Harper 22 for St. Mary's. In more WCAC action, Loyola downed Nevada Reno 82-70. Nevada Reno is at Pepperdine tonight.

The PCAA's spot in the National Collegiate Athletic Association joust is up for grabs as UC Santa Barbara calls on Los Angeles State with the winner in the NCAA. Ineligible Long Beach State hosts University of Pacific and can wind up with its best season's record in history with a victory. San Jose State is at San Diego State.

Typical of the close races along the Coast this season is the Far Western Conference, which wound up with four teams a game apart.

Last place Humboldt State stunned Sonoma State 104-94, which dropped the losers into a tie with Chico State, which edged University of California at Davis 73-67 with Dave Moore hitting 23. Both finished with 9-3 while the Cal Aggies finished 8-4. So did San Francisco State, which edged Hayward State 74-72 when Mike Miller hit with eight seconds left in the overtime. Sacramento State nipped Stanislaus State 67-66 in more FWC action.

Chico and Sonoma will go at it Monday in a playoff game.

The small-schooltigers square off tonight at La Mirada when U.S. International (22-4) meets Westmont (17-9) and Whittier (19-7) battles Fresno Pacific (19-6). On Monday the USI Westmont winner meets Azusa Pacific (26-4) while the Westmont-Whittier winner gets a bye until Wednesday's finals to determine who goes to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tourney in Kansas City.

In other action last night, Portland State took Puget Sound 97-69, Northridge beat Fullerton 90-73, Riverside beat Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 67-46 and Cal Poly Pomona downed Bakersfield 78-77.

Memphis State edged Hawaii 63-59 and the two teams will meet again in Honolulu again tonight. They both hope to meet again in the National Invitational Tourney.

Hawaii's Kamakana Selected Aptos Pro

APTOS, Calif. (UPI) — Henry Kamakana, one of Hawaii's all-time best tennis players, has been named resident head pro at the Aptos Seascape Racquet Club.

Kamakana, currently ranked No.4 in singles and No.2 in doubles in Northern California, comes to the Aptos coub after seven years as head pro at the Los Altos Golf and Country Club. Before that he was the pro at Ladera Oaks Swim and Tennis Club and the Alpine Hills Tennis and Swim club.

A's Players Grumbling About '73 Series Rings

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — The big news in the World Champion Oakland A's camp today doesn't concern this season but last.

Yesterday, the A's 1973 World Championship rings, courtesy of owner Charles O. Finley, arrived in camp, and immediately there was a round of grumbling.

The rings were not what the A's expected.

"I think the rings are horse meat," said ace pitcher Jim Hunter. "This ring isn't even as good as my high school ring. I hope it's a joke because the ring looks like a joke."

After the A's won the World Championship in 1972, Finley presented each player with a ring valued at $2,000. No price has been set on the 1973 rings but to listen to the players they obviously are inferior.

Finley recently lost five of nine salary arbitration cases, which is going to cost him about $100,000 more than he expected to spend this year. The A's payroll, lowest in the majors a couple of years ago, now ranks with the highest.

Back to the rings.

Ace reliever Rollie Fingers said Finley sent the rings by parcel post "because he didn't have the guts to come down here and hand them out himself the way he did last year."

"They have to be the worst World Series rings I've ever seen," added reliever Darold Knowles.

"I'm disappointed," said catcher Ray Fosse.

Reggie Jackson, trying to figure out why Finley did what he did, said it probably was the owner's way of getting even with the players for sticking up for Mike Andrews during the World Series.

"I'd bet my raise on it," said the 1973 American League Most Valuable Player.

Heard's Gamble Pays Off

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Jerry Heard walked up to the 15th tee in the $150,000 Citrus Open and thought, "What the hell?"

Why not take a trick from Lee Trevino's bag? He knew he was ahead, anyway. So he put the ball on the ground, shunning a tee, and slammed a long drive that put him in position to go on to an eagle on the 510-yard, par five hole and he held a one-stroke lead going into today's play.

"It was a gamble, but I don't have any negative thoughts in my head," said the six-foot Californian who won the Citrus in 1972. Heard, posting a 68—135 at nine under par, explained that driving from the grass makes the ball carry farther.

Jim Colbert, with a pair of 68s, was alone in second place going into the third round at eight-under-par 136. The reigning champ of the Greater Jacksonville Open, who missed the cut at last week's Jackie Gleason Inverrary, picked up six birdies but bogeyed twice in a threesome with Lanny Wadkins and Larry Ziegler, who both shot a 67.

Wadkins, a 24-year-old Wake Forest grad who banked $200,455 on the tour last year, was in a tie for third with Leonard Thompson, the Gleason winner who carded a 69— 137.

Arnold Palmer shot a "terrible" 73 yesterday, after a spectacular up-and-down opening round, and finished in a pack at 141, six strokes behind the leader but still in the running.

But it was a black Friday for four other former Citrus winners who failed to qualify with the 80 players at one-over-par 145 or better.

Casualties of the cut were Julius Boros, Dan Sikes, Ken Still and Bob Lunn, the consecutive victors on this 6,929-yard Rio Pinar layout from 1967 through 1970. Napa's Ron Cerrudo also missed the cut with a 75-74-149.

Trevino, one of the pretournament favorites with Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf and Gary Player among the missing, sneaked under the wire with a 73—144.

First round co-leader Dick Crawford started today at 138, three strokes behind Heard.

Redwood Crew Wins Opener

OAKLAND — Redwood High School's varisty eight-oared crew yesterday rowed a 1,300-meter course on Lake Merritt in 5:21 to defeat Skyline High of Oakland (5:51) in its season-opening match.

In the shell for Redwood were Tod Moody (bow), Robert Garlan, Doug Morse, John Moody, Tony Fritz, Tom McMurry, Jim Carbone, Brennan Agajan and Robert Simpson (coxswain).

The Redwood junior varisty also won on an 800-meter course in 3:21 to Skyline's 3:44.

Redskins Sign QB Of Future

Combined AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Joe Theismann, the former Notre Dame star who went to Canada instead of Miami, has come to the nation's capital and apparently will be the Washington Redskins' quarterback of the future.

With special permission from both the Canadian and National Football Leagues, the Redskins yesterday signed Theismann to a three-year contract for an undisclosed amount believed to be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

"I've missed playing in America," Theismann told a news conference.

Coach George Allen said the 24-year-old Theismann fits squarely into both the Redskins' present and future plans.

More Football

PHILADELPHIA — Former pro football star Johnny Sample remained in jail today without bond after a federal judge ordered a March 26 hearing on a government petition to revoke his three-year probation. Sample, 36, was placed on probation last March 19 by U.S. district judge Daniel H. Huyett III after he was convicted of cashing $7,400 in government checks stolen from the mails in 1971.

Huyett ruled yesterday that the government had shown probable cause for a full hearing on a petition to revoke the probation. The government maintained that Sample accepted $4,500 in stolen U.S. Treasury checks from two men shortly after his sentencing.

Tennis

BARCELONA, Spain — Top-seeded John Newcombe yesterday advanced to the finals of the $50,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Patricio Cornejo of Chile.

MIAMI — Second-seeded Tom Oker yesterday outlasted Mike Estep of Waco, Texas 7-6, 6-7, 7-6 in a two hour, 20-minute match and advanced to the semifinals in the Red Group of the $50,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament.

CHICAGO — Billie Jean King last night easily defeated Laura duPont 6-3, 6-2 to advance to the semi-finals of the $50,000 Women's Pro Tennis Circuit tournament.

Golf

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Laura Baugh yesterday shot a four-under-par 68 to take the first-round lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association's $30,000 Orange Blossom Classic tournament.

Bowling

MIAMI — Larry Laub of San Francisco yesterday totaled 9,564 pins for 42 games, including 30 bonus pins for each of 16 victories, to take first place in the final round of the $80,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

Swimming

BREMEN, Germany — America's Heather Greenwood yesterday set a world swimming record in the women's 800-meter freestyle with a time of 8:49.22 at the opening of an invitational swimming festival.

Baseball

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. — Larry Doyle, the second baseman on John McGraw's New York Giant team 60 years ago and winner of the National League batting crown in 1915, died yesterday at the age of 87.

Auto Racing

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — Cale Yarborough, given a second chance to qualify yesterday after NASCAR officials missed one of his first two laps, captured the pole position for tomorrow's Carolina 450 stock car race with a speed of 134.868 miles per hour.

Basketball

UNIONDALE, N.Y. — Wilt Chamberlain wasn't really lost, he knew where he was all the time.

Coach Chamberlain caught up with his American Basketball Association San Diego Conquistadors here last night after missing games in Virginia and Carolina this week. Chamberlain said he had been on a personal business trip.

RECORD 290 NOMINEES FOR DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Churchill Downs reported a record 290 nominations today for the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby.

The field includes Elmendorf Farm's Protagonirt, the top 2-year-old last year; Green Gambados, winner of the Fountain of Youth Stakes; and Cannonade, which scored an impressive victory here last fall in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes.

"We are gratified to have a record number of nominations for our Centennial Derby," said Downs President Lynn Stone.

"We hope that out of this group will come a horse that will rate with the great ones which have won the Derby."

The previous high for the 1¼ quarter mile classic came in 1972 when 258 were listed.

Warriors Confront Troublesome Games

OAKLAND (UPI) — It's been smooth sailing for the Golden State Warriors so far this week, but they are running into stormy weather this weekend.

Yesterday, Rick Barry, who has been playing with unmatched brilliance of late, learned he had been fined $1,000 by Commissioner Walter Kennedy for bumping a referee Feb. 9 at Cleveland.

Barry declined comment and said he would pay the fine, but coach Al Attles can only hope the fine doesn't throw the moody star off his game.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, the Warriors host powerful Chicago, a team that wears down the opposition physically win or lose.

And then the Warriors hurry to a Sunday encounter at Los Angeles where the Lakers closed to within one game of Golden State with a win last night over Kansas City-Omaha 107-100. The Lakers will be rested for that one while the Warriors won't and coach Bill Sharman of Los Angeles has already called the battle the Lakers' most important game so far this season.

On the plus side for the Warriors is the fact that while center Nate Thurmond is battling his arch injury, backup man George Johnson is blossoming into a star in his own right in the rebound and defense department.

"George triggered it," said coach Al Attles after Thursday's 128-109 win over Portland. "It was his defense that turned it around."

Said Cazzie Russell: "You watched the new Bill Russell out there tonight. Did you see the way he intimidated them?"

U.S. Defeated By Soviet Union In Track Meet

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union defeated the United States in their third annual indoor dual track meet today, overpowering the Americans in both the men's and women's events.

The Soviets defeated the United States 163-126 in the combined scoring, 89-72 in the men's competition and 74-54 in the women's.

The meet saw each side come up with a world indoor best performance—U.S. Army Lt. Thomas Hill in the 60-meter hurdles and Russia's Nadezhda Chizhova in the women's shot put. Miss Chizhova is the world record holder and Olympic champion.

The U. S. men took the 60-meter dash, the 60 hurdles, 400, and 1,500 meters but the Soviets ran away with most of the other events. It was pretty much the same story with the women.

Gagen Scores 36 In Church Cage

Player-coach Tom Gagen, the league's leading scorer, poured in 36 points last night to lead Dominican College (4-2) to a 76-66 victory over Valley Baptist Men in a Church League basketball game at Dominican.

Glenn Sherman scored 20 points for the losers. In another game, the Tiburon Baptist Boys (5-1) walloped Valley Baptist Boys, 63-37. Tiburon's Mike Johnson scored 16 points.

Giants' Training Camp Is Like Disaster Area

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants training camp is beginning to resemble a disaster area.

To date seven players have been felled by the flu plus batting coach Hank Sauer and assistant equipment man Mike Murphy.

Pitcher Jim Barr was hustled off to his bed yesterday when the virus struck him, too.

Meanwhile, manager Charlie Fox started to worry about when outfielders Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews will show up for their initial workout. Both are locked in a salary dispute and remain unsigned.

Maddox, who hit .319 last year, is seeking a $52,000 contract, which is $7,000 more than the Giants are offering, while Matthews, who hit an even .300 in 1973 and won National League Rookie of the Year honors, is looking for a boost from $17,000 to $40,000.

Tam Wrestler Ford To Seek Third Place

HAYWARD — Greg Ford of Tamalpais High School returned here today with a chance for third place in the state wrestling tournament at Cal State University, Hayward.

Ford, a 114-pounder, was to wrestle his first match at 11 a.m. and faced the possibility of two other matches, including the battle for third place sometime between 6:30 and 7:15 p.m.

Yesterday, Ford defeated his first two opponents before suffering a 12-6 loss to Brad Morton from Mira Costa High of Manhattan Beach. He injured his shoulder in the match, according to coach Jim Smith, but was expected to be "all right today."

Ford won his opener from Andy Gonzales of Yerba Buena, 3-2, and followed up by manhandling Hewey Raso of Lodi, 12-2.

3 Novato Gymnasts Triumph

Girls from Novato High School won three of the four all-around titles yesterday in the Marin County Athletic League optional girls gymnastics meet at San Rafael High.

The victories went to Bobby Vrastil in the intermediate open class (25.75 points of a possible 40.00), Felicia Parsitt in beginner (19.30) and Debbie Harals in novice (23.00).

Anita Lekven of Tamalpais won intermediate school (25.05) and led Tam to the team championship with 510.55 points. San Rafael was second with 461.65 and Novato was third with 438.90.

Some 128 girls from nine schools competed.

St. Vincent Gracious As A Cage Host

St. Vincnet proved to be a generous host at its own basketball tournament.

The Mustangs were held scoreless for the first six minutes last night and eventually lost to South Fork, 65-57, for thier second straight defeat in the fourth annual St. Vincent Invitational in Petaluma.

They were scheduled to play California School for the Deaf (Berkeley) today at 4:30 p.m. in the concluding round.

South Fork jumped out to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter before St. Vincent socred its initial points with 2:17 remaining. The Mustangs didn't hit a field goal until 24 seconds were left in the period — then they made three.

Rae Good paced South Fork. He scored 17 second half points to finish with a game-high 25 points.

Champ Redwood Takes Opener

Defending champion Redwood High School and 1974 challenger San Rafael opened the Marin County Athletic League swimming season with victories at home yesterday.

Redwood defeated Tamalpais, 94-72, and San Rafael subdued Drake, 122-25. San Marin was idle.

Terra Linda's meet at Novato was postponed because the temperature in Novato's pool had dipped to 62 degrees from the usual 78 or 80 because the pilot light on the heater had been blown out by high winds Wednesday and Thursday nights. The meet has not been rescheduled.

The pilot has been relit, and it was expected that the pool would heat up enough to allow today's MCAL Relays to be held.

Redwood's Matt Lager and Dve Russell and Tam's Dick Atwood each won two events and a relay yesterday. Lager's victories included the 500-yard freestyle (5:29.4), a new event this year, replacing the 400 free.

Sig Baerthel and Bob Placak participated in three victories each for San Rafael in its triumph over Drake.

This year's meets will be scored under a new system giving six points for a victory, four for second, three for third, two for fourth and one for fifth. Relays will be scored 8-4-2. The old system was 5-3-1 for individual races and 7-0 for relays.

Redskins Sign QB Of Future

Combined AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Joe Theismann, the former Notre Dame star who went to Canada instead of Miami, has come to the nation's capital and apparently will be the Washington Redskins' quarterback of the future.

With special permission from both the Canadian and National Football Leagues, the Redskins yesterday signed Theismann to a three-year contract for an undisclosed amount believed to be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

"I've missed playing in America," Theismann told a news conference.

Coach George Allen said the 24-year-old Theismann fits squarely into both the Redskins' present and future plans.

More Football

PHILADELPHIA — Former pro football star Johnny Sample remained in jail today without bond after a federal judge ordered a March 26 hearing on a government petition to revoke his three-year probation. Sample, 36, was placed on probation last March 19 by U.S. district judge Daniel H. Huyett III after he was convicted of cashing $7,400 in government checks stolen from the mails in 1971.

Huyett ruled yesterday that the government had shown probable cause for a full hearing on a petition to revoke the probation. The government maintained that Sample accepted $4,500 in stolen U.S. Treasury checks from two men shortly after his sentencing.

Tennis

BARCELONA, Spain — Top-seeded John Newcombe yesterday advanced to the finals of the $50,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Patricio Cornejo of Chile.

MIAMI — Second-seeded Tom Oker yesterday outlasted Mike Estep of Waco, Texas 7-6, 6-7, 7-6 in a two hour, 20-minute match and advanced to the semifinals in the Red Group of the $50,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament.

CHICAGO — Billie Jean King last night easily defeated Laura duPont 6-3, 6-2 to advance to the semi-finals of the $50,000 Women's Pro Tennis Circuit tournament.

Golf

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Laura Baugh yesterday shot a four-under-par 68 to take the first-round lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association's $30,000 Orange Blossom Classic tournament.

Bowling

MIAMI — Larry Laub of San Francisco yesterday totaled 9,564 pins for 42 games, including 30 bonus pins for each of 16 victories, to take first place in the final round of the $80,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

Swimming

BREMEN, Germany — America's Heather Greenwood yesterday set a world swimming record in the women's 800-meter freestyle with a time of 8:49.22 at the opening of an invitational swimming festival.

Baseball

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. — Larry Doyle, the second baseman on John McGraw's New York Giant team 60 years ago and winner of the National League batting crown in 1915, died yesterday at the age of 87.

Auto Racing

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — Cale Yarborough, given a second chance to qualify yesterday after NASCAR officials missed one of his first two laps, captured the pole position for tomorrow's Carolina 450 stock car race with a speed of 134.868 miles per hour.

Basketball

UNIONDALE, N.Y. — Wilt Chamberlain wasn't really lost, he knew where he was all the time.

Coach Chamberlain caught up with his American Basketball Association San Diego Conquistadors here last night after missing games in Virginia and Carolina this week. Chamberlain said he had been on a personal business trip.

RECORD 290 NOMINEES FOR DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Churchill Downs reported a record 290 nominations today for the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby.

The field includes Elmendorf Farm's Protagonirt, the top 2-year-old last year; Green Gambados, winner of the Fountain of Youth Stakes; and Cannonade, which scored an impressive victory here last fall in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes.

"We are gratified to have a record number of nominations for our Centennial Derby," said Downs President Lynn Stone.

"We hope that out of this group will come a horse that will rate with the great ones which have won the Derby."

The previous high for the 1¼ quarter mile classic came in 1972 when 258 were listed.

Warriors Confront Troublesome Games

OAKLAND (UPI) — It's been smooth sailing for the Golden State Warriors so far this week, but they are running into stormy weather this weekend.

Yesterday, Rick Barry, who has been playing with unmatched brilliance of late, learned he had been fined $1,000 by Commissioner Walter Kennedy for bumping a referee Feb. 9 at Cleveland.

Barry declined comment and said he would pay the fine, but coach Al Attles can only hope the fine doesn't throw the moody star off his game.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, the Warriors host powerful Chicago, a team that wears down the opposition physically win or lose.

And then the Warriors hurry to a Sunday encounter at Los Angeles where the Lakers closed to within one game of Golden State with a win last night over Kansas City-Omaha 107-100. The Lakers will be rested for that one while the Warriors won't and coach Bill Sharman of Los Angeles has already called the battle the Lakers' most important game so far this season.

On the plus side for the Warriors is the fact that while center Nate Thurmond is battling his arch injury, backup man George Johnson is blossoming into a star in his own right in the rebound and defense department.

"George triggered it," said coach Al Attles after Thursday's 128-109 win over Portland. "It was his defense that turned it around."

Said Cazzie Russell: "You watched the new Bill Russell out there tonight. Did you see the way he intimidated them?"

U.S. Defeated By Soviet Union In Track Meet

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union defeated the United States in their third annual indoor dual track meet today, overpowering the Americans in both the men's and women's events.

The Soviets defeated the United States 163-126 in the combined scoring, 89-72 in the men's competition and 74-54 in the women's.

The meet saw each side come up with a world indoor best performance—U.S. Army Lt. Thomas Hill in the 60-meter hurdles and Russia's Nadezhda Chizhova in the women's shot put. Miss Chizhova is the world record holder and Olympic champion.

The U. S. men took the 60-meter dash, the 60 hurdles, 400, and 1,500 meters but the Soviets ran away with most of the other events. It was pretty much the same story with the women.

Gagen Scores 36 In Church Cage

Player-coach Tom Gagen, the league's leading scorer, poured in 36 points last night to lead Dominican College (4-2) to a 76-66 victory over Valley Baptist Men in a Church League basketball game at Dominican.

Glenn Sherman scored 20 points for the losers. In another game, the Tiburon Baptist Boys (5-1) walloped Valley Baptist Boys, 63-37. Tiburon's Mike Johnson scored 16 points.

Giants' Training Camp Is Like Disaster Area

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants training camp is beginning to resemble a disaster area.

To date seven players have been felled by the flu plus batting coach Hank Sauer and assistant equipment man Mike Murphy.

Pitcher Jim Barr was hustled off to his bed yesterday when the virus struck him, too.

Meanwhile, manager Charlie Fox started to worry about when outfielders Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews will show up for their initial workout. Both are locked in a salary dispute and remain unsigned.

Maddox, who hit .319 last year, is seeking a $52,000 contract, which is $7,000 more than the Giants are offering, while Matthews, who hit an even .300 in 1973 and won National League Rookie of the Year honors, is looking for a boost from $17,000 to $40,000.

Tam Wrestler Ford To Seek Third Place

HAYWARD — Greg Ford of Tamalpais High School returned here today with a chance for third place in the state wrestling tournament at Cal State University, Hayward.

Ford, a 114-pounder, was to wrestle his first match at 11 a.m. and faced the possibility of two other matches, including the battle for third place sometime between 6:30 and 7:15 p.m.

Yesterday, Ford defeated his first two opponents before suffering a 12-6 loss to Brad Morton from Mira Costa High of Manhattan Beach. He injured his shoulder in the match, according to coach Jim Smith, but was expected to be "all right today."

Ford won his opener from Andy Gonzales of Yerba Buena, 3-2, and followed up by manhandling Hewey Raso of Lodi, 12-2.

St. Vincent Gracious As A Cage Host

St. Vincnet proved to be a generous host at its own basketball tournament.

The Mustangs were held scoreless for the first six minutes last night and eventually lost to South Fork, 65-57, for thier second straight defeat in the fourth annual St. Vincent Invitational in Petaluma.

They were scheduled to play California School for the Deaf (Berkeley) today at 4:30 p.m. in the concluding round.

South Fork jumped out to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter before St. Vincent socred its initial points with 2:17 remaining. The Mustangs didn't hit a field goal until 24 seconds were left in the period — then they made three.

Rae Good paced South Fork. He scored 17 second half points to finish with a game-high 25 points.

Champ Redwood Takes Opener

Defending champion Redwood High School and 1974 challenger San Rafael opened the Marin County Athletic League swimming season with victories at home yesterday.

Redwood defeated Tamalpais, 94-72, and San Rafael subdued Drake, 122-25. San Marin was idle.

Terra Linda's meet at Novato was postponed because the temperature in Novato's pool had dipped to 62 degrees from the usual 78 or 80 because the pilot light on the heater had been blown out by high winds Wednesday and Thursday nights. The meet has not been rescheduled.

The pilot has been relit, and it was expected that the pool would heat up enough to allow today's MCAL Relays to be held.

Redwood's Matt Lager and Dve Russell and Tam's Dick Atwood each won two events and a relay yesterday. Lager's victories included the 500-yard freestyle (5:29.4), a new event this year, replacing the 400 free.

Sig Baerthel and Bob Placak participated in three victories each for San Rafael in its triumph over Drake.

This year's meets will be scored under a new system giving six points for a victory, four for second, three for third, two for fourth and one for fifth. Relays will be scored 8-4-2. The old system was 5-3-1 for individual races and 7-0 for relays.

BOWLING NOTES

Smaller Field For Tournament

About a 15 per cent reduction in participation can be expected for the Marin County Bowling Association's 26th annual Association Tournament at Nave and Greenbrae Lanes.

There are 90 entries in the team event at Greenbrae, according to Harold Kwan, tournament director. At Nave Lanes in Ignacio, 290 will compete in the singles and 145 tandems in the doubles.

Last year's figures showed: 100 in teams, 165 in doubles and 330 in singles.

Squad times are: 7 p.m. tonight; 12:30, 3 and 6:30 p.m. tomorrow; 7 p.m. next Saturday; and 12:30, 3 and 6:30 p.m. next Sunday.

DONATION TIME. The Marin County Bowling associations are beginning a blood donation drive starting Monday.

This five-day effort also enables bowlers to have a blood bank for members of the associations or their immediate families. Bowlers can sign up with their team captains in the individual leagues. They can give blood to the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank at their own convenience after signing up. The signup drive ends Friday.

It is co-sponsored by the Marin County Men's Bowling Association and the Marin County Women's Bowling Association.

GOOD SHOW. Frank Holminski, who owns a 154 average, Wednesday night bowled a 648 series. He had games of 246, 185 and 217 in the Bankers League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. He averaged 216 per game.

NEXT STOP — Eureka. Jim McKenna and the Cedars Development Foundation team are among the 27 bowlers who qualified for the District III tournament of the California Association for the Retarded.

McKenna of Terra Linda was first in the Top Classic division of the Marin Aid to Retarded Children bowling tourney at Country Club Bowl. He had a three-game handicap score of 610.

Craig Dunlap, Bill Kimmel, Brian Grady, Nancy Stanfill and Lucie Garcia combined for a 2,611 pin total to win the team portion for Cedars.

Eighty-three Marin Aid members bowled Monday. Winners advanced to the District III tourney March 16 in Eureka.

GREENBRAE LANES

Marin Rains Wash Out Sports Season Openers

The Marin winter rains, mysteriously absent for the previous month, returned yesterday to wash out several season-opening high school sports events.

The Marin County Athletic League Relays in track and field, scheduled for today, were postponed until next Saturday at 11 a.m. at College of Marin.

San Rafael High School's baseball game against Galileo in San Francisco, Redwood's contest at San Leandro and Terra Linda's game against Berkeley at Albert Field were rained out, as is Terra Linda's game today with Oakland Tech.

Reschedulings call for Terra Linda to play Oakland Tech at Bushrod Park Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. and Berkeley at Albert Thursday at 3:30 p.m. Redwood will visit San Leandro Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

College of Marin's doubleheader with Shasta College scheduled yesterday also was washed out, and has not yet been rescheduled.

BOWLING NOTES

Smaller Field For Tournament

About a 15 per cent reduction in participation can be expected for the Marin County Bowling Association's 26th annual Association Tournament at Nave and Greenbrae Lanes.

There are 90 entries in the team event at Greenbrae, according to Harold Kwan, tournament director. At Nave Lanes in Ignacio, 290 will compete in the singles and 145 tandems in the doubles.

Last year's figures showed: 100 in teams, 165 in doubles and 330 in singles.

Squad times are: 7 p.m. tonight; 12:30, 3 and 6:30 p.m. tomorrow; 7 p.m. next Saturday; and 12:30, 3 and 6:30 p.m. next Sunday.

DONATION TIME. The Marin County Bowling associations are beginning a blood donation drive starting Monday.

This five-day effort also enables bowlers to have a blood bank for members of the associations or their immediate families. Bowlers can sign up with their team captains in the individual leagues. They can give blood to the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank at their own convenience after signing up. The signup drive ends Friday.

It is co-sponsored by the Marin County Men's Bowling Association and the Marin County Women's Bowling Association.

GOOD SHOW. Frank Holminski, who owns a 154 average, Wednesday night bowled a 648 series. He had games of 246, 185 and 217 in the Bankers League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. He averaged 216 per game.

NEXT STOP — Eureka. Jim McKenna and the Cedars Development Foundation team are among the 27 bowlers who qualified for the District III tournament of the California Association for the Retarded.

McKenna of Terra Linda was first in the Top Classic division of the Marin Aid to Retarded Children bowling tourney at Country Club Bowl. He had a three-game handicap score of 610.

Craig Dunlap, Bill Kimmel, Brian Grady, Nancy Stanfill and Lucie Garcia combined for a 2,611 pin total to win the team portion for Cedars.

Eighty-three Marin Aid members bowled Monday. Winners advanced to the District III tourney March 16 in Eureka.

Marin Rains Wash Out Sports Season Openers

The Marin winter rains, mysteriously absent for the previous month, returned yesterday to wash out several season-opening high school sports events.

The Marin County Athletic League Relays in track and field, scheduled for today, were postponed until next Saturday at 11 a.m. at College of Marin.

San Rafael High School's baseball game against Galileo in San Francisco, Redwood's contest at San Leandro and Terra Linda's game against Berkeley at Albert Field were rained out, as is Terra Linda's game today with Oakland Tech.

Reschedulings call for Terra Linda to play Oakland Tech at Bushrod Park Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. and Berkeley at Albert Thursday at 3:30 p.m. Redwood will visit San Leandro Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

College of Marin's doubleheader with Shasta College scheduled yesterday also was washed out, and has not yet been rescheduled.

Jets Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Jets became the first American Football League team to win the Super Bowl when the Jets downed the Baltimore Colts 16-7 on Jan. 12, 1969.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

No Set Direction In Market Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks moved aimlessly on the New York Stock Exchange this week, with nervous profit taking partially offsetting a flow of favorable Middle East news.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 4. 7 to 851.92. The decline cut short a two-week climb of nearly 60 points in the Dow in response to rising hopes for a quick end to the Arab oil embargo. The week's Middle East peace trip by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger produced numerous events to encourage those hopes, but by mid-week, the market's lackluster performance suggested most of the good Middle East news already had been discounted by Wall Street.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped 0.14 to 95.39. The NYSE index moved 0.23 higher to 51.00.

Advances led declines, 1,080 to 598, among the 1,985 issues traded.

With institutions still largely on the sidelines, volume totaled 74,041,650 shares, compared with 57,909,430 a week earlier, and with 85,877,410 the year before.

The week's light volume figures, as well as the encouraging breadth figures, suggest the individual trader, as against the institutional money manager, has been minding the market for the past few weeks. The danger here, according to some analysts, is the public has been inclined lately to buy on the basis of transitory concepts, rather than corporate soundness. When such "concepts" fall out of vogue, stocks that rose on that basis may drop like a bomb.

In recent weeks, for example, "natural resource" stocks involved in the mining of nonferrous metals and other earth resources have risen on the rationale they represent a hedge against inflation. This week, such stocks as Kennecott, Anaconda, Callahan Mining, Newmont Mining, Phelps Dodge, and International Mining were point-sized losers in profit taking. Nonetheless, the concept of "inflation hedge" has so far kept these stocks at exceptionally high levels.

A more extreme case of "concept buying" has taken the gold mining group to levels double and triple that of a year ago. The primary reason for this group's rise is similar to the natural resource group. In a time of inflation, and worldwide monetary uncertainty, people gravitate to precious metals and other earth resources.

"The basic conditions that took gold stocks up all these months, particularly inflation, remain in force," analyst Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp. said. "Some correction may be due, but in the long term, gold stocks still have fundamental support."

Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co. disagreed. "The handwriting is on the wall," he said. "All gold stock technicians I know are recommending selling."

The gold bubble may not have burst yet, but stocks in the group were hit hard this week in profit taking. Dome Mines fell 7 1-2, ASA Ltd. 6 5-8, Homestake Mining 6 1-8, and Campbell Red Lake 3 ⅛.

The standout gainers on the Big Board were glamors and special situation stocks. In the glamor group, Burroughs climbed 15 ⅛, Mountain Fuel Supply 9 1-8, Digital Equipment

WEEK IN BUSINESS

No Set Direction In Market Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks moved aimlessly on the New York Stock Exchange this week, with nervous profit taking partially offsetting a flow of favorable Middle East news.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 4. 7 to 851.92. The decline cut short a two-week climb of nearly 60 points in the Dow in response to rising hopes for a quick end to the Arab oil embargo. The week's Middle East peace trip by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger produced numerous events to encourage those hopes, but by mid-week, the market's lackluster performance suggested most of the good Middle East news already had been discounted by Wall Street.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped 0.14 to 95.39. The NYSE index moved 0.23 higher to 51.00.

Advances led declines, 1,080 to 598, among the 1,985 issues traded.

With institutions still largely on the sidelines, volume totaled 74,041,650 shares, compared with 57,909,430 a week earlier, and with 85,877,410 the year before.

The week's light volume figures, as well as the encouraging breadth figures, suggest the individual trader, as against the institutional money manager, has been minding the market for the past few weeks. The danger here, according to some analysts, is the public has been inclined lately to buy on the basis of transitory concepts, rather than corporate soundness. When such "concepts" fall out of vogue, stocks that rose on that basis may drop like a bomb.

In recent weeks, for example, "natural resource" stocks involved in the mining of nonferrous metals and other earth resources have risen on the rationale they represent a hedge against inflation. This week, such stocks as Kennecott, Anaconda, Callahan Mining, Newmont Mining, Phelps Dodge, and International Mining were point-sized losers in profit taking. Nonetheless, the concept of "inflation hedge" has so far kept these stocks at exceptionally high levels.

A more extreme case of "concept buying" has taken the gold mining group to levels double and triple that of a year ago. The primary reason for this group's rise is similar to the natural resource group. In a time of inflation, and worldwide monetary uncertainty, people gravitate to precious metals and other earth resources.

"The basic conditions that took gold stocks up all these months, particularly inflation, remain in force," analyst Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp. said. "Some correction may be due, but in the long term, gold stocks still have fundamental support."

Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co. disagreed. "The handwriting is on the wall," he said. "All gold stock technicians I know are recommending selling."

The gold bubble may not have burst yet, but stocks in the group were hit hard this week in profit taking. Dome Mines fell 7 1-2, ASA Ltd. 6 5-8, Homestake Mining 6 1-8, and Campbell Red Lake 3 ⅛.

The standout gainers on the Big Board were glamors and special situation stocks. In the glamor group, Burroughs climbed 15 ⅛, Mountain Fuel Supply 9 1-8, Digital Equipment

MUTUAL FUNDS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Weekly Investing Companies showing the high, low, closing bid prices and net change from last week's close as quoted by the NASD Inc.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

5 ¾, and Upjohn 4 3-4.

Squibb rose 5 3-8. The company's directors recommended a two-for-one stock split pending shareholder approval.

Most major market groups yielded mixed results this week, and the net changes were modest.

The oil and oil field service group got a lift early in the week from news Kissinger had paved the way for troop disengagement talks between Syria and Israel, and from word the United States and Egypt were resuming full diplomatic relations after a seven-year rift. Both developments were seen as important steps in ending the oil embargo.

But the group turned mixed by the weekend, with investors concerned by a threatened "reorganization" by the Saudi Arabians of Arab-American oil production. In addition, election gains by the British Labor party posed the threat of nationalization to companies involved in North Sea oil exploration.

Watergate reimposed itself on the market yesterday, with special prosecutor Leon Jaworski announcing the indictment of most of the major Watergate figures. Larry Goldstein, portfolio manager of the Burnham Fund believes the issue still is a potent one on Wall Street, and could grow in importance.

Analyst Newton Zinder of E. F. Hutton said, on the other hand, "Watergate has been eaten, chewed and digested already."

As the market declined in the last two trading days this week, there also was some speculation the Federal Reserve may be considering a reversal of its current easier monetary policies because of rising inflation.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

No Set Direction In Market Trading

5 ¾, and Upjohn 4 3-4.

Squibb rose 5 3-8. The company's directors recommended a two-for-one stock split pending shareholder approval.

Most major market groups yielded mixed results this week, and the net changes were modest.

The oil and oil field service group got a lift early in the week from news Kissinger had paved the way for troop disengagement talks between Syria and Israel, and from word the United States and Egypt were resuming full diplomatic relations after a seven-year rift. Both developments were seen as important steps in ending the oil embargo.

But the group turned mixed by the weekend, with investors concerned by a threatened "reorganization" by the Saudi Arabians of Arab-American oil production. In addition, election gains by the British Labor party posed the threat of nationalization to companies involved in North Sea oil exploration.

Watergate reimposed itself on the market yesterday, with special prosecutor Leon Jaworski announcing the indictment of most of the major Watergate figures. Larry Goldstein, portfolio manager of the Burnham Fund believes the issue still is a potent one on Wall Street, and could grow in importance.

Analyst Newton Zinder of E. F. Hutton said, on the other hand, "Watergate has been eaten, chewed and digested already."

As the market declined in the last two trading days this week, there also was some speculation the Federal Reserve may be considering a reversal of its current easier monetary policies because of rising inflation.

WATERGATE WEST

Voters of Fairfax;

Many of us will soon be voting for Council candidates to represent us for the next four years.

This letter is not written as a last minute political ploy, but to bring to the public's attention the arrogant abuse of power last Monday night by the present Council majority when they refused to show up for a scheduled adjourned public meeting for the selection of a planning consultant. Present on February 25th were the two minority councilmen, Town staff (including Town Attorney), also an Independent-Journal reporter assigned to cover Fairfax news, and a sizeable audience. Why did the BIG THREE stay away? "Mayor" Ross Parkerson has been regularly absent, so that was no surprise. In the case of Frank Egger, all I can surmise is that Frank Egger didn't want to be in a position to vote for a $50,000 planning consultant before the election when the $30,000 consultant was reported to be equally qualified.

While on the subject of "Mayor" Parkerson's absences, why should he be allowed to resign when he feels like it? He should have left office the day he allegedly moved out of town, which was several months ago, as reported in the Independent-Journal. To my knowledge he still draws Councilman's pay, a fraud against the taxpayers of Fairfax — and until he ceased attending Council meetings he was making decisions for Fairfax citizens, that he no longer represented, with the legality of his residency in question. By not resigning when he should have, he denied the Fairfax voters an opportunity to select a fourth candidate at the March 5th election. Now the Town of Fairfax faces the expense of a special election OR another BIG THREE coalition which will be able to fill the vacancy by appointment, making it FOUR OF A KIND, if not a full house!

As a citizen, taxpayer and businessman of Fairfax, I have been disillusioned by Frank Egger's consistent lack of integrity. In the sample ballot he lists his occupation as "Incumbent Councilman" and "Coastal Commissioner". He draws $350 pay for these jobs. Why is he hiding his actual occupation, a bread truck driver? Is he trying to say his occupation is demeaning?

By now you have all probably received Egger's political flyer. This time his campaign issue isn't "I voted against Councilman's pay". He consistently opposed that and let the voters know about it as long as there were three votes to support and maintain it. (Yet, interestingly, he never refused the money.) At the last budget session when Egger had to cast the deciding vote on the pay issue, he suddenly changed his mind and felt the pay was justified.

We were all made award of Frank's personal philosophy in the recent Independent-Journal article, but some of you may have forgotten that the article brought to light Egger's intention to get into the Public Employees Retirement System and make his membership retroactive to the time he went on the Town payroll. We taxpayers will be forced to pay half of that retirement fund cost.

Egger says, in his campaign literature, that he has "improved police and fire protection". Has he? By supporting the ridiculous "Stickney Plan" back in 1968, he set better fire and police facilities back 5 years. He did not support the recent bond issue for new fire-police facilities, though he was good enough to cast the fourth vote needed to put the issue on the ballot.

Have you noted that Egger has "fought against" concrete ditches since 1964? He leads you to think Fairfax is next for concrete ditches. It isn't and never will be — since 1965, when San Anselmo and Fairfax were excluded from the Flood Control District, except for maintenance costs.

Did you note the pictures of early Fairfax in Egger's political flyer? Certainly nostalgic for some old-timers in town, but there has been some positive improvement. We've made the progress which Egger wants to stop. At least it sounds good for getting votes, and if he isn't re-elected he loses his $350 the taxpayers pay him.

Are you aware that he voted for the rezoning of Buon Gusto to multiple dwelling? Now he's telling people that he'll STOP THAT.

Egger claims he has fought long to preserve the Elliot property as open space. Why?? In view of reports that the land is not even developable. Do you, the taxpayers, in view of this want to assume a fiscal obligation that could be in excess of $150,000.00.

Does Egger know that there are other issues in Town that people are concerned about? If so he doesn't mention them, so who knows where he stands? For example, there is the commercial zoning for Central School proposed by his supporters on the Fairfax School Board. (Note in his list of names those of Truchan, Hermann and Durr.) If he supports them, that will mean development downtown. He avoids this issue, but the TOWN MERCHANTS and BUSINESSMEN are concerned about it.

THE DECISION IS YOURS. It is unfortunate that this letter has to be written, but recent events by the majority Council and Egger's misleading political philosophies necessitates getting the facts to you, the voters of Fairfax, in this fashion.

Sincerely,

Edward T. Duncan

THE LAST WORD

Trials Of A Tax Accountant's Wife Are Four-Month Ordeal

By JOAN LISETOR

Remember a few months back when all you heard from people was, "Well, after the holidays. . ."

That has passed and life has gotten back to normal for most of us. Most — not all. Consider the professional sub-culture of certified public accountants and their families, who from January through April lament, "Well, after the tax season. . ."

"It's been so bad in past years that this year my husband took me to Hawaii for a week to prepare me for the worst," said one tax accountant's wife, who asked to remain nameless. One year he took her on a trip after tax season and she came down with German measles, she said.

"We look forward to Memorial Day weekend," said Cheryl Miller of San Rafael, who added that after six years "you just fall into it, and do the best you can."

When you don't see your husband from 6 a.m. to midnight and rarely on Saturdays, you find ways to keep busy, she said. With three small children she doesn't have to find too many outside things to do.

"IT'S A different time of year all right," said Sue Shirley of Greenbrae. Her four young children get to stay up later to get at least a glimpse of their father. Mrs. Shirley is an expert on meals that can be served at dinner time to the children and warmed up later, so she can eat with her husband when he gets home. So, it's lots of stews, casseroles and quick broiled foods for the Shirleys from January to April.

Sue Shirley said she also plunges herself into sewing and reading.

"By the 15th of April every year I find my wardrobe has increased considerably," she said. "And I also find I buy more," she commented.

"In what other profession do you shift into a six-day week from January to April?" asked Barbara Martin of San Rafael.

Her husband does as much of his tax work at home as he can.

"We cut back on our social lives during tax time, but often I'm getting ready to go out on a Saturday night and end up waiting for him because he's on the telephone with a client," she said.

She has kept herself busy this year painting their bedrooms.

Last year "when it was all over" her husband took her to Europe.

"So you know where we are going to be this year — at home," she said.

SUSAN DONALDSON of Mill Valley said that after nine years it doesn't do any good to nag during tax time. She has gotten used to eating meals with her children, which makes the cooking much easier.

"It is a good time to catch up on hobbies and a project that your husband's not too keen on," she said, and she writes a lot of letters and reads many books.

If a woman goes to night meetings often, it means a babysitter, and that can be rough on a budget, she said.

"It's the kids that suffer. They don't see their Daddy," said Deanne Mundy of Larkspur, "but it doesn't change my life style because it has never been any different."

It is a relief to have a little time to herself, she said, and she always saves volunteer projects for tax time. She catches up on her ironing, reads and talks to friends she doesn't have time for other times in the year.

COOKING MEANS either one big casserole that can be reheated or a little dinner for the kids with something special and candlelight when her husband gets home.

In the past the Mundys have taken trips to Carmel and to the U.S. Open Golf Tournament after the tax rush.

"This year my husband is talking about going somewhere," she said.

Then there is the tax accountant's wife whose husband used to take her out for a romantic evening every April, until she put a stop to it because every year for five years she had a baby each December.

Diane-Lee Shulz's Engagement Told

DIANE SCHULZ
To be bride

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Schulz have announced the engagement of their daughter Diane Lea Schulz to Brian Paul Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Scott, all of Novato.

Diane is the sister of Daniel, Beth and Kristen Schulz, also of Novato. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sirpless of Sterling Park, Va., and Mrs. A. L. Schulz of Minneapolis, Minn.

She was graduated from San Marin High School and is a volunteer at Novato General Hospital.

Brian is the brother of Bruce and Craig Scott of Novato and Mrs. Wayne Cole of Vallejo. Mrs. Herbert O. Yohner of Vallejo is his grandmother.

The future bridegroom was graduated from Novato High School and attended the College of Alameda. He is employed at Safeway distribution center in Richmond.

The couple plans a June wedding.

BLIND FOR YEAR

Diabetes Doesn't Stop One Woman

By BARBARA HOSMER

Because of lifelong diabetes, Bobbie Ferguson of Santa Venetia lived blind for a year and has had to have her right leg amputated at the knee.

"I'm very shy — about a foot!" she quips about it to put a newcomer at ease. Far from shy, Mrs. Ferguson spends at least one day a week working in the office of the Marin Diabetes Association typing and reassuring others, has taken field trips with her 10-year-old daughter Bobbie's class from McPhail School, entertains her friends at lunch and poker sessions — "sometimes we even play cards" —and this week went bowling for the first time since the amputation.

Her yellow Pinto with its special left pedal control is parked outside the Diabetes Association office at 9 Ross Valley Drive, San Rafael, every Tuesday, and oftener when there is a need for her expert typing skills. Mrs. Ferguson was a medical secretary in radiology at the University of California Medical Center for 10 years.

NOW SHE IS in a continuing research study there — the only "success" from a very experimental operation, freezing the pituitary gland to restore sight, performed eight years ago.

Diabetic since childhood and giving herself daily insulin injections since she was 8, Bobbie Ferguson began to get an eyesight into the complication common to diabetics when she was 33. Hemorrhaging began in one eye. It cleared up and another one occurred. She became increasingly blind.

"I COULDN'T read the letter E on the chart," she said. "I was reconciled to not having sight." Her adopted daughter, Bobbie, was 3 then, and Mrs. Ferguson and her husband Ed had taken out papers for a second adopted baby, "but I thought then it wouldn't be fair to have another child.

"My daughter was just great, fetching me things and saying 'Here, Mommy.' I listened to classical music, which was a comfort and I heard things in it I had never heard before. And the neighborhood teen-agers would come and play guitar and play Password with me — they were great."

Then Dr. Peter Forsham of University of California Medical Center told her of a very experimental operation — only two others had been tried — but chances were her sight would not return.

Gutsy since childhood days when first given an insulin syringe and told to practice on an orange and she immediately tried it on herself instead, Bobbie Ferguson said, "Do it."

Called cryohypophesectomy, only about 10 of the operations were ever tried. "They've stopped doing them. I'm their only success," she said.

"I WAS AWAKE throughout the six to eight hour operation and talked continuously," she explained. "My head was in a vice, and they put a probe through the nostril to the brain, and shot liquid nitrogen in to freeze the pituitary gland. It felt like the worst headache a person could have. They wanted me to count or talk constantly because it was very close to the optic nerve and they had to see any reaction."

Anesthetic swabs were put through her nose.

"They kept taking wet X-rays of the brain to see how far the probe had gone. I had to meet everybody during it all because it was an experimental operation and medical people kept coming in to hold my hand and talk. I could hear the liquid swishing — the nitrogen."

"It's over," the doctor finally told her. "What did I have — a boy or girl?" she joked. Afterward her husband told her her head was huge. "I wanted a mirror to see," she remembers. The result was that gradually her sight returned.

BOBBIE FERGUSON now has normal sight but no natural hormones in her body, since her pituitary gland was frozen. She has to take hormones plus her insulin daily, all in carefully measured levels. Bobbie's response: "It takes longer to make coffee than to take that."

DIABETIC SINCE birth, Bobbie Ferguson of Santa Venetia was blind for a year and has had her right leg amputated at the knee because of diabetes-related complications. Now she happily devotes at least one day a week volunteering at the Marin County Diabetes Association office in San Rafael, using her medical secretary training and brightening the office with her humor. She is counted the only success from an experimental operation which restored her sight.

After the operation her insulin need dropped from 65 units to 20 "overnight". "The glucose in my system was knocked out. It was a miracle," she says.

She has had one more eye hemorrhage, last March, but in two weeks it cleared up.

But two years ago severe leg pains occurred. Her vessels were narrowing. Another operation removed the sympathetic nerves in stomach, and most of the pain ceased.

Then Mrs. Ferguson experienced an ingrown toenail but could feel no pain from it. Her toe had to be removed.

"They told me on a Friday while I was still in the hospital that Monday they would have to amputate my leg. Gangrene had set in. I didn't react — I was more worried about my hair, which needed washing and was stringing down like in "The Snake Pit," she recalled with a laugh. "I just couldn't react."

"I WAS AWAKE for that one, too. I told them I didn't want to miss a meal! On the gurney going into the operating room I started into diabetic shock and had to have insulin.

"I'm not being brave being awake," she said of the operations. "I like to know what's going on around me and have conversation with the people." Her right leg was amputated at the knee a year ago October.

In the hospital she had her artificial leg fitted.

"I had the will to walk, and I got up and walked on it.

"I walked that New Year's Eve — into a party and my friends were crying," she said.

Last March she got her little yellow Pinto and it was equipped with the special pedal she needs, a gift from friends.

"I got started driving in April and put 7,000 miles on it. Since then I have had a few weeks of infections and had to put my leg up and sit. That was the worst time."

MRS. FERGUSON recognizes that she has a very brittle form of diabetes that is hard to control. She must be very careful with all her medication levels and levels of food intake.

"My daughter has become very sophisticated about diabetes now, too,'" she said. "My diabetes condition resulted in complications later than some people. I had no known diabetes in my family, but all Dad's family had hardening of the arteries early."

Mrs. Ferguson credits her love of exercise throughout her life with giving her strength to recover from her complications.

"I always loved to play volleyball, baseball, bowl and I ran and played on the sand a lot growing up in Hawaii. I get as much exercise as I can." She likes to do a lot of walking, which she does with a slight limp now.

ADULTS ARE THE ones who become awkward about her artificial leg, she finds. Children are natural and she enjoys showing it to them. "Look, you can hardly tell the difference," She said, extending both legs from an office chair at the diabetes association.

"But when I get down on the floor in the kitchen, I do everything I have to while I'm down there — even crawl to another room — because it's hard to get back up," she remarked with a laugh.

It must be very hard for veterans with amputations who do not even have something like diabetes to cause them, she mused.

Mrs. Ferguson will speak at a diabetes association meeting March 18 at 8 p.m. at Redwood High School on her podiatry experiences.

Exhibit Designer Will Be On 'Jorie Talks'

Bruce Collins of San Anselmo, who is designing a massive 20th Century California exhibit for the Oakland Museum, will be interviewed Tuesday and Wednesday on "Jorie Talks" at 9:30 a.m. on KTIM.

The exhibit is expected to be completed by summer.

Monday the show's host, Jorie Parr, will interview Michelle Truffaut, director of the "Drunkard," currently playing at the Great Store in San Rafael.

Tap dancer David Silverman will be interviewed on Friday. He is in the College of Marin production "The Boyfriend," which will open March 15.

Disc jockey Jerry Thompson will sit in for Mrs. Parr on Thursday for a live interview with Reid Cruickshanks, television and movie actor turned recording artist.

Course In Dance Therapy Is Set

Martha Nastich of Monte Rio will teach a 10-week course, "Approaches to Dance Therapy," beginning Thursday at 7 p.m., in the Quiet Lounge at Sonoma State College.

The dance teacher, also a movement therapist, has taught at Sonoma State, other Bay Area colleges and mental health clinics and state hospitals in Northern California.

No previous dance experience is necessary to take the course, according to Miss Nastich, who is a member of the American Dance Therapy Association.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Shakespeare Plans Will Be Revealed

By MOLLY MARIN

Plans for the Marin Shakespeare Festival's 1974 season will be announced next Saturday evening at a party from 6 to 8 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Alan Jarach in San Rafael.

The festival's return to Marin has long been rumored, but plans were not completed until recently. Jim Frush, president of the board of directors, will make the announcement.

Entertainment will be provided by the Tamalpais Trio, Jerry Leclerc, Dan Levintow and Mary Setrakian, members of the Orchestra Piccola. Madrigal singers from Novato High School will also perform.

Strolling minstrels and serving wenches will lend a Shakespearean atmosphere to the party, which has been arranged by Mrs. Lauro Quiros of San Rafael, a member of the board of directors.

THE JARACHS' home was the location last night for the reception following the Gertrude Shenson Gruenberg memorial concert at Dominican College.

Former students of the late Mrs. Gruenberg, chairman of the college's voice department, sang at the concert to raise funds to establish a memorial scholarship fund. Patrons of the concert attended the champagne reception.

A RECEPTION to honor Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Usher will be given at the Mill Valley Public Library from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. tomorrow. Usher is the new Mill Valley city manager. The plans have been made by the city council members for the party.

KYUNG SOO Kim of Tonduchon, Korea, is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Fletcher of Mill Valley. She is the fiancee of their son, Thomas Samuel Fletcher.

Plans are being made for the pair to marry on March 30 in Mill Valley. The romance began when Thomas was stationed in Korea with the Army in 1972. The bride-elect is the daughter of Ok Soon Kim, her mother, and Young Sok Kim, her father, of Korea.

REV. JOHN Thornton of Belvedere Lagoon and his 12-year-old son flew to Tel Aviv on Feb. 25 for a two-week visit to the Holy Land where they will "follow in Christ's footsteps, going where He went," according to Mrs. Thornton.

Rector of St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere, Reverend Thornton's trip was a gift from a parishioner, she said.

Mitzie Thornton gave her ticket to her son because "Johnny is at a great age to appreciate the trip and being with his father," she said.

DR. AND MRS. Jerome Oremland of Sausalito are home after a 10-day stay in Utah.

Dr. Oremland lectured on community mental health at hospitals in Salt Lake City. Then they took time out for some skiing. They were accompanied by their children, Cici, Noah and Annalisa.

MR. AND MRS. Roy Johnston of the Marin Country Club Estates returned home from Palm Springs following a two-week stay as houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cowen at the Sandpiper at Indian Wells Golf Course, where they attended the Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament.

On the Johnstons' return, they met Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Ralph Patterson, also of the Country Club, at Banning on the Pattersons' return from a fishing trip to Mexico.

Boss Of The Year Selection Is Made

Marvin Miller, manager of the Terra Linda Branch of the Bank of America, has been named Boss of the Year by the Marin Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

Miller and his family live in Terra Linda, where they moved three years ago from Redding. Miller was nominated by Mabel Hanson of the club, a Bank of America employee. Wanda Hosford presented the award to Miller in behalf of the chapter

Cooking Times

The public cooking demonstrations Tuesday and March 14 sponsored by Marin Panhellenic Association will be held at 11 a.m., not 11:30 a.m. as previously announced by Betty Celia, president. The classes will be held by chef Claude Collomb at Maurice and Charles Bistrot in San Rafael.

ON THE AGENDA

Art Festival With Wine And Cheese Tasting Is Scheduled

Don Timoteo School Club will have an art festival and wine and cheese tasting Friday from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Marinwood Community Center. Chairmen are Mmes. Kenneth B. Howard and Joseph D. Dahlman of San Rafael.

Paintings and craft work by local artists will be on display and for sale. The mixed media collection will include mono prints, woodcuts, abstracts, landscapes, macrame, seascapes, batik and traditional watercolors. Artists are members of the Marin Society of Artists, Terra Linda Art Association and the National League of American Pen Women.

Mrs. Flint Thorne of San Rafael has arranged the art exhibit, and tickets chairman is Mrs. Bernadette Kelleher of San Rafael.

WALDO ERICSON, a longtime railroad man, will speak on "Trains and Ferryboats" at Old St. Hilary's Landmark Museum in Tiburon on Monday at 10 a.m.

The talk on Peter Donahue's railroad and ferry boat lines' influence on the peninsula is the fourth in the Landmark Society's docent program series and is open to the public, according to program director Mrs. Malcolm Powell.

SAN FRANCISCO Yacht Club Women's Auxiliary will sponsor a training program of sailing lessons for members and guests on five consecutive Mondays from 9 a.m to 2 p.m. in Belvedere Cove beginning March 4.

The El Toro program will cover elementary skills for beginners as well as intermediate training including racing in eight-foot sailing dinghies.

Students will sail alone while experienced club yachtswomen give instruction from crashboats nearby.

A prerequisite to the Rhodes 19 intermediate and advanced courses, the El Toro course is coordinated by Mrs. William Armor and Mrs. Bruce Jacobs who is head instructor. Other instructors are Mmes. James McCray, Ted Goldbeck, Joe Knowles, Wayne Cliff and Kenneth Frost Jr.

TWO BOOKS dealing with England in the Fifth Century will be reviewed by Mrs. Robert Andersen at the meeting Thursday at 1:30 p.m. of the Literary Section of the Outdoor Art Club at the clubhouse in Mill Valley.

The historical novels, both by Mary Stewart, are "The Hollow Hill" and "The Crystal Cave."

The program is for club members and their guests. Tea will be served following the presentation.

THE ANNUAL awards dinner for Alpha Lambda Chapter of Kappa Phi Sigma Sorority will be held at Tortola Restaurant in San Rafael at 7 p.m. Thursday.

The Ritual of Roses initiation ceremony will be held. Pledges being initiated are Mmes. Ken Biss, William McGovern and Hal Mays. Athenian degrees will be awarded to Mmes. William Compton and Ed Wallace. The Athenian degrees are awarded to members who have been in the sorority for five years.

THE LAST WORD

Trials Of A Tax Accountant's Wife Are Four-Month Ordeal

By JOAN LISETOR

Remember a few months back when all you heard from people was, "Well, after the holidays. . ."

That has passed and life has gotten back to normal for most of us. Most — not all. Consider the professional sub-culture of certified public accountants and their families, who from January through April lament, "Well, after the tax season. . ."

"It's been so bad in past years that this year my husband took me to Hawaii for a week to prepare me for the worst," said one tax accountant's wife, who asked to remain nameless. One year he took her on a trip after tax season and she came down with German measles, she said.

"We look forward to Memorial Day weekend," said Cheryl Miller of San Rafael, who added that after six years "you just fall into it, and do the best you can."

When you don't see your husband from 6 a.m. to midnight and rarely on Saturdays, you find ways to keep busy, she said. With three small children she doesn't have to find too many outside things to do.

"IT'S A different time of year all right," said Sue Shirley of Greenbrae. Her four young children get to stay up later to get at least a glimpse of their father. Mrs. Shirley is an expert on meals that can be served at dinner time to the children and warmed up later, so she can eat with her husband when he gets home. So, it's lots of stews, casseroles and quick broiled foods for the Shirleys from January to April.

Sue Shirley said she also plunges herself into sewing and reading.

"By the 15th of April every year I find my wardrobe has increased considerably," she said. "And I also find I buy more," she commented.

"In what other profession do you shift into a six-day week from January to April?" asked Barbara Martin of San Rafael.

Her husband does as much of his tax work at home as he can.

"We cut back on our social lives during tax time, but often I'm getting ready to go out on a Saturday night and end up waiting for him because he's on the telephone with a client," she said.

She has kept herself busy this year painting their bedrooms. Last year "when it was all over" her husband took her to Europe.

"So you know where we are going to be this year — at home," she said.

SUSAN DONALDSON of Mill Valley said that after nine years it doesn't do any good to nag during tax time. She has gotten used to eating meals with her children, which makes the cooking much easier.

"It is a good time to catch up on hobbies and a project that your husband's not too keen on," she said, and she writes a lot of letters and reads many books.

If a woman goes to night meetings often, it means a babysitter, and that can be rough on a budget, she said.

"It's the kids that suffer. They don't see their Daddy," said Deanne Mundy of Larkspur, "but it doesn't change my life style because it has never been any different."

It is a relief to have a little time to herself, she said, and she always saves volunteer projects for tax time. She catches up on her ironing, reads and talks to friends she doesn't have time for other times in the year.

COOKING MEANS either one big casserole that can be reheated or a little dinner for the kids with something special and candlelight when her husband gets home.

In the past the Mundys have taken trips to Carmel and to the U.S. Open Golf Tournament after the tax rush.

"This year my husband is talking about going somewhere," she said.

Then there is the tax accountant's wife whose husband used to take her out for a romantic evening every April, until she put a stop to it because every year for five years she had a baby each December.

Marin Women

BLIND FOR YEAR

Diabetes Doesn't Stop One Woman

By BARBARA HOSMER

Because of lifelong diabetes, Bobbie Ferguson of Santa Venetia lived blind for a year and has had to have her right leg amputated at the knee.

"I'm very shy — about a foot!" she quips about it to put a newcomer at ease. Far from shy, Mrs. Ferguson spends at least one day a week working in the office of the Marin Diabetes Association typing and reassuring others, has taken field trips with her 10-year-old daughter Bobbie's class from McPhail School, entertains her friends at lunch and poker sessions — "sometimes we even play cards" —and this week went bowling for the first time since the amputation.

Her yellow Pinto with its special left pedal control is parked outside the Diabetes Association office at 9 Ross Valley Drive, San Rafael, every Tuesday, and oftener when there is a need for her expert typing skills. Mrs. Ferguson was a medical secretary in radiology at the University of California Medical Center for 10 years.

NOW SHE IS in a continuing research study there — the only "success" from a very experimental operation, freezing the pituitary gland to restore sight, performed eight years ago.

Diabetic since childhood and giving herself daily insulin injections since she was 8, Bobbie Ferguson began to get an eyesight into the complication common to diabetics when she was 33. Hemorrhaging began in one eye. It cleared up and another one occurred. She became increasingly blind.

"I COULDN'T read the letter E on the chart," she said. "I was reconciled to not having sight." Her adopted daughter, Bobbie, was 3 then, and Mrs. Ferguson and her husband Ed had taken out papers for a second adopted baby, "but I thought then it wouldn't be fair to have another child.

Diane-Lee Shulz's Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Schulz have announced the engagement of their daughter Diane Lea Schulz to Brian Paul Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Scott, all of Novato.

Diane is the sister of Daniel, Beth and Kristen Schulz, also of Novato. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sirpless of Sterling Park, Va., and Mrs. A. L. Schulz of Minneapolis, Minn.

She was graduated from San Marin High School and is a volunteer at Novato General Hospital.

Brian is the brother of Bruce and Craig Scott of Novato and Mrs. Wayne Cole of Vallejo. Mrs. Herbert O. Yohner of Vallejo is his grandmother.

The future bridegroom was graduated from Novato High School and attended the College of Alameda. He is employed at Safeway distribution center in Richmond.

Change Of Watch Dinner Is Tonight

The annual Change of Watch dinner will be held by the Marin Power Squadron tonight at the Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon.

A social hour is set for 6 p.m., to be followed by dinner at 7 p.m. and election and installation of new officers. Dancing will conclude the evening.

Volunteers For Income Program Are Wanted

More volunteers are needed to assist in a program to locate Marin residents who may be eligible for benefits under a new Supplemental Society Security Income Program, according to James P. Layton, project director.

The Marin County Chapter of the American Red Cross is conducting the program to locate persons over 65, blind or disabled who may be eligible.

The first training course for volunteers was held Thursday at the Red Cross Chapter house, San Rafael. Layton said that additional volunteers may contact him at the chapter house.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Shakespeare Plans Will Be Revealed

By MOLLY MARIN

Plans for the Marin Shakespeare Festival's 1974 season will be announced next Saturday evening at a party from 6 to 8 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Alan Jarach in San Rafael.

The festival's return to Marin has long been rumored, but plans were not completed until recently. Jim Frush, president of the board of directors, will make the announcement.

Entertainment will be provided by the Tamalpais Trio, Jerry Leclerc, Dan Levintow and Mary Setrakian, members of the Orchestra Piccola. Madrigal singers from Novato High School will also perform.

Strolling minstrels and serving wenches will lend a Shakespearean atmosphere to the party, which has been arranged by Mrs. Lauro Quiros of San Rafael, a member of the board of directors.

THE JARACHS' home was the location last night for the reception following the Gertrude Shenson Gruenberg memorial concert at Dominican College.

Former students of the late Mrs. Gruenberg, chairman of the college's voice department, sang at the concert to raise funds to establish a memorial scholarship fund. Patrons of the concert attended the champagne reception.

A RECEPTION to honor Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Usher will be given at the Mill Valley Public Library from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. tomorrow. Usher is the new Mill Valley city manager. The plans have been made by the city council members for the party.

KYUNG SOO Kim of Tonduchon, Korea, is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Fletcher of Mill Valley. She is the fiancee of their son, Thomas Samuel Fletcher.

Plans are being made for the pair to marry on March 30 in Mill Valley. The romance began when Thomas was stationed in Korea with the Army in 1972. The bride-elect is the daughter of Ok Soon Kim, her mother, and Young Sok Kim, her father, of Korea.

REV. JOHN Thornton of Belvedere Lagoon and his 12-year-old son flew to Tel Aviv on Feb. 25 for a two-week visit to the Holy Land where they will "follow in Christ's footsteps, going where He went," according to Mrs. Thornton.

Rector of St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere, Reverend Thornton's trip was a gift from a parishioner, she said.

Mitzie Thornton gave her ticket to her son because "Johnny is at a great age to appreciate the trip and being with his father," she said.

DR. AND MRS. Jerome Oremland of Sausalito are home after a 10-day stay in Utah.

Dr. Oremland lectured on community mental health at hospitals in Salt Lake City. Then they took time out for some skiing. They were accompanied by their children, Cici, Noah and Annalisa.

MR. AND MRS. Roy Johnston of the Marin Country Club Estates returned home from Palm Springs following a two-week stay as houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cowen at the Sandpiper at Indian Wells Golf Course, where they attended the Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament.

On the Johnstons' return, they met Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Ralph Patterson, also of the Country Club, at Banning on the Pattersons' return from a fishing trip to Mexico.

Cooking Times

The public cooking demonstrations Tuesday and March 14 sponsored by Marin Panhellenic Association will be held at 11 a.m., not 11:30 a.m. as previously announced by Betty Celia, president. The classes will be held by chef Claude Collomb at Maurice and Charles Bistrot in San Rafael.

Several months ago you wondered (in your column) why more research hadn't been done to determine the cumulative effects, if any, of marijuana on constant users.

The February, 1974 issue of the journal Science carries a report of the work done by our Dr. Gabriel Nahas and his colleagues here at Columbia University.

Their study shows that habitual marijuana smoking weakens the body's immune defenses against disease and inhibits the division of cells that specialize in these defenses. The findings represent the first direct evidence of cellular damage from marijuana in man.

The doctors tested blood samples of pot smokers against blood samples of non-users and found marked cell differences, abnormal cell divisions, and chromosome breakage. They further report they have observed that marijuana products accumulate in the germ cells of the testes and ovaries.

Dr. Nahas and his team urge further investigation along these lines before legalization of the drug is considered. — A. E., Columbia University, College of Physicians and Surgeons,New York.

SEW SIMPLE

Ideas For Revamping An Old Coat

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate

DEAR EUNICE,

I have a suede coat that is too good to throw away and yet needs remodeling badly. The sleeves are wide and above bracelet length, which was so popular when we wore long gloves. Now I want to use the jacket with pants. Should I keep the fur collar on it too? — MRS. G. F. B.

DEAR MRS. G. F. B.,

Don't do anything rash — you are luckier than you think. First, remove the fur collar. The sleeves are back in style, so don't change them. I would suggest cutting the length of the coat to hip length which is a better length for pants.

With the excess leather, you could make a large cuff for the sleeves. If you will take the time to look through the fashion magazines and pattern books, you will see that this is a perfect look. Just add a turtleneck sweater or a long sleeved shirt and you'll look like 1974.

Many jackets today have no collars; instead the sweater fills in the neckline. If you would like this type neckline, you could remove the collar (if there is one) and face the neckline.

As I recall, most of those coats from a few years back didn't have a collar. They were a cardigan style with the attached fur collar. If this is the case, you won't have to change the neckline at all. If any of the rest of you are "savers," I think you can get a lot of wear from your old leather coats if you revamp them slightly.

DEAR EUNICE,

I was given about four yards of pure silk purchased in Hong Kong, and would like to make a dress. Please tell me how to prepare my fabric, whether it should be lined and what kind of thread to use. — MRS. G. P.

DEAR MRS. G. P.,

Most garments made in the Orient from oriental silks aren't backed, but are separately lined. I prefer to underline this type of fabric, as it prevents wrinkling and will not pull out at the seams as easily. Use a fine mercerized thread or 100 per cent polyester thread. Pure silk thread is almost impossible to find and really not necessary.

I personally think this type of silk remains more beautiful if it is not washed. However, should you decide you are going to wash it, better do so first to check on the color and the washability. Most pure silks can be washed successfully.

DEAR READERS,

Be good to your sewing machine — it may only be as good as the needle you use. Did you realize that many problems you have in sewing the newer fabrics are the direct result of the needles you are using?

The days of sewing with a machine needle until it breaks are gone forever. Today we change needles with every fabric, for we now have special needles for leather, for top stitching, and for knits. They all look similar and are difficult to distinguish one from another, so I have devised a good idea for you. It sure works for us!

Make yourself a "needle pad" using any woven fabric, preferably a solid color because you will be marking on it. A five or six-inch square is adequate. If you use two layers of fabric, you could finish the edges with a decorative machine stitch.

With a marking pen, print the types of needles you will be using, and also keep a special marking for different sizes. Instead of putting the needles back into the package they came in, simply pin in the proper place on your "needle-pad." You'll be amazed how easy it is to change a needle when you know what you are doing.

Many readers write in wondering whether to use ball point needles for everything, why they have stitches that skip, or why threads pull when fabric is stitched. I will try to answer all these questions now.

DEFINITELY DO not use a ball point needle for everything —use them for knitted fabrics only. Ball point needles come in different sizes. If you are working with a tricot knit, or a fine matte jersey, it is important that you use the finest or smallest size needle and change sizes according to the weight of the fabric. Many times skipped stitches you experience in knits occur because of using the wrong size or type of needle.

A blunt needle will cause the threads to pull as you stitch your fabric. Once these threads are pulled, they usually will never be able to be disguised. Use a regular needle for all woven fabrics, again changing the size according to the weight of the fabric.

If you sew over pins, you will have to change needles more often, as they tend to get tiny snags on them which could tear fabric. Two new needles available are the needles especially designed for real leather and the needles designed for buttonhole twist.

Your sewing machine is an expensive item to be treasured and taken care of. It's sturdy and yet very delicate, so treat it with "tender loving care" and it will perform lovingly for you.

It's false economy to try to sharpen needles. This is the least expensive accessory you will use, and sharpening is never very successful.

Often the emery bits that come off the needle from the needle sharpeners can clog up your machine.

WHILE WE'RE on the subject of your machine, here are just a few other reminders. One, do not blow the lint from your machine. Brush it out instead (and often). The moisture from your breath when you blow on this fine mechanism can actually cause corrosion.

Also, beware of the type of oil you use to lubricate your machine, which should also be done frequently. Never use household oil; instead, always use only the clear, white oil that is made expressly for sewing machines. Most guarantees on sewing machines will not hold good if you have used the wrong type of oil and it has permanently gummed up the delicate moving parts.

Hope you enjoyed this "needle lore," and that you will remember how important it is to use the correct needles. Keep them organized so it won't be a chore to change them frequently. Most of the problems in changing from one to the other occur because you dread searching around for the proper kind, and then have a difficult time trying to read the fine print on the needle. If you make yourself a "Needle pad" immediately, I know you will be a happier sewer.

A blunt needle will cause the threads to pull as you stitch your fabric. Once these threads are pulled, they usually will never be able to be disguised. Use a regular needle for all woven fabrics, again changing the size according to the weight of the fabric.

If you sew over pins, you will have to change needles more often, as they tend to get tiny snags on them which could tear fabric. Two new needles available are the needles especially designed for real leather and the needles designed for buttonhole twist.

Your sewing machine is an expensive item to be treasured and taken care of. It's sturdy and yet very delicate, so treat it with "tender loving care" and it will perform lovingly for you.

It's false economy to try to sharpen needles. This is the least expensive accessory you will use, and sharpening is never very successful.

Often the emery bits that come off the needle from the needle sharpeners can clog up your machine.

WHILE WE'RE on the subject of your machine, here are just a few other reminders. One, do not blow the lint from your machine. Brush it out instead (and often). The moisture from your breath when you blow on this fine mechanism can actually cause corrosion.

Also, beware of the type of oil you use to lubricate your machine, which should also be done frequently. Never use household oil; instead, always use only the clear, white oil that is made expressly for sewing machines. Most guarantees on sewing machines will not hold good if you have used the wrong type of oil and it has permanently gummed up the delicate moving parts.

Hope you enjoyed this "needle lore," and that you will remember how important it is to use the correct needles. Keep them organized so it won't be a chore to change them frequently. Most of the problems in changing from one to the other occur because you dread searching around for the proper kind, and then have a difficult time trying to read the fine print on the needle. If you make yourself a "Needle pad" immediately, I know you will be a happier sewer.

PRACTICE — Hugo Rinaldi (right), conductor of the Orchestra Piccola, discusses a difficult passage of work by Charles Ives with Mariko Smiley, one of the young members of the orchestra. The group will perform an all Ives program next week in honor of the 100th anniversary of the American composer's birth.

ORCHESTRA PICCOLA

Those Responsible For Ives Program

Two guiding lights — one a Chico physician and the other a Marin musician — are behind the unusual Charles Ives Centennial Concert which will be presented in Marin next Thursday by the young members of the Orchestra Piccola.

The concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

After the Orchestra Piccola received high praise last summer at the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, the orchestra, made up of 14-to-18-year-olds, has received wide acclaim at home, too.

Under the leadership of Hugo Rinaldi, who founded the youth orchestra in 1970, the young musicians are continuing a busy schedule again this year.

In the meantime, a Chico plastic surgeon, Dr. Donald Mangus, who is also a pianist and music lover, had founded the Ruggles-Ives Foundation to pay homage to two American musicians often neglected by major orchestras.

When Mangus realized that 1974 was the 100th anniversary of Charles Ives' birth (the composer died in 1954), he decided to try to arrange a concert of all Ives music in the Bay Area.

Through a friend he heard of the Orchestra Piccola, but when he first heard the group on television, he said he "was very surprised." Most youth orchestras, he explained, are very weak, "but these kids are marvelous."

Through the mutual friend, Dr. Mangus contacted Rinaldi, and plans were begun for next week's concert, the only Ives Centennial planned in the Bay Area.

Ives, who is considered the fore runner of many modern musicians, did not write music that is easy to play, Dr. Mangus said.

Rinaldi agreed with this statement. Ives, whom Rinaldi compared to Mark Twain in the field of literature, did not compose music that "massaged the brain." Instead the composer, often wove different themes into his compositions, making them difficult to play and sometimes difficult to listen to.

At first, the Orchestra Piccola members, Rinaldi said, asked "what is this stuff?" But after weeks of practice, he said they have been become Ives lovers and are excited about next week's concert.

The program will start with one of Ives' simpler works, "The Circus Band," which Dr. Mangus called a "musical joke." "Three Places in New England," one of Ives' best known works also will be on the program, which will be climaxed with the Second Piano Sonata.

John Kirkpatrick, professor of music and curator of the Ives Collection at Yale University, will be the soloist in this work.

Kirkpatrick, who knew Ives, first performed the Ives sonata in 1939.

Most of any money raised from the concert will go toward the Orchestra Piccola, perhaps for scholarships.

Members of the Orchestra Piccola (which means small orchestra) have been invited to take a major part in the Spoleto festival again this year, spending three weeks in residence in Italy.

The program will be taped and broadcast on KKHI at 9 a.m. on April 13.

Reincarnation To Be Discussed

Dr. Patricia Diegel, author of a book and booklet on reincarnation, will discuss the topic in a lecture Thursday at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall at the College of Marin.

Dr. Diegel will talk about case histories she has studied and her own personal experiences in attempting to "read other people's past lives."

Tickets for the lecture are available through the college box office.

Tennis Club Plans Given Backing

Plans for a tennis club on the site of a former discount store were generally approved Thursday night by the Larkspur Environmental and Design Review Board.

The proposal to turn the former Disco store at the corner of Magnolia Avenue and Doherty Drive into such a club, were submitted by Charles Amundsen of Larkspur.

Steven Solomon, assistant city planner said the board approved most of the project but requested more landscaping be included along Magnolia Avenue. The board also asked that the building's exterior be redesigned.

The structure would become the Mount Tam Racquet Club and include eight outdoor and five indoor tennis courts, volleyball and badminton courts, a swimming pool, bar-lounge and clubhouse, according to Solomon.

He said such uses are permitted in the commercial zoning of the area and the applicant needs only design review board approval. Solomon said final approval will probably be sought at the board's March 28 meeting.

Lecture Series Will Spotlight China

Life in China will be discussed by Judith Merin in a slide and lecture series entitled, "China: New Vision in an Ancient Land," beginning Wednesday at the College of Marin.

She is a teacher of modern Chinese history at the College of Alameda and New College in Sausalito.

The lectures will be held on five consecutive Wednesdays at 8 p.m. in Olney Hall. Topics are: Chinese tradition and revolutionary legacy, self reliance in the city and countryside, education, art and women's liberation in China.

Tickets for individual lectures or the entire series are available through the college boxoffice. The lectures are part of the college's concert-lecture series.

Belli Gets A 30-Day Suspension

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court today ordered San Francisco Attorney Melvin Belli suspended from the practice of law for 30 days.

The court ruled that two of Belli's activities were violations of the state rules of professional conduct which prohibit a lawyer from soliciting professional employment by advertisement or otherwise.

The State Bar had charged Belli with other violations as well and recommended a one-year suspension.

The high court, however, ruled that the other acts of which Belli was accused were protected by the Constitution.

The court ordered the suspension on the basis of letters distributed to national news magazines by Belli's manager, Richard Fulton, which described Belli as a "brilliant attorney" and announced the 20th anniversary of his lecture series. The other disciplinary recommendation was for an advertisement in which Belli appeared endorsing a Scotch whiskey.

The high court decision was 6-1, with Justice William E. Clark filing a dissent. He said Belli's "flamboyant lifestyle has no doubt offended many a lawyer and judge. But while the facts before us may affront our sense of professional dignity, they fail to support suspension . . ."

Goal To Save Electricity Not Reached

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Attempts to conserve electricity in 48 Northern and Central California counties fell short of the February goal set by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

"Our conservation effort seems to have slipped this month. We don't quite know why," a PG&E spokesman told the state Public Utilities Commission Thursday.

The goal was 15 per cent less electrical usage in February, but the utility said usage dropped only 9.6 per cent between Feb. 3 and Feb. 23 as compared with projected use during that period. In fact, the report showed that the company's 2.8 million customers actually used one million more kilowatt hours of electricity during the first three weeks of Feburary than they did a year ago.

Impact Report On Hilarita Units Approved

The environmental impact report for the $2.9 million low and moderate income Hilarita Housing Project in Tiburon was approved Thursday by planning commissioners.

After lengthy discussion, commissioners voted 6-to-1 to accept the report for the project, sponsored by the Tiburon Ecumenical Association, with some minor amendments, according to Jean Ellinsgsen, planning secretary. Dissenting member Robert Wayne.

Commissioners approved unanimously the tentative subdivision map for the project with some technical changes, Mrs. Ellingsen said.

"The impact report is expected to be reviewed by city councilmen March 11.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

"Sometimes your chief problem is to guard against a bad break in a key suit," my favorite bridge author points out. The statement comes from my hefty paperback, "Five Weeks to Winning Bridge," and here's a brand-new hand to prove that I wasn't just whistling Dixie.

SLAM CONTRACT

You are declarer at a contract of six spades. You have bid the hand very skillfully, but you can't sit back and rest. You must now play the hand properly too.

West leads the ten of hearts. How do you plan the play?

BEGINNING EASY

The beginning is easy. Take the first trick with the ace of hearts. Lead a trump to the ace and then return a high trump to dummy's queen. Save the four of trumps to lead to dummy's six, if necessary, later on. Next, cash the ace of diamonds to discard a heart.

Now your only problem is to avoid the loss of two club tricks.

SAFETY PLAY

This is the time to make a safety play. You are willing to give up one club trick if you can make sure of losing only one.

You lead a low club from dummy, and East plays the seven. You can cinch the slam contract by finessing with the eight from your hand.

SAVES THE BACON

If the finesse succeeds, as it does in this case, it saves your bacon. You would not weep bitter tears, however, if the finesse lost. In that case two clubs would be played on the trick, leaving only two other clubs cut; and you could surely draw those last two clubs with your ace and king.

Safety plays are an important department of good play. I wouldn't dream of telling you where you can read all about them.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - Q 6 3 2
♥ - A Q
♣ - 9 5 4 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club.

This 14-point hand is well worth an opening bid, and the only question is which suit to bid. If you start with one club you will be able to bid one spade very comfortably at your next turn. If you start with one spade, your next bid may be very uncomfortable.

'Our Team' Keeps Its Musical Laurels

TUESDAY NIGHT'S Marin Symphony concert was notable for a combination of reasons.

The program, as I-J music critic Sylvia Ruby put it, "did not contain any popular favorites."

While Richard Strauss' "Don Quixote" was "masterfully played and contained many of the evening's finest moments," it "did not bring an enthusiastic response from the audience," the problem being that it is "an over-long work."

"Strauss," said critic Ruby, "fills it with too many ideas in his attempt to relate the story." Most of the near-full house audience probably would agree.

One instrumental soloist encountered "some difficulties in the high notes." Another "was generally too penetrating." Still another "worried over his last lines."

Those who listened critically to the concert with trained ears would have to agree as to the imperfections.

But those who listen too critically with too highly trained ears are in danger of missing the "big picture."

IT WAS TRULY Marin night at the symphony. All of the four soloists accorded "guest artist" listings in the program are Marin neighbors, including Bert Truax, 19-year-old San Anselmo Trumpet virtuoso.

Most of the time he is a cool, experienced concert performer. But a couple of times Tuesday night he flashed a boyish smile or a blink of recognition to some friend in the audience.

At once, he was friendly neighbor boy and accomplished concert performer.

All Marin can be proud of that young man.

Lucien and Jean Mitchell of Mill Valley, both regular members of the San Francisco Symphony, are respectively principal violist and principal cellist of the Marin Symphony. Tuesday night they each demonstrated their considerable talents as "guest" soloists.

The fourth "guest" was Charles Meacham of San Rafael, who has served as assistant conductor and concertmaster of the Marin Symphony since it was founded more than 20 years ago. Of his performance Tuesday night I-J reviewer Ruby said simply, "perpetual motion machine."

Other soloists whose parts were of sufficient significance for program mention included Pamela Stutzke, harp; Lucia Schultz, flute; William Tull, clarinet; Jean Stevens, oboe; Virginia Ojeda, bassoon; Edward Haug, trumpet; Mitchell Ross, trombone, and Earl Saxton, French horn — all regular members of our Marin Symphony.

Fans of a local athletic team are justly proud when "our" team makes a good showing against a tough competitor.

Our Marin Symphony took on some pretty tough passages Tuesday night and came away a big winner.

"Particularly polished" was the way Sylvia Ruby described the work of our orchestra.

Right on!

THEY OUGHT to be good. The Marin Symphony has been working at it 22 years. In 1976, the orchestra will begin its 25th year. Maestro Sandor Salgo will then begin his 20th year as music director and conductor.

The "team" seems to have made as much progress in the brief time since the Marin Veterans Memorial auditorium opened as it did in the preceding 20 years. Some thought the Marin Symphony "played over their heads" in the first concert in the new hall. But they have never since played less well than they did on opening night.

Unlike some of our favorite athletic teams of the Bay Area, the Marin Symphony gets better as the years go by.

We don't have to wait for next year.

There is still one more concert scheduled this season: April 23, Berlioz' "Beatrice and Benedict," concert version of a comic opera based on Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing." There will be some "outside" guest soloists as well as the University of California (Berkeley) Associated Student Chorus on that program.

Go! Marin Symphony. We love you. We are mighty proud of you.

Birds In The Olives

Marin's olive trees had a great crop of olives this spring. Little black ones fell on our car and bounced down our driveway. The birds had a feast. The untreated olives taste horrible to us and are supposed to be mildly poisonous. But the chickadees, finches, horned larks and towhees are not a learned lot. They enjoyed the olives and returned many times.

Wild Birds — Big Business

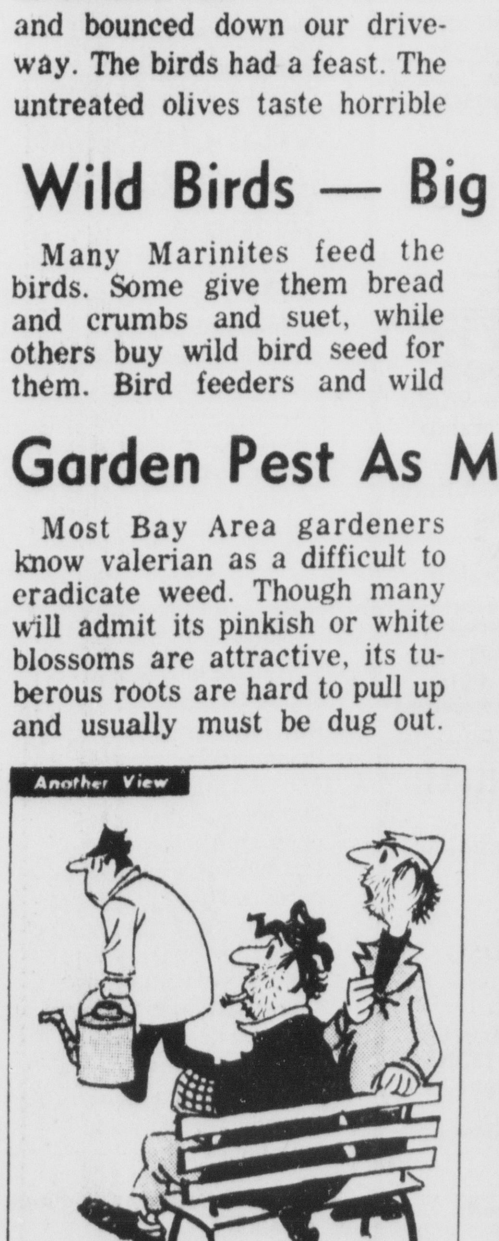
Many Marinites feed the birds. Some give them bread and crumbs and suet, while others buy wild bird seed for them. Bird feeders and wild bird seed are a thriving big business nationally, grossing $50 million a year. It changes the meaning of that exclamation, "It's for the birds!"

Garden Pest As Medicine

Most Bay Area gardeners know valerian as a difficult to eradicate weed. Though many will admit its pinkish or white blossoms are attractive, its tuberous roots are hard to pull up and usually must be dug out. They seem to flourish where they are most out of place.

We have cursed and dug valerian for more than 25 years, knowing vaguely it had medicinal properties. Only recently we learned it has been used as a tranquillizer for centuries. In the 14th century, it was written, "Men who begin to fight and when you wish to stop them, give to them the juice of Valerian and peace will be made immediately." It was extolled also by Galen, but for other health purposes.

Ground valerian root looks and smells like dust from an ancient, musty attic. During World War II, valerian was widely used to steady the overwrought nerves of Britons during the period of constant air raids. It was reported to be wonderfully efficacious.



"There, but for the grace of God, go I."

Candidate Clarifies Marshland Fill Stand

This letter is in response to Lew Coddington's article covering the candidates' night for the Larkspur City Council election that appeared in your newspaper Feb. 26. Mr. Coddington wrote that I had said, "Dredgings from the Corte Madera Creek would be used to improve nearby marshland". I feel that this statement could be misleading/confusing to many readers. On the contrary, I do not support the use of dredgings to fill marshlands. In the restoration of damaged marshes, it is rarely necessary to raise the level of the marsh floor in order for the marsh to support the grasses and other plant life essential to the food chain of the marsh habitat.

My involvement with the movement to preserve/restore local marshlands such as Heerdt, Piper Park and Creekside Park, and the complex problems involved in these projects were a part of my motivational force in deciding to run for the Larkspur City Council. My support for this particular fill project stems from the above mentioned fact (raising the level of the marsh floor) and the fact that we will be able to restore 188 acres of marshland that is now cut off from the bay by dikes... The damage done to Corte Madera Creek by its being dredged is inevitable if the ferry terminal site remains at the mouth of the creek as proposed by the Golden Gate Bridge District.

Reward Might Add To Patricia's Danger

In response to a letter written by a well-meaning Albert D. West (Feb. 26) who made an appeal to the black populace of Marin County to join with him in forming a reward fund for the kidnapers of Patricia Hearst:

Mr. West stated that he was aware of the plight of the Afro-American and that he was fearful over the subversion of the "progress" made thus far in the black community by a handful of irresponsible members of our race.

First at hand, Mr. West, the Symbionese Liberation Army is not a black organization but a multi-racial, multi-ethnic group.

Second, sir, I do not believe that an offered reward would return Miss Hearst unharmed but to the contrary, it would modify her danger by increasing the SLA's paranoia as to being stormed by the police, FBI, and if Mr. West get his way, bounty hunters.

Thirdly, there seems to be a confusion between the SLA's criminal act and the true crime. It's true that the SLA has kidnaped and also used extortion and this is their criminal act. But the crime, the true crime that has been so much overlooked in this whole ordeal is the fact that there are so many naked and honestly hungry people in this land of superfluous wealth and that only an act of terror will stir the public to action against starvation and poverty.

To capture the SLA and punish them for their criminal acts will solve the problem of terrorism for today. But mind you, sir, poverty, ignorance and disillusionment are forever.

To Inhibit Growth, Zone For Cemeteries

It is said that the awakened desire for beauty, balanced communities and uncrowded living conditions is being distorted into the slogan "no growth." Some of the spokesman for "no growth" seem to countenance only those uses of land which use no water, cause no sewage and increase neither the number of school children nor the transportation needs of adults.

By restricting land use to cemeteries with a condition banning graveside visits by relatives, cities and counties could meet those requirements nicely and in the process gradually close down schools and water and sewage plants.

No growth means less jobs, less performance at existing jobs, less adventure, less opportunity and more tighter and continually less rational governmental restrictions to divide the benefits of a shrinking rather than a growing economy. No growth leads to nowhere but the grave.

I am writing to express my appreciation to the I-J and particularly to Toby Leibert for providing the educational community with so much knowledge and enthusiasm about the newspaper industry. As a parent accompanying my kindergarten daughter's class, and then as a teacher leading my seventh grade English class, I found the tour led by Toby Leibert to be a very special and memorable experience for all of us.

Toby Leibert managed to excite and relate to both classes I toured with at the I-J. To span the interests of a 5-year-old to a 12-year-old is no easy accomplishment. Both Toby Leibert and the I-J are to be highly praised for doing so much for the school community.

Won't Be Responsible For Other 'Whiteys'

In reply to Albert West's letter in the Independent Journal on Feb. 26, I would like to comment on what he has written.

May I extend my sympathies to the people of our race and what we have done to destroy the progress of our own cause.

As a high school student and a potential responsible citizen, I have had the pleasure to know people of every race. However I would like to state as a so-called "whitey" that I would hate to take responsibility for any other "whitey." The Adolph Hitlers, the Lee Harvey Oswalds, the George Wallaces, and many other noted "whiteys."

I have had the opportunity to work in a black community, and it is people like Mr. West who separate us. We are all individuals, white and black, each created in His own image.

Constant Pay Demands Keep Fueling Inflation

I just have to take the time to express my appreciation for your fine editorial Feb. 25, entitled "Overpayment To Correct Overpayment." I certainly hope that it was read and enjoyed by many of your readers. To me it is the truest statement of a politician's way of reasoning a problem or situation out so the solution will be sure to work benefits to him and to hell with his constituents!

I believe one paragraph in the editorial sums up our whole economic problem of today. I quote: "You do not cure inflation by a race to hike wages and prices above those paid someone else or charged by someone else."

It seems to my simple mind that if prices and wages would only stay firm for a year or so, we could recover our financial equilibrium. However, it seems to be a fact of life that if our labor leaders did not continually strive for more money for the rank and file, members might think that they were not earning their salt.

I can remember a few years back to the time that a worker was paid in accordance with his productive capacity, rather than how much it takes now to keep two cars and eat high on the hog! I just wonder how many workers do earn their pay these days by making a profit for their employer on their production.

Wallace No Longer Outsider; Can Veto Choice Of Candidate

WHY GOVERNOR WALLACE IS ON THE RISE: He has wide public support in the nation. He has wide political support within the Democratic Party. He is certain to be one of the three or four most influential figures at the 1976 Democratic National Convention.

No wonder Democratic candidates looking toward the '76 presidential nomination are seeking him out. Senators Edward Kennedy, Henry Jackson and Hubert Humphrey have all made their pilgrimage to Montgomery to show how much they esteem George Wallace. Even President Nixon made a point of showing up.

All the Democratic presidential aspirants know they must not offend Wallace's national constituency and will need his support at the convention.

WALLACE IS NOW AN INSIDER LOOKING OUT. He's no longer a political outsider looking in. He has made peace with the national Democratic Party and equally — or even more — the national Democratic Party has made peace with him. Significantly, Democratic National Committee chairman Robert Strauss has seen to it that Wallace spokesmen are represented on every top-level governing agency of the party.

It is now evident that the Democratic Party, with the exception of the New Left —which, Wallace contends, never learns anything — is moving back to the political center where the votes are.

WILL WALLACE AGAIN SEEK THE PRESIDENCY? There is no certain answer yet. It is hard to see how he could win, and he has said he will support the party's nominee if the nominee is not too far away from his own views. At this point it looks as though Wallace will have sufficient backing at the convention to veto an unacceptable choice.

CHINESE-U.S. RELATIONS ON FIRM GROUND. There have been reports that Peking's new cultural revolution might undercut its new cordiality with the United States. There are always antiforeign overtones when a dictatorship seeks to whip up public emotions, but the new shaking process within China is apparently not directed against its improved relations with Washington.

It needs to be understood — and this fact has not been widely realized —that the People's Republic of China made the first moves to feel out President Nixon, not the other way around. The reason: China's fear of the Soviet Union.

CHINA'S MAJOR SHIFT IN FOREIGN POLICY. Since the first table tennis game in Peking and Mr. Nixon's quick response, China has reversed policy at several crucial points. It doesn't want to drive the United States from the western Pacific. It wants to keep an American presence there. It doesn't want the United States and Japan to dissolve their mutual defense treaty. It prefers to see American military forces in Japan.

The chief of the Chinese diplomatic mission in Washington has been absent for three months, but this has to do with internal Chinese politics, not external policy.

ANOTHER NOTCH FOR WOMEN'S LIBERATION. "Women's studies" are now outpacing black studies on college campuses. It is becoming a new branch of learning in higher education; and in this academic year some 2,000 courses are being offered in at least 300 institutions.

The course titles, which are substantial enough to lead to academic degrees, include "Image of Women in Western Civilization," "Language of Sexism," "Women and the Movies," and "The Idea of Women in Philosophy."

However, those who might most benefit from these studies aren't enrolling. Nine out of 10 students taking these courses are female.

It's A Whole New Ball Game If Candidates' Wives Arise

WASHINGTON — As if politicians didn't have enough to contend with in 1974, they are now faced with a revolt by their wives. Mrs. Joseph Alioto dramatized that wives of husbands running for office were no longer willing to play the docile roles assigned to them in political life.

Campaign managers are going to have to deal with the problem, and it won't be easy.

"SENATOR WIMBLEDON, here's your schedule for the day: breakfast with the fat cats, a speech at the university, lunch with the party hacks, a parade down Main Street, a visit to the VA hospital, a fund-raiser cocktail party, dinner with the Elks, and a handshaking trip to say hello to the people waiting in line to see 'The Exorcist.' "

"Okay, where's Mrs. Wimbledon?"

"I havent seen her for three days. I thought she was with you."

"I haven't seen her since last Friday. I think we had breakfast together — or was it tea?"

"DIDN'T SHE SAY anything about where she was going?"

"Let me think. She said she was getting in her car and driving just as far as it would take her."

"Didn't you try to stop her, senator?"

"I thought about it, but then this local TV station asked me to do an interview and it slipped my mind."

"I think we ought to try and find her. We need her for the women's rally in Seaport tomorrow morning."

"I forgot about that. I wonder where she could have gone. It's unlike Angel to just disappear for three days without saying something."

"I DON'T WANT to pry into your private life, senator, but did you two have a quarrel?"

"Let's see. I think she did make some complaint or other that I was ignoring her. We were at this town hall debate, and when I introduced her I got her name wrong. I called her Eunice, which happens to be the name of my secretary. She seemed to be in a huff, but I explained to her I can't remember everybody's first name."

"What did she say?"

"She said she was a woman with feelings and she was tired of not having any identity of her own. She said she had raised five children for me, and she wanted some appreciation and approval. It came as quite a shock to me because I thought we had only four children."

"She was right, senator, you do have five."

"I TOLD HER that I couldn't have been in public life if it hadn't been for her, and I did appreciate everything she had done for me. But at the same time if I had to constantly thank everyone who get me elected, I wouldn't have time to do my job."

"What did she say to that?"

"She asked me if I really needed her. Well, I looked at my schedule and as far as I could see I didn't need her until the big rally in Hartstown."

"I think what she meant, senator, was did you really need her as a wife."

"You really think that's what she meant?"

"She must have or she wouldn't have driven off by herself."

"SHE'S A FUNNY woman. We've been married for 28 years, and she's still unable to say what's on her mind."

"Well, I think we've got to get her back, senator. We don't want any scandal that your wife has walked out on you in the middle of an election."

"I suppose you're right. I'll try to locate her tomorrow morning. I don't have anything scheduled from 10 to 11."

"Perhaps you ought to put out a statement saying you love her and want her and couldn't live without her, just in case she holds a press conference and tells the world what an S.O.B. you are."

"Good idea, I'll work on it now. What did you say her first name was?"

'Our Team' Keeps Its Musical Laurels

TUESDAY NIGHT'S Marin Symphony concert was notable for a combination of reasons.

The program, as I-J music critic Sylvia Ruby put it, "did not contain any popular favorites."

While Richard Strauss' "Don Quixote" was "masterfully played and contained many of the evening's finest moments," it "did not bring an enthusiastic response from the audience," the problem being that it is "an over-long work."

"Strauss," said critic Ruby, "fills it with too many ideas in his attempt to relate the story." Most of the near-full house audience probably would agree.

One instrumental soloist encountered "some difficulties in the high notes." Another "was generally too penetrating." Still another "worried over his last lines."

Those who listened critically to the concert with trained ears would have to agree as to the imperfections.

But those who listen too critically with too highly trained ears are in danger of missing the "big picture."

IT WAS TRULY Marin night at the symphony. All of the four soloists accorded "guest artist" listings in the program are Marin neighbors, including Bert Truax, 19-year-old San Anselmo Trumpet virtuoso.

Most of the time he is a cool, experienced concert performer. But a couple of times Tuesday night he flashed a boyish smile or a blink of recognition to some friend in the audience.

At once, he was friendly neighbor boy and accomplished concert performer.

All Marin can be proud of that young man.

Lucien and Jean Mitchell of Mill Valley, both regular members of the San Francisco Symphony, are respectively principal violist and principal cellist of the Marin Symphony. Tuesday night they each demonstrated their considerable talents as "guest" soloists.

The fourth "guest" was Charles Meacham of San Rafael, who has served as assistant conductor and concertmaster of the Marin Symphony since it was founded more than 20 years ago. Of his performance Tuesday night I-J reviewer Ruby said simply, "perpetual motion machine."

Other soloists whose parts were of sufficient significance for program mention included Pamela Stutzke, harp; Lucia Schultz, flute; William Tull, clarinet; Jean Stevens, oboe; Virginia Ojeda, bassoon; Edward Haug, trumpet; Mitchell Ross, trombone, and Earl Saxton, French horn — all regular members of our Marin Symphony.

Fans of a local athletic team are justly proud when "our" team makes a good showing against a tough competitor.

Our Marin Symphony took on some pretty tough passages Tuesday night and came away a big winner.

"Particularly polished" was the way Sylvia Ruby described the work of our orchestra.

Right on!

THEY OUGHT to be good. The Marin Symphony has been working at it 22 years. In 1976, the orchestra will begin its 25th year. Maestro Sandor Salgo will then begin his 20th year as music director and conductor.

The "team" seems to have made as much progress in the brief time since the Marin Veterans Memorial auditorium opened as it did in the preceding 20 years. Some thought the Marin Symphony "played over their heads" in the first concert in the new hall. But they have never since played less well than they did on opening night.

Unlike some of our favorite athletic teams of the Bay Area, the Marin Symphony gets better as the years go by.

We don't have to wait for next year.

There is still one more concert scheduled this season: April 23, Berlioz' "Beatrice and Benedict," concert version of a comic opera based on Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing." There will be some "outside" guest soloists as well as the University of California (Berkeley) Associated Student Chorus on that program.

Go! Marin Symphony. We love you. We are mighty proud of you.

"I forgot about that. I wonder where she could have gone. It's unlike Angel to just disappear for three days without saying something."

"I DON'T WANT to pry into your private life, senator, but did you two have a quarrel?"

"Let's see. I think she did make some complaint or other that I was ignoring her. We were at this town hall debate, and when I introduced her I got her name wrong. I called her Eunice, which happens to be the name of my secretary. She seemed to be in a huff, but I explained to her I can't remember everybody's first name."

"What did she say?"

"She said she was a woman with feelings and she was tired of not having any identity of her own. She said she had raised five children for me, and she wanted some appreciation and approval. It came as quite a shock to me because I thought we had only four children."

"She was right, senator, you do have five."

"I TOLD HER that I couldn't have been in public life if it hadn't been for her, and I did appreciate everything she had done for me. But at the same time if I had to constantly thank everyone who get me elected, I wouldn't have time to do my job."

"What did she say to that?"

"She asked me if I really needed her. Well, I looked at my schedule and as far as I could see I didn't need her until the big rally in Hartstown."

"I think what she meant, senator, was did you really need her as a wife."

"You really think that's what she meant?"

"She must have or she wouldn't have driven off by herself."

"SHE'S A FUNNY woman. We've been married for 28 years, and she's still unable to say what's on her mind."

"Well, I think we've got to get her back, senator. We don't want any scandal that your wife has walked out on you in the middle of an election."

"I suppose you're right. I'll try to locate her tomorrow morning. I don't have anything scheduled from 10 to 11."

"Perhaps you ought to put out a statement saying you love her and want her and couldn't live without her, just in case she holds a press conference and tells the world what an S.O.B. you are."

"Good idea, I'll work on it now. What did you say her first name was?"

Rock And Religion Rockets Australian Nun To Stardom

SISTER JANET MEAD
'Lord's Prayer' in rock

SYDNEY (UPI) — Sister Janet Mead was virtually unknown outside her Sisters of Mercy school — until she recorded a rock version of the Lord's Prayer last year.

"All I did was sing a little song," said Sister Janet, who teaches drama, English, singing and religion to teen-agers at St. Aloysius College at Adelaide, South Australia.

The "little song" was an instant success in Australia and this month was released in the United States, chalking up phenomenal sales of 250,000 in the first week.

Now Sister Janet, 36, who was trained as a classical pianist and violinist before she entered the church at the age of 17, has found herself a somewhat reluctant pop star.

Festival Records of Australia plans to produce two new albums by the singing nun.

One of them will be a full rock mass, the other a mixture of "message" pop songs.

Sister Janet began her show business career with Sunday rock masses at Adelaide's Francis Xavier Cathedral, 18 months ago. Each Sunday evening, she sings with the backing of a five-piece rock group before an average 1,500 worshippers.

A tape recording of one of the rock masses led to Sister Janet's success.

"So many people in our congregation wanted to buy a record of the Mass," she said. "We decided to see if we could make an album of our rock mass music so people who did not have music for masses could use it.

"I drafted out the idea for the album in the back seat of a car I was riding from Ballarat to Melbourne. At the end of that 70-mile trip, it was done."

The tape was first sent to the Sydney Catholic Television Center where a technician thought it was so good he sent it to Festival Records.

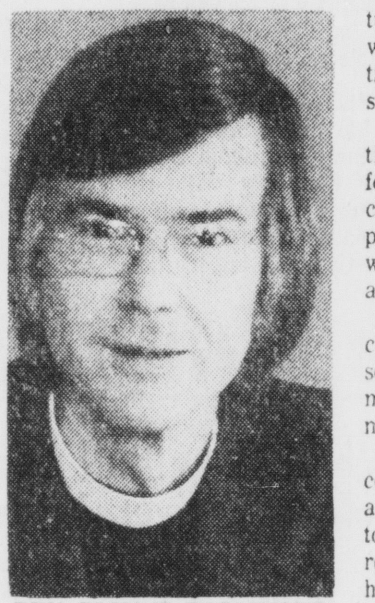
A single record was put out to test the public's reaction. It was released while Sister Janet was on a two-month study tour of Europe.

"I wanted to look at the new developments in drama and rock and liturgical music overseas," she said. "It never occurred to me that anything spectacular was happening to my record of the Lord's Prayer back in Australia.

"And, I had no idea they had released it in the United States."

The church heirarchy has given its approval to the record, and all the royalties from her record go to her order.

Rev. Bliss Bellinger To Launch New 'Private Ministry' Career



REV. BLISS W. BELLINGER
New career

After more than 18 years in the same pastorate, Bliss W. Bellinger will leave Faith Lutheran Church in Terra Linda this week to begin a "private ministry."

Although Pastor Bellinger said he "still feels called as a priest," he has decided to launch forth on his own, apart from the structured church.

He will remain a Lutheran minister but will have no official blessing, at least at the outset, for his activities.

Pastor Bellinger has served at the Marin church since he was ordained following graduation from Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary in Berkeley. He organized Faith Lutheran Church with a handful of families, who first met in a union hall, in 1955.

His new ministry will be begun from his home at 275 Blackstone Drive, Marinwood, where he, his wife and two children have lived for less than a year.

How he will make a living is not fully worked out yet by the pastor. He plans to rely on "free will offerings" and possibly to take a job as a part-time counselor.

His ministry, though, will center around the "development of a private pastoral practice and the formation of an alternative, free-floating, ecumenical Christian community and center for people with spiritual needs and group interests who are turned off by the traditionally structured religious institutions."

In addition to trying to reach those people who have not found a home in the structured church, Bellinger said he also plans to try to meet with those who are most interested in parapsychology or metaphysics.

He plans to instruct parapsychology (the study of extrasensory abilities of the human mind) to groups as well as to meet with individuals.

He also will offer spiritual counseling, personalized guidance, pastoral calling and visits to those confined to hospitals, rest homes, prisons or at their homes.

He plans to conduct marriages, funerals, private communion services and act as a "resource person" for shared worship experiences with families in their homes or in larger groups.

While he carries on this private pastoral practice, Bellinger said he "will be attempting to gather together and relate other like-spirited persons into a Christian community experience and growth center."

Bellinger does not envision, however, his ministry growing into another parish, with a "women's group or youth activities."

He said the project is still "an evolutionary kind of thing" in his own mind aimed at finding "contemporary, free-form worship experiences."

While some of the Faith Lutheran parishioners were "shocked" at the new plans of their pastor, Bellinger said, others have asked to be kept posted of his activities.

While pastor of Faith Lutheran, Bellinger has taken a special interest in ecumenical activities, particularly with the churches, synagogues and clergymen of the Las Gallinas Valley.

He has been active with the Marin County Council of Churches since 1957, serving as secretary, vice president and two terms as president.

He also has served as Lutheran contact pastor to students at College of Marin, as a member of the Campus Ministry Committee and Newman Center Board at the college and on the executive board of the Marin Ecumenical Committee for Action and as a representative to the Ecumenical Association for Housing.

Inter-Church Renewal To Hold First Session

Fr. Joseph Diebels, SJ, and Dr. Don McKenzie will be speakers next Saturday for the first meeting under the newly established Inter-Church Renewal Ministry.

Groundwork for foundation of the new ministry was laid by Rev. Ray Bringham of Southern California in a visit to Marin last month.

Meetings will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the second Saturday of each month at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

Fr. Diebels taught theology at the University of San Francisco for 15 years and Dr. McKenzie, an active leader in the charismatic movement for 10 years, is manager of chemistry technology for the Atomics International Division of North American Rockwell.

The Inter-Church Renewal Ministry is Bible-based, nondenominational and cooperates fully with established churches and prayer groups worldwide.

Its Prayer Fellowship enrolls groups in a movement to pray for such things as the awakening in all churches, the spiritual renewal of all people, for Israel's spiritual awakening and for religious and political leaders everywhere.

Further information on the Inter-Church Renewal Ministry and its meetings are available from Mrs. Cheryl Tada, 40 Marion Avenue, Mill Valley.

Lenten Lecture Series Scheduled

A Lenten lecture series will be presented by six churches of the Episcopal Deanery of Marin County on Wednesdays, March 6, 13 and 20 in the parish hall of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, corner of Mission and Court streets, San Rafael.

Dr. Edward C. Hobbs of Church Divinity School of the Pacific will speak on "The Once and Future God." Dr. Hobbs is professor of theology and hermeneutics in the Graduate Theological Union, as well as in the Church Divinity School of the Pacific in Berkeley. He is also associate professor of medicine in the University of California School of Medicine (San Francisco Medical Center), where he teaches in the area of philosophy of medicine; and visiting professor of philosophy at the University of California-Davis.

REV. WILFRED CHUNG
Sacramento missionary

Missionary To Preach In Marin

Rev. Wilfred T. K. Chung will preach at The Church of the Open Door during the 11 a.m. service tomorrow.

Chung has been a missionary to the Chinese of Sacramento for the past five years. He is pastor of the First Chinese Baptist Church there.

A graduate of BIOLA College and Golden Gate Seminary, Pastor Chung is a native of Hong Kong, and is very familiar with overseas missionary work among Orientals.

Rev. Bob Hymers, pastor of The Church of the Open Door, says, "Rev. Chung's message will be helpful in understanding the keys that will unlock success in your Christian life." The church is located at 177 E. Blithedale in Mill Valley.

Study Set On Causes Of Poverty

A five-part series on the "Causes of Poverty" will begin tomorrow night at the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo at 7:30 p.m. Subsequent sessions will be held on the remaining Sunday evenings in March.

The series is sponsored by the church's Adult Education Committee in cooperation with the Henry George School of Social Science. Speakers will be faculty members of the Henry George School.

The subject for the opening program tomorrow night will be "Who Owns the Earth?" presented by Richard Pensack. Subjects, speakers and dates for the other sessions will be: "The Land Question — Past and Present," Robert Tideman, March 10; "The Money Question," Robert deFremery, March 17; "The Population Question," Dr. William Filante, March 24; "Equal Liberty, A True Revolution," Catherine Covell, March 31.

Following each speaker's presentation there will be an opportunity for questions and discussion.

St. Luke Sets A Study Series

As part of the Lenten program at St. Luke Presbyterian Church, a study series begins tomorrow with two courses to be offered for six weeks, following the 10 a.m. worship service.

"The Sermon on the Mount" a comprehensive study of the marching orders given by Jesus to His disciples, will be taught by Martha Forti. Dorothy Aikins will direct the course "Hurdles in the Christian Faith." This will be an exploration of the barriers that have kept the searcher from accepting fully the Christian gospel.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Watergate Spurs Churches

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After two years of pretty much marking time, American churchmen are once again talking about a renewed social activist role for the nation's churches and synagogues.

The reason: Watergate.

"Watergate has put an end to confrontation politics among the branches of government," according to Albert Vorspan, director of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations' social action program.

As a first step to revitalized domestic social action coalition, Vorspan and 17 other religious leaders -many of them active in the now dormant religious antiwar and civil rights efforts — have joined to form what they call the "Religious Committee for Integrity in Government."

Among the sponsors of the committee are such mainline churchmen as Sterling Cary, president of the National Council of Churches, Robert Campbell, general secretary of the American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A.; Bishop Carroll T. Dozier of the Roman Catholic Church's Memphis diocese; Robert V. Moss, president of the United Church of Christ, and Clarie Collins Harvey, president of Church Women United.

"The times call for citizen affirmation of political responsibility, not cynicism," the committee said in announcing itself.

The committee, which will work through Washington-based staff people of the various agencies and groups, makes no bones about describing Watergate as a moral as well as constitutional crisis.

It lists as its immediate goals "clarification" of moral issues involved; "Justice for the President and the American people;" election campaign reform, including public financing of campaigns, and "restoration of constitutional checks and balances," including a challenge of President Nixon's use of impoundment of appropriated funds "and the abuse and improper assumption of the functions of law enforcement agencies."

Bishop James Armstrong of United Methodist Church, a sponsor of the committee, said it would work to "resensitize the conscience of the land."

"We have been dead to and have worn blinders in the presence of criminality, tax evasion, dirty tricks, gross violations of civil liberties and blatant invasions of privacy."

Vorspan sees the Watergate crisis as providing even wider opportunities for securing "significant federal legislative solutions to neglected social problems in American life."

The time is ripe, he believes, for a renewal of the civil rights coalition of the 1960s, composed of religious, ethnic and labor organizations.

Such a coalition, according to Vorspan, could work as a "social conscience" task force aimed at the issues of civil rights laws, urban problems, ecology and economic programs for the poor.

There are some indications such a coalition might be joined by some heretofore unlikely allies —evangelicals.

In the past, evangelicals have been noted more for their support of the political and social status quo than for activism in the worldly realm of politics and power.

But there are increasing signs that evangelicals are rediscovering an awakened social consciousness, a consciousness that from a political stand point often places them in the same camp as their theological foes in mainstream churches.

Jim Wallis, editor of the evangelical activist magazine "The Post American," summed up widespread evangelical feelings in an editorial on Watergate:

"The most important thing which could result from the Watergate episode is not the impeachment of the President. Rather it would be hope of lessons learned by the church about its responsibilities, about its mission in this society."

Fairfax Church Calls Rev. Gene W. Burris

The Fairfax Community Church has called Rev. Gene W. Burris as its pastor. Rev. Burris will start his ministry in Fairfax tomorrow, at the church, which is located at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Manor Drive.

Rev. Burris resides in Fairfax with his wife Mary and children. He is a graduate of Seattle Pacific College, Seattle, Wash., where he majored in biblical literature.

From there he went to San Francisco Theological Seminary and graduated with high honors in 1967. He was awarded the Alumni Fellowship for graduate study and is in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Rev. Burris has completed the equivalent of two-thirds work for the degree of doctor of the science of theology. He has also studied extensively in the areas of psychology, family therapy, family life education, and small group structure and process.

Rev. Burris has been a youth director in Seattle, an assistant minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Mountain View, and was minister of the Sleepy Hollow Presbyterian Church from 1962 to 1970. He has recently been the Pastor for the Stinson Beach and Bolinas churches. He will be serving the Fairfax Church on a part-time basis, filling all the demands for pastoral services.

Paul McDaniel, a first-year student at the San Francisco Theological Seminary, will be assisting Rev. Burris in other church functions. Church services begin at 11 a.m. The guest soloist will be Mardelle Wells of Fairfax. The pulpit committee and department of Ministry said all interested can meet with Rev. Burris at the fellowship hour following church.

Minister, Son On Two-Week Tour Of Israel

Rev. John S. Thornton, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Belvedere-Tiburon, will be traveling in Israel with his son, John, for the next two weeks. He will be traveling along the route Jesus covered during his years of ministry, and will be studying all available materials relevant to the life of the founder of Christianity.

During Rev. Thorton's absence, Sunday services will be held as usual at St. Stephen's, with the guest preacher tomorrow at the 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. eucharists being the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., chaplain of Yale University and one of the leaders of the Church in America. On Sunday, March 10, the Rev. Alvin Haag, retired dean of humanities of Redlands University, will be the preacher.

Children's Rally Slated March 9

The Good News Clubs of Marin County, an interdenominational organization, will have a children's rally March 9 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Novato Community House.

Arnold Janzen, Northern California director for child evangelism fellowship, will speak and a choir of fourth, fifth and sixth grade pupils will sing.

Lenten Series Continuing On Wednesdays

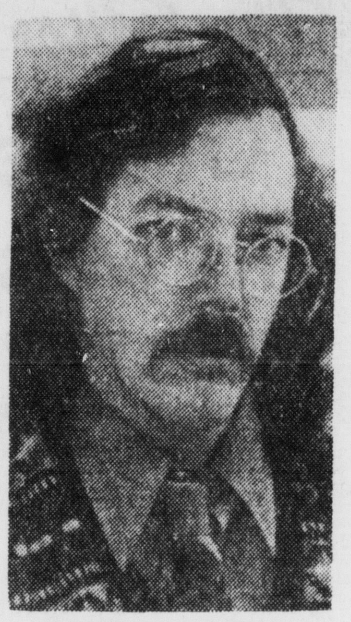
The second in a series of Lenten programs being offered by the churches of TEAM will be held Wednesday at St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Drake Avenue and Donahue Street, Marin City, at 8 p.m.

Theme of the series is "Coping" and Wednesday's topic will be on coping with society in crisis.

The programs will be held at 8 p.m. each Wednesday through April 3.

The schedule is:

March 13—"Coping With Immorality," Community Congregational Church, 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon; March 20—"Coping With Guilt," Mill Valley Methodist Church, Camino Alto and Sycamore, Mill Valley; March 27—"Coping With My Self Image," Church of All Faiths, 5461 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera; and April 3—"Coping With Loss, Grief, Separation," Church of Our Saviour, 20 Old Mill Avenue, Mill Valley.



DAVID E. ANDERSON
Religion is his beat

UPI Names New Writer On Religion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — David E. Anderson, a member of the Washington bureau of United Press International since 1967, was named Tuesday as UPI religion writer succeeding the late Louis Cassels. He will take over Cassels' columns and spot religion news responsibilities.

Anderson, 32, also will write special articles from time to time on social trends and issues, ranging from civil rights and the quality of life in the United States to abortion and amnesty for war resisters.

Anderson will be based in Washington and will report to Washington Manager Grant Dillman.

Anderson, who has been writing a religion column for UPI's national UPI broadcast wire the past four years, also has been handling religion features and some spot religion news as a member of the Washington general staff since Cassels returned to his home in Aiken, S.C., in 1970 following a heart attack.

Born in Minneapolis, Anderson attended the University of Minnesota and began his news career as a copy aide on the Minneapolis Star-Tribune. He moved to Washington in 1965 to attend American University and took a similar job with the Washington UPI bureau.

In September, 1968, Anderson was promoted to reporter, specializing in Puerto Rican affairs in Washington. He became a member of the general staff in 1972.

He had a key role in UPI coverage of the antiar movement in the late 1960's and early 1970's, including the various Washington protest marches.

Anderson, a Lutheran, and his wife, Margaret, have two children, a son and a daughter.

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CAN do FOR A FAMILY.

It can bring an understanding of God's closeness and care, helping each one in the family in everything he does.

It can develop a deep love for the Bible, and joyful obedience to God's law.

It can teach every member, and the family together, to heal problems in the way Jesus showed.

How can Christian Science do all this? Through Sunday School classes that strengthen children. Through Sunday services that inspire parents. Through Wednesday testimony meetings where personal accounts of healing are shared. Through Reading Rooms where truths are pondered in quiet.

Won't you invite Christian Science into your family's life?

"The times call for citizen affirmation of political responsibility, not cynicism," the committee said in announcing itself.

The committee, which will work through Washington-based staff people of the various agencies and groups, makes no bones about describing Watergate as a moral as well as constitutional crisis.

It lists as its immediate goals "clarification" of moral issues involved; "Justice for the President and the American people;" election campaign reform, including public financing of campaigns, and "restoration of constitutional checks and balances," including a challenge of President Nixon's use of impoundment of appropriated funds "and the abuse and improper assumption of the functions of law enforcement agencies."

Bishop James Armstrong of United Methodist Church, a sponsor of the committee, said it would work to "resensitize the conscience of the land."

"We have been dead to and have worn blinders in the presence of criminality, tax evasion, dirty tricks, gross violations of civil liberties and blatant invasions of privacy."

Vorspan sees the Watergate crisis as providing even wider opportunities for securing "significant federal legislative solutions to neglected social problems in American life."

The time is ripe, he believes, for a renewal of the civil rights coalition of the 1960s, composed of religious, ethnic and labor organizations.

Such a coalition, according to Vorspan, could work as a "social conscience" task force aimed at the issues of civil rights laws, urban problems, ecology and economic programs for the poor.

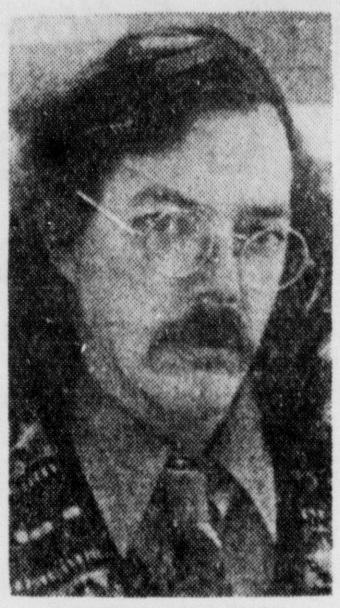
There are some indications such a coalition might be joined by some heretofore unlikely allies —evangelicals.

In the past, evangelicals have been noted more for their support of the political and social status quo than for activism in the worldly realm of politics and power.

But there are increasing signs that evangelicals are rediscovering an awakened social consciousness, a consciousness that from a political stand point often places them in the same camp as their theological foes in mainstream churches.

Jim Wallis, editor of the evangelical activist magazine "The Post American," summed up widespread evangelical feelings in an editorial on Watergate:

"The most important thing which could result from the Watergate episode is not the impeachment of the President. Rather it would be hope of lessons learned by the church about its responsibilities, about its mission in this society."



DAVID E. ANDERSON
Religion is his beat

UPI Names New Writer On Religion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — David E. Anderson, a member of the Washington bureau of United Press International since 1967, was named Tuesday as UPI religion writer succeeding the late Louis Cassels. He will take over Cassels' columns and spot religion news responsibilities.

Anderson, 32, also will write special articles from time to time on social trends and issues, ranging from civil rights and the quality of life in the United States to abortion and amnesty for war resisters.

Anderson will be based in Washington and will report to Washington Manager Grant Dillman.

Anderson, who has been writing a religion column for UPI's national UPI broadcast wire the past four years, also has been handling religion features and some spot religion news as a member of the Washington general staff since Cassels returned to his home in Aiken, S.C., in 1970 following a heart attack.

Born in Minneapolis, Anderson attended the University of Minnesota and began his news career as a copy aide on the Minneapolis Star-Tribune. He moved to Washington in 1965 to attend American University and took a similar job with the Washington UPI bureau.

In September, 1968, Anderson was promoted to reporter, specializing in Puerto Rican affairs in Washington. He became a member of the general staff in 1972.

He had a key role in UPI coverage of the antiar movement in the late 1960's and early 1970's, including the various Washington protest marches.

Anderson, a Lutheran, and his wife, Margaret, have two children, a son and a daughter.

Rev. Bliss Bellinger To Launch New 'Private Ministry' Career

After more than 18 years in the same pastorate, Bliss W. Bellinger will leave Faith Lutheran Church in Terra Linda this week to begin a "private ministry."

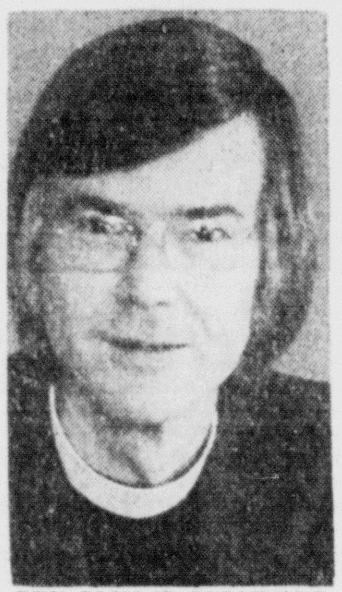
Although Pastor Bellinger said he "still feels called as a priest," he has decided to launch forth on his own, apart from the structured church.

He will remain a Lutheran minister but will have no official blessing, at least at the outset, for his activities.

Pastor Bellinger has served at the Marin church since he was ordained following graduation from Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary in Berkeley. He organized Faith Lutheran Church with a handful of families, who first met in a union hall, in 1955.

His new ministry will be begun from his home at 275 Blackstone Drive, Marinwood, where he, his wife and two children have lived for less than a year.

How he will make a living is not fully worked out yet by the pastor. He plans to rely on "free will offerings" and possibly to take a job as a part-time counselor.



REV. BLISS W. BELLINGER
New career

His ministry, though, will center around the "development of a private pastoral practice and the formation of an alternative, free-floating, ecumenical Christian community and center for people with spiritual needs and group interests who are turned off by the traditionally structured religious institutions."

In addition to trying to reach those people who have not found a home in the structured church, Bellinger said he also plans to try to meet with those who are most interested in parapsychology or metaphysics.

He plans to instruct parapsychology (the study of extrasensory abilities of the human mind) to groups as well as to meet with individuals.

He also will offer spiritual counseling, personalized guidance, pastoral calling and visits to those confined to hospitals, rest homes, prisons or at their homes.

He plans to conduct marriages, funerals, private communion services and act as a "resource person" for shared worship experiences with families in their homes or in larger groups.

While he carries on this private pastoral practice, Bellinger said he "will be attempting to gather together and relate other like-spirited persons into a Christian community experience and growth center."

Bellinger does not envision, however, his ministry growing into another parish, with a "women's group or youth activities."

He said the project is still "an evolutionary kind of thing" in his own mind aimed at finding "contemporary, free-form worship experiences."

While some of the Faith Lutheran parishioners were "shocked" at the new plans of their pastor, Bellinger said, others have asked to be kept posted of his activities.

While pastor of Faith Lutheran, Bellinger has taken a special interest in ecumenical activities, particularly with the churches, synagogues and clergymen of the Las Gallinas Valley.

He has been active with the Marin County Council of Churches since 1957, serving as secretary, vice president and two terms as president.

He also has served as Lutheran contact pastor to students at College of Marin, as a member of the Campus Ministry Committee and Newman Center Board at the college and on the executive board of the Marin Ecumenical Committee for Action and as a representative to the Ecumenical Association for Housing.

Inter-Church Renewal To Hold First Session

Fr. Joseph Diebels, SJ, and Dr. Don McKenzie will be speakers next Saturday for the first meeting under the newly established Inter-Church Renewal Ministry.

Groundwork for foundation of the new ministry was laid by Rev. Ray Bringham of Southern California in a visit to Marin last month.

Meetings will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the second Saturday of each month at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

Fr. Diebels taught theology at the University of San Francisco for 15 years and Dr. McKenzie, an active leader in the charismatic movement for 10 years, is manager of chemistry technology for the Atomics International Division of North American Rockwell.

The Inter-Church Renewal Ministry is Bible-based, nondenominational and cooperates fully with established churches and prayer groups worldwide.

Its Prayer Fellowship enrolls groups in a movement to pray for such things as the awakening in all churches, the spiritual renewal of all people, for Israel's spiritual awakening and for religious and political leaders everywhere.

Further information on the Inter-Church Renewal Ministry and its meetings are available from Mrs. Cheryl Tada, 400 Marion Avenue, Mill Valley.

Lenten Lecture Series Scheduled

A Lenten lecture series will be presented by six churches of the Episcopal Deanery of Marin County on Wednesdays, March 6, 13 and 20 in the parish hall of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, corner of Mission and Court streets, San Rafael.

Dr. Edward C. Hobbs of Church Divinity School of the Pacific will speak on "The Once and Future God." Dr. Hobbs is professor of theology and hermeneutics in the Graduate Theological Union, as well as in the Church Divinity School of the Pacific in Berkeley. He is also associate professor of medicine in the University of California School of Medicine (San Francisco Medical Center), where he teaches in the area of philosophy of medicine; and visiting professor of philosophy at the University of California-Davis.

Study Set On Causes Of Poverty

A five-part series on the "Causes of Poverty" will begin tomorrow night at the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo at 7:30 p.m. Subsequent sessions will be held on the remaining Sunday evenings in March.

The series is sponsored by the church's Adult Education Committee in cooperation with the Henry George School of Social Science. Speakers will be faculty members of the Henry George School.

The subject for the opening program tomorrow night will be "Who Owns the Earth?" presented by Richard Pensack. Subjects, speakers and dates for the other sessions will be: "The Land Question — Past and Present," Robert Tideman, March 10; "The Money Question," Robert deFremery, March 17; "The Population Question," Dr. William Filante, March 24; "Equal Liberty, A True Revolution," Catherine Covell, March 31.

Following each speaker's presentation there will be an opportunity for questions and discussion.

St. Luke Sets A Study Series

As part of the Lenten program at St. Luke Presbyterian Church, a study series begins tomorrow with two courses to be offered for six weeks, following the 10 a.m. worship service.

"The Sermon on the Mount" a comprehensive study of the marching orders given by Jesus to His disciples, will be taught by Martha Forti. Dorothy Aikins will direct the course "Hurdles in the Christian Faith." This will be an exploration of the barriers that have kept the searcher from accepting fully the Christian gospel.

Fairfax Church Calls Rev. Gene W. Burris

The Fairfax Community Church has called Rev. Gene W. Burris as its pastor. Rev. Burris will start his ministry in Fairfax tomorrow, at the church, which is located at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Manor Drive.

Rev. Burris resides in Fairfax with his wife Mary and children. He is a graduate of Seattle Pacific College, Seattle, Wash., where he majored in biblical literature.

From there he went to San Francisco Theological Seminary and graduated with high honors in 1967. He was awarded the Alumni Fellowship for graduate study and is in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Rev. Burris has completed the equivalent of two-thirds work for the degree of doctor of the science of theology. He has also studied extensively in the areas of psychology, family therapy, family life education, and small group structure and process.

Rev. Burris has been a youth director in Seattle, an assistant minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Mountain View, and was minister of the Sleepy Hollow Presbyterian Church from 1962 to 1970. He has recently been the Pastor for the Stinson Beach and Bolinas churches. He will be serving the Fairfax Church on a part-time basis, filling all the demands for pastoral services.

Paul McDaniel, a first-year student at the San Francisco Theological Seminary, will be assisting Rev. Burris in other church functions. Church services begin at 11 a.m. The guest soloist will be Mardelle Wells of Fairfax. The pulpit committee and department of Ministry said all interested can meet with Rev. Burris at the fellowship hour following church.

Minister, Son On Two-Week Tour Of Israel

Rev. John S. Thornton, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Belvedere-Tiburon, will be traveling in Israel with his son, John, for the next two weeks. He will be traveling along the route Jesus covered during his years of ministry, and will be studying all available materials relevant to the life of the founder of Christianity.

During Rev. Thorton's absence, Sunday services will be held as usual at St. Stephen's, with the guest preacher tomorrow at the 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. eucharists being the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., chaplain of Yale University and one of the leaders of the Church in America. On Sunday, March 10, the Rev. Alvin Haag, retired dean of humanities of Redlands University, will be the preacher.

Children's Rally Slated March 9

The Good News Clubs of Marin County, an interdenominational organization, will have a children's rally March 9 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Novato Community House.

Arnold Janzen, Northern California director for child evangelism fellowship, will speak and a choir of fourth, fifth and sixth grade pupils will sing.

Lenten Series Continuing On Wednesdays

The second in a series of Lenten programs being offered by the churches of TEAM will be held Wednesday at St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Drake Avenue and Donahue Street, Marin City, at 8 p.m.

Theme of the series is "Coping" and Wednesday's topic will be on coping with society in crisis.

The programs will be held at 8 p.m. each Wednesday through April 3.

The schedule is:

March 13—"Coping With Immorality," Community Congregational Church, 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon; March 20—"Coping With Guilt," Mill Valley Methodist Church, Camino Alto and Sycamore, Mill Valley; March 27—"Coping With My Self Image," Church of All Faiths, 5461 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera; and April 3—"Coping With Loss, Grief, Separation," Church of Our Saviour, 20 Old Mill Avenue, Mill Valley.

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CAN do FOR A FAMILY.

It can bring an understanding of God's closeness and care, helping each one in the family in everything he does.

It can develop a deep love for the Bible, and joyful obedience to God's law.

It can teach every member, and the family together, to heal problems in the way Jesus showed.

How can Christian Science do all this? Through Sunday School classes that strengthen children. Through Sunday services that inspire parents. Through Wednesday testimony meetings where personal accounts of healing are shared. Through Reading Rooms where truths are pondered in quiet.

Won't you invite Christian Science into your family's life?

THOSE WERE THE DAYS . . .

when you could watch the children playing baseball and football until dusk on the cul-de-sac of a quiet street. Gone are the days when little boys could fish for trout in their own stream. Gone? Not yet! We offer a large 5 bdrm., 2 bath home on a quiet street in one of San Anselmo's finest areas. A modern 2 story residence in absolutely perfect condition. In addition there is a large living room, a family room-dining room combination and oversized sunny kitchen leading to a private rear patio. For Dad — besides the 2 car garage, there is a large workshop area. Gone? Come and see.

THOSE WERE THE DAYS . . .

when you could watch the children playing baseball and football until dusk on the cul-de-sac of a quiet street. Gone are the days when little boys could fish for trout in their own stream. Gone? Not yet! We offer a large 5 bdrm., 2 bath home on a quiet street in one of San Anselmo's finest areas. A modern 2 story residence in absolutely perfect condition. In addition there is a large living room, a family room-dining room combination and oversized sunny kitchen leading to a private rear patio. For Dad — besides the 2 car garage, there is a large workshop area. Gone? Come and see.

Unless you mean business... We are now considering qualified applicants in your area to become a working part of our National "Hot Food" Distributor System. You are not applying for a job! You are applying for a very high profit business of your own. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY—NO SELLING INVOLVED. This business can be started part time—no need to quit your job. Can be expanded full time with company financing. We need people we can depend on. Our products are nationally famous "Hot Food" items. We have over 36 varieties of Hot Soups and Hot Entrees, such as Beef Stew, Chicken & Dumplings, Chili & Beans, and on and on. We have all of America's favorites. All these delicious products are sold from the latest in automatic vending equipment. Your route will be established and installed by us. Your age is not a factor if you qualify. Perfect for a nice couple to operate as a family business.

Unless you mean business
We are now considering qualified applicants in your area to become a working part of our National "Hot Food" Distributor System. You are not applying for a job! You are applying for a very high profit business of your own. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY—NO SELLING INVOLVED. This business can be started part time—no need to quit your job. Can be expanded full time with company financing. We need people we can depend on. Our products are nationally famous "Hot Food" items. We have over 36 varieties of Hot Soups and Hot Entrees, such as Beef Stew, Chicken & Dumplings, Chili & Beans, and on and on. We have all of America's favorites. All these delicious products are sold from the latest in automatic vending equipment. Your route will be established and installed by us. Your age is not a factor if you qualify. Perfect for a nice couple to operate as a family business.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Irregular Heartbeat Common But Rarely A Serious Problem

A Chicagoan writes: "I'm 34 years old, too hefty, and nervous as a cat. For the past two years, I have been troubled with an irregular heartbeat. My doctor calls them extrasystoles. Some days I have as many as seven extra beats in a minute's time. At other times, hours go by when there are none."

Our reader also told us that his doctor (a cardiologist) told him that there was nothing wrong with his heart and it was strictly a nervous disorder. His letter had 12 questions dealing mainly with the relationship between his heart irregularity and "nerves," overweight, and smoking two cigars a day. In addition, this man wants to know if skipped beats damage the heart.

PREMATURE CONTRACTIONS (extrasystoles) are a common irregularity and of little consequence, except when they follow a heart attack. But they bother some and frighten others. They are frequently caused by an irritable or impatient heart muscle. Common causes include fatigue and too much tobacco, alcohol, coffee, or tea. Drugs such as digitalis and epinephrine may do the same.

Premature contractions usually occur when the beat is slow, as when sitting or lying in bed. They disappear when the individual gets up and increases the heartbeat. Apparently, when the heart is beating slowly, some sections of the heart muscle become impatient and initiate a beat of their own. This does not disturb the basic rhythm of the heart because it takes a longer rest after the premature contraction.

HOWEVER, THE long pause creates the feeling that the heart is going to stop. And, if the pause is long enough, the victim may get a little dizzy, anxious, or feel faint. The normal beat following the premature contraction is often felt as a thump against the chest wall. Others describe it as a feeling of fluttering, thumping, or skipping beats.

Drugs such as quinidine, procaine amide, and potassium tend to reduce muscular excitability. The victim should also obtain adequate rest and periods of relaxation, and lessen emotional stresses. He should avoid smoking, and cut down on alcohol, coffee, and tea. Constipation and other gastrointestinal disturbances should be corrected.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

POLYNEURITIS

N. S. writes: What is done for polyneuritis?

REPLY

Most physicians try to find the cause and treat the condition if a remedy is available. Polyneuritis refers to inflammation or degernation of several nerves. A generalized disturbance such as alocholism, diabetes, or a disorder of the brain or spinal cord usually is responsible.

SKIN CANCER

B.D. writes: Would a malignancy of the skin mean there is cancer elsewhere in the body?

REPLY

Not as a rule. Internal cancers rarely spread to the skin unless they are under the skin and grow outward. A breast cancer, for example, may grow large enough to break through the skin, forming a malignant ulcer.

SMOTHER SENSATION

T.A. writes: When I lie down, I feel as if I'm smothering. Could the heart attack last year be playing a role?

REPLY

The heart is responsible if relief follows sitting up or moving about. This condition (left heart failure) occurs when the blood pressure drops and the pulse slows down after one falls asleep. This has no effect on the normal heart, but impairs the efficiency of a handicapped organ. The coronary circulation is inadequate in this individual because of the previous heart attack. The smothering sensation can be minimized by using certain drugs that improve the circulation and by sleeping on two or more pillows.

Florida Businessman Freed; Ransom Paid

SANFORD, Fla. (UPI) — A Sanford businessman, kidnaped Thursday night by two men wearing ski masks and wielding shotguns, was released unharmed early today after his son paid a $30,000 ransom.

George Jackson Jr., 52, was released in a downtown area about five blocks from his plant where he was abducted 27 hours earlier.

Jackson walked to a nearby fire station and firemen notified police. He was interviewed briefly by FBI agents and then taken to a hospital for a brief checkup after telling newsmen "I'm ok." He was then reunited with his wife at the family home.

Nick Stames, special agent in charge of the Tampa FBI office, said Jackson's son, George Jackson III, dropped the ransom money in a remote area of north Seminole County shortly before midnight Thursday night.

The money was apparently picked up a short time later. Stames said agents had the area under surveillance but there had been no arrests.

Jackson said he was treated "quite well under the circumstances. I was taped with my hands behind me and my feet tied to the edge of a bed in a small house.

"My major concern was simply being abandoned after they had gotten the money."

Jackson, who looked composed despite the ordeal, said the kidnapers never talked about political motives and the kidnaping was apparently strictly for the ransom money.

"It was a long, long night but now its over and we're just so relieved," said Mrs. Jackson.

"There was no physical harassment and the victim was not physically abused," said Stames. "He's been through quite an ordeal but he's in good shape. We took him to the hospital for a checkup and he's in good health." Jackson was blindfolded throughout the ordeal, Stames said.

Asked if the kidnaping was the work of an extremist group, Stames replied. "We're still checking out a number of leads but at this time we have no indication that militants or other extremists were involved."

Jackson was abducted from his Southern Shortening Inc. plant about 10:30 p. m. EDT Thursday while working late with his wife, Laura. The kidnapers told Mrs. Jackson her husband would be killed if she contacted police or the new media.

Newsmen learned of the kidnaping shortly after it occurred but agreed to a blackout until Jackson was released.

Rebels Continue To Hold City In Central Argentina

CORDOBA, Argentina (UPI) — Sporadic gunfire erupted in the pre-dawn hours today as rebellious police, aided by armed rightwing bands, continued to hold this industrial city in central Argentina.

Police sources said some 10 persons were wounded during the night of fighting with leftist snipers bringing the rebellion's casualty total to three dead and 22 wounded. Leftist sources put the number of wounded during the night at 30.

A bomb damaged the home of Juan C. Garat, press secretary of the provincial government, but there were no injuries. The shooting reached a lull at daybreak.

The rebel police last night released Gov. Ricardo Obregon Cano, a leftist Peronist, after a new interim governor, considered a more conservative follower of President Juan D. Peron, was sworn in and called for new elections.

Obregon Cano immediately went to the federal police to demand protection, announced his intention to reassume the governorship, and then dissapeared. Leftist sources said he had left for Buenos Aires to plead his case before the national authorities.

Federal police and army units have not been ordered to quell the rebellion.

In Buenos Aires, thousands of leftist youths arriving for a demonstration to protest what they called a "fascist" move against the popularly elected government in Cordoba were driven away Friday night by police teargas.

Trainloads of other demonstrators were blocked at the station and sent back.

The revolt in Cordoba, 420 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, began Wednesday when the governor tried to fire Police Chief Antonio D. Navarro.

Navarro, supported by his provincial police force, stormed the governor's office building and arrested Obregon, the deputy governor and other officials, charging them with arming "known Marxists."

Police then seized a five-square-block section of the downtown area and fanned out across the city.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Irregular Heartbeat Common But Rarely A Serious Problem

A Chicagoan writes: "I'm 34 years old, too hefty, and nervous as a cat. For the past two years, I have been troubled with an irregular heartbeat. My doctor calls them extrasystoles. Some days I have as many as seven extra beats in a minute's time. At other times, hours go by when there are none."

Our reader also told us that his doctor (a cardiologist) told him that there was nothing wrong with his heart and it was strictly a nervous disorder. His letter had 12 questions dealing mainly with the relationship between his heart irregularity and "nerves," overweight, and smoking two cigars a day. In addition, this man wants to know if skipped beats damage the heart.

PREMATURE CONTRACTIONS (extrasystoles) are a common irregularity and of little consequence, except when they follow a heart attack. But they bother some and frighten others. They are frequently caused by an irritable or impatient heart muscle. Common causes include fatigue and too much tobacco, alcohol, coffee, or tea. Drugs such as digitalis and epinephrine may do the same.

Premature contractions usually occur when the beat is slow, as when sitting or lying in bed. They disappear when the individual gets up and increases the heartbeat. Apparently, when the heart is beating slowly, some sections of the heart muscle become impatient and initiate a beat of their own. This does not disturb the basic rhythm of the heart because it takes a longer rest after the premature contraction.

HOWEVER, THE long pause creates the feeling that the heart is going to stop. And, if the pause is long enough, the victim may get a little dizzy, anxious, or feel faint. The normal beat following the premature contraction is often felt as a thump against the chest wall. Others describe it as a feeling of fluttering, thumping, or skipping beats.

Drugs such as quinidine, procaine amide, and potassium tend to reduce muscular excitability. The victim should also obtain adequate rest and periods of relaxation, and lessen emotional stresses. He should avoid smoking, and cut down on alcohol, coffee, and tea. Constipation and other gastrointestinal disturbances should be corrected.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

POLYNEURITIS

N. S. writes: What is done for polyneuritis?

REPLY

Most physicians try to find the cause and treat the condition if a remedy is available. Polyneuritis refers to inflammation or degernation of several nerves. A generalized disturbance such as alocholism, diabetes, or a disorder of the brain or spinal cord usually is responsible.

SKIN CANCER

B.D. writes: Would a malignancy of the skin mean there is cancer elsewhere in the body?

REPLY

Not as a rule. Internal cancers rarely spread to the skin unless they are under the skin and grow outward. A breast cancer, for example, may grow large enough to break through the skin, forming a malignant ulcer.

SMOTHER SENSATION

T.A. writes: When I lie down, I feel as if I'm smothering. Could the heart attack last year be playing a role?

REPLY

The heart is responsible if relief follows sitting up or moving about. This condition (left heart failure) occurs when the blood pressure drops and the pulse slows down after one falls asleep. This has no effect on the normal heart, but impairs the efficiency of a handicapped organ. The coronary circulation is inadequate in this individual because of the previous heart attack. The smothering sensation can be minimized by using certain drugs that improve the circulation and by sleeping on two or more pillows.

Florida Businessman Freed; Ransom Paid

SANFORD, Fla. (UPI) — A Sanford businessman, kidnaped Thursday night by two men wearing ski masks and wielding shotguns, was released unharmed early today after his son paid a $30,000 ransom.

George Jackson Jr., 52, was released in a downtown area about five blocks from his plant where he was abducted 27 hours earlier.

Jackson walked to a nearby fire station and firemen notified police. He was interviewed briefly by FBI agents and then taken to a hospital for a brief checkup after telling newsmen "I'm ok." He was then reunited with his wife at the family home.

Nick Stames, special agent in charge of the Tampa FBI office, said Jackson's son, George Jackson III, dropped the ransom money in a remote area of north Seminole County shortly before midnight Thursday night.

The money was apparently picked up a short time later. Stames said agents had the area under surveillance but there had been no arrests.

Jackson said he was treated "quite well under the circumstances. I was taped with my hands behind me and my feet tied to the edge of a bed in a small house.

"My major concern was simply being abandoned after they had gotten the money."

Jackson, who looked composed despite the ordeal, said the kidnapers never talked about political motives and the kidnaping was apparently strictly for the ransom money.

"It was a long, long night but now its over and we're just so relieved," said Mrs. Jackson.

"There was no physical harassment and the victim was not physically abused," said Stames. "He's been through quite an ordeal but he's in good shape. We took him to the hospital for a checkup and he's in good health." Jackson was blindfolded throughout the ordeal, Stames said.

Asked if the kidnaping was the work of an extremist group, Stames replied. "We're still checking out a number of leads but at this time we have no indication that militants or other extremists were involved."

Jackson was abducted from his Southern Shortening Inc. plant about 10:30 p. m. EDT Thursday while working late with his wife, Laura. The kidnapers told Mrs. Jackson her husband would be killed if she contacted police or the new media.

Newsmen learned of the kidnaping shortly after it occurred but agreed to a blackout until Jackson was released.

Rebels Continue To Hold City In Central Argentina

CORDOBA, Argentina (UPI) — Sporadic gunfire erupted in the pre-dawn hours today as rebellious police, aided by armed rightwing bands, continued to hold this industrial city in central Argentina.

Police sources said some 10 persons were wounded during the night of fighting with leftist snipers bringing the rebellion's casualty total to three dead and 22 wounded. Leftist sources put the number of wounded during the night at 30.

A bomb damaged the home of Juan C. Garat, press secretary of the provincial government, but there were no injuries. The shooting reached a lull at daybreak.

The rebel police last night released Gov. Ricardo Obregon Cano, a leftist Peronist, after a new interim governor, considered a more conservative follower of President Juan D. Peron, was sworn in and called for new elections.

Obregon Cano immediately went to the federal police to demand protection, announced his intention to reassume the governorship, and then dissappeared. Leftist sources said he had left for Buenos Aires to plead his case before the national authorities.

Federal police and army units have not been ordered to quell the rebellion.

In Buenos Aires, thousands of leftist youths arriving for a demonstration to protest what they called a "fascist" move against the popularly elected government in Cordoba were driven away Friday night by police teargas.

Trainloads of other demonstrators were blocked at the station and sent back.

The revolt in Cordoba, 420 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, began Wednesday when the governor tried to fire Police Chief Antonio D. Navarro.

Navarro, supported by his provincial police force, stormed the governor's office building and arrested Obregon, the deputy governor and other officials, charging them with arming "known Marxists."

Police then seized a five-square-block section of the downtown area and fanned out across the city.

STINSON BEACH DECISION

$2.5 Million Sewage Vote Set

Residents of the Stinson Beach County Water District will go to the polls Tuesday to decide whether their community should proceed with a $2.5 million sewage disposal system.

The district is asking voters to approve a 20-cent increase in the tax rate, as well as an application for a state loan, not to exceed $1.9 million.

The loan and the tax hike would finance a sewage treatment plant and sewer lines for almost all areas of the district, with the exception of Seadrift.

Both measures require majority approval to pass. There are 474 registered voters in the district.

Of the total cost of the treatment plant and collection system, $861,000 will be paid by federal and state grants. The remainder of the cost will have to come from Stinson Beach property owners.

The treatment plant, to be constructed in Stinson Gulch, would have the capacity to serve 2,700 persons. Proctor Jones, president of the water district board, estimated the community now has a fulltime population of 1,200, which rises to 2,000 in the summer.

Proponents of the treatment and disposal system say that it is the best and cheapest way to deal with the problem of septic tank pollution in the community. "For years irreparable septic tanks have polluted Stinson Beach with sewage," Jones said.

Opponents, like Michael D. Sanford, president of Stinson Beach Projects, argue that a significant public health hazard due to septic tank pollution has not been demonstrated.

They have urged defeat of Tuesday's measures and proposed formation of a septic tank district.

Under such a district, sewer opponents say, failing septic tanks would be corrected and all tanks maintained in good condition. "This makes available technical remedies and cost economies not feasible for the individual property owner," according to a Stinson Projects statement.

The main issue which has surfaced in the campaign is the sewage disposal system's effect on population growth in Stinson Beach.

Those who want to see the sewer measures defeated charge that its approval could result in a 200 per cent growth rate in the community, causing "a significant alteration in the quality and character" of Stinson Beach.

Proponents of the sewer system disagree. Although they admit it may result in "limited growth," according to Jones, district directors will attempt to control that growth. He said the district plans to work with a recently appointed citizens committee to recommend zoning changes for the area to prevent a proliferation of multiple family dwellings.

Water district directors have warned that unless a sewage system is in operation by 1977, the Regional Water Quality Control Board will take action against owners of failing tanks which could force them out of their homes. Fred H. Dierker, executive officer of the control board, recently said he was "sure" the board will take action against all septic tank owners who cannot demonstrate their systems are not a hazard ot public health.

Opponents have labeled these statements as threats and said, there is "little likelihood that the town will be closed down by state or county officials. The district board would be given every opportunity to prepare an alternate plan," according to opponents.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

BIG BROTHER BEFRIENDS LITTLE

Marin's Big Brother of the Year, Colby D. Howe of Tiburon, takes a weekend jaunt with his Little Brother, Tony Powers of Terra Linda. Howe was awarded his title last night at a Marin Big Brothers dinner in honor of his five years of work with the organization. Howe is married and has three children of his own. He is a sales manager for Bethlehem Steel Corp.

Mitchell, Stans Trial Hits Snag

NEW YORK (UPI) — The trial of former Nixon cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans began yesterday, but it ran into trouble after just two hours when the defense called for a mistrial.

Former Att. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans are charged with obstructing justice, conspiracy and lying to a grand jury.

Prosecutor James W. Rayhill, executive assistant U.S. attorney, near the end of a two-hour opening statement urged the jurors as they listened to witnesses to "put yourselves in the place of the grand jurors who investigated this case, citizens like yourselves..."

The defense forthwith shouted for a mistrial. The judge sent the jury to lunch. The defense argued its motion.

"Mr. Rayhill's statement indicated, contrary to your honor's instructions to this jury," said defense attorney Walter J. Bonner, "that because people just like this petit (trial) jury had indicted these two men, that they should draw a natural inference from that fact that these men were guilty.

"This is an outrageous thing to do and this case should be dismissed."

Federal Judge Lee P. Gagliardi said he would consider it seriously. Meanwhile the jury was in trouble on its own. It was after 1 p.m., the restaurant of their choice was filled, and somebody had neglected to reserve seats. They waited.

The judge went to the transcript and reread Rayhill's words He had informed the jurors earlier that an indictment is not a fact but merely an accusation which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt, or lose its case.

At 3 p.m., the jury had not returned. Judge Gagliardi took the bench, announced he was "gravely concerned over the apparent excesses of the prosecution in its references to the grand jury and its functions — his personal conclusions as though he were a witness in the matter—and I will give it appropriate consideratio and mature reflection over the weekend."

He gave the prosecution until 7 p.m. yesterday "to provide an excuse" for the opening statement and said the defense would have 24 hours to answer it in a brief.

He told the jury: "The government in its opening statement made reference to the grand jury indictment, which I have told you is not evidence. You are reminded that an indictment is only an accusation. These defendants start trial with a clean slate with no evidence against them. A grand jury does not examine the question of guilt."

Mitchell and Stans are accused of using their influence to impede a major federal investigation of the fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco in exchange for his secret $200,000 cash gift to the 1972 Nixon campaign—and of lying to the grand jury about it.

Rayhill told the jury that "those lies are the basis of the perjury counts, which are the heart of this case." He said the defendants conspired to "sell political influence for $200,000 in cash."

W. Marin Stations Have About The Same Problems

By ANNE WEST

Gasoline shortages in West Marin, where driving distances are long, are compounded by changed buying habits and new government installations, several service station managers said yesterday.

Most interviewed by the Independent-Journal said they did not think a plan to let motorists buy gas only on odd or even numbered days, depending on their license numbers, would not bring much relief. The only help for their customers, the dealers say, would be more fuel.

"This week, I ran out of my weekly quota in one day and four hours," said Albin B. Fowler, owner of the Bolinas Garage, the community's only service station.

"I don't think the odd-even plan would effect my customers; I've been rationing gas myself for the last three months," he said.

Fowler said local residents, who used to buy "over the hill" in Eastern Marin where prices were lower, are now flocking to his station, thus putting more pressure on an already scant allotment based on a percentage of 1972 sales.

Although he did not blame local drivers who sought cheaper pump prices elsewhere, Fowler said, his allotment would have "been about triple what it is now if they had bought here."

Last Wednesday, he added, he sold fuel to more than 300 customers, or 50 per cent more than he has ever had in one day. He now sells gasoline only one and half days each week.

Point Reyes sevice station operators have their problems too.

Sonny Cheda, owner of Cheda's Chevrolet, said the new Coast Guard living quarters and radio station have brought 75 more private cars and six government vehicles into the area. All are cutting into fuel allotments based on the year before they arrived.

He and other local managers received an emergency allowance when the area nearly ran dry, Cheda said, but he has received no reply to his request for more gasoline on a regular basis.

Joseph G. Horick, Phillips 66 manager in Point Reyes Station, was the only one of several dealers interviewed who believes the odd-even plan would "probably work out wonderfully after people got used to it."

Mrs. Elizabeth McDaniel, a Bolinas resident, telephoned the Independent-Journal to say that residents "can't make it," if the odd-even plan goes into effect.

With the Bolinas garage open only twice weekly, and selling only $3 worth of gasoline per customer, she said residents can "just get along" at present, but would be down to 5.5 gallons per week if limited to one day's purchase.

She noted that she teaches two art classes a week in Ross and Napa. Many West Marin housewives go "over the hill" for their marketing, she said, while commuters to San Francisco or other destinations must leave the village at 5 a.m. if they are to stand any chance of buying fuel in the early morning lines at Eastern Marin stations.

Voluntary Gas Plan Now Likely

Three Marin County supervisors, meeting with representatives of local service station dealers, tentatively agreed yesterday to go along with a voluntary gasoline marketing plan beginning March 11. (See other gas stories page 1.)

The voluntary program is an alternative to a mandatory one proposed Monday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to help reduce the long waiting lines at service stations.

Under the odd-even plan endorsed yesterday in Marin, service station operators would choose whether or not to limit gas sales on certain days on the basis of license numbers.

The Independent Service Station Dealers Association is slated to meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Civic Center to hammer out details of the plan. The board of supervisors will discuss it Tuesday.

Board approval was virtually asssured yesterday when Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste, Robert A. Roumiguiere and Michael Wornum said they preferred the voluntary approach.

Regan's proposal, endorsed by five cities in Marin and adopted by several counties elsewhere, forces an odd-even sales day plan on dealers and motorists and could result in prosecution for violators.

The governor's proposal also calls for "local control centers" to watchdog the program and coordinate information.

Roumiguiere, who met with state officials yesterday on the governor's plan, said the state offered "one or two" men to oversee the program in Marin, which has about 150 stations.

"If it's mandatory, our boys will shut down," one dealer representative told county supervisors yesterday. "We've got enough mandatory requirements already."

Under the voluntary program dealers would not be subject to prosecution, would oversee the program themselves and would sell gas to anyone, regardless of license number, on Saturdays.

As proposed, stations would operate on the odd-even program Mondays through Fridays, meaning autos with licence plate numbers ending in odd numbers would be served on odd dates and even numbers on ven dates. Stations would close Sundays.

Other parts of the voluntary plan call for motorists' tanks to be less than half full, a two-gallon limit on for gas cans, and for personalized license plates to be considered as even numbered unless they include a number — such as, Mark 1.

Sales would be subject to the availability of gasoline.

"I see no advantage to the compulsory program (proposed by the state)," Wornum said.

Baptiste agreed, adding "if the public is made aware, I think the abuses will be small."

Political Handbill Upsets Ross Mayor

Ross Mayor Frederick S. Allen, a candidate for reelection, today objected to a political handbill linking him to town council candidate James R. Drimmel.

"I had nothing to do with it. It's unethical, misleading and possibly illegal," Allen said.

The handbill, which Allen said has been received by a number of Ross residents, reads, "Vote March 5th — Allen (X), Drimmel (X). Paid for by the citizens to elect James R. (Jim) Drimmel."

Drimmel, though, said he knew nothing about the handbill.

The only campaign material he has mailed, Drimmel said, was "a brochure with my name and picture, and that was it."

Allen said he believes the handbill is illegal because it does not carry the name of the chairman of the group which mailed it — whatever group that is.

"I don't want to be associated with Mr. Drimmel in any way and I want people to know that," Allen said.

The mayor said he never has met Drimmel, much less campaigned with him.

Students Are Last To Pay 50-Cent Toll

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Four students from the New College of California in Sausalito were in the last car to cross the Golden Gate bridge at the 50-cent toll.

They paid their toll to toll collector Ray Alexander at exactly 11:59 p.m. Thursday. The next car through the toll gate had to pay 75 cents.

"We felt it was a really important event and should be documented," said Henry S. Rosenthal, 18. He was accompanied by George Rosseaux, 22; Janet Hanks, 19; and George Foehr, 22.

The students filmed their crossing as a project for their college studies.

Hayakawa Plans Action In Courts

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Semanticist S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley said yesterday he will go to the U.S. District Court and the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary in his attempt to run for the Republican Senatorial nomination.

Hayakawa, a former San Francisco State College president and a Democrat for 18 years, was declared ineligible for the primary election by the California Supreme Court last Tuesday.

The court said he failed to comply with a state law which requires a primary election candidate for senator to have been a member of his party for three months and a member of no other party for an additional nine months before filing time.

A California public opinion poll taken in February showed that Hayakawa was the favorite among potential GOP candidates seeking the seat of Democrat Alan Cranston.

Child Care Center Plans Due Review

Plans for a child care center at Redwood High School, first proposed in 1973, will be reviewed by Tamalpais High School District trustees Monday at 8 p.m. in the Redwood faculty lounge.

The proposal, prepared by the staff at Redwood, calls for a center for 12 children to be in operation by July 1.

Dock-Lock Dispute Heading Into Court

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District and Richard Blackburn, a partner in Waterways Enterprises, are headed for a showdown in the dock-lock dispute at Bel Marin Keys Lagoon.

The fight will move into Marin Superior Court March 12 since an attempt to compromise was delayed this week, according to Deputy County Counsel Thomas Hendricks.

The controversy arose in late January when Waterways Enterprises started to build a 280-foot dock to serve residents of its townhouses.

Other residents protested. So the district gained a preliminary injunction to halt work on the dock.

Blackburn countered with a temporary injunction to halt work on the district's lock, where it connects with his property.

District directors this week directed John Blume and Associates, engineers who designed the lock, to determine if it can be attached to some other property and asked attorney Albert Bianchi of San Rafael to determine if Blackburn had a valid easement for his dock.

Shooting Victim Is Satisfactory

A Sausalito woman was in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital today after being shot Thursday night be a man she said broke into her home.

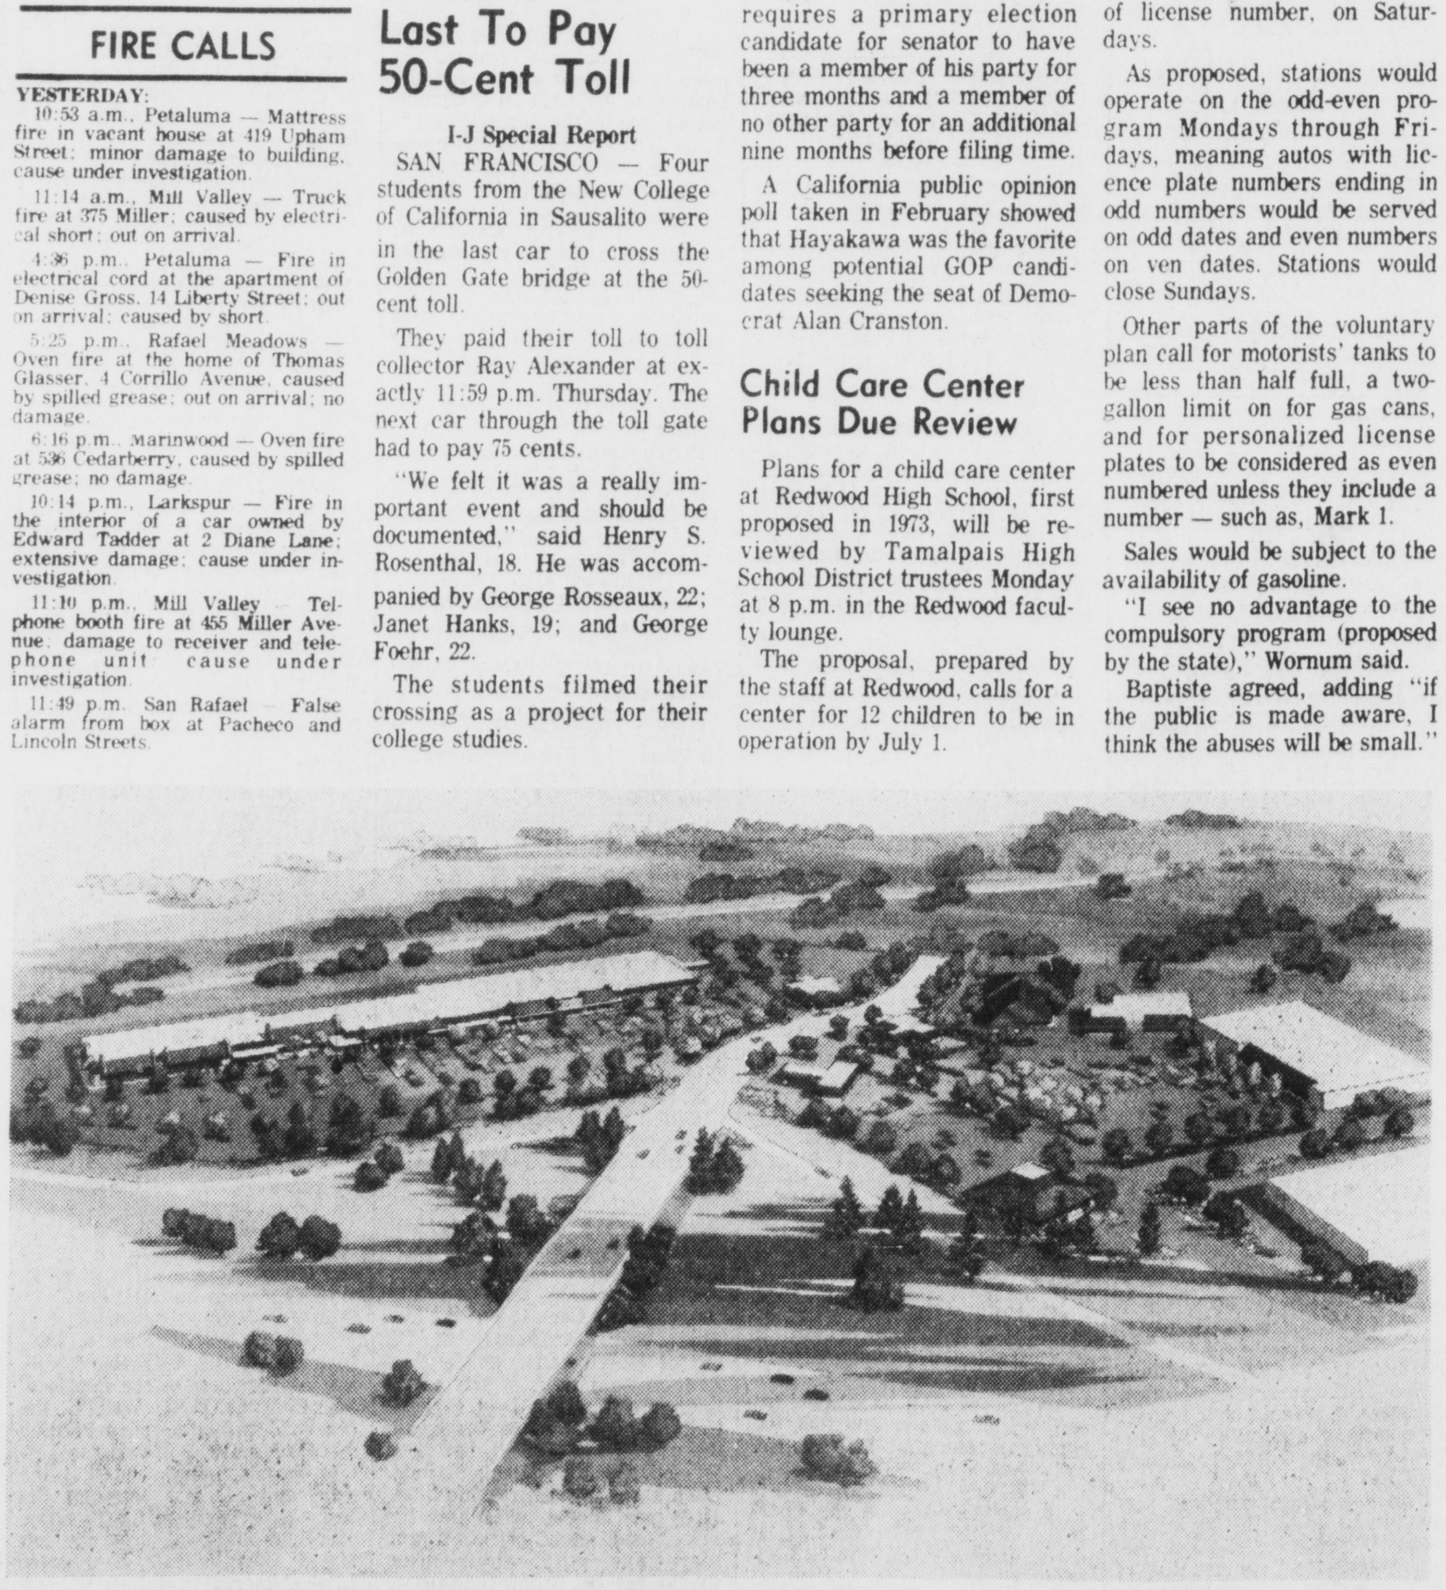
Marilyn Davis, 28, of 158 Glen Drive, received a bullet wound in her left thigh.

She told police that a man she did not know broke into her home at about 9:27 p.m. and shot her once.

Officers said the woman's gun, a .22 caliber revolver found in the house, had been fired. They said they found no evidence of forced entry and that nothing had been taken.

Studies In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill says state studies indicate automobiles contribute very little to the air pollution problem and that is why he is contesting federal restrictions proposed on automobiles in Texas' largest cities.



POTENTIAL COMMERCIAL MAGNET

This is a drawing of a major commercial development, planned by Novato Center Inc. for a 35-acre site at Highway 101 and Rowland Boulevard. The center, which will include a K-Mart department store, is the core of a master plan for development of 420 acres of the Hanna Ranch, east of Highway 101 from Highway 37 to Novato Creek. Plans for the ranch call for a golf course, motel-convention center, light industrial park, office park, tennis courts and an ice rink. Initial reactions from residents and city officials has been favorable. The master plan will be considered by the Novato Planning Commission April 6.

BIG BROTHER BEFRIENDS LITTLE

Marin's Big Brother of the Year, Colby D. Howe of Tiburon, takes a weekend jaunt with his Little Brother, Tony Powers of Terra Linda. Howe was awarded his title last night at a Marin Big Brothers dinner in honor of his five years of work with the organization. Howe is married and has three children of his own. He is a sales manager for Bethlehem Steel Corp.

STINSON BEACH DECISION

$2.5 Million Sewage Vote Set

Residents of the Stinson Beach County Water District will go to the polls Tuesday to decide whether their community should proceed with a $2.5 million sewage disposal system.

The district is asking voters to approve a 20-cent increase in the tax rate, as well as an application for a state loan, not to exceed $1.9 million.

The loan and the tax hike would finance a sewage treatment plant and sewer lines for almost all areas of the district, with the exception of Seadrift.

Both measures require majority approval to pass. There are 474 registered voters in the district.

Of the total cost of the treatment plant and collection system, $861,000 will be paid by federal and state grants. The remainder of the cost will have to come from Stinson Beach property owners.

The treatment plant, to be constructed in Stinson Gulch, would have the capacity to serve 2,700 persons. Proctor Jones, president of the water district board, estimated the community now has a fulltime population of 1,200, which rises to 2,000 in the summer.

Proponents of the treatment and disposal system say that it is the best and cheapest way to deal with the problem of septic tank pollution in the community. "For years irreparable septic tanks have polluted Stinson Beach with sewage," Jones said.

Opponents, like Michael D. Sanford, president of Stinson Beach Projects, argue that a significant public health hazard due to septic tank pollution has not been demonstrated.

They have urged defeat of Tuesday's measures and proposed formation of a septic tank district.

Under such a district, sewer opponents say, failing septic tanks would be corrected and all tanks maintained in good condition. "This makes available technical remedies and cost economies not feasible for the individual property owner," according to a Stinson Projects statement.

The main issue which has surfaced in the campaign is the sewage disposal system's effect on population growth in Stinson Beach.

Those who want to see the sewer measures defeated charge that its approval could result in a 200 per cent growth rate in the community, causing "a significant alteration in the quality and character" of Stinson Beach.

Proponents of the sewer system disagree. Although they admit it may result in "limited growth," according to Jones, district directors will attempt to control that growth. He said the district plans to work with a recently appointed citizens committee to recommend zoning changes for the area to prevent a proliferation of multiple family dwellings.

Water district directors have warned that unless a sewage system is in operation by 1977, the Regional Water Quality Control Board will take action against owners of failing tanks which could force them out of their homes. Fred H. Dierker, executive officer of the control board, recently said he was "sure" the board will take action against all septic tank owners who cannot demonstrate their systems are not a hazard ot public health.

Opponents have labeled these statements as threats and said, there is "little likelihood that the town will be closed down by state or county officials. The district board would be given every opportunity to prepare an alternate plan," according to opponents.

W. Marin Stations Have About The Same Problems

By ANNE WEST

Gasoline shortages in West Marin, where driving distances are long, are compounded by changed buying habits and new government installations, several service station managers said yesterday.

Most interviewed by the Independent-Journal said they did not think a plan to let motorists buy gas only on odd or even numbered days, depending on their license numbers, would not bring much relief. The only help for their customers, the dealers say, would be more fuel.

"This week, I ran out of my weekly quota in one day and four hours," said Albin B. Fowler, owner of the Bolinas Garage, the community's only service station.

"I don't think the odd-even plan would effect my customers; I've been rationing gas myself for the last three months," he said.

Fowler said local residents, who used to buy "over the hill" in Eastern Marin where prices were lower, are now flocking to his station, thus putting more pressure on an already scant allotment based on a percentage of 1972 sales.

Although he did not blame local drivers who sought cheaper pump prices elsewhere, Fowler said, his allotment would have "been about triple what it is now if they had bought here."

Last Wednesday, he added, he sold fuel to more than 300 customers, or 50 per cent more than he has ever had in one day. He now sells gasoline only one and half days each week.

Point Reyes sevice station operators have their problems too.

Sonny Cheda, owner of Cheda's Chevrolet, said the new Coast Guard living quarters and radio station have brought 75 more private cars and six government vehicles into the area. All are cutting into fuel allotments based on the year before they arrived.

He and other local managers received an emergency allowance when the area nearly ran dry, Cheda said, but he has received no reply to his request for more gasoline on a regular basis.

Joseph G. Horick, Phillips 66 manager in Point Reyes Station, was the only one of several dealers interviewed who believes the odd-even plan would "probably work out wonderfully after people got used to it."

Mrs. Elizabeth McDaniel, a Bolinas resident, telephoned the Independent-Journal to say that residents "can't make it," if the odd-even plan goes into effect.

With the Bolinas garage open only twice weekly, and selling only $3 worth of gasoline per customer, she said residents can "just get along" at present, but would be down to 5.5 gallons per week if limited to one day's purchase.

She noted that she teaches two art classes a week in Ross and Napa. Many West Marin housewives go "over the hill" for their marketing, she said, while commuters to San Francisco or other destinations must leave the village at 5 a.m. if they are to stand any chance of buying fuel in the early morning lines at Eastern Marin stations.

Voluntary Gas Plan Now Likely

Three Marin County supervisors, meeting with representatives of local service station dealers, tentatively agreed yesterday to go along with a voluntary gasoline marketing plan beginning March 11. (See other gas stories page 1.)

The voluntary program is an alternative to a mandatory one proposed Monday by Gov. Ronald Reagan to help reduce the long waiting lines at service stations.

Under the odd-even plan endorsed yesterday in Marin, service station operators would choose whether or not to limit gas sales on certain days on the basis of license numbers.

The Independent Service Station Dealers Association is slated to meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Civic Center to hammer out details of the plan. The board of supervisors will discuss it Tuesday.

Board approval was virtually asssured yesterday when Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste, Robert A. Roumiguiere and Michael Wornum said they preferred the voluntary approach.

Regan's proposal, endorsed by five cities in Marin and adopted by several counties elsewhere, forces an odd-even sales day plan on dealers and motorists and could result in prosecution for violators.

The governor's proposal also calls for "local control centers" to watchdog the program and coordinate information.

Roumiguiere, who met with state officials yesterday on the governor's plan, said the state offered "one or two" men to oversee the program in Marin, which has about 150 stations.

"If it's mandatory, our boys will shut down," one dealer representative told county supervisors yesterday. "We've got enough mandatory requirements already."

Under the voluntary program dealers would not be subject to prosecution, would oversee the program themselves and would sell gas to anyone, regardless of license number, on Saturdays.

As proposed, stations would operate on the odd-even program Mondays through Fridays, meaning autos with licence plate numbers ending in odd numbers would be served on odd dates and even numbers on ven dates. Stations would close Sundays.

Other parts of the voluntary plan call for motorists' tanks to be less than half full, a two-gallon limit on for gas cans, and for personalized license plates to be considered as even numbered unless they include a number — such as, Mark 1.

Sales would be subject to the availability of gasoline.

"I see no advantage to the compulsory program (proposed by the state)," Wornum said.

Baptiste agreed, adding "if the public is made aware, I think the abuses will be small."

Mitchell, Stans Trial Hits Snag

NEW YORK (UPI) — The trial of former Nixon cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans began yesterday, but it ran into trouble after just two hours when the defense called for a mistrial.

Former Att. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans are charged with obstructing justice, conspiracy and lying to a grand jury.

Prosecutor James W. Rayhill, executive assistant U.S. attorney, near the end of a two-hour opening statement urged the jurors as they listened to witnesses to "put yourselves in the place of the grand jurors who investigated this case, citizens like yourselves..."

The defense forthwith shouted for a mistrial. The judge sent the jury to lunch. The defense argued its motion.

"Mr. Rayhill's statement indicated, contrary to your honor's instructions to this jury," said defense attorney Walter J. Bonner, "that because people just like this petit (trial) jury had indicted these two men, that they should draw a natural inference from that fact that these men were guilty.

"This is an outrageous thing to do and this case should be dismissed."

Federal Judge Lee P. Gagliardi said he would consider it seriously. Meanwhile the jury was in trouble on its own. It was after 1 p.m., the restaurant of their choice was filled, and somebody had neglected to reserve seats. They waited.

The judge went to the transcript and reread Rayhill's words He had informed the jurors earlier that an indictment is not a fact but merely an accusation which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt, or lose its case.

At 3 p.m., the jury had not returned. Judge Gagliardi took the bench, announced he was "gravely concerned over the apparent excesses of the prosecution in its references to the grand jury and its functions — his personal conclusions as though he were a witness in the matter—and I will give it appropriate consideratio and mature reflection over the weekend."

He gave the prosecution until 7 p.m. yesterday "to provide an excuse" for the opening statement and said the defense would have 24 hours to answer it in a brief.

He told the jury: "The government in its opening statement made reference to the grand jury indictment, which I have told you is not evidence. You are reminded that an indictment is only an accusation. These defendants start trial with a clean slate with no evidence against them. A grand jury does not examine the question of guilt."

Mitchell and Stans are accused of using their influence to impede a major federal investigation of the fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco in exchange for his secret $200,000 cash gift to the 1972 Nixon campaign—and of lying to the grand jury about it.

Rayhill told the jury that "those lies are the basis of the perjury counts, which are the heart of this case." He said the defendants conspired to "sell political influence for $200,000 in cash."

Political Handbill Upsets Ross Mayor

Ross Mayor Frederick S. Allen, a candidate for reelection, today objected to a political handbill linking him to town council candidate James R. Drimmel.

"I had nothing to do with it. It's unethical, misleading and possibly illegal," Allen said.

The handbill, which Allen said has been received by a number of Ross residents, reads, "Vote March 5th — Allen (X), Drimmel (X). Paid for by the citizens to elect James R. (Jim) Drimmel."

Drimmel, though, said he knew nothing about the handbill.

The only campaign material he has mailed, Drimmel said, was "a brochure with my name and picture, and that was it."

Allen said he believes the handbill is illegal because it does not carry the name of the chairman of the group which mailed it — whatever group that is.

"I don't want to be associated with Mr. Drimmel in any way and I want people to know that," Allen said.

The mayor said he never has met Drimmel, much less campaigned with him.

Students Are Last To Pay 50-Cent Toll

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Four students from the New College of California in Sausalito were in the last car to cross the Golden Gate bridge at the 50-cent toll.

They paid their toll to toll collector Ray Alexander at exactly 11:59 p.m. Thursday. The next car through the toll gate had to pay 75 cents.

"We felt it was a really important event and should be documented," said Henry S. Rosenthal, 18. He was accompanied by George Rosseaux, 22; Janet Hanks, 19; and George Foehr, 22.

The students filmed their crossing as a project for their college studies.

Hayakawa Plans Action In Courts

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Semanticist S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley said yesterday he will go to the U.S. District Court and the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary in his attempt to run for the Republican Senatorial nomination.

Hayakawa, a former San Francisco State College president and a Democrat for 18 years, was declared ineligible for the primary election by the California Supreme Court last Tuesday.

The court said he failed to comply with a state law which requires a primary election candidate for senator to have been a member of his party for three months and a member of no other party for an additional nine months before filing time.

A California public opinion poll taken in February showed that Hayakawa was the favorite among potential GOP candidates seeking the seat of Democrat Alan Cranston.

Child Care Center Plans Due Review

Plans for a child care center at Redwood High School, first proposed in 1973, will be reviewed by Tamalpais High School District trustees Monday at 8 p.m. in the Redwood faculty lounge.

The proposal, prepared by the staff at Redwood, calls for a center for 12 children to be in operation by July 1.

Dock-Lock Dispute Heading Into Court

The Bel Marin Keys Community Services District and Richard Blackburn, a partner in Waterways Enterprises, are headed for a showdown in the dock-lock dispute at Bel Marin Keys Lagoon.

The fight will move into Marin Superior Court March 12 since an attempt to compromise was delayed this week, according to Deputy County Counsel Thomas Hendricks.

The controversy arose in late January when Waterways Enterprises started to build a 280-foot dock to serve residents of its townhouses.

Other residents protested. So the district gained a preliminary injunction to halt work on the dock.

Blackburn countered with a temporary injunction to halt work on the district's lock, where it connects with his property.

District directors this week directed John Blume and Associates, engineers who designed the lock, to determine if it can be attached to some other property and asked attorney Albert Bianchi of San Rafael to determine if Blackburn had a valid easement for his dock.

Studies In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill says state studies indicate automobiles contribute very little to the air pollution problem and that is why he is contesting federal restrictions proposed on automobiles in Texas' largest cities.

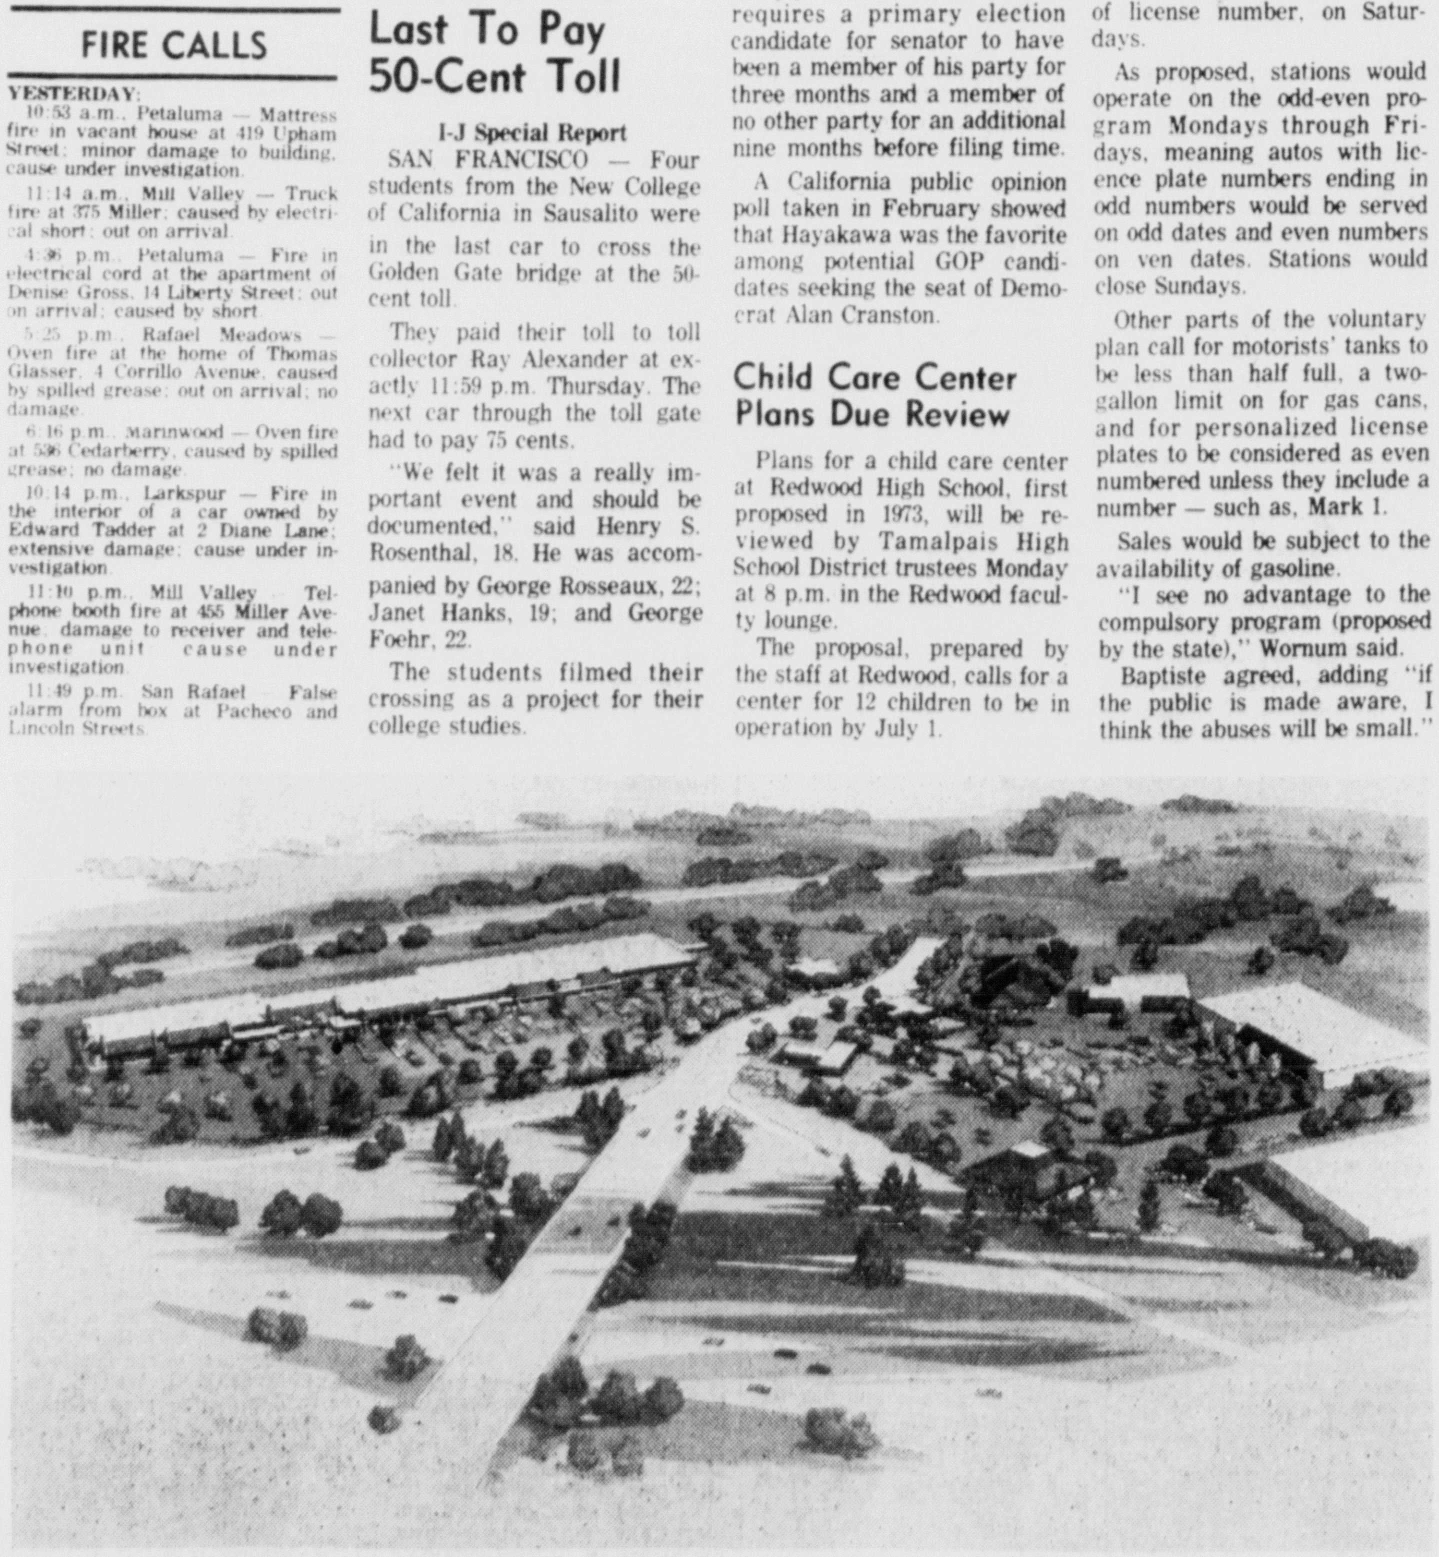
Shooting Victim Is Satisfactory

A Sausalito woman was in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital today after being shot Thursday night be a man she said broke into her home.

Marilyn Davis, 28, of 158 Glen Drive, received a bullet wound in her left thigh.

She told police that a man she did not know broke into her home at about 9:27 p.m. and shot her once.

Officers said the woman's gun, a .22 caliber revolver found in the house, had been fired. They said they found no evidence of forced entry and that nothing had been taken.



POTENTIAL COMMERCIAL MAGNET

This is a drawing of a major commercial development, planned by Novato Center Inc. for a 35-acre site at Highway 101 and Rowland Boulevard. The center, which will include a K-Mart department store, is the core of a master plan for development of 420 acres of the Hanna Ranch, east of Highway 101 from Highway 37 to Novato Creek. Plans for the ranch call for a golf course, motel-convention center, light industrial park, office park, tennis courts and an ice rink. Initial reactions from residents and city officials has been favorable. The master plan will be considered by the Novato Planning Commission April 6.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

It's A Grassroots Election Tuesday In Marin, Sonoma

By JEFF GREER

Sixty two candidates want to be elected city councilmen Tuesday in 12 Marin and Southern Sonóma County cities.

Almost to a man — or woman — the candidates are pleading, "Elect me: Let's keep Our Town a nice place to live."

Their ideas of how to accomplish this undeniably desirable feat are as varied as the colors of the rainbow.

A total of 28 council seats is open in the dozen cities. There will be contests in every city except Petaluma and San Rafael, both charter cities whose councilmen are elected only during odd-numbered years.

In Petaluma, however, voters will cast ballots Tuesday on two proposed bond issues — $1,900,000 for parks and recreation, and $750,000 for a new library.

There as in the 10 Marin County cities holding council elections, plus Cotati and Rohnert Park in Southern Sonoma, the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. The Marin County elections office will count all the Marin cities' ballots on its computer; the Sonoma County registrar of voters will do likewise for Cotati and Rohnert Park.

In addition, in Marin voters of the Stinson Beach County Water District will vote on ballot measures to finance a sewage treatment plant. They will be asked to approve a state loan of $1,850,000 to build the new plant, and to raise the district's property tax ceiling from 78 to 98 cents per $100 assessed valuation, to pay the district's share of construction costs.

The municipal elections will be a citizens' warm-up for the June 4 primary elections, which will choose the partisan candidates for Congress, the California Senate and Assembly, and the state constitutional offices from governor on down.

The June 4 ballot also will bear the names of all the non-partisan candidates for county office.

The partisan federal and state candidacy winners, and the county contestants who don't garner a clear majority in the June election, will square off again for the major election of the year in November.

The March election will be much more of a grass-roots affair. Each city's voters will be concerned with their own, local, city hall problems rather than those in Sacramento or Washington — or even in the county courthouse.

A heavy majority of the city council candidates who aren't already incumbents, are veterans of appointive service on city planning commissions or park-recreation bodies. Some are making their second run for office; one Sausalito candidate is campaigning for the eighth time.

In the pages of this special election issue of Marin Living, the reader will find detailed backgrounds on all the candidates and their backgrounds, but here are thumbnail sketches of the principal election themes, by city:

BELVEDERE — Two outgoing incumbents aren't seeking reelection; four of the six candidates have prior appointive service on city commissions. Belvedere, a small island city already almost entirely developed, is more concerned about the problems of neighboring Tiburon.

COTATI — The four-way race for two open seats is almost a replay of the action last September when Laura Washburn and Harry E. Fassio were appointed by the council to fill out unexpired terms of two old-guard councilmen who quit after failing to get three younger-oriented councilmen recalled. The appointees are competing with two others who sought appointments last September. Probably the chief campaign topics are providing enough water and handling population growth problems.

CORTE MADERA — Another replay election, in the aftermath of last December's election which filled seats after three pro-growth councilmen were recalled. The winners in the December ballot are running again for full, four-year terms, plus two others who campaigned unsuccessfully. Still the main issue is the multimillion-dollar Hahn shopping center proposed for the east side of Highway 101.

FAIRFAX — All three incumbents, plus three challengers are seeking election in the small town which has been rocked by political explosions in recent years. Candidates are stressing their views — sometimes conflicting — on whether more apartments should be built, and whether Sir Francis Drake and Center Boulevards should be widened for the benefit of traffic to and from West Marin.

LARKSPUR — One incumbent, one planning commissioner and one citizen leader against the Golden Gate ferry terminal on Corte Madera Creek are seeking the two open seats. Beside the ferry terminal, a proposed regional shopping center expansion of the Bon Air center, and development of Point San Quentin are the major controversies of the campaign.

MILL VALLEY — Both incumbents and two challengers are competing for the two seats open, with no really heated issues surfacing at this writing. Completion of the city's general plan, fears of too-heavy population growth and the public desire for open space are often discussed by the campaigners.

NOVATO — One incumbent and four challengers seek two council seats. The city's controversial growth rate control is a general theme, but the challengers seem most frequently to be hammering away that the council is unresponsive to the needs of developers, longtime residents or just plain citizens, depending on which candidate is speaking.

ROHNERT PARK — Two incumbents and three challengers seek two council seats. Campaign talks frequently center on how to add commercial and industrial growth to expand the tax base without adding more population.

ROSS — The two incumbents and one challenger are competing for two seats open. The council veterans are citing their records and the challenger is calling for a change on the council, but not particularly any changes in the longterm philosophies of the town's government.

SAN ANSELMO — Only one incumbent and five challengers seek the three seats open; all are agreed that "we want our town to stay a nice place to live." Preserving open space, better management of city parks and future use of Isabel Cook School after it closes have been the main candidates' night topics.

SAUSALITO — Continuing the trend in recent years, Sausalito again has the largest field — nine candidates for two openings. The two incumbents and seven challengers are expressing widely varying viewpoints on whether the waterfront should tend to more commercial development, more residences, or open space.

TIBURON — Just across Richardson Bay from Sausalito, Tiburon also is debating the future of its waterfront — in this case the Sequoia-Pacific property. No incumbents are seeking reelection, leaving the field to seven newcomers.

The cities' elections could — but aren't considered likely to — change the complexion of such countywide bodies as the City-County Planning Council of Marin, the Local Agency Formation Commission and the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Novato Candidates Campaign On Issues Of Leadership And City's Future Growth

By FRANK FARRARA

A lone incumbent and three other candidates are in the race for two positions on the Novato City Council in Tuesday's municipal election, with the quality of the city's present leadership, the direction of its future growth, and the implementation of the new general plan among the topics that have provided campaign material.

Incumbent F. Wayne Sartain, Planning Commission Gail M. Wilhelm, business man David E. Milano and design engineer Edward A. Brooks Jr. are the candidates in Marin-Southern Sonoma's largest municipality to participate in next week's voting.

Since incumbent Councilman George C. Quesada didn't seek re-election, there will be at least one new councilman chosen.

Polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. There are 12,988 registered voters in the city.

Brief biographies of the candidates and synopses of their views follow:

EDWARD A. BROOKS JR., 35, a design engineer with H. Koch and Sons, Corte Madera, is making his first run for public office.

He has asserted that city officials haven't reflected the "opinions and desires of the majority of our citizens," and that there has been a lack of leadership.

Brooks believes "every attempt, consistent with sound planning must be made to encourage light industrial and commercial development to spread the tax base and increase local employment, as well as making Novato a balanced, self-sufficient community."

On growth control, he said, "Neither legally nor morally can we stop growth, but if we are to control our own future, clear-cut guidelines must be established for our commissions and boards to eliminate emotional decisions and restore logic and reason as the basis for decisions, and those decisions must reflect the desires of the whole community.

"We must be concerned with the quality, type and location of future development and its economic and environmental impact on the community, rather than simplex numbers."

Brooks, a native of Napa, is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School, has attended the College of Marin and is attending Indian Valley Colleges.

He served in the Army, 1957-60, and as a reserve officer in the San Rafael Police Department, 1967-72. He formerly worked for American Molded products Ltd. in Sausalito, 1966-72.

Brooks, his wife, Margaret, and three children, live at 2519 Center Road.

DAVID E. MILANO, owner of Aero Heating and Sheet Metal Co., has described the lack of long-time Novato residents on the city council as a "serious fault."

He said "We should make every effort possible to encourage needed quality retail business and light clean industry to come to Novato."

The key issue in the campaign is how Novato grows, Milano said. He urged controlling growth "in a more reasonable and orderly fashion than it has been done in the past" and the balancing of residential growth with commercial and retail growth.

The ratio of apartments, townhouses and condominiums to single family detached homes "for example is excessively large," Milano said.

He has charged that businesses have been discouraged from locating in Novato because of long delays in processing plans.

Milano is a graduate of San Rafael High School and sheet metal trade school and studied mechanical engineering for two years at Healds College.

He is a director and past president of the Novato Boys Club, a member of the Novato Rotary Club and a director of the Sheet Metal and Air Conditioning Contractors Association of Northern California. He is a caller for the Stump Jumpers, a Novato square dance club.

Milano, his wife, Virginia, and four children, live at 798 St. Francis Avenue.

F. WAYNE SARTAIN, 41, a monotype supervisor for Mackenzie-Harris Printers in San Francisco, is seeking a second four-year term on the council.

Sartain advocates putting into effect the Novato Area General Plan, drafted and adopted during his first term, particularly growth control.

"The new general plan must be implemented," he said. "The right of the

It's A Grassroots Election Tuesday In Marin, Sonoma

By JEFF GREER

Sixty two candidates want to be elected city councilmen Tuesday in 12 Marin and Southern Sonoma County cities.

Almost to a man — or woman — the candidates are pleading, "Elect me: Let's keep Our Town a nice place to live."

Their ideas of how to accomplish this undeniably desirable feat are as varied as the colors of the rainbow.

A total of 28 council seats is open in the dozen cities. There will be contests in every city except Petaluma and San Rafael, both charter cities whose councilmen are elected only during odd-numbered years.

In Petaluma, however, voters will cast ballots Tuesday on two proposed bond issues — $1,900,000 for parks and recreation, and $750,000 for a new library.

There as in the 10 Marin County cities holding council elections, plus Cotati and Rohnert Park in Southern Sonoma, the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. The Marin County elections office will count all the Marin cities' ballots on its computer; the Sonoma County registrar of voters will do likewise for Cotati and Rohnert Park.

In addition, in Marin voters of the Stinson Beach County Water District will vote on ballot measures to finance a sewage treatment plant. They will be asked to approve a state loan of $1,850,000 to build the new plant, and to raise the district's property tax ceiling from 78 to 98 cents per $100 assessed valuation, to pay the district's share of construction costs.

The municipal elections will be a citizens' warm-up for the June 4 primary elections, which will choose the partisan candidates for Congress, the California Senate and Assembly, and the state constitutional offices from governor on down.

The June 4 ballot also will bear the names of all the non-partisan candidates for county office.

The partisan federal and state candidacy winners, and the county contestants who don't garner a clear majority in the June election, will square off again for the major election of the year in November.

The March election will be much more of a grass-roots affair. Each city's voters will be concerned with their own, local, city hall problems rather than those in Sacramento or Washington — or even in the county courthouse.

A heavy majority of the city council candidates who aren't already incumbents, are veterans of appointive service on city planning commissions or park-recreation bodies. Some are making their second run for office; one Sausalito candidate is campaigning for the eighth time.

In the pages of this special election issue of Marin Living, the reader will find detailed backgrounds on all the candidates and their backgrounds, but here are thumbnail sketches of the principal election themes, by city:

BELVEDERE — Two outgoing incumbents aren't seeking reelection; four of the six candidates have prior appointive service on city commissions. Belvedere, a small island city already almost entirely developed, is more concerned about the problems of neighboring Tiburon.

COTATI — The four-way race for two open seats is almost a replay of the action last September when Laura Washburn and Harry E. Fassio were appointed by the council to fill out unexpired terms of two old-guard councilmen who quit after failing to get three younger-oriented councilmen recalled. The appointees are competing with two others who sought appointments last September. Probably the chief campaign topics are providing enough water and handling population growth problems.

CORTE MADERA — Another replay election, in the aftermath of last December's election which filled seats after three pro-growth councilmen were recalled. The winners in the December ballot are running again for full, four-year terms, plus two others who campaigned unsuccessfully. Still the main issue is the multimillion-dollar Hahn shopping center proposed for the east side of Highway 101.

FAIRFAX — All three incumbents, plus three challengers are seeking election in the small town which has been rocked by political explosions in recent years. Candidates are stressing their views — sometimes conflicting — on whether more apartments should be built, and whether Sir Francis Drake and Center Boulevards should be widened for the benefit of traffic to and from West Marin.

LARKSPUR — One incumbent, one planning commissioner and one citizen leader against the Golden Gate ferry terminal on Corte Madera Creek are seeking the two open seats. Beside the ferry terminal, a proposed regional shopping center expansion of the Bon Air center, and development of Point San Quentin are the major controversies of the campaign.

MILL VALLEY — Both incumbents and two challengers are competing for the two seats open, with no really heated issues surfacing at this writing. Completion of the city's general plan, fears of too-heavy population growth and the public desire for open space are often discussed by the campaigners.

NOVATO — One incumbent and four challengers seek two council seats. The city's controversial growth rate control is a general theme, but the challengers seem most frequently to be hammering away that the council is unresponsive to the needs of developers, longtime residents or just plain citizens, depending on which candidate is speaking.

ROHNERT PARK — Two incumbents and three challengers seek two council seats. Campaign talks frequently center on how to add commercial and industrial growth to expand the tax base without adding more population.

ROSS — The two incumbents and one challenger are competing for two seats open. The council veterans are citing their records and the challenger is calling for a change on the council, but not particularly any changes in the longterm philosophies of the town's government.

SAN ANSELMO — Only one incumbent and five challengers seek the three seats open; all are agreed that "we want our town to stay a nice place to live." Preserving open space, better management of city parks and future use of Isabel Cook School after it closes have been the main candidates' night topics.

SAUSALITO — Continuing the trend in recent years, Sausalito again has the largest field — nine candidates for two openings. The two incumbents and seven challengers are expressing widely varying viewpoints on whether the waterfront should tend to more commercial development, more residences, or open space.

TIBURON — Just across Richardson Bay from Sausalito, Tiburon also is debating the future of its waterfront — in this case the Sequoia-Pacific property. No incumbents are seeking reelection, leaving the field to seven newcomers.

The cities' elections could — but aren't considered likely to — change the complexion of such countywide bodies as the City-County Planning Council of Marin, the Local Agency Formation Commission and the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Novato Voters Choose Two City Councilmen From A Field Of Four citizens to decide the acceptability of land use and design of their city, and not to be controlled by special interests, is of vital concern to us all."

While supporting commercial and light industrial growth, Sartain said: "However, we must not sacrifice our community standards by allowing outside interests to impose their garish signs, ugly franchise buildings and poor quality construction on us. We lose the semi-rural quality of Novato if we do."

Sartain, formerly a member of the Novato Planning Commission, is a past president of the San Marin Improvement Association and a founder of the North Marin Federation of Homeowners.

He, his wife, Bea, and three children live at 160 Cabro Court.

GAIL M. WILHELM, 36, in her second term on the Novato Planning Commission, has advocated "vigorous implementation of the new general plan."

She said the entire growth program could be placed in jeopardy through misunderstanding. "Too many people have been given the false impression that this is a 'stop growth' ordinance. It is not. A growth rate of 500 new units per year was chosen because it represented the average growth rate in the Novato area over a 13-year period."

Mrs. Wilhelm, countering charges the city has been anti-business, said the city has zoned 90 acres for commercial use and about 70 acres for planned industrial development, "zoning that in the past had not been available."

This zoning should facilitate bringing commerce and industry to Novato, she said.

Mrs. Wilhelm's platform is to maintain the semi-rural suburban quality that makes Novato unique, to protect Novato's open space lands, reverse the present trend toward too many apartments and townhouses, assure quality construction and architectural excellence in all new developments, support plans to bring better shopping and business facilities to Novato, and move ahead with the flood protection program.

Mrs. Wilhelm, a graduate of the University of California at Berkely, has served as vice president of the League of Women Voters, a director of the American Association of University Women, chairman of the Novato Environmental Quality Committee and chairman of the Save Olompali Committee.

She, her husband, Donald, and two children live at 21 Hayes Street.

In Fairfax Key Issue Is Growth

By NELS JOHNSON

Six candidates are vying for three seats on the Fairfax Town Council in the Tuesday municipal elections.

Some 4,267 registered voters are eligible in Fairfax to cast ballots in the election.

Seeking reelection are incumbents Frank J. Egger, Lee Nelder and Robert R. Souza. Challenging the incumbents are Alfred F. Daubenfeld, Randall L. Garrison and Priscilla C. Gray.

Candidates have generally agreed that long range planning and growth control are the key issues facing the city, but have varied in their approaches to those issues.

Daubenfeld, 56, an attorney, favors the general concept of a quota system whereby developments are limited, but opposes a flat moratorium on building as an interim growth control measure.

Egger, 35, a bakery salesman, embraces the concept of a building moratorium as an interim growth control measure, and supports a growth rate of 1.5 per cent annually, or about 50 units each year, a figure in line with the Marin County General Plan.

Garrison, 33, regional manager for a San Francisco steel firm, opposes a moratorium but supports a growth rate of about 2 per cent annually, or 75 units per year, and has proposed the city should beef up its design review board by increasing the agency from three to five members.

Mrs. Gray, 47, town treasurer and teacher of retarded children, declaring she "hates developers," supports a building moratorium, annual growth quota, and "anything that would help control growth and put some sense in the Fairfax growth rate."

Nelder, 52, a San Francisco police sergeant, opposes a building moratorium, but supports limited growth. He agrees with colleague Souza that a county proposal for an area wide growth review board is unnecessary and represents simply "another layer of government."

Souza, 50, a veterans' employment coordinator, opposes a building moratorium because he can see no real need for such a measure, and notes that a fixed annual unit of growth rate "was thrown out by the courts as unconstitutional."

The major development facing Fairfax — a proposal for 80 units on the Buon Gusto Restaurant site off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard — has drawn outright opposition from Egger, Garrison and Gray. Daubenfeld, Nelder and Souza have declined to take a definitive stand on the proposal, saying that they have not seen plans for the project and saying they will not prejudge it.

Brief backgrounds and more views of the candidates are:

ALFRED F. DAUBENFELD, a member of the city board of review, is a retired Army colonel with a wide background in the military police corps. He holds a master's degree in history and political science from San Francisco State College and bachelor and doctorate of law degrees from Loyola University.

He has pledged to represent "all the people," act honestly and "above board" at all times and "preserve the beauty and uniqueness of Fairfax from the ravages of pollution and uncontrolled development."

He lives at 104 San Gabriel Drive with his wife, Margaret.

FRANK J. EGGER, first elected to the town council in 1966, was re-elected in 1970 with 1,043 ballots, the highest vote ever tallied by a Fairfax Council candidate. He attended Santa Rosa Junior College, College of Marin and University of San Francisco.

Egger, former chairman of the town parks and recreation commission, has called for "strict annual limitations" on growth in town since "development pressure" is the major issue facing the city. He is running on "my proven record of concern for and responsiveness to the needs of the townspeople."

He lives at 13 Meadow Way with his wife, Ronita.

RANDALL L. GARRISON, a parks and recreation commissioner defeated in a bid for a council seat in 1972, holds a Bachelor's Degree in economics from University of San Francisco. He is a

Daubenfeld, 56, an attorney, favors the general concept of a quota system whereby developments are limited, but opposes a flat moratorium on building as an interim growth control measure.

Egger, 35, a bakery salesman, embraces the concept of a building moratorium as an interim growth control measure, and supports a growth rate of 1.5 per cent annually, or about 50 units each year, a figure in line with the Marin County General Plan.

Garrison, 33, regional manager for a San Francisco steel firm, opposes a moratorium but supports a growth rate of about 2 per cent annually, or 75 units per year, and has proposed the city should beef up its design review board by increasing the agency from three to five members.

Mrs. Gray, 47, town treasurer and teacher of retarded children, declaring she "hates developers," supports a building moratorium, annual growth quota, and "anything that would help control growth and put some sense in the Fairfax growth rate."

Nelder, 52, a San Francisco police sergeant, opposes a building moratorium, but supports limited growth. He agrees with colleague Souza that a county proposal for an area wide growth review board is unnecessary and represents simply "another layer of government."

Souza, 50, a veterans' employment coordinator, opposes a building moratorium because he can see no real need for such a measure, and notes that a fixed annual unit of growth rate "was thrown out by the courts as unconstitutional."

The major development facing Fairfax — a proposal for 80 units on the Buon Gusto Restaurant site off Sir Francis' Drake Boulevard — has drawn outright opposition from Egger, Garrison and Gray. Daubenfeld, Nelder and Souza have declined to take a definitive stand on the proposal, saying that they have not seen plans for the project and saying they will not prejudge it.

Brief backgrounds and more views of the candidates are:

ALFRED F. DAUBENFELD, a member of the city board of review, is a retired Army colonel with a wide background in the military police corps. He holds a master's degree in history and political science from San Francisco State College and bachelor and doctorate of law degrees from Loyola University.

He has pledged to represent "all the people," act honestly and "above board" at all times and "preserve the beauty and uniqueness of Fairfax from the ravages of pollution and uncontrolled development."

He lives at 104 San Gabriel Drive with his wife, Margaret.

FRANK J. EGGER, first elected to the town council in 1966, was re-elected in 1970 with 1,043 ballots, the highest vote ever tallied by a Fairfax Council candidate. He attended Santa Rosa Junior College, College of Marin and University of San Francisco.

Egger, former chairman of the town parks and recreation commission, has called for "strict annual limitations" on growth in town since "development pressure" is the major issue facing the city. He is running on "my proven record of concern for and responsiveness to the needs of the townspeople."

He lives at 13 Meadow Way with his wife, Ronita.

RANDALL L. GARRISON, a parks and recreation commissioner defeated in a bid for a council seat in 1972, holds a Bachelor's Degree in economics from University of San Francisco. He is a

Ross Town Council Candidates Differ On Flood Control And A Bicycle Path

Flood control in the Ross Valley is the key issue in the Ross council race as a challenger has proposed a different approach to the problem than the two incumbents.

FREDERICK S. ALLEN
The mayor since 1964

JAMES R. DRIMMEL
Director of marketing

ROY FARRINGTON JONES
On council since 1962

Mayor Frederick S. Allen and Councilman Roy Farrington Jones both support the flood control project as planned and say it should proceed as soon as all legel suits challenging the project are resolved.

But James R. Drimmel, a newcomer to Ross politics, has proposed that the project be completed only as far north as Lagunitas Bridge. Only periodic cleaning and dredging are needed north of the bridge, he said.

There are 1,617 persons resistered in the Town of Ross for the election.

FREDERICK S. ALLEN, 61, is a native of New York City and a graduate of Harvard University. He is retired and was formerly vice president of the Pacific Coast Title Co. He has lived in Ross 29 years.

He is married, the father of four children and lives at 131 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard with his wife, Barbara. He is a retired Navy commander and served during World War II and the Korean War. He is a member of the General Society of the Mayflower Descendants, National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, Military Order of the World Wars and the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

Allen said the flood control project is the most important issue before the town and urged that it go ahead as soon as all legel challenges are resolved. He predicted that town budgets will increase to keep pace with inflation, opposes another candidate's proposal for a bicycle path along Shady Lane and thinks the town should not hire a full-time town manager.

Allen has been on the council since 1960 and mayor since 1964.

JAMES R. DRIMMEL, 40, is a native of Kansas City, Mo., who attended San Diego State College and the University of San Diego but holds no degree. He has lived in Ross four years. He and his wife, Bobbette, have four children.

He is director of marketing of commercial properties for the L. B. Nelson Corp., Menlo Park. He is a founder of the Golden Gate Regional Antique Auto Club of America in Marin County, and a member of National Trust for Historic Preservation, Knights of Columbus and is a past member of the California Heritage Council.

Drimmel also thinks the flood control project is a major issue in the campaign, but wishes to see it completed only to Lagunitas Bridge.

He favors leaving the northern portion of the creek in its natural state.

Drimmel proposes that a bicycle path be built along Shady Lane, even though neighborhood residents have opposed the path previously. He said it is "unconscionable" for anyone to vote against the bicycle path which he claims would keep children off "a very dangerous, narrow street."

He opposes hiring a full-time town manager.

ROY FARRINGTON JONES, 49, is a native of San Francisco and has spent most of his life in Marin. He was reared in San Anselmo and graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1942. He has been a partner in the realty firm of Farrington Jones and Son since 1946.

Jones is the father of two daughters and lives at 20 Olive Avenue with his wife, Nancy. He served on the citizens advisory committee in both Ross and San Anselmo and was a director of the Town of Ross Property Owners Association. He is a member of the American Right of Way Association, Society of Real Estate Appraisers and Marin County Real Estate Board.

Jones thinks the flood control project should proceed as soon as all court cases are settled. Delaying or refusing to complete the project could make the town liable for "tremendous legal damages," Jones said.

He opposes any plan for a bicycle path along Shady Lane and thinks the town should hire a full-time town clerk before even considering the need for a full-time town manager.

Jones has served on the council since 1962.

member of the town general plan citizens committee.

Garrison said he is running to pump new life into the council, a group that has been "too passive" in the past.

"The council should take a more active role in management of the town," he said. He supports development within the framework of the Marin County General Plan.

He lives at 35 Canyon Road with his wife, Sharon.

PRISCILLA C. GRAY, running because of her concern about "the nature and scope of new development in the town", is a former member of the Fairfax School District Board. In 1972 she served as chairman of Preserve Land and Nature, a group opposing apartment development of Max Friedman's Marin Town and Country Club. She holds a Master's Degree in education from San Francisco State College.

Running on a slow growth, anti-development platform, Mrs. Gray has said the town is unable to cope with great influxes of population. She supports paying town policemen a wage equivalent to the average county-wide police pay.

She lives at 126 Ridge Road with her husband, Buhl.

LEE NELDER, brother of San Francisco Supervisor Al Nelder, was first elected to the council in 1970. He is a 27-year veteran of the San Francisco Police Department who works at the department's police pistol range. He attended the university of San Francisco and San Francisco City College.

Nelder, pledging to preserve Fairfax as a "small residential community," said he supports quality government at minimal cost. He has urged "very slow controlled growth," but notes that some future development is inevitable. "You can't stop all growth," he said.

He lives at 241 Marinda Drive with his wife Marilyn.

ROBERT R. SOUZA, appointed to the council in 1964 and since re-elected twice to the post, is the agency's senior member. The veteran councilman attended College of Marin and holds a Bachelor's Degree in psychology from University of San Francisco. He is former chariman of the town parks and recreation commission.

Souza, saying he is an advocate of controlled growth in Fairfax, said the major issue facing the city is "offering needed public services within the town's ability to pay." He has called for acquisition of open space "only by voter approval in a bond issue," and has call urged integrity in public office.

He lives at 18 Claus Circle with his wife, Louise.

The stands taken by six candidates in Tuesday's council election range all the way from a building moratorium and development quotas to opposition to such measures.

THE BIG ISSUE IN TIBURON

How Much Development Will Be Permitted In Downtown Area?

By BECKY LARSEN

Whether or not Tiburon will allow the development of its downtown area has surfaced as the major issue in the competition for three city council seats to be filled in Tuesday's election.

Seven candidates are seeking the offices being vacated by incumbents Mayor Branwell D. Fanning, Councilman M. Carlisle Becker and Councilman Albert H. Sennett.

The city's 3,607 registered voters will choose from among:

John S. Mueller, 32, marketing consultant and Marin County grand juror; E. Bruce Ross, 37, architect and planning commissioner; Robert H. Wayne, 53, personnel consultant and planning commissioner; George C. Martinez, 39, attorney; Harry S. Matthews, 41, banker and planning commissioner; Donald S. Tayer, 41, attorney and planning commissioner, and George Ellman, 49, biochemist and former chairman of the city parks and recreation commission.

ALL CANDIDATES seem to agree that the present downtown plans for development by Sequoia Pacific of Santa Ana would crowd the Tiburon waterfront with buildings, overexpand retail space and generate too much traffic along Tiburon Boulevard from outside visitors.

Most believe that the city can work with the developer to write a plan which will suit more of its residents. However, there have been suggestions that the city could buy the land and organize the development of the property itself.

Candidates vary on whether or not they reject the redevelopment agency which the present council already has begun organizing as a means of footing the bill for some of the expenses of developing the downtown area. Some oppose the idea completely on the grounds that it could cut down on tax revenue and result in higher tax rates for home owners. Others feel the idea should be studied further.

ALL CANDIDATES agree that the city needs more recreation facilities and propose various ideas for developing boat harbors, swimming pools and tennis courts.

Possible widening of Tiburon Boulevard into a four-lane expressway remains a major issue, as it has been in previous council races. Most contend that the city must go ahead with widening in the Trestle Glen Boulevard area where a sharp curve has been the site of many accidents. But all seem to believe that further widening south of Trestle Glen would encourage more visitor traffic on the Peninsula.

The candidates and their positions include the following:

E. BRUCE ROSS, who has been on the planning commission for a year and a half, was one of the first of its members to urge that residents be given a better chance to comment on the Sequoia Pacific plans than the regular public hearing process would allow. He helped arrange a series of workshops between residents and the developer, held in December and January.

He also has urged the updating of a city-adopted Downtown Plan that was drawn up in 1969 and supposedly serves as the basis for Sequoia Pacific's proposal.

Ross said he would like to have the workshops continued in the future to deal with the overall downtown development question.

Ross has called the Sequoia Pacific proposal "Instant City."

"They're talking about a four-year build-up, and that's crazy. Why do we have to rush to make all the decisions at once? We can build it up over 50 years if we have to."

He has emphasized the need to keep the downtown waterfront undeveloped (where Sequoia Pacific has proposed a marina and retail shops), and has suggested the expansion of facilities near Corinthian Island Yacht Club to provide more space for Tiburon boaters who lack slips for their vessels.

He has also suggested that if the city cannot afford to build more recreational facilities, it could incorporate a recreation club for residents.

Ross opposed widening of Tiburon Boulevard except in the Trestle Glen area where he said some change is needed to reduce accidents.

Ross belonged to a group of residents who submitted a Downtown Plan to the city a few years ago that was turned down in favor of one done by architect Philip K. Buskirk.

He is a past president of the Tiburon Peninsula Advisory Committee and a former Little League coach. He is a partner in the architectural firm of Backen, Arrigoni and Ross Inc. in San Francisco and earned his degree in architecture at the University of Oregon.

Nine year residents of the city, he, his wife and three children reside in Tiburon at 1807 Centro West Street.

GEORGE ELLMAN has lived in Tiburon for 16 years with his wife and daughter. They reside at 2090 Vistazo East Street.

He is a former chairman of the parks and recreation commission, of which his wife, Phyllis, is now a member. He is a founder of the city's Ayala Day celebration and a charter member of the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society.

His opposition to Sequoia Pacific's present plans does not rule out allowing the firm to build downtown one day. "Their plans may be satisfactorily modified to suit the city," he said.

He has opposed building a waterfront marina, as the firm has suggested, but has indicated that he would favor expanding docking space somewhere in Tiburon to serve boaters.

He also has objected to the use of the redevelopment process as currently proposed by the city council.

To increase recreation facilities in the city, he urged immediate building of the Richardson Bay Lineal Park. He said that he would like the city to carefully scrutinize State Highway Department plans for widening Tiburon Boulevard at Trestle Glen to insure that the construction does not destroy the beauty of the park site that lies nearby.

He said he would oppose any widening of the boulevard south of Trestle Glen.

Ellman is a member of the Tiburon Peninsula Club and a former chairman of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs. He earned a Bachelor's Degree at the University of Illinois and a Ph.D. from the California Institute of Technology. He is a biochemist at Langley-Porter Institute in San Francisco.

DONALD S. TAYER said he favors continued community workshops on the Sequoia Pacific plans such as those he helped organize recently while serving on the planning commission.

"We have to have more community participation than just the typical questions-and-answers at hearings," he said.

He has said he sees major flaws in the Sequoia Pacific proposal.

He objects to widening Tiburon Boulevard south of Trestle Glen.

He has urged that the city pay more attention to the recreational needs of residents and said that if it cannot pay for additional facilities, it can make more creative and efficient use of existing buildings such as schools and playgrounds.

Tayer has lived in Tiburon 10 years and resides with his wife and two children at 10 East Terrace Court.

He has served on the planning commission one year. Before that appointment, he served four years on the parks and recreation commission for which he was also chairman. He is a former president of the Reedlands Property Owners Association.

He earned a Bachelors Degree at Swarthmore College and a law degree at Harvard University. His practice is in San Francisco.

HARRY S. MATTHEWS is a vice president of the Bank of California in San Francisco. He was appointed to the planning commission in July 1972. He also has served on the city's board of adjustments.

Matthews has proposed several specific changes for the Sequoia Pacific proposal, including eliminating a planned inn-conference center, and cutting back retail floor space from 53,000 square feet as proposed to 10,000 square feet. He also wants to drop plans for the marina.

"We have to keep the waterfront open between the Windjammer and the Caprice," he said.

But he does suggest building slips for boaters at the old Tiburon Naval Net Depot.

He opposed any more apartment building downtown. "Townhouses and condominiums are OK," he said. "But we want more single family residents."

He said that most residents had misunderstood the concept of the redevelopment agency. "It's been formed as a tool," he said. "It could be useful, and we're trying to find out if it's appropriate."

He has rejected the prospect of extensive widening of Tiburon Boulevard, but agreed that some improvements are needed in the Trestle Glen area.

"Last year at that intersection, there were 12 injury accidents. We don't want to bisect the park area that is available there, but the curve has to be made safe."

Matthews has lived in Tiburon for eight years. He, his wife and four children reside at 20 Spring Lane.

He is a past director of the Little Reed Heights and the Rolling Hills Property Owners Associations. He has managed a Tiburon Little League team and is a past treasurer of the Tiburon Peninsula Club.

He is a graduate of Colgate University.

GEORGE C. MARTINEZ said he was led to his present stand on the Sequoia Pacific development by a previous residence in Sausalito.

"Most of the people living on the hills there aren't too happy with what's happened to their downtown there," he said. "It's not too late for Tiburon to prevent that kind of commercialization."

He has proposed cutting down the density of the Sequoia Pacific project extensively, and said that the marina proposed by the development firm should be limited to only a few slips. "A port of call might be possible," he said.

He said that outright city purchase of the downtown land is probably unlikely.

"It should be developed, but we have to find out how to serve Tiburon first and the developer second," he said.

He agreed that the city needs more recreational facilities but suggested that they must be balanced against their cost to be sure they do not excessively burden taxpayers.

Martinez is a graduate of San Francisco State University and the University of San Francisco School of Law. In 1968 he was appointed to the Joint Legislative Committee on Bay Area Reorganization.

His law practice is in San Francisco.

ROBERT H. WAYNE is a planning commissioner and member of the city's board of adjustments. He said he sees a need for changes in the Sequoia Pacific plans, but said he did not think that the city could stop outsiders from visiting and touring Tiburon even if the development site remained as open space.

"We have to develop the community while maintaining aesthetics," he said.

He said he thought the Sequoia Pacific firm was the best possible developer for the land because of its close connection with the owner, Southern Pacific Railroad. (Sequoia Pacific is a partner with the railroad.)

"We don't want to lose him," he said. "We have to tell him what we want and see if he can do it."

He has suggested that the council declare a downtown building ban on both Southern Pacific land and property of Fred G. Zelinsky of Belvedere until a citizens committee can revise the city-adopted Downtown Plan.

However, early in the debate over Sequoia Pacific's proposal, Wayne had opposed review of the adopted Downtown Plan at planning commission meetings.

Wayne is a personnel consultant with his own firm in San Francisco. He has lived eight years in Tiburon and resides at 180 Hacienda Drive with his wife and four children.

JOHN SCOTT MUELLER has taken one of the strongest stands on the downtown development plans and proposes that the city should buy the land and either leave it open or organize its own development proposal.

"I'm not convinced we'll get a plan from Sequoia Pacific we can live with," he said.

The purchase probably could be financed through federal or state funds, said Mueller. Although the developer has contended the land is worth 10 million dollars, Mueller says it is worth about one million.

Mueller calls the proposed redevelopment project "a tax disaster" that could increase taxes in Tiburon, Belvedere, Corte Madera and unincorporated areas because it will cut the amount of assessed valuation in all these jurisdictions. If elected, he will work to dissolve the redevelopment agency, he pledged.

Mueller has charged that past city councils have dawdled in setting up community recreational facilities. "Where are our parks and playgrounds and swimming pools for kids?" he asked.

He also thinks that the city must reconsider the proposed widening of Tiburon Boulevard in the Trestle Glen area on the grounds that it could turn that intersection into a superhighway interchange.

He pledged that he will serve as a full-time city councilman who devotes 30 or more hours a week to the non-paying job. He said he could do this because he is self-employed as a marketing consultant.

Mueller has lived in Tiburon six years and resides at 246B Esperanza Street. He is a Marin County grand juror, present vice president of the Volunteer Bureau of Marin, vice president of Planned Parenthood of Marin, a member of the Marin Council of Agencies and a Marin United Bay Area Crusade representative.

He has Bachelors and Masters degrees from Michigan State University.

Hahn Regional Shopping Center Plan Again Stirs Controversy In Corte Madera

Five candidates who sought Corte Madera Town Council seats in a special election in December are confronting the same issues again as they vie for three council positions at stake in municipal election Tuesday.

Jana G. Haehl, Albert A. Kostelic and Joel A. Shawn, winners in the December election to complete the terms of three councilmen recalled in September, are seeking reelection.

Larry P. Weingarth and John C. Reed, also candidates in the special race, are making a second try for the council.

The proposed Hahn regional shopping center, a major issue in the recall of three councilmen in September and in the special vote to name their replacements, is again a key in this election.

After the council took on a "limited-growth" majority in December, Hahn's previously granted fill permit from the town was reconsidered. The permit was suspended pending adoption of the town's general plan.

But that is not the only hurdle for the center. Hahn has an application for a fill permit pending before the Army Corps of Engineers, and a decision on that application is not expected before summer.

Other development plans hold a share of the election's spotlight as owners of the Madera del Presidio site continue to seek approval for building plans there, and owners of the existing Corte Madera Shopping Center have sought to expand it.

There are 4,973 persons registered to vote in Corte Madera in the election.

The candidates are:

JANA G. HAEHL, 35, a native of Phoenix, Ariz., who attended both the University of Arizona and Arizona State University.

She is a cofounder of the Corte Madera Town Meeting and was vice president of the Town Meeting Coordinating Council. She is a former president of the Corte Madera Avenue Homeowners Association and the Larkspur-Corte Madera Parent-Teachers Association.

She opposes the Hahn proposal, but said she would consider plans for the 25 acres of previously filled land at the site. She also supports plans to upgrade the existing center but doesn't support present expansion plans because they go beyond town zoning. She favors holding regional growth control discussions as long as Corte Madera is not forced to relinquish control over local zoning.

ALBERT A. KOSTELIC, 43, is a native of Salida, Colo., and a graduate of Western State College in Gunnison, Colo. He is a manager of public and private bonds in San Francisco.

He is a seven-year resident of Corte Madera and lives at 120 Lakeside Drive with his wife, Jeanne, and their two sons. He is a member of the Corte Madera Lions Club and has been involved in several community programs for youngsters.

He supports Hahn's proposed center if a fill permit is issued by the corps, the town is given 32 acres in open space, access roads are adequate and redevelopment expenditures are under a million dollars. Present plans to upgrade the existing center "fall short in a number of areas" of being acceptable to him.

He supports regional growth control discussions but feels the town should set its own priorities for development first.

JOHN C. REED, 21, is a native of Miami, Fla., and a graduate of Redwood High School.

He has lived in Corte Madera 11 years and now resides at 10 Golden Hind Passage. He is a freelance illustrator of books. He said he has not been involved in any town board or groups.

He opposes the proposed regional shopping center and said if anything is developed on the site it should be a smaller center than the one proposed. He supports controlled growth, but gave no specifics on how growth should be controlled.

Hahn Regional Shopping Center Plan Again Stirs Controversy In Corte Madera

Five candidates who sought Corte Madera Town Council seats in a special election in December are confronting the same issues again as they vie for three council positions at stake in municipal election Tuesday.

Jana G. Haehl, Albert A. Kostelic and Joel A. Shawn, winners in the December election to complete the terms of three councilmen recalled in September, are seeking reelection.

Larry P. Weingarth and John C. Reed, also candidates in the special race, are making a second try for the council.

The proposed Hahn regional shopping center, a major issue in the recall of three councilmen in September and in the special vote to name their replacements, is again a key in this election.

After the council took on a "limited-growth" majority in December, Hahn's previously granted fill permit from the town was reconsidered. The permit was suspended pending adoption of the town's general plan.

But that is not the only hurdle for the center. Hahn has an application for a fill permit pending before the Army Corps of Engineers, and a decision on that application is not expected before summer.

Other development plans hold a share of the election's spotlight as owners of the Madera del Presidio site continue to seek approval for building plans there, and owners of the existing Corte Madera Shopping Center have sought to expand it.

There are 4,973 persons registered to vote in Corte Madera in the election.

The candidates are:

JANA G. HAEHL, 35, a native of Phoenix, Ariz., who attended both the University of Arizona and Arizona State University.

She is a homemaker, has lived in Corte Madera 10 years and now resides at 499 Corte Madera Avenue with her two daughters and husband, Jack. She is a cofounder of the Corte Madera Town Meeting and was vice president of the Town Meeting Coordinating Council. She is a former president of the Corte Madera Avenue Homeowners Association and the Larkspur-Corte Madera Parent-Teachers Association.

She opposes the Hahn proposal, but said she would consider plans for the 25 acres of previously filled land at the site. She also supports plans to upgrade the existing center but doesn't support present expansion plans because they go beyond town zoning. She favors holding regional growth control discussions as long as Corte Madera is not forced to relinquish control over local zoning.

ALBERT A. KOSTELIC, 43, is a native of Salida, Colo., and a graduate of Western State College in Gunnison, Colo. He is a manager of public and private bonds in San Francisco.

He is a seven-year resident of Corte Madera and lives at 120 Lakeside Drive with his wife, Jeanne, and their two sons. He is a member of the Corte Madera Lions Club and has been involved in several community programs for youngsters.

He supports Hahn's proposed center if a fill permit is issued by the corps, the town is given 32 acres in open space, access roads are adequate and redevelopment expenditures are under a million dollars. Present plans to upgrade the existing center "fall short in a number of areas" of being acceptable to him.

He supports regional growth control discussions but feels the town should set its own priorities for development first.

JOHN C. REED, 21, is a native of Miami, Fla., and a graduate of Redwood High School.

He has lived in Corte Madera 11 years and now resides at 10 Golden Hind Passage. He is a freelance illustrator of books. He said he has not been involved in any town board or groups.

He opposes the proposed regional shopping center and said if anything is developed on the site it should be a smaller center than the one proposed. He supports controlled growth, but gave no specifics on how growth should be controlled.

Sausalito Waterfront Holds Limelight In The Campaign

MARIN LIVING

By PAUL LIBERTORE

Planning development for the Sausalito waterfront is the major issue in a race by seven active candidates for two seats on the Sausalito City Council in Tuesday's election.

Candidates are incumbents Stephen A. Fraser and Earl F. Dunphy and challengers Violeta Autumn, W. Daniel O'Connor, Leonard Rappa, David Lent and Serge Trubach.

William Hanna and Charles Peet have withdrawn from active campaigning. Hanna has thrown his support to O'Connor and Peet to O'Connor and Dunphy.

Tourist, industrial, residential and recreational developments have been discussed by candidates wrestling to determine the future character of the city's "last frontier," its shoreline.

Views range from allowing a variety of development projects, including some tourist-oriented businesses, to banning all but marine-oriented establishments and recreational areas.

Accompanying development of the waterfront are problems of traffic congestion and population density, providing public services and assuring public access to the shoreline.

Other issues concern the city providing low and moderate-cost housing and building a new city library.

There are 4,717 registered voters in the city. Candidates and their views and qualifications are as follows:

EARL F. DUNPHY, 69, a machinist for a San Francisco newspaper, has served on the council from 1936 to 1944 and from 1964 to the present, including a term in 1970 as the city's mayor.

A resident for 56 years, he also was a member of the Sausalito Planning Commission from 1946 to 1956, acting postmaster from 1949 to 1951, and on the Marin County Grand Jury in 1956.

Long an advocate of commercial development for the waterfront, Dunphy said, "I think we should see what the developers want and then go from there."

He said he envisions hotels, restaurants and other commercial enterprises — primarily marine-oriented — that would give the city a strong tax base.

"A good restaurant could give the city $10,000 in sales tax per year alone," he said.

Residential development should be permitted on some areas of the waterfront, he believes, with careful controls on location, sanitation, safety and density.

While expressing sympathy for low-cost housing, he feels it is inconsistent with the high cost of land.

Dunphy and his wife live at 33 Filbert Avenue and have two married daughters.

VIOLETA AUTUMN, 43, an architect, has been a member of the planning commission since 1968. She also served on the Community Appearances Advisory Board from 1965 to this year.

"The waterfront should be for uses that can't go elsewhere," she said in supporting the encouragement of marine-oriented businesses. She opposes residential, tourist and resort development proposals that would endanger the local fishing industry and increase population density and traffic congestion.

"As a planning commissioner I have openly and consistently worked for decreased density through open space preservation and zoning for our undeveloped areas," she said.

She opposes the Schoonmaker and Whiskey Springs development proposals currently under scrutiny by the city and urges public access to the entire waterfront.

The needs of the community should be more fully evaulated before a new city library is built, she said, and Central School, site of the new city hall complex, should be improved on a pay-as-you-go basis. She supports a low-cost housing program for the elderly.

A resident for 12 years, Mr. Autumn was chairman of the Citizens' Open Space Committee. She and her husband and one son live at 521 Sausalito Boulevard.

STEPHEN A. FRASER, 34, writer and part-time waiter, is completing his first term on the council. He is seeking reelection "to complete and protect the program I ran on four years ago," he said.

Answering critics who charge he has gone soft on waterfront development, he said, "No growth is a negative policy. All that will preserve is chain link fences."

He favors "a good, low intensity development" in the Marinship area, with the city requiring the developer to provide public access to the waterfront and underground parking to relieve Bridgeway of traffic congestion.

Fraser has described the Schoonmaker residential, commercial and recreational development proposal as "excellent," although stating it should be reduced in scale.

He is the Marin director for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control Board and is a former professor of urban studies at Sonoma State College and California State University at San Francisco.

A resident for eight years, he and his wife and two children live at 53 Central Avenue.

LEONARD RAPPA, 32, an attorney, was a member of the Citizens' Open Space Committee, and was unsuccessful in a council bid four years ago.

"This is a community of diverse life styles and I want that maintained," he said, urging that no particular use be predominant on the waterfront.

He is calling for "controlled development," with commercial and residential projects being accompanied by light industrial development and public open space, particularly beaches.

He said the Schoonmaker and Whiskey Springs proposals would generate too much traffic and should be reduced in scale.

Rappa supports a moderate-income housing element in the city general plan and recommends that developers be required to provide a certain number of moderate-cost dwellings as a condition for approval of their projects. He also urges construction of a new city library.

A resident for five years, he and his wife live at 614 Spring Street, They have one child.

W. DANIEL O'CONNOR, 39, an engineering executive and owner of a downtown Sausalito shop, is president of the Sausalito Foundation, a member of the Sausalito Citizens Council, an organizer of the Community Park Volunteers and served on the Citizens' Open Space Committee. He failed in a try for a council seat in 1972.

He urges "balanced development" for the waterfront, including light industry, resident-serving commercial businesses and residential projects, if there are provisions for public recreation areas.

O'Connor believes that operators of Sausalito's fishing industry do not feel threatened by proposed commercial and residential projects.

He has singled out Martin Luther King School as a possible site for low-cost housing and has suggested it be paid for through federal funding. He supports a new city library being built at Central School and favors present city efforts to prepare a bond election to buy open space.

A resident for 10 years, O'Connor and his wife live at 30 El Portal.

DAVID LENT, 30, a videographer, is a first-time candidate for the council.

He opposes any shoreline development and advocates an immediate moratorium on building in the city until citizens can vote on what kind of development they want.

He said he would like to pattern Bridgeway after Cophenhagen's "walking street" and close the downtown thoroughfare to auto traffic from San Carlos Avenue to Princess Street.

Involved in video tape production, he is seeking public access to cable television for locally-originated programs, including broadcasts of council meetings and other important sessions of city agencies.

He also supports a cooperative health and counseling center for low-income families and elderly residents, low-cost housing, youth hostels and an "interurban railway" connecting Sausalito with other cities. He said he would give residents of Gates 5 and 6, the houseboat communities, a voice in city affairs.

A resident of Sausalito for one year, Lent is single and lives at 1741 Bridgeway.

SERGE TRUBACH, 62, freelance artist, is a former organizer of the Sausalito Art Festival. He is making his eighth consecutive bid for a council berth.

He is calling for a revival of the arts in Sausalito, a re-evaluation of priorities in housing and transportation and an imaginative architectural treatment for a "hodge podge" waterfront.

"We should preserve Sausalito as it is today and prevent it from becoming any more spoiled," he said. "To let a developer build a lot of houses just to make a fast buck is not enough. We need homes of more permanent quality for families with children."

He feels local artists and craftsmen should be included in planning Bridgeway improvements, as well as other projects for city beautification.

A resident for 21 years, Trubach is a widower and lives at 631 Bridgeway. He has a married daughter.

Seven council candidates have differing views as to the future character and use of the shoreline that is their city's "last frontier."

Two Major Development Proposals Interest The Voters In Larkspur Tuesday

By BILL ROBERTS

With several landowners having submitted plans for building in Larkspur, development looms as the major issue in that city's municipal elections Tuesday.

Mayor Alfred J. Malvino is seeking reelection to the council, and the other candidates are Planning Commissioner Charles H. Curley and Joi Losee who has supported environmentalists moves to thwart development. Two seats are at stake, with Councilman Neil Brixon not seeking re-election.

Among development proposals before the town are plans for development of San Quentin Peninsula and a regional shopping center on a 65-acre site between Corte Madera Creek and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near the Highway 101 interchange.

Lincoln Properties of Menlo Park owns the bulk of the Peninsula property and has proposed a variety of development for their 105 acres. Their plans include cluster housing, an office center, specialty shops, restaurant, a 300-room lodge, a 14-court tennis complex and a sunken exhibition amphitheater.

The Rouse Co. of Maryland and Connoly Development Co. of Oakland plan a 55-million dollar shopping center in the vicinity of Bon Air. Their plan was submitted to the Larkspur Planning Commission but was returned to the developer to provide more information on traffic problems.

There are 6,187 registered voters for the election.

The candidates are:

CHARLES H. CURLEY, 38, is a native of San Francisco and a graduate of Stanford University.

He is a 12-year resident of Larkspur and lives at 52 Olive Avenue with his wife, Nancy, and their two sons. He is the president of a San Francisco packaging distribution firm. He has been a planning commissioner for seven years, is chairman of the board of Marin House (a home for retarded women with facilities in Corte Madera and Larkspur), a director of the Marin Audubon Society and a member of the Sierra Club and Marin Conservation League.

Curley does not support the proposed shopping center because he says many problems associated with the center are not discussed fully in the developer's environmental impact report. He would like to see explored the possibility of building moderate income housing at the site to keep Larkspur from becoming a "middle class ghetto."

He supports a mixture of uses of San Quentin Peninsula land but feels building density in proposals will be a key issue in development.

He favors discussion of merging public services with Corte Madera.

JOI LOSEE, 36, is a native of Portland, Ore., and holds a degree from San Jose State University.

She is a housewife and moved to Larkspur six years ago. She lives at 69 Hatzic Court with her husband, Crandon, and their two children. She worked for groups opposing the Marin Municipal Water District's water supply bond issue in November and supported moves to retain Doliver Park and Baltimore Canyon in their natural state. She also supported a November bond issue to purchase park land behind Marin Catholic High School.

Mrs. Losee opposes the proposed regional shopping center in Larkspur, but said she would consider other uses of the site such as professional offices. She said she would like to see recreational facilities and low cost housing included in development plans for San Quentin Peninsula.

She supports merger of town services with Corte Madera.

ALFRED J. MALVINO, 57, is a native of Alameda.

He is the owner of Malvino Furniture Co. in San Francisco and has lived in Larkspur 18 years. He was elected to the city council in 1966, was reelected in 1970, chosen as mayor in 1968 and was renamed mayor last year. He and his wife, Rose, live at 87 Dartmouth Drive and have two children.

He was a member of the Corte Madera Flood Control Advisory Board, represented the council at the Association of Bay Area Governments and has also been involved in several projects for youngsters in Larkspur.

Malvino said he could not support the proposed regional shopping center because so many potential problems are involved including traffic, noise, impact on Corte Madera Creek, size and location of buildings. He declined to state what future course for San Quentin Peninsula he would support until development plans are submitted to the city.

He supports dicussions with Corte Madera concerning possible merger of municipal services.

Mayor and two other candidates for city council state their positions on plans for a large shopping center, and for a variety of facilities on the San Quentin Peninsula.

Shawn opposes Hahn's proposed regional shopping center because of "all the surrounding problems that it is creating." He favors regional growth control discussions if the town is not forced to abide by such discussions and said study sessions with developers should be considered on an individual basis.

He said present expansion plans for the existing shopping center "go a little too far."

LARRY P. WEINGARTH, 34, is a native of Denver, Colo., and holds degrees from the University of California, Berkeley, and San Francisco State University. He is a teacher at Loma Alta School.

Weingarth is opposed to the Hahn regional shopping center because he says its environmental impact will "far outweigh any reasonable return that might ue to the town." He supports upgrading the existing center but said the expansion proposal has problems including plans for multi-deck parking not allowed in town zoning.

He favors growth control discussions as long as they are not binding on the town and favors study sessions with developers as long as they, too, are not binding in any way.

The Future Course Of Their Neighbor Concerns Candidates In Belvedere

MARIN LIVING

What Belvedere should do about the development of downtown Tiburon and about meeting the recreation needs of its own residents have been named by six candidates for the city's council as major problems facing the community in the next few years.

On Tuesday, the city's 1,687 registered voters will pick two councilmen from among:

William H. Rafter, planning commissioner and real estate man; William E. Steen, clothing store owner; Sherry C. Levit, parks and recreation commission chairman and housewife; Barbara J. Egoian, real estate woman; Charles E. Auerbach, planning commissioner and chemical engineer, and Dr. Stuart C. Cullen, retired medical school professor and physician.

A DEVELOPMENT proposed by Sequoia Pacific of Santa Ana for 36 acres in downtown Tiburon has Belvedere candidates almost as worried as Tiburon council contenders.

Most Belvedere candidates seem to think that their city should have a say on the issue because they will be as much affected by the plans as Tiburon.

Several contenders suggest that the city could join with Tiburon in floating a bond issue to buy the downtown acreage involved from its owner, Southern Pacific Railroad, and manage the development of the property through the two city governments.

Most candidates agree that the city needs more recreation facilities to occupy residents who cannot or do not want to join private recreation and yachting clubs. Some think the city could put tennis courts on the Lagoon Road park area.

Candidates and their views include the following:

WILLIAM H. RAFTER, 59, is the coowner of Tiburon Real Estate and has been on the planning commission for 10 years.

He is serving on a Belvedere Planning Commission committee which is investigating Tiburon's downtown development plans.

He believes that the traffic and parking problems which could plague the Tiburon development could also spill over into Belvedere. He is concerned, too, about possible drainage problems stemming from the development.

"The people in the committee for a downtown plan review hit the issue on the head when they said they want to maintain Belvedere's small town character, limit visitor traffic and preserve the waterfront. They feel the current Tiburon plan is inconsistent with our present needs, and I am in total agreement with that."

He supports minimum development on the railroad land and suggests that the two cities could explore schemes for buying the property.

He agrees that his city needs more recreation and thinks the only place available for such facilities is Lagoon Road park which the city now leases from the state. He thinks the city should buy the park. Tennis courts would be possible on the site, he says, if screened with heavy landscaping to protect the privacy of neighboring homes.

Rafter is also the founder of the First Home and Land Co. office in Tiburon. He later sold that firm and opened his present business. He also spent 15 years in advertising and reporting for San Francisco newspapers.

He has been president of the Tiburon Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Tiburon Peninsula Coordinating Council and a member of the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society.

He has resided at 226 Bay View Avenue in Belvedere for 18 years.

The development of downtown Tiburon is of prime interest to the six candidates seeking three council seats in the adjacent community of Belvedere.

WILLIAM E. STEEN, 51, is the owner and president of Bullock and Jones Men's Wear in San Francisco and also owns similar stores in Chicago and Washington, D.C.

Steen says that if present downtown Tiburon plans continue they will bring congestion to Belvedere. "Almost everyone agrees we don't want Tiburon to create another Sausalito right at our doorsteps."

Joining with Tiburon to buy the Southern Pacific land is a possibility to explore, Steen says. "But whether it is feasible, I don't know."

Steen says he is anxious to see the present parks and open space in Belvedere beautified, and Belvedere enhanced and developed, but does not think there is evidence that Belvedere young people need much more in the way of recreation.

Steen is a past member of the Young Presidents' Organization and presently belongs to the Olympic Club, the Commonwealth Club and World Affairs Council.

He has lived in Belvedere since 1960 and resides with his wife at 15 Belvedere Avenue.

SHERRY C. LEVIT, 31, has lived in Belvedere for six years and has served on the parks and recreation commission for two.

Mrs. Levit suggests that Belvedere can become more involved in monitoring the Tiburon development plans by having the city council appoint a special committee to keep informed on the project. The group would include residents, councilmen, planning commissioners, parks and recreation commissioners and members of other city committees.

She says she would like to study the idea of Belvedere helping to buy part of the land marked for development. "Not all of it," she notes," but the area that is centrally located, and the harbor area."

She believes "there is a crying need in Belvedere for extended parks and recreation facilities." She notes that while on the parks and recreation commission she helped work out a joint adult evening education and recreation program with Tiburon. She also helped start a new after-school recreation program for children held daily in Belvedere City Hall.

"Surveys show that people want more recreation than now exists in Belvedere," she says.

Mrs. Levit is a Stanford University graduate with an economics degree. She is now at San Francisco State working on a graduate degree in urban studies.

She and her husband, Victor, a San Francisco attorney, live at 45 Beach Road with their two children.

CHARLES E. AUERBACH, 52, has been a planning commissioner for two years. He also served four years on the parks and recreation commission and spent some time as its chairman.

Auerbach noted that most citizens in Belvedere complain that Tiburon's downtown development plans are "too visitor oriented and too massive."

He believes the development could force the widening of Tiburon Boulevard into a four-lane highway.

He says that the two cities could form a joint bond district to consider buying all or a part of the Southern Pacific Railroad lands. The waterfront could then be left as open space and the rest developed with resident-serving businesses, he says.

He urges building city-maintained tennis courts in the Lagoon Road park and possibly shuffleboard for retired residents.

Auerbach is a chemical engineer at the Standard Oil Co. Richmond refinery. He has been on the boards of the Belvedere Tennis Club and the Northern California Tennis Association.

He has lived in Belvedere since 1955 and resides at 821 Lagoon Road with his wife and daughter.

BARBARA J. EGOIAN, 42, worked for the Kay Noah Real Estate firm. Previously, she was church editor of the San Francisco Chronicle and classified advertising manager for the New York Times Western edition.

Miss Egoian said she hopes that Tiburon consults with Belvedere before carrying through on the Sequoia Pacific plans. "With the current size of Belvedere, our community can hold only so much traffic and people," she notes.

She says she does not think Belvedere could join Tiburon in buying any railroad property.

She suggests that more recreation facilities should be developed. "We have got to find some place where we can do something for youngsters. Right now, there's no place for them."

Miss Egoian has lived in Belvedere for eight years and resides at 2 Community Road. In the past she has helped organize several city social events including the Diamond Jubilee celebration and the first annual city band concert last summer.

STUART C. CULLEN, 65, is the Belvedere fire commissioner and served on the open space committee which engineered the purchase of three Beach Road homes that will be torn down to provide better bay views.

He ran unsuccessfully for city council in 1972, but lost by only seven votes.

Cullen says the plans for downtown Tiburon will be too dense and too tourist-related. But he says he does not think the two cities can join in a bond issue for the land.

"All we can do is express our point of view, indicating dissatisfaction with the resulting density and traffic," he says.

He says he does not see "any objective evidence that we are short on park space." He agrees there is a chance of developing Lagoon Road park into recreational facilities. "But that takes money, and one must consider the chance of intrusion into the community park by non-citizens."

Cullen retired last summer from the University of California-San Francisco Medical School where he was dean for a time and also a professor of anesthesia and chairman of the department of anesthesia.

Before coming to Marin in 1958, he was a professor in and chairman of the department of anesthesia at the University of Iowa.

He lived in Tiburon and then seven years ago moved to Belvedere where he resides at 73 West Shore Road with his wife.

In Mill Valley, Talk Is Of Tourism, Traffic And Open Land

Mill Valley's chief goals for the future are keeping open land green, keeping excessive tourist trade out and maintaining a diverse community of several income levels, according to candidates for two seats open on the city council.

When the city's 7,736 registered voters go to the polls Tuesday, they will choose from among:

Incumbent Mayor Jean S. Barnard; incumbent Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker, an attorney; Gregory C. Dyer, an attorney, and Ivan S. Poutiatine, planning commission chairman and architect.

All candidates seem to agree on what Mill Valley's problems and needs are, but they differ in suggesting ways to handle them.

Changes in the city's downtown have brought more tourist-oriented shops, restaurants and bars, they say. As a result, the city should control the number of additional businesses of this kind that are permitted to open.

They also want to talk people out of driving downtown — possibly by offering an attractive local transit program.

Candidates seem worried about the prospect of apartment buildings or townhouses being crowded on their present open hillsides. They suggest various methods to keep land green and agree that an open space bond issue may be needed to persuade Marin supervisors to spend county park money in the city.

They also concede that rising prices and property taxes are forcing the moderate income resident and the elderly out of Mill Valley. But rather than proposing the building of new moderate income housing, they suggest that the city should work on controlling the inflation in taxes and housing costs.

Candidates and their views include the following:

EDWARD J. BOESSENECKER, 52, has lived in Mill Valley for 20 years and served on the city council for four. He also is a former planning commission chairman.

Boessenecker has urged adopting a growth control ordinance as one way to handle the open space question in Mill Valley. However, he admitted that writing such an ordinance might be difficult in view of a federal court decision against Petaluma's growth control law.

He said he has been involved in working on the preservation of North Ridge for years and is willing to promote a bond issue to buy it. He said he was upset that the county wanted Mill Valley to come up with an open space bond issue to match county park funds. "But I'm not going to sacrifice the North Ridge to a principle. We may have to have a bond issue."

Ordinances to require use permits for tourist-drawing business are needed, Boessenecker said. We've had a tourist-oriented trend and we have to step up our ability to handle it. We want the stores to serve the community primarily."

He opted for small parking lots downtown to handle cars, but said he hoped to lure driv- ers out of their autos into some kind of local transit.

He said he would work to keep the elderly and moderate income in their homes in the Goheen Triangle, a city area near the downtown which has long had more moderate-priced housing.

Councilman Boessenecker is an attorney with a San Francisco practice. He earned his law degree at the University of San Francisco.

He has lived in Mill Valley for 20 years, and he and his family reside at 5 Hollyhock Court.

JEAN S. BARNARD, 55, has served on the city council for four years and has been mayor for two. Before her election to the council, she served on the parks and recreation commission for five years and was that group's chairman for two.

Mrs. Barnard has concentrated much of her campaign on urging better control of automobiles and suggested promoting more walking and biking by residents. "We must keep neighborhoods from disintegrating by emphasizing foot and bicycle traffic over the noisy, polluting and impersonal auto," she said.

She has suggested that the city adopt a noise control ordinance setting fines for loud cars, and that the city buy a decibel meter to "measure" auto sounds and other noises.

She said she will work to encourage greater use of Miller Avenue by autos and less use of East Blithedale and Sycamore avenues as arterials to and from downtown Mll Valley.

Mrs. Barnard has long been a supporter of public transit in Marin. She also has campaigned for recycling and the sale of returnable cans and bottles by city stores.

She said she would like to preserve clearly distinguishable neighborhoods with their separate characteristics.

To retain a mixture of different kinds of residents, she said she will work to reduce dependence on the property tax. "I'd like to see a percentage of the state income tax returned to the city, or perhaps have a state lottery."

Such steps, she noted, will require much work by city officials at the state level.

She thinks that the city may have to pass a bond issue for open space to convince the supervisors to buy sections of North Ridge.

"But we have to use every other possible method short of purchase, too," she said, including talking developers into granting 20-year scenic easements on their property or having the city write stricter slope policies.

Mrs. Barnard has lived in Mill Valley since 1946. She and her husband reside at 1 El Capitan. She is a graduate of Vassar College. She is also a member of the League of Women Voters and the Outdoor Art Club.

Four council candidates in Tuesday's election voice their views on how their city can maintain its distinctive character and retain its diversity of population.

IVAN S. POUTIATINE, 42, has served six years on the city planning commission where he often has argued for more control of tourist-attracting businesses in Mill Valley. He was the author of a proposed ordinance to control the number of bars allowed to open in the city.

Poutiatine has said he will work to keep Mill Valley "a small, quiet, contained village with open space as a dominant feature, a city which is scaled to people, pedestrians, children and the arts."

He has said he would like to work on getting more housing for moderate income families and to reduce the property tax rate which he says often drives these types of residents out of the city. "We want a diverse population with many kinds of people finding a place in the community to live and flourish."

Poutiatine is now the chairman of a citizens' committee on the new Mill Valley General Plan, and he looks on implementation of that plan as one of the chief goals of the next city council.

"We have to understand that as a 'cul-de-sac' village, Mill Valley cannot stand much transient, tourist-oriented traffic, and still preserve the amenities which attracted us here in the first place," he said. "I'm certain the people in this town prefer long-range decision-making to the eleventh hour brush-fire procedures and the resulting confusions which have typified many California communities in recent years."

Although Poutiatine has said he will support an open space bond issue if needed, he also has proposed forming a city land bank to "regulate the rate, type and intensity of growth without abridging

The Future Course Of Their Neighbor Concerns Candidates In Belvedere

MARIN LIVING

What Belvedere should do about the development of downtown Tiburon and about meeting the recreation needs of its own residents have been named by six candidates for the city's council as major problems facing the community in the next few years.

On Tuesday, the city's 1,687 registered voters will pick two councilmen from among:

William H. Rafter, planning commissioner and real estate man; William E. Steen, clothing store owner; Sherry C. Levit, parks and recreation commission chairman and housewife; Barbara J. Egoian, real estate woman; Charles E. Auerbach, planning commissioner and chemical engineer, and Dr. Stuart C. Cullen, retired medical school professor and physician.

A DEVELOPMENT proposed by Sequoia Pacific of Santa Ana for 36 acres in downtown Tiburon has Belvedere candidates almost as worried as Tiburon council contenders.

Most Belvedere candidates seem to think that their city should have a say on the issue because they will be as much affected by the plans as Tiburon.

Several contenders suggest that the city could join with Tiburon in floating a bond issue to buy the downtown acreage involved from its owner, Southern Pacific Railroad, and manage the development of the property through the two city governments.

Most candidates agree that the city needs more recreation facilities to occupy residents who cannot or do not want to join private recreation and yachting clubs. Some think the city could put tennis courts on the Lagoon Road park area.

Candidates and their views include the following:

WILLIAM H. RAFTER, 59, is the co-owner of Tiburon Real Estate and has been on the planning commission for 10 years.

A Low-Key Campaign In San Anselmo Ends Tuesday

MARIN LIVING

Six candidates are seeking election to three seats on the San Anselmo City Council Tuesday.

There are 7,682 registered voters in San Anselmo eligible to cast ballots in the election.

Candidates are incumbent Woodrow V. Capurro, John H. Colteaux, Lyn Fischbein, Edward L. Henley, Sarah Nome and Pieter Toal. Incumbent councilman Warren R. Perry and Mayor Lewis W. (Skip) Stewart are not seeking re-election.

Most candidates have called for more open space, controlled growth, increased bus transit instead of new highway lanes, support of the goals of the city's emerging general plan and maintenance of the city's residential housing mix.

The low-key contest has focused on maintaining San Anselmo's small town atmosphere, and, while candidates have agreed the goal is important, they have offered differing views on how to preserve the city's qualities.

WOODROW V. CAPURRO, 53, a lathing superintendent for Weber Plaster Co. of San Rafael, was first elected to the council in 1962. He has since served terms as mayor and vice mayor of the city.

Capurro, a former semi-professional baseball player and a charter member of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post of San Anselmo, graduated from Tamalpais High School and attended College of Marin. He lives at 79 Lincoln Avenue with his wife, Jermaine.

Capurro has pledged to maintain San Anselmo as a small residential community and has called for "bus transit to move people, not autos." In addition, "I pledge in the future, as I have in the past, to enhance our natural environment, ecology, local autonomy, keep San Anselmo free of super highways, bridges, concrete ditches, and represent all of the people."

JOHN H. COLTEAUX, 38, chairman of the city planning commission and a member of the agency since 1970, is an attorney with the San Rafael law firm of Ackeret, Colteaux, Laird and Sheeks. Colteaux holds a Bachelor's Degree in political science from San Francisco State University and a law degree from Stanford Law School.

"San Anselmo doesn't have room to develop anything," sais Colteaux, advocating preservation of the city's small town atmosphere. He said completion and implementation of the city's emerging general plan is a major task facing the city.

He has urged a halt to strip commercial development of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, preservation of second units on single family lots if they meet health and safety criteria, and improvement of city offices.

He lives at 55 Kensington Road with his wife, Genevieve.

LYN FISCHBEIN, 40, is a systems analyst for a San Francisco firm. She is a member of the city's citizens advisory committee on the general plan, heads the group's open space subcommittee and is the city representative on the City-County Planning Council's Environmental Quality Board.

She graduated from Queen's College with a Bachelor's Degree in English and attended City College in New York, and San Francisco State University. She lives at 28 Salinas Avenue.

She has warned of "pressures to overdevelop" the city and says she wants to see San Anselmo "much the same as it is today" in 1984. She said the city spends too much money on auto-related matters, and called for a noise ordinance.

She also supports preserving existing low-cost housing.

EDWARD L. HENLEY, 31-year-old real estate broker, is a member of the city's citizens advisory committee on the general plan. He attended Clemson University and the College of Marin.

The preservation of the small town atmosphere has been the principal theme of the six candidates vying for three council seats in Tuesday's voting.

"If the courts finds a growth rate ordinance is legal, I would like to see a medium to low growth rate; however, I would favor a more flexible system than a fixed number of units per year. This would allow more building during economically favorable years and less in other years," said Henley, owner of Home and Land Co. of San Rafael.

He said he supports orderly development to "raise the tax base and lower taxes." He called for more play equipment in parks for children and said he approves second units on single family lots. He lives at 110 Alder Avenue with his wife, Sara.

SARAH NOME, 51, unsuccessful in bids for a council seat in 1970 and 1972, said she is running again since she is a long-time resident with an "abiding interest in local government." She is a San Francisco museum registrar.

She has flayed the city's tax rate as highest in the county and said the city is maintaining a budget far too high for its needs. She has called open space bond issues "expensive and wasteful," and proposed putting undeveloped lands to agricultural use.

She describes herself as a "slow growth preservationist" and supports second units on single family lots "under appropriate circumstances."

Mrs. Nome, who attended College of Marin, lives at 77 Alder Avenue.

PIETER TOAL, 52, chairman of the city's citizens advisory committee on the general plan, is an engineer with a San Francisco consulting firm to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. He holds a Master's Degree in civil engineering from Delft Technological University in The Netherlands.

He was appointed to the San Anselmo School District board in 1965 to fill out the bulk of a four-year term, but failed to gain election to the board in 1969 and again in 1970. He ran unsuccessfully for a council seat in 1972.

Toal said the major issue facing the city is putting the emerging general plan to work. He called for indefinite extension of the city's building moratorium (which requires use permits for all buildings), to control development of the city's 260 remaining subdivided empty lots. He has urged cooperation between the city and the school district, and is a long-time supporter of second units on single family lots.

He lives at 48 Hawthorne Avenue with his wife, Hilde.

the property owner's rights."

He said the land bank could be formed as a public trust or public service corporation. It would buy or accept donations of blocks of undeveloped land, release what it wanted to developers and keep the rest as open space.

Poutiatine earned architectural degrees at Yale and is a partner in a San Francisco architectural firm. He has won awards for his work including one for his own home at 400 Tamalpais Avenue where he resides with his wife and family. He has lived in Mill Valley for nine years.

GREGORY C. DYER, 27, is the only candidate who works in Mill Valley. He practices law on Miller Avenue in a historical Victorian building which he renovated to serve as offices, rescuing it when it was to be torn down and replaced by apartments.

He has aimed much of his campaign at the needs of local business men and merchants including their requests for getting more downtown parking for shoppers.

"I work in the town as well as live here and by the nature of my business and personal interests, I am immersed in the daily life of the town," he said. "This perspective is missing on the council."

He has criticized the present council for procrastinating and approving policies and developments, such as Shelter Ridge, which citizens oppose.

"I am also running for council because of my frustration with the way the council has handled such issues as the bus depot, the sewer service charge, live entertainment use permits and the downtown parking shortage, as well as the constant reversal of decisions and council meetings that drag on into the early hours of the morning."

Dyer said he wants the Mill Valley of tomorrow to look like the city of today.

"I see moderate increases in population, little or no changes in the commercial district and some increases in office space." Dyer said he wants to preserve as much city open space as possible either through a bond issue or zoning practices or by getting developers to set up scenic easements or agricultural preserves.

He also pointed out that he has served as the attorney for the Alto-Sutton Manor District Association in its fight against the Cal-Fong development in the Alto Bowl.

Dyer has lived in Mill Valley four years at 920 Lovell Avenue. He is a Stanford University graduate. He is a member of the Mill Valley Rotary, Chamber of Commerce and Business Assistance Committee. He also has worked extensively with local Boy Scouts.

He has applied unsuccessfully in the past for positions on the planning and parks and recreation commissions.

Petalumans Decide Tuesday Fate Of Two Bond Issues

On Tuesday Petaluma voters will decide the fate of a $1,900,000 parks and recreation bond issue and a $750,000 library bond issue.

The park bonds, if approved, will finance six lighted tennis courts, handball, badminton and volleyball courts, play areas, boating and fishing areas, athletic fields and picnic areas at Lucchesi Park; a softball diamond, two baseball diamonds, a soccer field and picnic facilities at Shollenberger River Park; improvement of the McNear Park tennis court and construction of a second one, and expansion of the lawn area of the municipal swim center.

Proponents of the parks bond issue estimate it would cost the owner of a $30,000 home $14.30 a year in additional taxes.

The library bonds would enable construction of a centrally-located library in Kenilworth Park.

The new facility, as currently planned, would provide three times more space than the present structure, large rooms for community meetings, space for children's exhibits and cultural exhibits and room for film and recorded programs.

The balance of the library's estimated $1,300,000 cost would be provided by federal revenue sharing funds already pledged by the Petaluma City Council and Sonoma County Board of Supervisors.

The Petaluma Citizens Library Committee, chief supporters of the library bonds, say they will cost the owner of a $30,000 home $4.27 in taxes each year.

Supporters of both bond issues point out that Petaluma's rapid population growth, estimated at 150 per cent during the last 12 years, has made existing facilities inadequate.

One of the main arguments for the library bond issue is the growth of eastern Petaluma, where most of the city's new residences have been built. The Kenilworth Park site was chosen as the most convenient location for all residents. It lies very near Highway 101, which bisects the city.

A Low-Key Campaign In San Anselmo Ends Tuesday

MARIN LIVING

Six candidates are seeking election to three seats on the San Anselmo City Council Tuesday.

There are 7,682 registered voters in San Anselmo eligible to cast ballots in the election.

Candidates are incumbent Woodrow V. Capurro, John H. Colteaux, Lyn Fischbein, Edward L. Henley, Sarah Nome and Pieter Toal. Incumbent councilman Warren R. Perry and Mayor Lewis W. (Skip) Stewart are not seeking re-election.

Most candidates have called for more open space, controlled growth, increased bus transit instead of new highway lanes, support of the goals of the city's emerging general plan and maintenance of the city's residential housing mix.

The low-key contest has focused on maintaining San Anselmo's small town atmosphere, and, while candidates have agreed the goal is important, they have offered differing views on how to preserve the city's qualities.

WOODROW V. CAPURRO, 53, a lathing superintendent for Weber Plaster Co. of San Rafael, was first elected to the council in 1962. He has since served terms as mayor and vice mayor of the city.

Capurro, a former semi-professional baseball player and a charter member of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post of San Anselmo, graduated from Tamalpais High School and attended College of Marin. He lives at 79 Lincoln Avenue with his wife, Jermaine.

Capurro has pledged to maintain San Anselmo as a small residential community and has called for "bus transit to move people, not autos." In addition, "I pledge in the future, as I have in the past, to enhance our natural environment, ecology, local autonomy, keep San Anselmo free of super highways, bridges, concrete ditches, and represent all of the people."

JOHN H. COLTEAUX, 38, chairman of the city planning commission and a member of the agency since 1970, is an attorney with the San Rafael law firm of Ackeret, Colteaux, Laird and Sheeks. Colteaux holds a Bachelor's Degree in political science from San Francisco State University and a law degree from Stanford Law School.

"San Anselmo doesn't have room to develop anything," sais Colteaux, advocating preservation of the city's small town atmosphere. He said completion and implementation of the city's emerging general plan is a major task facing the city.

He has urged a halt to strip commercial development of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, preservation of second units on single family lots if they meet health and safety criteria, and improvement of city offices.

He lives at 55 Kensington Road with his wife, Genevieve.

LYN FISCHBEIN, 40, is a systems analyst for a San Francisco firm. She is a member of the city's citizens advisory committee on the general plan, heads the group's open space subcommittee and is the city representative on the City-County Planning Council's Environmental Quality Board.

She graduated from Queen's College with a Bachelor's Degree in English and attended City College in New York, and San Francisco State University. She lives at 28 Salinas Avenue.

She has warned of "pressures to overdevelop" the city and says she wants to see San Anselmo "much the same as it is today" in 1984. She said the city spends too much money on auto-related matters, and called for a noise ordinance.

She also supports preserving existing low-cost housing.

EDWARD L. HENLEY, 31-year-old real estate broker, is a member of the city's citizens advisory committee on the general plan. He attended Clemson University and the College of Marin.

The preservation of the small town atmosphere has been the principal theme of the six candidates vying for three council seats in Tuesday's voting.

"If the courts finds a growth rate ordinance is legal, I would like to see a medium to low growth rate; however, I would favor a more flexible system than a fixed number of units per year. This would allow more building during economically favorable years and less in other years," said Henley, owner of Home and Land Co. of San Rafael.

He said he supports orderly development to "raise the tax base and lower taxes." He called for more play equipment in parks for children and said he approves second units on single family lots. He lives at 110 Alder Avenue with his wife, Sara.

SARAH NOME, 51, unsuccessful in bids for a council seat in 1970 and 1972, said she is running again since she is a long-time resident with an "abiding interest in local government." She is a San Francisco museum registrar.

She has flayed the city's tax rate as highest in the county and said the city is maintaining a budget far too high for its needs. She has called open space bond issues "expensive and wasteful," and proposed putting undeveloped lands to agricultural use.

She describes herself as a "slow growth preservationist" and supports second units on single family lots "under appropriate circumstances."

Mrs. Nome, who attended College of Marin, lives at 77 Alder Avenue.

PIETER TOAL, 52, chairman of the city's citizens advisory committee on the general plan, is an engineer with a San Francisco consulting firm to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. He holds a Master's Degree in civil engineering from Delft Technological University in The Netherlands.

He was appointed to the San Anselmo School District board in 1965 to fill out the bulk of a four-year term, but failed to gain election to the board in 1969 and again in 1970. He ran unsuccessfully for a council seat in 1972.

Toal said the major issue facing the city is putting the emerging general plan to work. He called for indefinite extension of the city's building moratorium (which requires use permits for all buildings), to control development of the city's 260 remaining subdivided empty lots. He has urged cooperation between the city and the school district, and is a long-time supporter of second units on single family lots.

Petalumans Decide Tuesday Fate Of Two Bond Issues

On Tuesday Petaluma voters will decide the fate of a $1,900,000 parks and recreation bond issue and a $750,000 library bond issue.

The park bonds, if approved, will finance six lighted tennis courts, handball, badminton and volleyball courts, play areas, boating and fishing areas, athletic fields and picnic areas at Lucchesi Park; a softball diamond, two baseball diamonds, a soccer field and picnic facilities at Shollenberger River Park; improvement of the McNear Park tennis court and construction of a second one, and expansion of the lawn area of the municipal swim center.

Proponents of the parks bond issue estimate it would cost the owner of a $30,000 home $14.30 a year in additional taxes.

The library bonds would enable construction of a centrally-located library in Kenilworth Park.

MARIN POET'S CORNER

LURE OF THE REDWOOD EMPIRE

Here, the Great Masters have planted the redwoods,
Into this climate truly ideal;
Here, where the river runs into the ocean,
Grandiose, with a mighty appeal,
Into this land, the lakes and the mountains
Ever join hands in compromise,
Sharing with all, this historical region
Near where the petrified forest lies.

History is rife with ancient romancing,
On banks of the river where teeming crowds throng;
Meadowlarks, pheasants and quail are legion,
Filling the air-lanes with beauty and song.

From the Golden Gate bridge far into the redwoods,
Where seven flags ruled in time honored lore,
Giving the name to the county, "Sonoma,"
Leading up from Marin to Bodega's vast shore.

CORTE MADERA — MYRTLE ALICE McCARCY

SEASONS CHANGE

From Glacier Point,
There is an old tree
That faces Half Dome.

As one becomes witness,

The siege of winter
has been long;
The water upon the roads;
The moss covering the trees;
All things affected
by change,
Random decree, of drip drop
Of rain,
hauting us so,
Over land,

MARIN POET'S CORNER

LURE OF THE REDWOOD EMPIRE

Here, the Great Masters have planted the redwoods,
  Into this climate truly ideal;
Here, where the river runs into the ocean,
  Grandiose, with a mighty appeal,
Into this land, the lakes and the mountains
  Ever join hands in compromise,
Sharing with all, this historical region
  Near where the petrified forest lies.

History is rife with ancient romancing,
  On banks of the river where teeming crowds throng;
Meadowlarks, pheasants and quail are legion,
  Filling the air-lanes with beauty and song.

From the Golden Gate bridge far into the redwoods,
  Where seven flags ruled in time honored lore,
Giving the name to the county, "Sonoma,"
  Leading up from Marin to Bodega's vast shore.

Cotati Councilmen Try To Keep Jobs

By ERNEST MURPHY

Four candidates, including two incumbents appointed after the unsuccessful recall attempt last September, are campaigning for election Tuesday to the Cotati City Council, and only two can win.

The candidates are Councilmen Harry E. Fassio and Laura Washburn, Allen C. Stansbury and Patrick H. Corrigan. The post pays no salary.

Fassio and Mrs. Washburn were appointed to the council after Herbert T. Winter and Frank P. Dolinsek quit in the wake of the unsuccessful recall Sept. 5 against Mayor Geoffrey Dunham and Councilmen Stephen Laughlin and Annette Lombardi. Fassio and Mrs. Washburn were then appointed in an effort by the three embattled members to end the fight between the town's older residents and the younger segment of the population.

The two men who resigned were longtime residents and the three recall survivors were relatively young.

HARRY E. FASSIO, 49, is a maintenance supervisor at Mare Island Naval Shipyard who wants to attract light industry and develop the city commercially in order to lift some of the tax burden on home owners.

He was considered a non-controversial choice when appointed last year, although he had opposed the recall.

Fassio considers the recall election "a sad page in the history book of Cotati" and says he has worked to unite the town again.

He is a former Sonoma city councilman and also was a member of the Sonoma Valley School District board before moving to Cotati two years ago.

LAURA WASHBURN, is an antique dealer in Santa Rosa who wishes to preserve Cotati as a "bountiful oasis for different, even opposing life styles for both young and old."

She believes the town's beneficial aspects can be kept alive "only if the vested-interest, narrow-minded, commercial-oriented people are somehow filtered out of the planning commission and city council."

She is a former midwest editor for Mademoiselle magazine.

ALLEN C. STANSBURY, 31, is a marketing representative for the Union Carbide Corporation in San Francisco who wishes to dispell apathy among some of the city's "more established residents" and unite the community.

He also wants to assure greater representation for Cotati at county, regional and state levels.

A two-year veteran of the Cotati Planning Commission, Stansbury has been a liaison between the commission and the city council, and he believes he is familiar with the problems faced by councilmen.

During his years on the planning body, he says, "I became well acquainted with the legislative process and, in fact, have drafted or recommended several ideas which are now city policy or city ordinance."

Stansbury holds a Bachelor's Degree in government from the University of Texas.

PATRICK H. CORRIGAN, 30, owns an auto parts store on the Old Redwood Highway and wants to maintain Cotati's rural atmosphere.

"I'm very much concerned about proper planning," he says. "We're at a point right now where we can either keep the atmosphere of a small, rural place or we can become another Santa Clara County. I'd like to maintain the more rural atmosphere if that's possible."

A believer in controlled growth, Corrigan says Cotati needs a land use study "to determine what we've allowed for with the zoning we have now."

Corrigan feels that Cotati must consider providing for modes of transportation other than automobiles. He supports the efforts of Sonoma State College to have Golden Gate Transit service extended to the campus, and he says he would like the council to consider a bus service between Cotati and Rohnert Park.

High on his list of priorities is the revitalization of the downtown area "to make it into a city center again."

Corrigan is a graduate of the Santa Rosa High School and was an unsuccessful council candidate in 1972.

Mayor, Councilman Are In Field Of Five At Rohnert Park Polls

Five candidates, including two incumbents, are vying for two city council seats in Rohnert Park.

The candidates are Mayor Armando F. Flores, Councilman Arthur N. Roberts, David L. Eck, Lillian E. Sani and Willis E. Brock. The post pays $150 a month.

ARMANDO F. FLORES, 32, is a teacher and administrator in the Sausalito School District.

He supports controlled growth aimed at encouraging commercial and light industrial development, which he belives will reduce the tax burden on homeowners.

Flores favors construction of a permanent library and fire substation in Rohnert Park.

He believes such projects "enhance the value of Rohnert Park as a place to live."

The incumbent mayor favors construction of a regional park in the Sonoma foothills outside the city rather than in the closer flatlands. A flatland park, he said, would be prohibitively expensive because of high land costs.

Flores holds a Bachelor's Degree from San Francisco State College and has served as president of the Sausalito Teachers Association.

ARTHUR N. ROBERTS, 42, is a Rohnert Park pharmacist who is running mainly on his council record of supporting expanded recreational programs and police and fire departments.

A two-term veteran of the council and former mayor, Roberts cites the good working relationship between the city government and local school district.

He believes the city's planning policies during his tenure have resulted in "progressive yet carefully controlled growth."

Roberts believes Rohnert Park is one of the most forward-looking cities in Sonoma County, with many new approaches to city government being first tried there.

DAVID L. ECK, 32, is an associate professor of chemistry at Sonoma State College.

His primary campaign focus is on growth. He believes the city council has been more responsive to the interests of developers than to citizens.

Eck believes developers must be made to bear the cost of the sewer and water services which the city provides their projects.

He believes the city has negligently allowed the construction of residential units near land reserved for industrial use. Since housing and industry are considered incompatible, he fears the industrial area will be rezoned for housing, thus causing badly-needed industries to locate elsewhere.

Eck is an active environmentalist who is involved in a project at the college which produces cattle fodder from sewage.

LILLIAN E. SANI, 51, is a student loan accounts clerk at Sonoma State who served as Rohnert Park's first city clerk, holding the job six years in the 1960s.

She is seeking a council seat because she believes the council has not been responsive to women or to citizens over 50.

A proponent of controlled growth, she charges that over-development and "chaotic" growth have placed a tremendous strain on schools and city services.

Mrs. Sani favors controlled growth which will provide jobs for local tradespeople without encouraging non-residents to compete with the local labor force.

Mrs. Sani has lived in Sonoma County since 1945 and in Rohnert Park since its founding in 1961.

WILLIS E. BROCK, 42, is a marine supply specialist for the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. in Berkeley who retired last year from a 21-year military career in the Army and Air Force.

A resident of the new Holiday Park section of Rohnert Park, Brock says he decided to run because "there doesn't seem to be any representation on the city council from this area."

A supporter of controlled growth, he feels the city's expansion must be "according to the available resources — natural resources like water and open space and considerations such as your schools and your money."

He has called for more programs for elderly citizens and a full-time fire department instead of the present system utilizing police officers and volunteers.

Brock believes the city should consider creating its own bus system. Clean industries, he says, are urgently needed in Rohnert Park to pay for such needed improvements.

He is the cubmaster for Cub Pack No. 4, sponsored by the Cotati Lions Club.

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

LONG SHAGGY TEXTURES are one of the most popular trends in carpeting, and with good sound reasons. They look luxurious, soak up sounds, don't show soiling easily, and blend nicely with a variety of decorative schemes.

Which brings up the question of fiber strength, and whether a shaggy carpet with long texture is always better than a short, tufted carpet. The answer is no. Length does add to the cost of carpets that are otherwise the same, but it is not the most important factor.

The real measure of quality in carpeting (insofar as you can single out just one) is thickness, or density. If the pile is long but spaced out, or "thin," the carpet is not of as good quality as one where the pile is densely packed.

While it isn't practical to try to count the number of fibers in a square yard of carpeting, a close examination, from the top and underneath, will show you which of several carpets has greater density. Whether it's tufted or woven, the more pile squeezed into each square yard of carpet, the better the carpet, and relatively the more it should cost.

Let us help you answer all your carpet questions, from density to length to the difference in fibers. And we can help you select colors and textures to complement your decor beautifully.

LONG SHAGGY TEXTURES are one of the most popular trends in carpeting, and with good sound reasons. They look luxurious, soak up sounds, don't show soiling easily, and blend nicely with a variety of decorative schemes.

Which brings up the question of fiber strength, and whether a shaggy carpet with long texture is always better than a short, tufted carpet. The answer is no. Length does add to the cost of carpets that are otherwise the same, but it is not the most important factor.

The real measure of quality in carpeting (insofar as you can single out just one) is thickness, or density. If the pile is long but spaced out, or "thin," the carpet is not of as good quality as one where the pile is densely packed.

While it isn't practical to try to count the number of fibers in a square yard of carpeting, a close examination, from the top and underneath, will show you which of several carpets has greater density. Whether it's tufted or woven, the more pile squeezed into each square yard of carpet, the better the carpet, and relatively the more it should cost.

Let us help you answer all your carpet questions, from density to length to the difference in fibers. And we can help you select colors and textures to complement your decor beautifully.

Too Much About The Big Uclan Machine

THE WALTON GANG by Bill Libby; Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 286 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Ron Lent.

"The Walton Gang" is a story about theft; the crime: robbery of the reader's time.

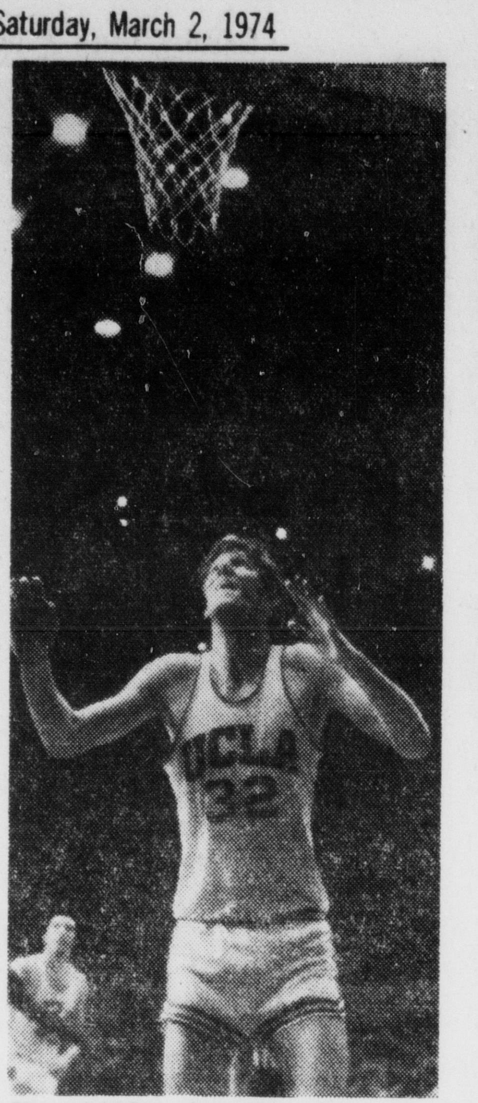
Dealing with a subject covered thoroughly by other equally capable sportswriters, author Bill Libby nonetheless adds another account of the much-heralded, now stumbling, UCLA basketball machine.

Libby, a conscientious gent, gives written sketches of the mechanical cogs, such as coach John Wooden, star center Bill Walton and a host of other current players. However, Libby, a veteran sports scribe, covers the UCLA subject as a much too long newspaper feature story.

While the author ably lets the interviewees inject their opinions and paint their own portrayals, too much type is alloted player ramblings. For example, superstar center Walton makes the following comment on race problems:

"If a black man gunned me down right now, I'd figure it is all right because of what whites have done to blacks."

Is that right? I'm not sure, because later in the text, Walton hedges on the same subject. Walton is pictured as superstar with ambivalent feelings on several topics. Despite that, he appears to be a free-spirited individual with great intellectual sensitivity and growing awareness.

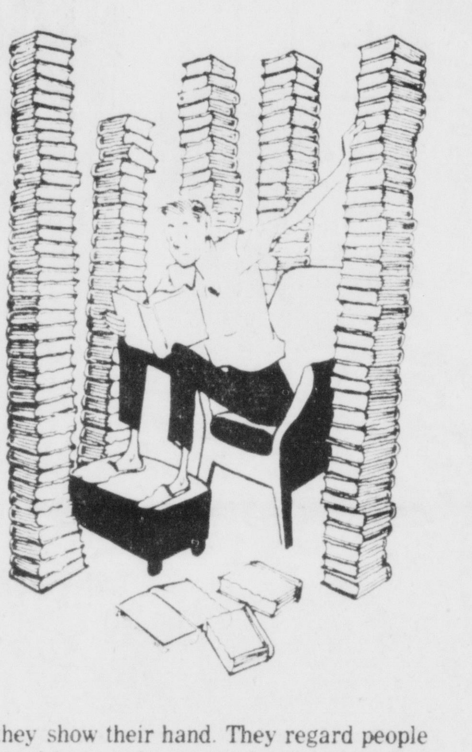


BILL WALTON, the agile, giant redhead of UCLA basketball fame, prepares to leave the floor for a rebound in an NCAA game with Florida State in 1973.

And that is more than can be said about Libby. He recounts the numerous Bruin victory streaks, particularly the most recent one which was snapped at 88 by Notre Dame.

Alas, his ending doesn't go that far. It terminates with surprising abruptness: "On the opening day of practice for the 1974 season, John Wooden thought Bill Walton's hair was too long, and he sent him to have it cut."

It's not Walton's locks that are too long; it is Bill Libby's book "The Walton Gang."



The Cop Who Cares For People

TOMA: THE COMPASSIONATE COP by David Toma with Michael Brett; Putnam's, 283 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by John Boessenecker.

David Toma is a detective with the Newark, N.J., Police Department. He has made over 10,000 arrests with an incredible 99 per cent conviction rate. He has been hospitalized 30 times from beatings and knife and gunshot wounds.

A master of disguises, Toma has attracted nation-wide attention from his spectacular success in fighting crime. A popular television series is based on his exploits.

"Toma" is the story of his 17-year career as a vice and narcotics detective. Simple and straightforward, this book is a powerful document of one man's life in the grimy Newark underworld.

Amid the pimps, hypes, whores, muggers, thieves, and perverts of the slums Toma works, making numerous arrests of both street criminals and big-time racketeers.

His adventures are remarkable and frequently hair-raising. In one incident he was trapped in a prostitute's apartment by her gun-wielding boy friend, intent on robbing and murdering him. Another time two hired killers attempted to shoot him to death in an alley. On another occasion he was stabbed in the back while attempting to break up a brawl at a diner.

A brilliant detective, David Toma has managed to infiltrate organized crime through his use of deception and disguises. And it is against the big time hood whom Toma directs his strongest energies.

Of these Mafia-type criminals, he writes, "They're stupid, arrogant, and contemptuous of people, and inevitably they show their hand. They regard people as objects to be manipulated rather than people. I'm not interested in the man who takes numbers behind the counter. I want the dummy who stands on top of the heap and whose very stupidity makes him think that he is inviolate from the laws and from the misery that he has perpetrated through narcotics and fast dealing on his fellowmen."

David Toma is a complex man.

Despite numerous run-ins with dangerous criminals he manages to respect and care for those whom he has arrested. He is an optimist who believes in the dignity and goodness of all men. He abhors violence. He has never fired his gun in the line of duty.

Today, with television, movies, and novels dramatizing and distorting the true role of the police officer, it is rare to find a book which accurately and realistically portrays a policeman's life. Yet "Toma" is such a book. It affords a rare insight into the life of an honest, hardworking cop — a man who has devoted his life to the lofty ideal of making society safer by upholding the law.

Book Spotlights Israel's Elite

One of the fastest-selling new books in Israel is an account of the inner working of the Israeli power structure," Terence Smith reporting from Tel Aviv wrote in the "New York Times."

Titled "Who Rules Israel" ($8.95), this inside look at the power elite by two of Israel's top newspaper men, Yuval Elizur and Eliahu Salpeter, has now been published in this country by Harper and Row.

In the preface the authors write: "It is enough to know 100 perhaps 150 or at most 200 people in Israel in order to know who is responsible for decision-making in the political and military spheres, who makes the wheels of the economy turn and who molds public opinion."

The Mystery And Paradox That Still Baffles Man

PAIN by Dr. Arthur S. Freese; Putnam, 251 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

> "Despite our amazing technology we have yet to attain the stage of knowledge and understanding of pain that the Wright brothers had of powered flight when they first flew. Where Orville and Wilbur Wright actually understood the principles of flying, we still don't understand exactly how we hurt or why." Dr. Arthur S. Freese in "Pain."

Almost as inevitable as death and taxes for mankind is pain.

We enter this world in pain, we depart it in pain, and we generally live with a good deal of it in between.

There are a few exceptions — persons who cannot experience pain. But they cannot be considered fortunate. Their inability to detect warning throbs and pangs leaves them subject to mutiliations and disease. For pain, despite all its unpleasant aspects, does play a major role in man's survival, causing him to pull back from the fire, to ease up on overworked muscles, to seek the physician's counsel when it suggests an oncoming malady.

Yet Dr. Arthur S. Freese, formerly a dentist specializing in facial and head pain who gave up his practice to become a full-time freelance writer on medicine, health and science, tells us in his book, "Pain," that man, for all his long association with and close proximity to it, has little understanding of how and why pain works.

"Pain is universal and as familiar to us as our own bodies," he writes. But pain is also "contradictory and paradoxical, mysterious and somehow magical . . . The paradox and the puzzle of pain are there for all to see, along with its strange contrariness."

And Americans have constructed their own paradox. The deluge of television commercials and other advertising of panaceas for every conceivable annoying ache, and the vast sums expended in drug stores for such products, would seem to indicate an obsession.

Yet, as Dr. Freese points out, "America . . . is still not committed to the true control and conquest of pain. We have made massive financial commitments to space and to the conquest of various diseases, but we just haven't made the necessary moneys available to fight pain. As a result, the doctors and scientists interested in its control are still only a handful compared to those involved in many other fields of medicine and science."

What follows in the book is a fascinating account of the progress, the errors and the successes, this handful, past and present, has made in its efforts to relieve man of the excess burden of pain he carries through life onto his death bed. Always, underscored, is the realization that much remains unknown or unproven.

There are many kinds of pain, the acute (burn, cancer in its terminal stage, the heart attack, etc.), and the chronic (lower back pain, the sprain, etc.) being the major oppressors.

Quoting Dr. C. Norman Shealy of the Pain Rehabilitation Center, La Crosse, Wis., Dr. Freese writes: "Intractable pain affects over one million Americans, primarily from cancer and trauma."

The figure is conservative, says Dr. Freese. "Experts at the National Institute of General Medical Sciences estimate many millions of people spend their days and nights in the agonizing grip of chronic pain."

Dr. Freese passes along that incomplete knowledge science has managed to attain as to how pain occurs. "To understand pain requires an understanding of the entire nervous sytem; how it behaves, what it's made of, and how it 'feels' pain." And the brain, only one part of this system, "is clearly the most highly organized fragment of matter in our entire universe."

The pain sufferer is more likely to take a personal interest in Dr. Freese's accounts of what has been done, is being done or likely will be done for his or her relief.

Again quoting Dr. Shealy: "Medical treatment is grossly ineffective, while the destructive surgical procedures of the past 30 years have not been particularly effective . . ." Not a particularly hopeful appraisal.

An overly free resort to drugs has caused addictions and reliances sometimes worse than the initial pain. Lobotomies and the severing of the pain pathways in the spinal cord represent drastic surgical steps that should be employed only when other techniques fail, and which are far from certain in their effectiveness.

But there are hopeful signs that man is beginning to make progress in his efforts to tame pain.

Dr. Freese sees electrical stimulation as a most promising technique (and tells of simplified electrical devices the sufferer can use in his own home). He says hypnosis and biofeedback techniques have been employed with some success under certain circumstances. Acupuncture he regards as unproven by Western scientific standards, for most of the pain-relieving uses that have been attributed to it.

New, improved anesthetics have minimized pain, discomfort and danger in surgery.

Dentistry has been especially successful in reducing physical pain on the part of the patient, although the psychological trauma still remains a problem.

But the medical world's major weapon against pain still remains the simple aspiring tablet. True, the aspirin does have some unfortunate side effects. But these are relatively minor. And when not abused, the aspirin remains the safest and most effective means of relief from many forms of pain.

Most readers will be surprised to learn about a simple method of relieving their own muscular pains not associated with physical disease or damage — the kneading or pressing hard upon the "trigger point" the tiny spot responsible for the pain. "This can be done so simply that it's a sad thing it isn't done more often," writes Dr. Freese.

It is proposed, too, that man can improve his toleration of pain and suffer less.

All this close association with pain has produced in mankind a sort of life style practiced by certain humans who become dependent upon their pain — and the attention and sympathy it attracts to them.

A new breed of specialist doctors and clinical psychologists have been particularly successful in dealing with this syndrome, Dr. Freese writes. These "pain doctors" strip away the pampering and coddling that the pain victim attracts and comes to depend upon, forcing him to fend for himself as much as he is able, and gradually increasing the requirements placed upon him.

Dr. Freese sees this development of doctors and psychologists specializing in the treatment of pain as one of the most promising developments in the campaign to control pain.

And generally he is optimistic about the future, despite the past slowness of medicine and science to rise to the challenge.

"The future of pain lies hidden in time," he writes, "for the growth and changes we are experiencing in so many fields will, hopefully, spill over in the relief of pain and provide greater and more effective control than man has ever known. And while pain will always be there, the time may yet come when pain will be reduced to a protective sympton, and the destructive disease of pain will have been conquered."

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Former San Anselmo residents Marge and James H. Craig, now co-directors of the Center for the Study of Power in Berkeley, are the authors of "Synergetic Power: Beyond Domination and Permissiveness," a $2.50 softcover, $5.95 hardcover book published by the center's Proactive Press, of Post Office Box 296, Berkeley, 94701.

Obviously bidding for the current public interest in the Patricia Hearst kidnaping case, the Craigs have added a wrapper that claims their book and the synergetic power it expouses "offers a way to understand the Symbionese Liberation Army and the Establishment against which it struggles."

It offers as well, they state, "nonviolent, creative actions individuals can take now to begin healing the social pain that threatens us."

They call their program "the all-win approach" and its goal "a caring society."

And their book, the Craigs say, "is a constructive alternative to the destructive trends in our society."

AND SOME recent Little Craft Books from Sterling:

"String Things You Can Create" By Glen Saeger, offering guidance on abstract artwork produced from thread, yarn and cord.

"Organic Jewelry You Can Make" by Carson I. A. Ritchie, covering the currently very popular fashion of using ecological materials for personal decoration.

"Sculpturing with Wax" by Maria and Louis DiValentin, with instruction on how to use wax for objects beyond the familiar candles.

"Curling, Coiling and Quilting" by Inge Haslein and Rita Frischmann, a basic manual on that old and resurging skill.

The small books are priced at $2.95 each.

OTHER NEW books from Sterling:

"House Plant Identifier" pictures in color and describes 120 plants that can be grown indoors, offering instructions on their care, plus general counsel on indoor gardening. It is the work of Helmut Bechtel, well-known nature photographer, and his pictures are given a full-page presentation. $3.50.

"Tiny Living Things" is part of Sterling's Nature Series, presenting the close-up insect photos of Edouard Cauvin in black and white, with his accompanying relaxed and humorous text describing the "life styles" of his small subjects. Fine for budding young entomologists. Also $3.50.

ON THE STEREO SCENE

A Pleasant Album Out Of West Marin

By DON KEOWN

"Melodic folk with spiritual-oriented lyrics" is the way Dennis Wilcox of Tomales describes the difficult-to-categorize "An Album of Original Music" (Goldust LPS-163) that he and fellow West Marinites issued in late 1973, and which is now receiving a considerable play on Bay Area radio stations.

There is also a definite Western nasal sound to much of the vocalizing, adding yet another dimension to what is a pleasant and interesting disc for your turntable. Finally the lyrics have something of the crisp pictorial quality that one associates with Bob Dylan.

The principals in the making of the album were Wilcox, Bill O'Hanlon, also of Tomales, and engineer Emmit Brooks in whose recording was made in Mesilla Park, N.M.

The featured artists (although Wilcox points out that the emphasis is more upon the songs and songwriters, and less upon the musicians) are Wilcox, his sister Judy Wilcox and Michael Sullivan. All three are heard as vocalists, with Wilcox doing most of the solo work, and as instrumentalists as well. Terry Dymsky, Calvin Turbeville and Junior Daughterty are the other instrumentalists, with the acoustic guitar, electric guitar, pedal steel, bass, piano and fiddle all heard in which is predominately a guitar accompaniment.

There is a women's chorus in some of the selections that includes Wilcox's wife, Elisabeth Porter Wilcox, her mother and sister, Caryl and Kristin Porter, and Melodi Grisham.

The songwriters featured include Wilcox, five of the nine songs and collaborator with Sullivan on a sixth; Breezy Cade and Matthew Little Moon.

Wilcox says the record began a couple of years ago as a demonstration tape sent to established artists in an effort to attract interest to the music. Stations KPFA in Berkeley and KQED in San Francisco played the tapes on the air. Letters of encouragement from the likes of Mary Travers and Nancy Carlen (manager for Judy Collins) followed.

And with such encouragement, the tape was re-mixed and mastered at the Brooks studio for an album with the intriguing cover art pictured above.

Side one with six shorter selections and with greater emphasis upon the vocals and less heavy instrumentals won out over side two for this listener's enjoyment.

Wilcox's quite beautiful "Holy Man" and Cade's appealing "Water Is Precious" were personal favorites, and Sullivan's thinner voice makes Littlemoon's "Little Man" a catchy change of pace.

On the three-song side two Wilcox's "Snow on a Mountain" comes close to smash hit caliber and may, indeed, attain greater recognition than the "Holy Man" which we personally liked better. "It's All the Same," another Wilcox, has an ecumenical message appropriate to the times, with stretches of instrumentation that seem somewhat overextended in contrast to the fast, punchy pace of side one.

No question about it, Wilcox and his companions are gifted songwriters, and better than capable musicians with the kind of low-key appeal that is more and more welcome as a relief form the harsher sounds, including the acid rock, that assault our ears.

The album is available in many Bay Area record stores and is being placed in more.

Goldust Record Co. operates out of Post Office Box 998, Mesilla Park, N.M., 88047.

WRITE A SONG, WIN A PRIZE

SEATTLE (AP) — The American Song Festival is a competition for new songs in six categories —rock, pop, folk; country-Western; soul; rhythm 'n' blues, jazz; gospel and religious.

It is open to amateur and professional songwriters who have $10.85. Contestants send $10 per song entry plus 85 cents for postage to American Song Festival, Post Office Box 57, Hollywood, Calif., 90028. They receive an entry kit, which includes a cassette on which to record the song and an entry form.

Deadline for application is April 15 and recorded cassettes must be returned by June 3. A panel of celebrities will select 36 finalists, who will receive $500 each and will compete in finals to be held Labor Day weekend. Total for prizes will be $128,000.

Sterling Recreation Organization is presenting the song-writing hunt.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

MAIGRET LOSES HIS TEMPER by Georges Simenon; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc., 138 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The lean economy of language (here skilfully translated by Robert Eglesfield), the simplicity of plotting and the basic humanity of his characters stand Georges Simenon again in good stead in this Ispector Maigret yarn written a decade ago.

A nightclub owner in Paris' colorful Montmartre is found strangled. But to Maigret it is apparent that this is not one of the district's usual gangster killings. The victim had conducted himself with scrupulous honesty. And had lived the life of the simple family man.

Step by step, Maigret probes behind the scenes of the slaying, eventually exposing a clever racket in which, it develops, he has an unexpected personal stake — thus the loss of temper.

Along the way, Simenon gives us his usual insights into Parisian life, police work and basic human nature.

It is good, sound Simenon-Maigret. Which means that it is very, very good indeed. Read, and enjoy.

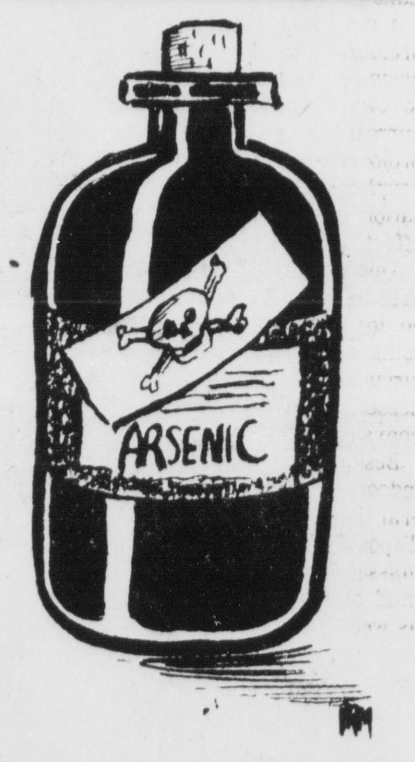
Martin Fallon, a gifted musician turned professional killer, wanted by the Special Branch, by Military Intelligence and by former colleagues in the Provisional IRA, reluctantly takes an assignment from Jack Meehan, "the English Al Capone."



If character is plot, then this suspense novel bristles with plot, a story as taut as a banjo wire and menacing as a cocked pistol aimed at one's face.

The fate of Fallon, Michael da Costa, a priest with a guerrilla warfare background, and Father da Costa's winsome blind daughter becomes increasingly meaningful as the action progresses without letup.

The priest becomes involved because of having witnessed a killing his training and conscience tell him he cannot discuss. Easily the outstanding thriller of the season for me by the erudite author of the widely heralded "The Last Place God Made" and "The Savage Day."

But there are hopeful signs that man is beginning to make progress in his efforts to tame pain.

Dr. Freese sees electrical stimulation as a most promising technique (and tells of simplified electrical devices the sufferer can use in his own home). He says hypnosis and biofeedback techniques have been employed with some success under certain circumstances. Acupuncture he regards as unproven by Western scientific standards, for most of the pain-relieving uses that have been attributed to it.

New, improved anesthetics have minimized pain, discomfort and danger in surgery.

Dentistry has been especially successful in reducing physical pain on the part of the patient, although the psychological trauma still remains a problem.

But the medical world's major weapon against pain still remains the simple aspiring tablet. True, the aspirin does have some unfortunate side effects. But these are relatively minor. And when not abused, the aspirin remains the safest and most effective means of relief from many forms of pain.

Most readers will be surprised to learn about a simple method of relieving their own muscular pains not associated with physical disease or damage — the kneading or pressing hard upon the "trigger point" the tiny spot responsible for the pain. "This can be done so simply that it's a sad thing it isn't done more often," writes Dr. Freese.

It is proposed, too, that man can improve his toleration of pain and suffer less.

All this close association with pain has produced in mankind a sort of life style practiced by certain humans who become dependent upon their pain — and the attention and sympathy it attracts to them.

A new breed of specialist doctors and clinical psychologists have been particularly successful in dealing with this syndrome, Dr. Freese writes. These "pain doctors" strip away the pampering and coddling that the pain victim attracts and comes to depend upon, forcing him to fend for himself as much as he is able, and gradually increasing the requirements placed upon him.

Dr. Freese sees this development of doctors and psychologists specializing in the treatment of pain as one of the most promising developments in the campaign to control pain.

And generally he is optimistic about the future, despite the past slowness of medicine and science to rise to the challenge.

"The future of pain lies hidden in time," he writes, "for the growth and changes we are experiencing in so many fields will, hopefully, spill over in the relief of pain and provide greater and more effective control than man has ever known. And while pain will always be there, the time may yet come when pain will be reduced to a protective sympton, and the destructive disease of pain will have been conquered."

"Despite our amazing technology we have yet to attain the stage of knowledge and understanding of pain that the Wright brothers had of powered flight when they first flew. Where Orville and Wilbur Wright actually understood the principles of flying, we still don't understand exactly how we hurt or why." Dr. Arthur S. Freese in "Pain."

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Former San Anselmo residents Marge and James H. Craig, now co-directors of the Center for the Study of Power in Berkeley, are the authors of "Synergetic Power: Beyond Domination and Permissiveness," a $2.50 softcover, $5.95 hardcover book published by the center's Proactive Press, of Post Office Box 296, Berkeley, 94701.

Obviously bidding for the current public interest in the Patricia Hearst kidnaping case, the Craigs have added a wrapper that claims their book and the synergetic power it expouses "offers a way to understand the Symbionese Liberation Army and the Establishment against which it struggles."

It offers as well, they state, "non-violent, creative actions individuals can take now to begin healing the social pain that threatens us."

They call their program "the all-win approach" and its goal "a caring society."

And their book, the Craigs say, "is a constructive alternative to the destructive trends in our society."

AND SOME recent Little Craft Books from Sterling:

"String Things You Can Create" By Glen Saeger, offering guidance on abstract artwork produced from thread, yarn and cord.

"Organic Jewelry You Can Make" by Carson I. A. Ritchie, covering the currently very popular fashion of using ecological materials for personal decoration.

"Sculpturing with Wax" by Maria and Louis DiValentin, with instruction on how to use wax for objects beyond the familiar candles.

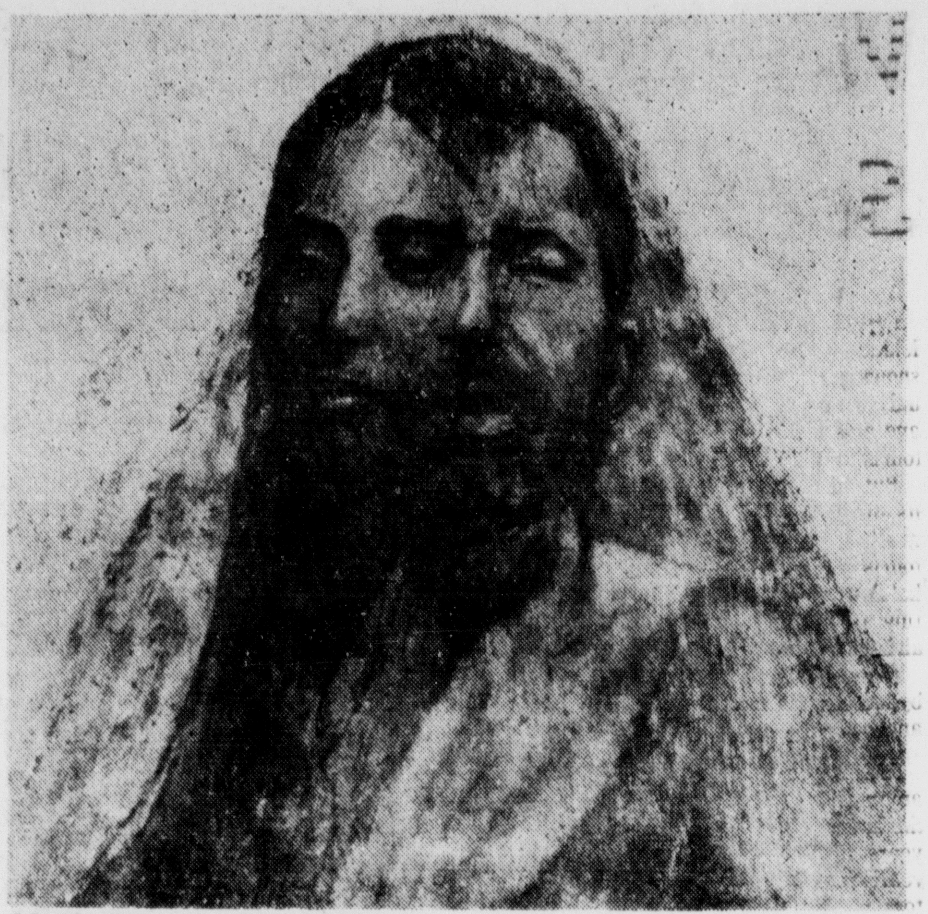
"Curling, Coiling and Quilting" by Inge Haslein and Rita Frischmann, a basic manual on that old and resurging skill.

The small books are priced at $2.95 each.

OTHER NEW books from Sterling:

"House Plant Identifier" pictures in color and describes 120 plants that can be grown indoors, offering instructions on their care, plus general counsel on indoor gardening. It is the work of Helmut Bechtel, well-known nature photographer, and his pictures are given a full-page presentation. $3.50.

"Tiny Living Things" is part of Sterling's Nature Series, presenting the close-up insect photos of Edouard Cauvin in black and white, with his accompanying relaxed and humorous text describing the "life styles" of his small subjects. Fine for budding young entomologists. Also $3.50.



COVER ART for "An Album of Original Music" (Goldust LPS-163) is this Elisabeth Porter Wilcox photograph of a sculptural painting — "One: Sri Ramakrishna and Sara Devi" — by Vijali Clark of Santa Barbara, employing an unusual technique with crushed and then colored marble.

ON THE STEREO SCENE

A Pleasant Album Out Of West Marin

By DON KEOWN

"Melodic folk with spiritual-oriented lyrics" is the way Dennis Wilcox of Tomales describes the difficult-to-categorize "An Album of Original Music" (Goldust LPS-163) that he and fellow West Marinites issued in late 1973, and which is now receiving a considerable play on Bay Area radio stations.

There is also a definite Western nasal sound to much of the vocalizing, adding yet another dimension to what is a pleasant and interesting disc for your turntable. Finally the lyrics have something of the crisp pictorial quality that one associates with Bob Dylan.

The principals in the making of the album were Wilcox, Bill O'Hanlon, also of Tomales, and engineer Emmit Brooks in whose recording was made in Mesilla Park, N.M.

The featured artists (although Wilcox points out that the emphasis is more upon the songs and songwriters, and less upon the musicians) are Wilcox, his sister Judy Wilcox and Michael Sullivan. All three are heard as vocalists, with Wilcox doing most of the solo work, and as instrumentalists as well. Terry Dymsky, Calvin Turbeville and Junior Daughterty are the other instrumentalists, with the acoustic guitar, electric guitar, pedal steel, bass, piano and fiddle all heard in which is predominately a guitar accompaniment.

There is a women's chorus in some of the selections that includes Wilcox's wife, Elisabeth Porter Wilcox, her mother and sister, Caryl and Kristin Porter, and Melodi Grisham.

The songwriters featured include Wilcox, five of the nine songs and collaborator with Sullivan on a sixth; Breezy Cade and Matthew Little Moon.

Wilcox says the record began a couple of years ago as a demonstration tape sent to established artists in an effort to attract interest to the music. Stations KPFA in Berkeley and KQED in San Francisco played the tapes on the air. Letters of encouragement from the likes of Mary Travers and Nancy Carlen (manager for Judy Collins) followed.

And with such encouragement, the tape was re-mixed and mastered at the Brooks studio for an album with the intriguing cover art pictured above.

Side one with six shorter selections and with greater emphasis upon the vocals and less heavy instrumentals won out over side two for this listener's enjoyment.

Wilcox's quite beautiful "Holy Man" and Cade's appealing "Water Is Precious" were personal favorites, and Sullivan's thinner voice makes Littlemoon's "Little Man" a catchy change of pace.

On the three-song side two Wilcox's "Snow on a Mountain" comes close to smash hit caliber and may, indeed, attain greater recognition than the "Holy Man" which we personally liked better. "It's All the Same," another Wilcox, has an ecumenical message appropriate to the times, with stretches of instrumentation that seem somewhat overextended in contrast to the fast, punchy pace of side one.

No question about it, Wilcox and his companions are gifted songwriters, and better than capable musicians with the kind of low-key appeal that is more and more welcome as a relief form the harsher sounds, including the acid rock, that assault our ears.

The album is available in many Bay Area record stores and is being placed in more.

Goldust Record Co. operates out of Post Office Box 998, Mesilla Park, N.M., 88047.

WRITE A SONG, WIN A PRIZE

SEATTLE (AP) — The American Song Festival is a competition for new songs in six categories —rock, pop, folk; country-Western; soul; rhythm 'n' blues, jazz; gospel and religious.

It is open to amateur and professional songwriters who have $10.85. Contestants send $10 per song entry plus 85 cents for postage to American Song Festival, Post Office Box 57, Hollywood, Calif., 90028. They receive an entry kit, which includes a cassette on which to record the song and an entry form.

Deadline for application is April 15 and recorded cassettes must be returned by June 3. A panel of celebrities will select 36 finalists, who will receive $500 each and will compete in finals to be held Labor Day weekend. Total for prizes will be $128,000.

Sterling Recreation Organization is presenting the song-writing hunt.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

MAIGRET LOSES HIS TEMPER by Georges Simenon; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc., 138 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The lean economy of language (here skilfully translated by Robert Eglesfield), the simplicity of plotting and the basic humanity of his characters stand Georges Simenon again in good stead in this Ispector Maigret yarn written a decade ago.

A nightclub owner in Paris' colorful Montmartre is found strangled. But to Maigret it is apparent that this is not one of the district's usual gangster killings. The victim had conducted himself with scrupulous honesty. And had lived the life of the simple family man.

Step by step, Maigret probes behind the scenes of the slaying, eventually exposing a clever racket in which, it develops, he has an unexpected personal stake — thus the loss of temper.

Along the way, Simenon gives us his usual insights into Parisian life, police work and basic human nature.

It is good, sound Simenon-Maigret. Which means that it is very, very good indeed. Read, and enjoy.

A PRAYER FOR THE LIVING by Jack Higgins; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 221 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Fred Wyatt.

Martin Fallon, a gifted musician turned professional killer, wanted by the Special Branch, by Military Intelligence and by former colleagues in the Provisional IRA, reluctantly takes an assignment from Jack Meehan, "the English Al Capone."

If character is plot, then this suspense novel bristles with plot, a story as taut as a banjo wire and menacing as a cocked pistol aimed at one's face.

The fate of Fallon, Michael da Costa, a priest with a guerrilla warfare background, and Father da Costa's winsome blind daughter becomes increasingly meaningful as the action progresses without letup.

The priest becomes involved because of having witnessed a killing his training and conscience tell him he cannot discuss. Easily the outstanding thriller of the season for me by the erudite author of the widely heralded "The Last Place God Made" and "The Savage Day."

Violence-Racked Virgin Isles Seek To Regain Tourist Image

By JAMES N. GOODSELL

CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix, Virgin Islands — This lovely Caribbean island is showing some signs of recovery from an ugly crime wave which in the past year and a half all but destroyed its important tourist industry.

But this improving picture, whatever its dimensions, is coming too late to do much for St. Croix's lagging winter tourist season. As the tourist year ends, hotels are almost empty, shops are cutting back on hours and personnel, and airlines are bringing in very few tourists.

Moreover, most cruise ships are simply bypassing the island for more secure anchorage elsewhere in the Caribbean.

AND IT COULD be a year or so before anything approaching the tourist levels of the late 1960s is again seen here. In those years, close to 300,000 visitors came here yearly. If St. Croix receives 75,000 visitors in the coming year, it will surprise many an islander.

As 1973 ended, St. Croix recorded its 12th homicide for the year, a total matching the 1972 tally which had first brought the crime situation here to mainland notice.

Similarly, St. Croix's sister island of St. Thomas, lying to the north and west of here, has had seven killings in 1973, although the situation there has attracted considerably less attention than that on St. Croix.

THESE KILLINGS, together with growing numbers of robberies, rapes and other crimes, are behind the bad image that St. Croix particularly has acquired in recent months.

Virgin Islands Gov. Melvin H. Evans is extremely critical of press reporting, blaming mainland newsmen for what one of his associates termed "the vicious level of bad publicity we have been getting."

Many Cruzans, as St. Croix residents are called, do not agree, viewing press coverage as an accurate mirror of what is happening here.

Governor Evans says that headway is being made on solving at least part of the problem. He cites the increase in the police force, the special training police are receiving the additional monies being spent on police activities.

THE GOVERNOR is being given fairly high marks by many Cruzans who feel that the climate indeed has improved in the past few months, although the number of murders, including one in mid-December, show little evidence of decline.

A survey of 25 shopkeepers, small merchants and restaurant people within a block of the waterfront in downtown Christiansted shows that 80 per cent of them are convinced "we are over the hump on crime," as one of them expressed it. That view was widely echoed.

But so was the view that tourism has been seriously damaged and will not quickly return to previous levels.

Sixty-five per cent of those surveyed said that it will be at least two years before late 1960 tourist tallies are again evident. Another 20 per cent was even more pessimistic, estimating five years or more.

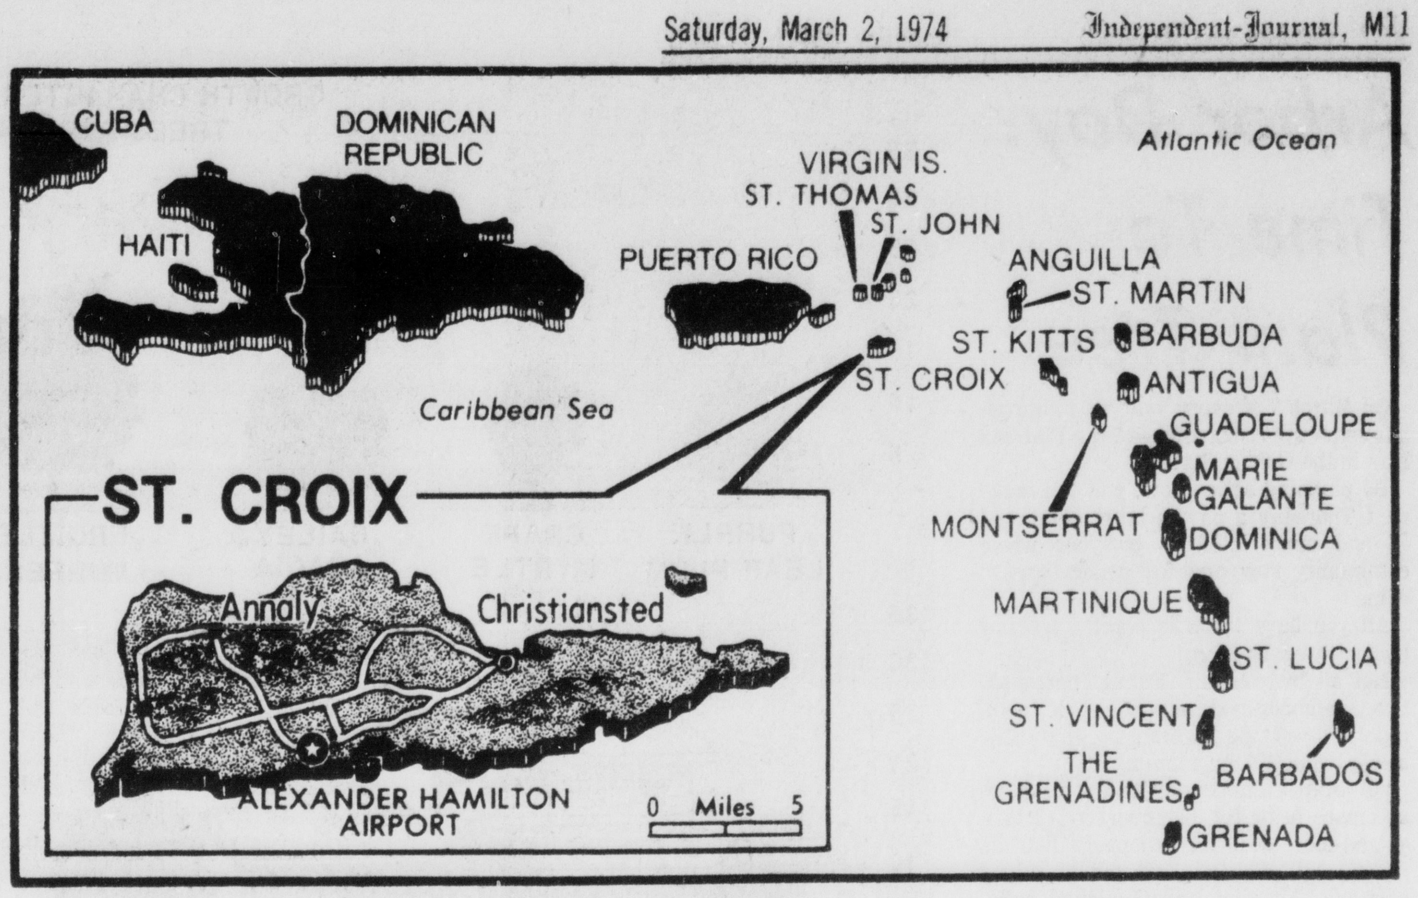
IN ADDITION, many of those surveyed suggest that it is not just the tourist business, but a host of related businesses as well, that have suffered.

Real estate values are off sharply. One home, priced at $160,000 before the crime wave hit, is on the market for $85,000 — and there are no takers.

Unemployment is growing, due in part to the hotel vacancies, but also to layoffs in the construction trade. Condominiums and small homes, which were being constructed at fairly rapid rates in the late 1960s, are no longer going up.

"If we have 10 housing starts all over the island in early 1974," says a local real-estate official, "we'll be lucky."

THERE IS SOME evidence that a contributing factor in much of this has nothing whatsoever to do with crime. Tourism is off throughout much of the Caribbean. The reason generally given suggests it is due to fewer people from the United States traveling to Caribbean islands because of the lagging state-side economy and other domestic considerations.



But it is the crime problem that interests people here — and they are looking at it carefully.

Behind the problem they cite a variety of factors — drugs, too large a population, racial tensions. But perhaps at its root, in the eyes of many islanders, is the simple fact that the native black Cruzan is outnumbered and outmaneuvered on his own island.

In recent years, thousands of down-islanders from the British and French-speaking islands of the Windwards and Leewards have come to St. Croix as well as to St. Thomas for work. They have so swelled the work force that there are not enough jobs to go around.

Moreover, vast numbers of Puerto Ricans have also come and acquired a good deal of economic muscle as small business men and shopkeepers. This combined with the strong economic power of the white "continental," as the mainlanders are called, has made the native black Cruzan almost an alien in his own land, and many of them have turned to crime.

There is growing agreement among government, business, tourist, and other people here that not until some effort is made to get at the cause of this problem will there be lasting success in solving crime on not only St. Croix, but also St. Thomas and St. John, which together compose the United States Virgin Islands.

Spokane Is Confident Of The Success Of Its Big Fair

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Everybody loves fairs. And the bigger they are, the more fun and excitement.

There are an estimated 2,000 fairs and festivals held annually in the United States alone. They range from one-day livestock shows to weeks-long state fairs.

This year, American fairgoers have an added treat — Expo '74 in Spokane, Wash., scheduled to open May 4 and run until Nov. 3.

EXPO OFFICIALS admit they are keeping their fingers crossed because of the world energy crisis. But as of now, they are sticking to the predicted attendance of 4,800,000, noting that advance sales already have topped three million dollars.

If driving is ruled out by gas shortages, diehard fairgoers will have other means of getting to the city in the Pacific Northwest, they said.

Tourist agencies, airlines, bus companies and Amtrak already have put together various travel packages in connection with the fair. Both the airlines and Amtrak, for instance, offer packages which includes the use of a camper trailer for seven days.

PETER L. SPURNEY, Expo '74 general manager, pointed out that the fair's theme, "Celebrating Tomorrow's Fresh, New Environment," is not only timely but might even encourage attendance by those concerned over the world's waste of energy and environment.

TRAVEL PAGE

"Expo is going to be getting national attention on the environmental forum and theme," he said. "I like to think we're very much ahead of the energy crisis because right here we'll be telling people how we got ourselves into this situation and, hopefully, how we're going to get out of it."

The 75 industrial exhibitors will include General Motors, Eastman Kodak, Ford, General Electric and Bell Telephone.

The United States, Soviet Union, Canada, Mexico, France, Japan and Australia are among the nations that also will have major exhibits.

THE 100-ACRE site for Expo '74 is in itself a case study in environmental reclamation. It formerly included a crumbling warehouse district and railroad staging yard. The buildings were razed, the tracks removed and the natural setting of the two islands — Havermale and Cannon — in the Spokane River restored.

Many of the various pavilions and exhibition halls are modular in construction and therefore "recyclable." They will be sold and relocated after the fair while the site will be converted into a park.

One such exhibit hall is the Kodak "bubble theater" which will seat 200 persons under an air-supported dome. Kodak will feature an eight-minute multi-screen presentation on the environment. Included will be scenes on vacationing and camping in Washington and Oregon and national parks in Idaho and Wyoming.

BUT ANY VISITOR to the Pacific Northwest should leave time to enjoy some of the natural beauties of the area first-hand. There are more than 70 lakes and scores of parks within an hour's drive from Spokane in eastern Washington.

And arrangements can also be made for visits to Mount Rainier, Glacier, Yellowstone and other national parks one or two days away by road.

Spokane itself has its attractions, not the least of which are the cascading falls of the Spokane River, the 67-acre Finch Arboretum, seven free municipal pools and three 18-hole golf courses open to the public.

Admission tickets at the gate are priced at $4 for adults, $3.25 for youths 12-17 and $1.60 (6-11). Children 5 and under are admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

For additional information, including special rates for season tickets, write to EXPO '74 World Fair, Post Office Box 1974, Spokane, Wash., 99210.

Health Farm On The Castle Grounds

If you have traveled around the Irish countryside and across the plains of Kildare, you may have already paid a visit to Kilkea Castle, located about 40 miles south of Dublin City on the Carlow Road, a gem of architecture, built by the Normans in 1180.

Former home of the Fitzgeralds, the earls of Kildare and the dukes of Leinster, it is the oldest inhabited castle in Ireland.

LUXURY SUITES compliment 55 bedrooms, the utmost in gracious living.

The castle offers the most delicate cuisine and a service which is one of the rare surviving examples of old traditional Irish warmth and genuine hospitality while the lush peaceful surroundings provide every facility for outdoor recreation — riding and fishing on the premises, and in the vicinity golf, pitch and putt, table tennis and badminton. A most popular venue, and extensively equipped for conferences, the Baronial Hall, with private kitchens and fully fitted bar, seats up to 300 persons.

Now within the walls of this 12th Century castle and its 110 acres of idyllic Irish countryside a new and exciting complex, a health and beauty farm, one of the most modern in Western Europe, has recently opened. This bold concept, catering to the guests' physical and psychological well-being, is the brainchild of the hotel's managing director, Mrs. Betty Chapman.

AN EXPERT IN the health and beauty fields, Betty Chapman is well known for her immensely successful operations at Shenley Lodge, outside of London, where a select clientele of close to 6,000 persons a year enjoy her hospitality.

Divided into two sections, one for ladies, the other for men, the extensive facilities at Kilkea Castle Health and Beauty Farm include saunas, plungepools, showers, gymnasia, massage units, oxygen and carbonic gas baths, ultra violet treatments and medicated baths.

All treatments are supervised by a team of highly trained specialists.

KILKEA CASTLE complex also includes beauty treatments such as skin care, makeup, facial massage, hairdressing, manicure and pedicure.

No health and beauty treatment can be effective without dietetic control, and specialized health restaurant provides guests with a varied and attractive bill of fare.

No starvation diet at Kilkea Castle! A satisfying, scientifically devised high protein diet is offered which includes delicious salads, cheese, meats, vegetables — all that is required for a healthy body and a clear mind.

For further information on Kilkea Castle Health and Beauty Farm, contact: the Irish Tourist Board, 590 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10036.

A Swiss Sea Without Gulls

Lugano in Switzerland has a sea of her own —with the difference that it has clear, bacteriologically treated and ionized salt water.

The Grand Hotel Eden-au-Lac of Lugano-Paradiso has just opened an indoor swimming pool with salt water, the first one of its kind in the Italian-speaking part of Switzerland, the canton of Ticino. It is built into the substructure of the hotel and is situated below the surface of Lake Lugano.

A stream of water gushing under great pressure into the 164 square foot pool basin on one side, enables bathing guests to swim on the same spot against the current. It gives the same result as prolonged swimming does in the sea, coupled with the additional pleasant sensation caused by the stream's curative effect on the body.

This seabathing treatment (called Thalasso therapy) is particularly recommended for over-exertion and general symptoms of fatigue, arthritis, rheumatism, circulatory disorders, gynecological illnesses, recovery from accidents and convalescence.

Besides the salt water pool and an indoor sweet water swimming pool, several facilities and services are at the disposal of the hotel's clients, such as massage by hand, underwater massage, mud baths, treatments to cure cellulite, as well as sauna.

There is growing agreement among government, business, tourist, and other people here that not until some effort is made to get at the cause of this problem will there be lasting success in solving crime on not only St. Croix, but also St. Thomas and St. John, which together compose the United States Virgin Islands.

Spokane Is Confident Of The Success Of Its Big Fair

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Everybody loves fairs. And the bigger they are, the more fun and excitement.

There are an estimated 2,000 fairs and festivals held annually in the United States alone. They range from one-day livestock shows to weeks-long state fairs.

This year, American fairgoers have an added treat — Expo '74 in Spokane, Wash., scheduled to open May 4 and run until Nov. 3.

EXPO OFFICIALS admit they are keeping their fingers crossed because of the world energy crisis. But as of now, they are sticking to the predicted attendance of 4,800,000, noting that advance sales already have topped three million dollars.

If driving is ruled out by gas shortages, diehard fairgoers will have other means of getting to the city in the Pacific Northwest, they said.

Tourist agencies, airlines, bus companies and Amtrak already have put together various travel packages in connection with the fair. Both the airlines and Amtrak, for instance, offer packages which includes the use of a camper trailer for seven days.

PETER L. SPURNEY, Expo '74 general manager, pointed out that the fair's theme, "Celebrating Tomorrow's Fresh, New Environment," is not only timely but might even encourage attendance by those concerned over the world's waste of energy and environment.

TRAVEL PAGE

"Expo is going to be getting national attention on the environmental forum and theme," he said. "I like to think we're very much ahead of the energy crisis because right here we'll be telling people how we got ourselves into this situation and, hopefully, how we're going to get out of it."

The 75 industrial exhibitors will include General Motors, Eastman Kodak, Ford, General Electric and Bell Telephone.

The United States, Soviet Union, Canada, Mexico, France, Japan and Australia are among the nations that also will have major exhibits.

THE 100-ACRE site for Expo '74 is in itself a case study in environmental reclamation. It formerly included a crumbling warehouse district and railroad staging yard. The buildings were razed, the tracks removed and the natural setting of the two islands — Havermale and Cannon — in the Spokane River restored.

Many of the various pavilions and exhibition halls are modular in construction and therefore "recyclable." They will be sold and relocated after the fair while the site will be converted into a park.

One such exhibit hall is the Kodak "bubble theater" which will seat 200 persons under an air-supported dome. Kodak will feature an eight-minute multi-screen presentation on the environment. Included will be scenes on vacationing and camping in Washington and Oregon and national parks in Idaho and Wyoming.

BUT ANY VISITOR to the Pacific Northwest should leave time to enjoy some of the natural beauties of the area first-hand. There are more than 70 lakes and scores of parks within an hour's drive from Spokane in eastern Washington.

And arrangements can also be made for visits to Mount Rainier, Glacier, Yellowstone and other national parks one or two days away by road.

Spokane itself has its attractions, not the least of which are the cascading falls of the Spokane River, the 67-acre Finch Arboretum, seven free municipal pools and three 18-hole golf courses open to the public.

Admission tickets at the gate are priced at $4 for adults, $3.25 for youths 12-17 and $1.60 (6-11). Children 5 and under are admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

For additional information, including special rates for season tickets, write to EXPO '74 World Fair, Post Office Box 1974, Spokane, Wash., 99210.

Health Farm On The Castle Grounds

If you have traveled around the Irish countryside and across the plains of Kildare, you may have already paid a visit to Kilkea Castle, located about 40 miles south of Dublin City on the Carlow Road, a gem of architecture, built by the Normans in 1180.

Former home of the Fitzgeralds, the earls of Kildare and the dukes of Leinster, it is the oldest inhabited castle in Ireland.

LUXURY SUITES compliment 55 bedrooms, the utmost in gracious living.

The castle offers the most delicate cuisine and a service which is one of the rare surviving examples of old traditional Irish warmth and genuine hospitality while the lush peaceful surroundings provide every facility for outdoor recreation — riding and fishing on the premises, and in the vicinity golf, pitch and putt, table tennis and badminton. A most popular venue, and extensively equipped for conferences, the Baronial Hall, with private kitchens and fully fitted bar, seats up to 300 persons.

Now within the walls of this 12th Century castle and its 110 acres of idyllic Irish countryside a new and exciting complex, a health and beauty farm, one of the most modern in Western Europe, has recently opened. This bold concept, catering to the guests' physical and psychological well-being, is the brainchild of the hotel's managing director, Mrs. Betty Chapman.

AN EXPERT IN the health and beauty fields, Betty Chapman is well known for her immensely successful operations at Shenley Lodge, outside of London, where a select clientele of close to 6,000 persons a year enjoy her hospitality.

Divided into two sections, one for ladies, the other for men, the extensive facilities at Kilkea Castle Health and Beauty Farm include saunas, plunge-pools, showers, gymnasia, massage units, oxygen and carbonic gas baths, ultra violet treatments and medicated baths.

All treatments are supervised by a team of highly trained specialists.

KILKEA CASTLE complex also includes beauty treatments such as skin care, makeup, facial massage, hairdressing, manicure and pedicure.

No health and beauty treatment can be effective without dietetic control, and specialized health restaurant provides guests with a varied and attractive bill of fare.

No starvation diet at Kilkea Castle! A satisfying, scientifically devised high protein diet is offered which includes delicious salads, cheese, meats, vegetables — all that is required for a healthy body and a clear mind.

For further information on Kilkea Castle Health and Beauty Farm, contact: the Irish Tourist Board, 590 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10036.

A Swiss Sea Without Gulls

Lugano in Switzerland has a sea of her own —with the difference that it has clear, bacteriologically treated and ionized salt water.

The Grand Hotel Eden-au-Lac of Lugano-Paradiso has just opened an indoor swimming pool with salt water, the first one of its kind in the Italian-speaking part of Switzerland, the canton of Ticino. It is built into the substructure of the hotel and is situated below the surface of Lake Lugano.

A stream of water gushing under great pressure into the 164 square foot pool basin on one side, enables bathing guests to swim on the same spot against the current. It gives the same result as prolonged swimming does in the sea, coupled with the additional pleasant sensation caused by the stream's curative effect on the body.

This seabathing treatment (called Thalasso therapy) is particularly recommended for over-exertion and general symptoms of fatigue, arthritis, rheumatism, circulatory disorders, gynecological illnesses, recovery from accidents and convalescence.

Besides the salt water pool and an indoor sweet water swimming pool, several facilities and services are at the disposal of the hotel's clients, such as massage by hand, underwater massage, mud baths, treatments to cure cellulite, as well as sauna.

95 ways to increase the value of your dollar in Europe.

Each of the 95 American Express European vacations can give you more for your dollar than you could buy on your own. Because you prepay major expenses before you leave home ($439 to $1,978, based on Group Inclusive Tour air fare from N.Y.) you travel through Europe with almost no jitters about unexpected expenses or currency exchanges! Here's what American Express can do for you:

Savings—with or without the group.

On an American Express "Freelance℠" vacation, you have just about all the free time of an independent traveler—but with almost all the savings of group travel. (For example, low Group Inclusive Tour air fares on major scheduled carriers such as Pan Am, TWA, KLM, SAS, BOAC.) You get these same air fare savings when you take one of our 71 escorted tours. A nice way to make new friends.

Hotel, restaurant, sightseeing bargains.

American Express is continuously scouting the best values in Europe. And has already negotiated many travel arrangements at pre-devaluation prices! You reap the benefits when you go vacationing from as little as $439, including G.I.T. air fare from N.Y.

Special dollar stretchers.

American Express spices your vacation with two-dinners-for-the-price-of-one in London, night sightseeing of illuminated Rome, shopping discounts, French perfume, even beer in an English pub, and much more.

American Express—a name you can trust.

You're traveling with a company that's been in the travel business for over half a century. A company big enough to offer you over 2,500 scheduled departures to Europe. With destinations such as Rome, London, Paris, Madrid, Morocco, Leningrad, Helsinki, Lisbon, Casablanca, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Venice, Florence, Munich, Vienna—to name a few.

Your travel agent will give you a free copy of "The Europe Book" with prices, itineraries and departure dates.

Or ask any American Express office for a copy. Or send the coupon. Read how to get more value for your dollar.

Arbor Day: Time To Plant Tree

On March 7 of every year we Californians celebrate Arbor Day — Tree Planting Day in the Golden State.

By planning action now, you can make next Thursday a day to be remembered — and appreciated — by your whole community now and for generations to come.

All you have to do is plant a tree, or two or three, or more!

Not all by yourself. Family participation, neighborhood action, whole communities working together — that's the whole point of Tree Planting Day.

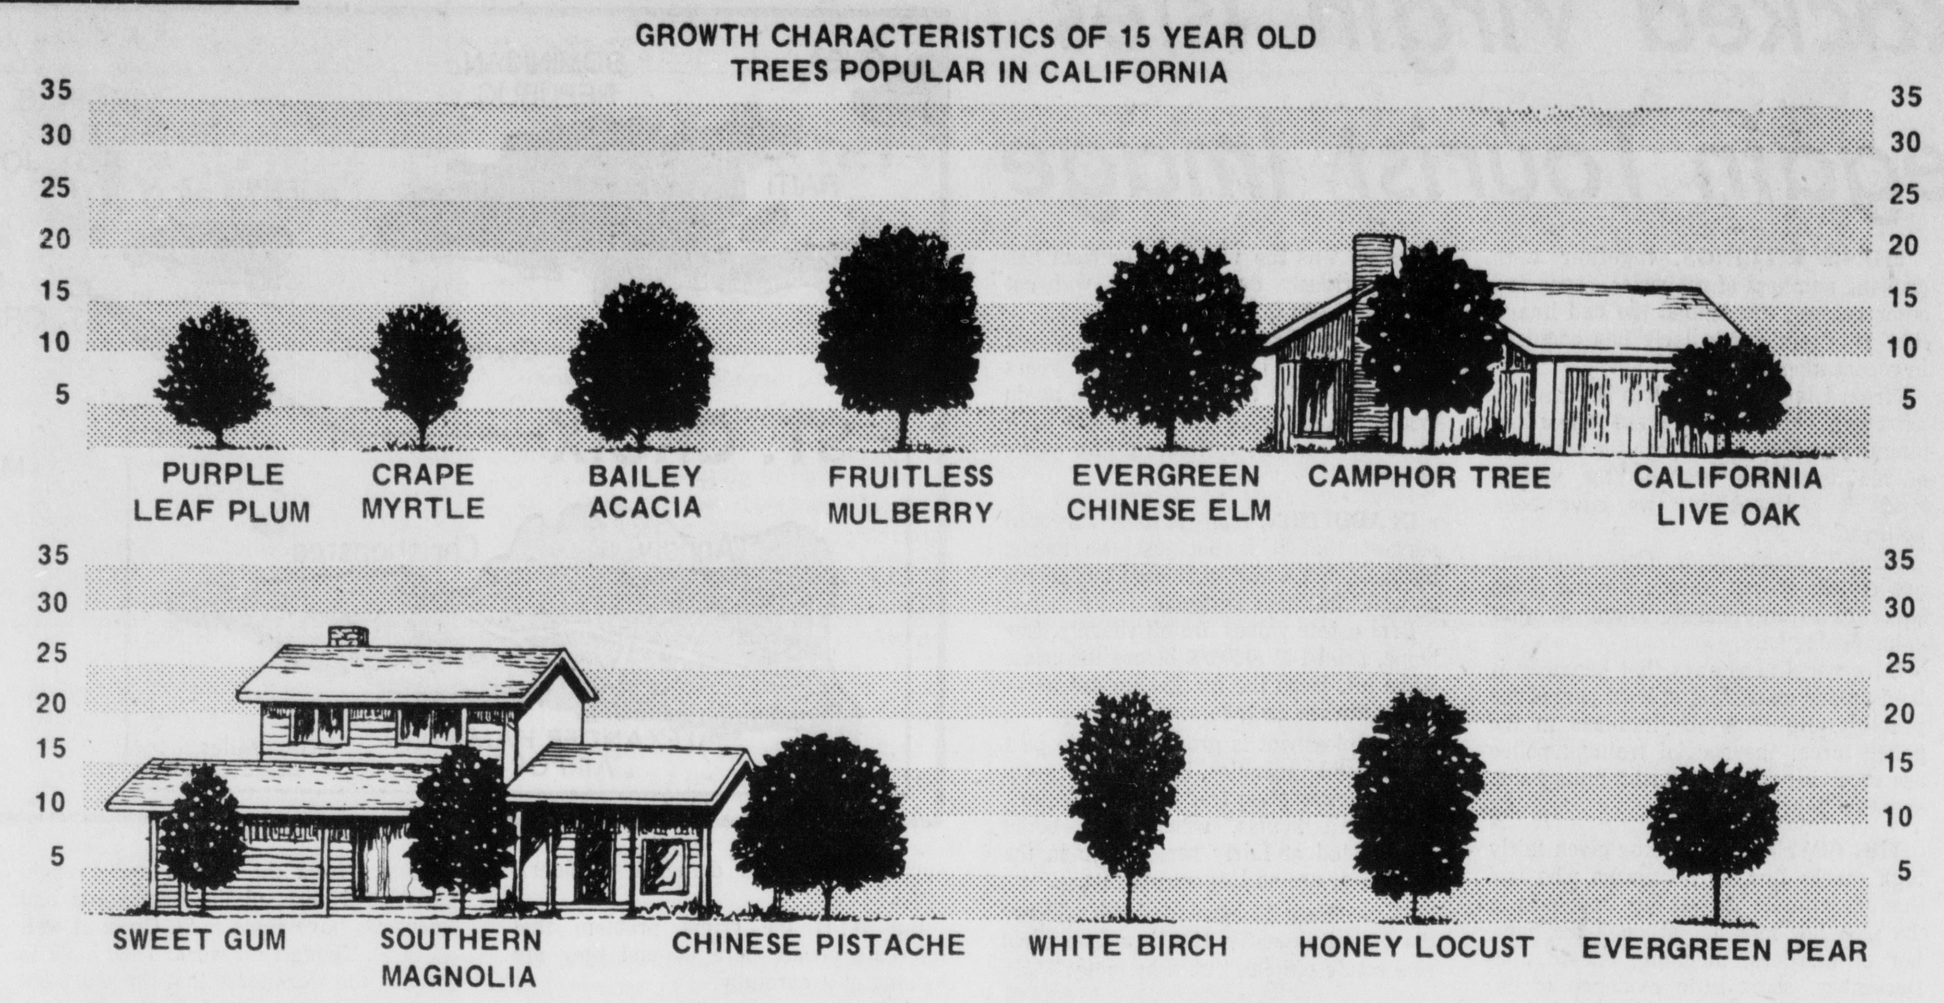
All over California private properties are more beautiful, neighborhoods lovelier and more desirable, shopping districts green and pleasant and public parks, hospitals, libraries and municipal buildings vastly improved because just one person in the community has been conscious of the need for fine trees, and has done something about it.

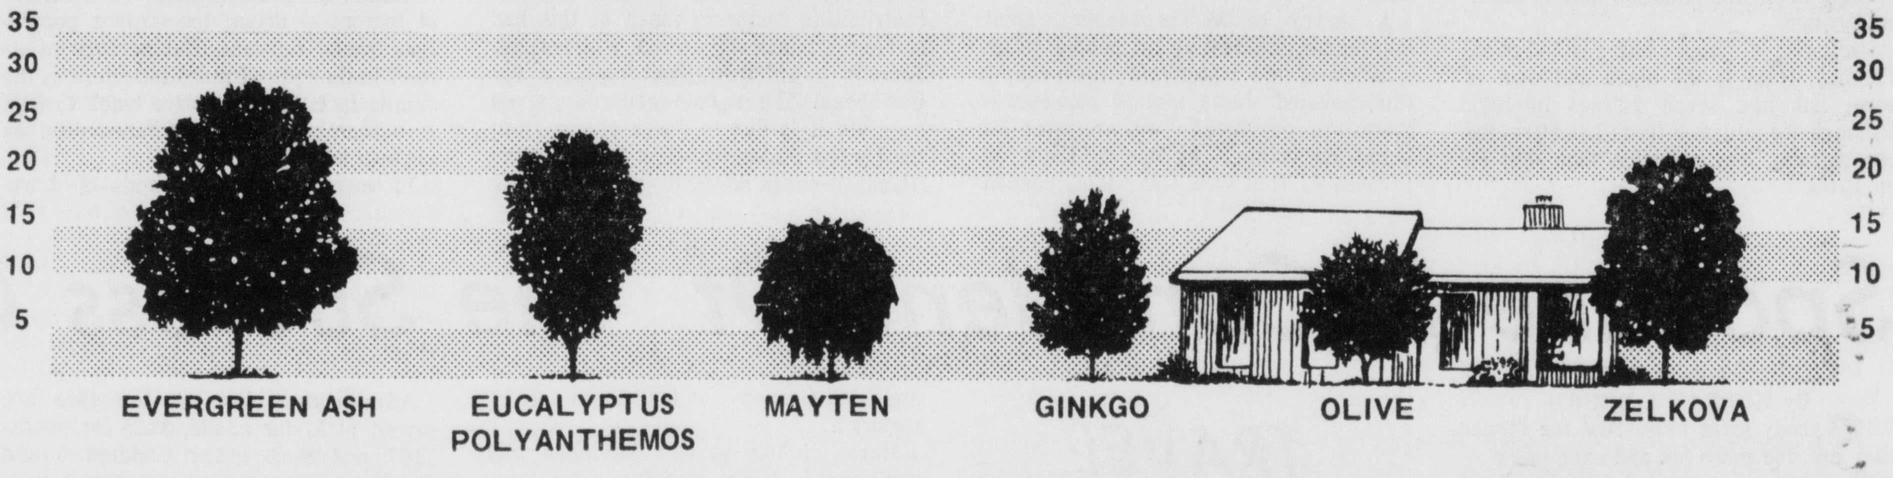
It begins with individuals, then it is a short step to the neighborhood and community. Service clubs and youth groups plan projects, enlist the help of business men, industry, civic and government officials, and see their dreams of a more beautiful, tree-shaded community become a reality.

You could make it a family ceremony where everyone down to the smallest child helps to plant a fine tree on your own property. Or get together with your neighbors and plan to beautify the whole street with appropriate matching trees.

The California Association of Nurserymen suggests you check with your local nurserymen for stock available. He'll be pleased to advise you on types and sizes of trees to plant Thursday in your yard or community. And there's a guide at right to help you in your selections.

GROWTH CHARACTERISTICS OF 15 YEAR OLD TREES POPULAR IN CALIFORNIA





THE SIZE OF the tree when it matures is always an important factor in your selection of a new tree for planting. The chart above and at right is designed to give you some idea of the height and growth characteristic of some of the more popular trees that Californians will be planting Thursday on Arbor Day. It was prepared by the California Association of Nurserymen.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓The hardier bedding plants can be set out now. But frost continues to be a threat so wait before planting warm weather flowers and vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers, egg plants, asters, zinnias, and cinerarias.

✓Fertilize unhappy lawns now with a commercial fertilizer. Lawn food will turn your turf green and vigorous in a very short time.

✓You can prune Acacias after blooming to keep them in shape. No need to be bashful with the shears, either. They thrive on such attention.

✓Bloom time is a good time to move Camellias and Azaleas if they have to be moved. Use a nurserymen's planter mix in transplanting them to assure sturdy development of new roots.

✓It's time to plant ground covers. Consider the new groundhugging Junipers for a beautiful show in difficult garden spots.

✓Complete your pruning of your Hydrangeas if you haven't already done so.

Soil Test: A Garden Experiment For The Children

SOIL MIX WITHOUT FERTILIZER

Most soils can naturally supply the necessary bulk elements for a plant's growth such as hydrogen and oxygen from water, carbon from carbon dioxide in the air.

In smaller amounts, a plant needs nitrogen, phosphorous, potassium, calcium, magnesium, iron and sulfur. Even minute quantities of boron, manganese, zinc, copper and molybdenum are essential.

If this balanced quality of growth elements in the soil are not available, commercial fertilizers can be used to complete its nutritional value. Simple labeling on the fertilizer packages tells you the amount of nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium each contain. The first figure is the per cent of nitrogen, the second, phosphorous and the third is potassium. Examples are: 5-10-5, 5-10-10, or 5-8-8.

Let your child decipher the nutritional value of your soil.

This simple experiment is ideal for your child or perhaps a school class to work on to help expand their understanding of nature's world. Even you big people will learn something!

This particular experiment is outlined in the book, "A Child's Garden," published by the Chevron Chemical Co., Ortho Division.

Fill two pots with soil from your garden and two pots with a good planting mix that contains no fertilizer. Mix the prescribed amount of complete fertilizer in one pot of each type of soil. Put no fertilizer in the other two pots. Transplant the same kind of plant into each pot (small tomato plants are excellent). Be sure they all have the same growing conditions, water, light and heat.

Have your child answer some simple questions by comparing the growing process of each plant in the different soil conditions. Which grew taller? Faster? Greener? Which blossomed first?

What does a plant need to grow?

A question your child can answer himself with this simple experiment. At the same time, he will gain a more complete understanding of nature's world.

A Tool Shed Adds Pleasure To Gardening

Gardening is a joyful hobby. It can also be back-breaking.

You can lighten the load by organizing gardening tools and supplies in a well-planned outdoor storage center. Add a custom-designed roll-around cart to hold your most-used gardening tools.

To make the job as satisfactory as possible, layout all the articles you want to store in the garden shed. Figure out how much space each item requires. You might make rough scale drawings on graph paper, much as you'd do if you were designing a kitchen or bath. This trick will tell you how much space is needed and how to divide it into shelves for items such as flower pots, spray bottles and cans, bins for peat moss, fertilizer and other soil conditioners, and floor storage area for bulky things like the lawnmower, composter, wheelbarrow and the roll-around carrier.

Small tools should be hung from the wall to save space and make them easily accessible.

You can make the construction job go quickly while building in good looks and durability by using exterior hardboard siding panels for the walls and top of the shed. Exterior hardboard is an engineered wood product that is exceptionally resistant to moisture, mildew and termites. The panels won't split or crack and are extremely dent-resistant. Look for prefinished hardboard siding that matches or coordinates with the siding of your house, or buy pre-primed hardboard siding and finish it as you wish.

Inside the shed, use perforated hardboard garage liner for storage. Standard storage hooks and brackets for use with it will hold up to 150 pounds. Pine shelving can be arranged on shelf hangers hooked into the perforations.

For the roll-about, use exterior siding on the handle end to form a self-door to its parking area. One or two sides of the cart made of perforated hardboard will be handy.

Frame up the shed with two-by-fours, sloping the roof framing toward the rear of the shed for drainage. If you make tilt-bins, their fronts should match the shed walls.

The Greenhouse Is Subject Of Penn State Course

It's the dream of many gardeners to have small greenhouses. And with new construction methods and materials lowering costs, many people are making the dream come true.

Home greenhouses are of two types: the "lean-to" attached to the house, and the conventional freestanding type. Your selection depends on such things as the shape of your home, size of lot, heat source and available money.

To teach small greenhouse construction and management, Pennsylvania State University offers a correspondence course titled "The Home Greenhouse." It is especially prepared for those wishing to grow plants as a hobby.

You obtain the course by sending $3.50 to Home Greenhouse, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. 16802. Make checks payable to Penn State.

The Flowering Fruit Trees Produce Harvest Of Blooms

Fruit trees that bear little fruit may sound like nothing to you, but don't condemn them until you've seen their blooms. If they're anything like the free-flowering beauties available in nurseries these days, you'll see the reason for their existence.

According to the California Association of Nurserymen, a greater selection of choice flowering fruit trees is available today than at any time in the past, and gardeners who grow them will find that there's nothing to match their show in late winter and early spring. They are the ultimate in color.

FLOWERING FRUIT trees differ from ordinary fruit trees in that they were specially hybridized to bloom.

To be sure, orchard trees put on their own show, but individually they are no match for their flowering counterparts. And, flowering fruit trees are no match for orchard trees when the harvest time rolls around.

Notable exceptions to the rule are the Saturn Peach, Double Delight and Altair, which not only produce a lovely spring showing of double pink blooms, but follow up with a summer crop of top quality freestone peaches. Other peaches have approached this twin goal of the flower-fruit production, but these are the first that can really claim attainment.

Flowering peaches are not only a delight in the garden, but in the home as well. When cut in bloom, or just coming into bloom, they will hold their blossoms better than most fruit trees for indoor display. Such cutting for decoration will serve to prune the tree.

Several flowering peaches are available in nurseries.

NEXT MOST popular on a statewide basis in California are the Flowering Crabapples. They are literally smothered with delicate blooms, mostly pink, but occasionally red or purplish.

The Flowering Cherries are best adapted to gardens in the northern and central parts of California. Where adapted, they rank among the handsomest of spring-flowering trees. Both double and single-flowering varieties are available among cherries, with shades of pink as well as white to choose from.

Flowering Plums are available in all parts of the state, being distinguished during most of the year by their purple or purplish foliage. They are excellent small trees for the small garden, fitting nicely into patio settings or beside a front door.

And, don't forget Flowering Apricots and Flowering Almonds. Primarily in shades of pink, and early enough to bloom that they are forerunners of a delightful spring to come!

Steps That Save Fuel In Heating Your Greenhouse

A fuel shortage is here and you may be concerned about your greenhouse. Take steps to conserve fuel and save heating money:

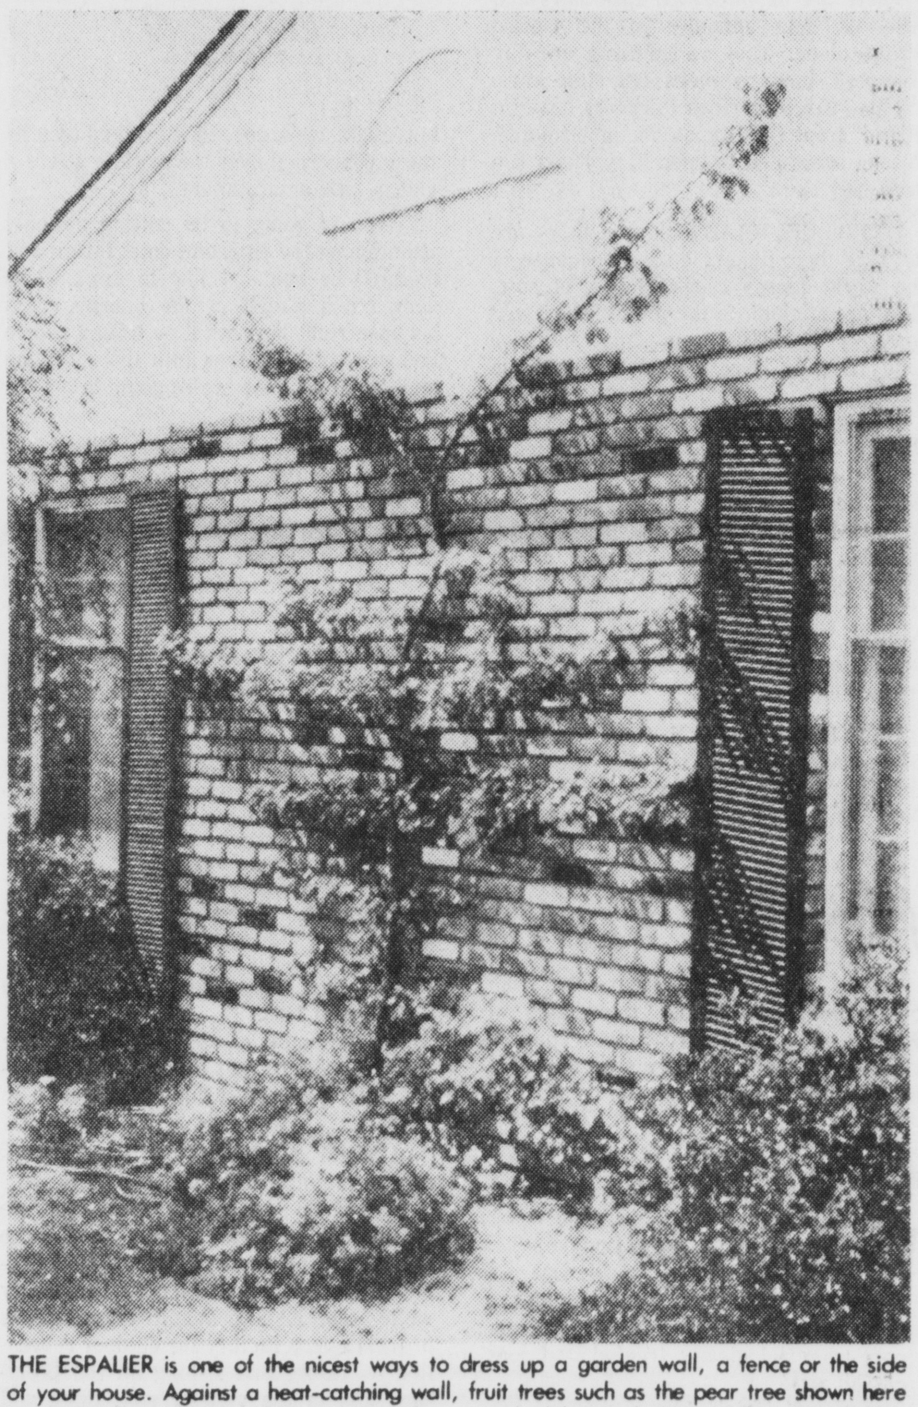
For a tight greenhouse, attach bar caps where needed, to the sash to prevent glass slippage, eliminating heat loss. Replace cracked glass. Be sure steam or, hot water pipes have no leaks. Reflect heat from pipes back into the greenhouse with aluminum reflectorized tar paper hanging between pipe and wall. Leave air space for circulation between tar paper and wall so walls won't freeze and crash.

If your greenhouse is plastic it should have a double layer of film, which could save you up to 40 per cent in fuel. Check boiler, burner and backup systems for efficent operation. Check insulation on boiler and pipes leading to greenhouse. Black cloth systems used at night help reduce the critical heating area and reduce radiation heat losses.

Attach polyethlene or fiber glass on the inside gable ends of the greenhouse for insulation to produec a thermopane effect. But do not line the roof with the material since it could cause debris to pile up.

Soda And Bleach For Flower Power

A mixture of one part water, one part citrus-flavored soda and half a teaspoon of chlorine bleach for each quart of solution can help flowers stay fresh longer. The alkalinity of most tap water is neutralized by the citric acid and carbonation in the soft drink. The bleach and carbonation control bacteria that block water flow in the stems. The sugar in soda pop nourishes flowers.



THE ESPALIER is one of the nicest ways to dress up a garden wall, a fence or the side of your house. Against a heat-catching wall, fruit trees such as the pear tree shown here do especially well. And they can provide you with delicious fruit as well as providing a pleasant sight with their interesting patterns.

Capitalize On The Charm Of Your Garden Wall

You have an ideal chance to create something special when planting a garden wall.

And you'll be amazed at this backdrop to a garden drama that unfolds through the seasons, when you correctly plant on the wall of a house, a retaining wall or board fence.

A wall is something to see, not to hide. Against it, plants create patterns of interest, bloom stands out and visual enjoyment is enhanced.

TAKE ADVANTAGE of the many ready-to-use espaliers available in nurseries. Espaliered plants seem to find the greatest favor in wall plantings because they offer so many variations. Against heat-catching walls, many of the edible fruits are first choice.

Apples, pears, citrus all lend themselves to espaliering, with their ripening fruits as an added attraction against the wall.

Loquats, also edible, are favorites as espaliers, their great green leaves standing out. They are less heat tolerant than citrus, however, if fruit is to be of first quality. Camellias, Pyracantha and deciduous Magnolia, all offer the gardener the chance to try his hand at espalier patterns.

The varieties of plants available, and already pre-started on trellises at your local nursery, will amaze you.

THE CALIFORNIA Association of Nurserymen suggests blooming vines such as Wisteria for atop a fence. They offer long pendulous blooms that hand down en masse in spring.

Evergreen Clematis, which follows a fence top and caps it in spring with masses of white bloom.

There are cascading plants for retaining walls and innumerable choices for base plantings to any wall. Just give each situation some thought — then check with your nearest nurseryman before you plant.

There is an old fashioned charm to the garden wall that has been properly planted and maintained.

The Trees That Shouldn't Be Cut

"Woodsman, spare that tree!" may be a familiar rallying cry among conservationists, but now the message is being relayed by a power chain saw manufacturer.

McCulloch Corp. spokesmen are cautioning their customers to avoid removing seemingly dead trees prematurely.

They point out that in many cases a tree may have a large number of "dead" branches, without having expired itself. If green wood can be found by scratching limbs or trunk, it's a good bet the tree will revive.

The company urges home owners to prune and shape their trees, to let in more light and achieve a more natural appearance.

The result will be a healthier tree and a bonus in firewood from those limbs that were removed.

The Greenhouse Is Subject Of Penn State Course

It's the dream of many gardeners to have small greenhouses. And with new construction methods and materials lowering costs, many people are making the dream come true.

Home greenhouses are of two types: the "lean-to" attached to the house, and the conventional freestanding type. Your selection depends on such things as the shape of your home, size of lot, heat source and available money.

To teach small greenhouse construction and management, Pennsylvania State University offers a correspondence course titled "The Home Greenhouse." It is especially prepared for those wishing to grow plants as a hobby.

You obtain the course by sending $3.50 to Home Greenhouse, Box 5000, University Park, Pa. 16802. Make checks payable to Penn State.

The Flowering Fruit Trees Produce Harvest Of Blooms

Fruit trees that bear little fruit may sound like nothing to you, but don't condemn them until you've seen their blooms. If they're anything like the free-flowering beauties available in nurseries these days, you'll see the reason for their existence.

According to the California Association of Nurserymen, a greater selection of choice flowering fruit trees is available today than at any time in the past, and gardeners who grow them will find that there's nothing to match their show in late winter and early spring. They are the ultimate in color.

FLOWERING FRUIT trees differ from ordinary fruit trees in that they were specially hybridized to bloom.

To be sure, orchard trees put on their own show, but individually they are no match for their flowering counterparts. And, flowering fruit trees are no match for orchard trees when the harvest time rolls around.

Notable exceptions to the rule are the Saturn Peach, Double Delight and Altair, which not only produce a lovely spring showing of double pink blooms, but follow up with a summer crop of top quality freestone peaches. Other peaches have approached this twin goal of the flower-fruit production, but these are the first that can really claim attainment.

Flowering peaches are not only a delight in the garden, but in the home as well. When cut in bloom, or just coming into bloom, they will hold their blossoms better than most fruit trees for indoor display. Such cutting for decoration will serve to prune the tree.

Several flowering peaches are available in nurseries.

NEXT MOST popular on a statewide basis in California are the Flowering Crabapples. They are literally smothered with delicate blooms, mostly pink, but occasionally red or purplish.

The Flowering Cherries are best adapted to gardens in the northern and central parts of California. Where adapted, they rank among the handsomest of spring-flowering trees. Both double and single-flowering varieties are available among cherries, with shades of pink as well as white to choose from.

Flowering Plums are available in all parts of the state, being distinguished during most of the year by their purple or purplish foliage. They are excellent small trees for the small garden, fitting nicely into patio settings or beside a front door.

And, don't forget Flowering Apricots and Flowering Almonds. Primarily in shades of pink, and early enough to bloom that they are forerunners of a delightful spring to come!

Steps That Save Fuel In Heating Your Greenhouse

A fuel shortage is here and you may be concerned about your greenhouse. Take steps to conserve fuel and save heating money:

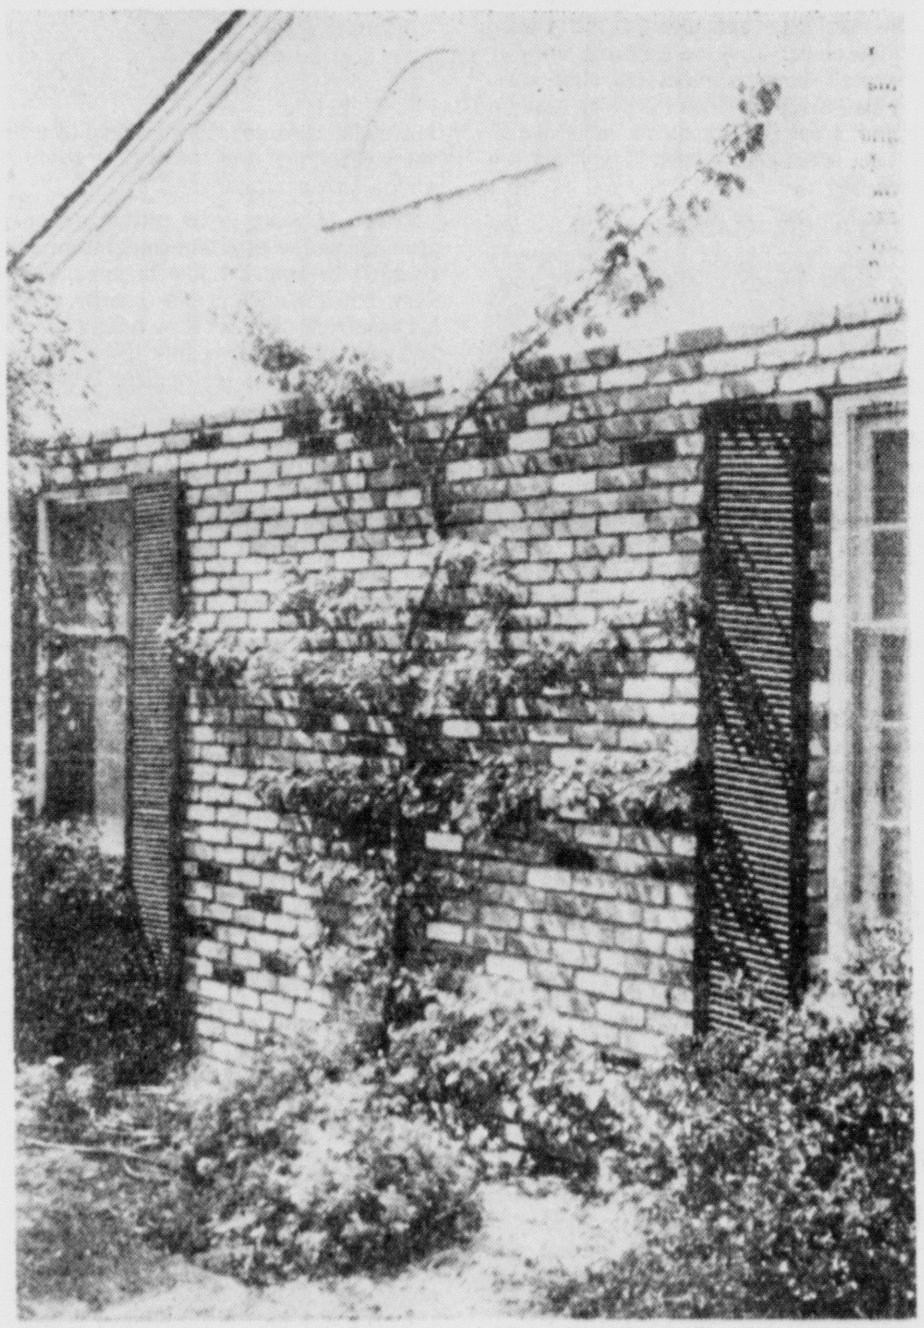
For a tight greenhouse, attach bar caps where needed, to the sash to prevent glass slippage, eliminating heat loss. Replace cracked glass. Be sure steam or, hot water pipes have no leaks. Reflect heat from pipes back into the greenhouse with aluminum reflectorized tar paper hanging between pipe and wall. Leave air space for circulation between tar paper and wall so walls won't freeze and crash.

If your greenhouse is plastic it should have a double layer of film, which could save you up to 40 per cent in fuel. Check boiler, burner and backup systems for efficent operation. Check insulation on boiler and pipes leading to greenhouse. Black cloth systems used at night help reduce the critical heating area and reduce radiation heat losses.

Attach polyethlene or fiber glass on the inside gable ends of the greenhouse for insulation to produec a thermopane effect. But do not line the roof with the material since it could cause debris to pile up.

Soda And Bleach For Flower Power

A mixture of one part water, one part citrus-flavored soda and half a teaspoon of chlorine bleach for each quart of solution can help flowers stay fresh longer. The alkalinity of most tap water is neutralized by the citric acid and carbonation in the soft drink. The bleach and carbonation control bacteria that block water flow in the stems. The sugar in soda pop nourishes flowers.



THE ESPALIER is one of the nicest ways to dress up a garden wall, a fence or the side of your house. Against a heat-catching wall, fruit trees such as the pear tree shown here do especially well. And they can provide you with delicious fruit as well as providing a pleasant sight with their interesting patterns.

Capitalize On The Charm Of Your Garden Wall

You have an ideal chance to create something special when planting a garden wall.

And you'll be amazed at this backdrop to a garden drama that unfolds through the seasons, when you correctly plant on the wall of a house, a retaining wall or board fence.

A wall is something to see, not to hide. Against it, plants create patterns of interest, bloom stands out and visual enjoyment is enhanced.

TAKE ADVANTAGE of the many ready-to-use espaliers available in nurseries. Espaliered plants seem to find the greatest favor in wall plantings because they offer so many variations. Against heat-catching walls, many of the edible fruits are first choice.

Apples, pears, citrus all lend themselves to espaliering, with their ripening fruits as an added attraction against the wall.

Loquats, also edible, are favorites as espaliers, their great green leaves standing out. They are less heat tolerant than citrus, however, if fruit is to be of first quality. Camellias, Pyracantha and deciduous Magnolia, all offer the gardener the chance to try his hand at espalier patterns.

The varieties of plants available, and already pre-started on trellises at your local nursery, will amaze you.

THE CALIFORNIA Association of Nurserymen suggests blooming vines such as Wisteria for atop a fence. They offer long pendulous blooms that hand down en masse in spring.

Evergreen Clematis, which follows a fence top and caps it in spring with masses of white bloom.

There are cascading plants for retaining walls and innumerable choices for base plantings to any wall. Just give each situation some thought — then check with your nearest nurseryman before you plant.

There is an old fashioned charm to the garden wall that has been properly planted and maintained.

The Trees That Shouldn't Be Cut

"Woodsman, spare that tree!" may be a familiar rallying cry among conservationists, but now the message is being relayed by a power chain saw manufacturer.

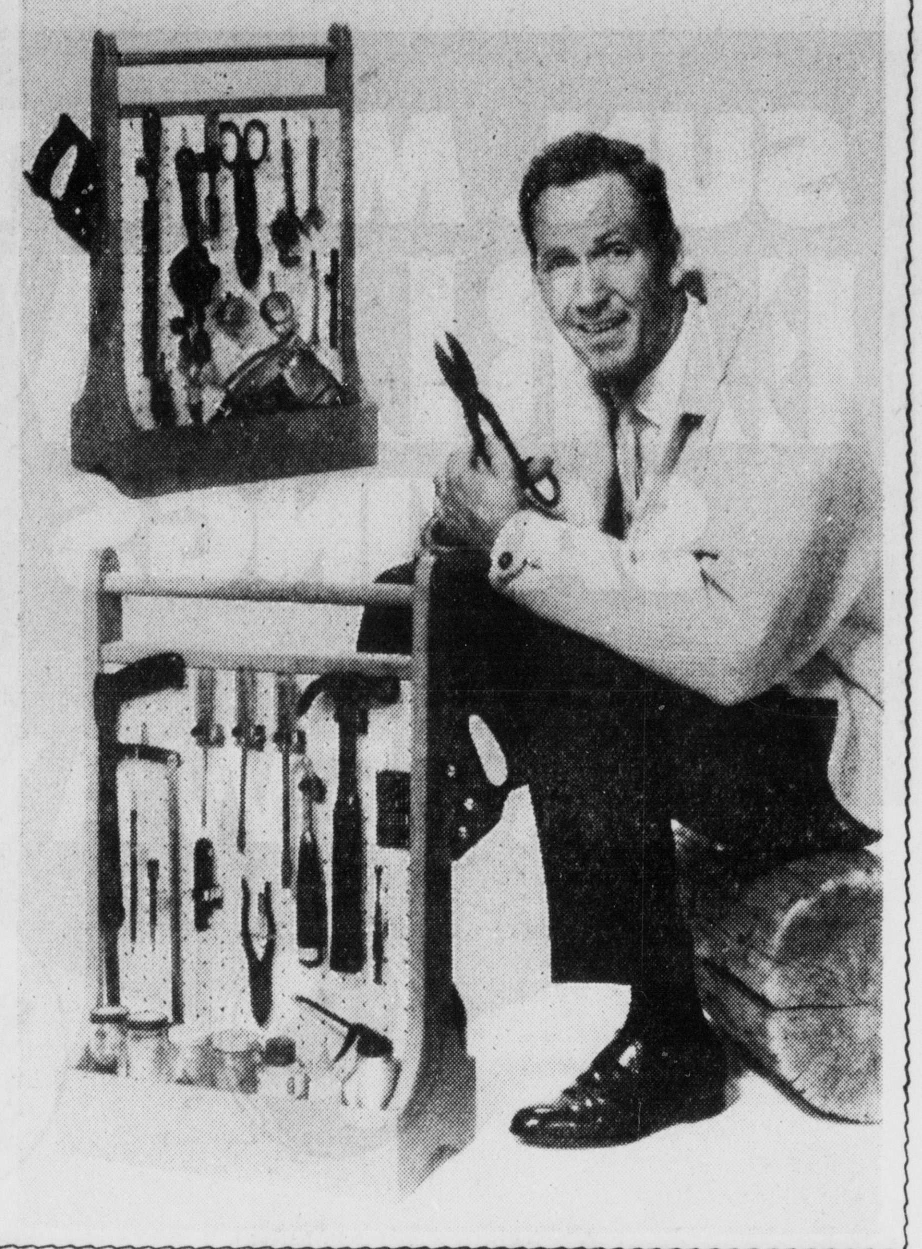
McCulloch Corp. spokesmen are cautioning their customers to avoid removing seemingly dead trees prematurely.

They point out that in many cases a tree may have a large number of "dead" branches, without having expired itself. If green wood can be found by scratching limbs or trunk, it's a good bet the tree will revive.

The company urges home owners to prune and shape their trees, to let in more light and achieve a more natural appearance.

The result will be a healthier tree and a bonus in firewood from those limbs that were removed.

ENERGY CRISIS SPELLS BOOM FOR HOBBIES



WHAT WITH the fuel shortage, you are almost certain to be spending more of your weekends and evenings at home. And this change in your life style means that you will have more time for hobbies — both old and new. One craft that is already experiencing a tremendous gain in its following is home shop woodworking. In it, the man — or woman — can find immense satisfaction and challenge. And at right you see a Steve Ellingson-designed project that will launch the new woodworker successfully into the intriguing pursuit. Or will bring new order and enjoyment into the activities of the veteran craftsman. Greg Walcott shows you a neat tool caddy that provides compact storage for the do-it-yourselfer's hand tools. There is storage for up to 15 different tools on the caddy's two sides. And it can be built in a couple of evenings or one weekend. For the full-size pattern, send $1 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Tool Caddy Pattern 268. Include your zip code number. Once you have completed this project, you will find your future woodworking jobs much simplified by the ease with which you can take your tools to the task, rather than vice versa. And once you have discovered the joys of working with wood, you might well reach the conclusion that there is a bright side to the energy crisis, for all its problems.

Don't Discard Those Window Screens; Here's How To Replace Their Mesh

By ANDY LANG

Window screens last for many years — unless they have been damaged by an outside source, which can be anything from a boy's baseball to a cat's claws.

A certain amount of maintenance is necessary, though, to maintain the appearance of the screens as well as to keep out insects. Most persons are aware of this and will do such things as painting wooden frames, tightening joints and patching small holes.

REPLACEMENT OF the entire mesh seems a more formidable job — and is, to a degree — with the result that a lot of screens are thrown out when new screening material would have given them many more years of life.

First, some details about replacing the mesh in a wooden frame.

The old narrow molding that runs along the inside of the frame should be prid up with a putty knife or other flat tool. If the molding is still in good shape, do the prying very carefully so that it can be used again.

HOMES PAGE

Take off the screen material, which is held in place with either tacks or staples. Measure the opening and allow about one-half inch extra on each side. This will give you the measurement for the new mesh so that when you purchase it you will get a piece on which there will not be much waste.

A TIME-TESTED method of making the mesh taut on the frame is to place the wooden part on a sturdy flat surface. Place two boards about one inch thick under each end of the frame. Now use clamps to bend the long edges of the frame downward so that it touches the surface of the table or whatever else is being used. The screen frame now will have both ends higher than the center. Attach the screening to the frame, using either tacks or staples, the latter being the more modern material for this purpose. When the clamps are removed, the bowed frame will spring back into normal position, automatically making the mesh tight.

Trim away any ragged edges.

If you decide to repaint the molding, do it before replacing it.

To replace screening in a metal frame, the procedure is pretty much the same except that the mesh is held tightly in the frames with splines, which are pushed into the grooves. There is a small convex wheel made for that purpose, but you can use the eraser end of a pencil or something similar.

(The do-it-yourselfer will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1 to Andy Land at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J., 07666.)

For A Real Refinishing Job On Floors, Start With Removal Of The Old Finish

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

Refinishing a wood floor is a term that may mean nothing more than putting on a new coat of clear finishing material after removing any wax accumulation.

But a true refinishing job starts with the complete removal of the old finish and the dust and grime that have been ground into it.

There are two ways to take off the old finish. The first, with a varnish remover, is seldom used any more. The second, with a sanding machine, is the professional method that home owners have been using ever since it became possible to rent such a machine.

BEFORE RENTING a floor sander, remove all furniture and drapes from the room and see that there are no visible nail heads that may tear the sandpaper. In that way you pay only for the time you are actually using the machine and not for the time it is standing idle.

Also, when you rent the big drum-type sander, rent an edger that will enable you to sand close to the walls.

Make three passes with the sanding machine, the first with coarse paper, the second with medium, the third with fine. Sand with the grain of the wood. A most important key to successful use of the sander is to see that the drum isn't moving except when you are pushing it. That means that, when you start the motor, tilt the drum slightly off the floor, and when you stop the motor, do the same thing.

EVEN THOUGH your sanding machine has a dust bag, not all of the dust will be caught. It is imperative, therefore, to vacuum every part of the room after you have finished sanding.

You can use varnish, shellac, plastic, epoxy resin or any of the good quality floor finishes on the market. Gaining in popularity in recent years are the penetrating floor sealers, especially because worn or faded areas can be touch'ed up later without showing any signs of it.

No matter what the finish, periodic waxing will help to preserve its life.

HERE'S THE ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

By ANDY LANG

Q. — Several holes have developed in our blacktop driveway. Can these holes be filled with gravel?

A. — Yes, but the patched areas won't match and will be conspicuous. A better way is to put some gravel into each hole and pack it down until it is about an inch or so from the top. Fill the remainder of the hole with blacktop patching material. Pack that down and, if it still isn't level with the surrounding surface, add some more patching material. After using the driveway about a week, reinspect each patch and see whether more material is required.

Q. — About six months ago there was a tiny leak in a pipe running across our basement ceiling. It's a cold-water pipe. Following some instructions I read somewhere, I cemented a piece of rubber over the leaky area, then tightened it in place with a pipe clamp. It stopped the leak immediately and there hasn't been any trouble since then. Now a neighbor tells me this is meant to be only a temporary repair and that it will only be a month or two more before the leak starts again. Is he right?

A. — He could be — but he also could not be. In other words, it is quite possible that you have made a repair that is permanent. But it also is possible that the leak could occur again at some future time. I think I'd let well enough alone. Every time you go down to the basement, glance at the patch to be sure it is holding. If it is, don't disturb it.

Q. — When painting a paneled door, should the panels or the main part of the door be painted first?

A. — The panels.

Open Styling Pleases Eye, Saves On Heat

Open interior styling is one preventive for that hemmed-in feeling that may follow construction of a smaller house than was needed and originally planned.

By making the sloping roofs the ceiling lines also and erecting room partitions only up to customary wall height, the open space above makes the rooms and house seem larger.

For practical, heat-conserving reasons as well as beauty, the open ceilings can be built of lumber two inches or more in thickness. Heavy lumber decking is one of the best insulators.

Clerestory windows are a popular source of light, but the current energy shortage makes wood-framed double glass highly advisable.

A Character Change For A House

Take a typical 1910 to 1920 tract bungalow, cut out the living room ceiling, let windows into the roof peak, redefine room areas with divider screens — and you have an amazing change of character for an old house.

The owner-architect who performed this transformation spent little on structural alterations and materials, but the creative effort produced a bright, new interior.

One of the areas gaining a completely different mood was the dining room.

Before, it was dark and isolated from the rest of the house. Removing walls, opening up the small pass-through to the kitchen, and painting walls and woodwork a light, bright color did the trick.

Opposite the kitchen end of the dining room, a divider screen of spaced two-by-four inch western wood replaces a wall and separates the dining area from a sunken conversation room that has seating around a fireplace.

The screen also serves as a backdrop for decorative lighting, three hanging lamps that were handmade with a cutting torch from metal tubing.

Spacers of one-by-four-inch boards project about 10 inches on the dining room side of the screen, and extend to the front wall of the house, forming a lowered ceiling over the conversation pit.

A similar divider screen runs from the front entry along the other open side of the sunken area, secluding the conversation corner from the rest of the living room, but leaving an opening near the dining room.

An entry hall is suggested by a dropped ceiling of gaily printed fabric about five feet wide, on a frame of two-by-sixes running from the entry across the living room, coupled with the divider screen and plants in sculptured pots.

REMODELING A 1920-vintage tract bungalow, an architect-owner has set the dining area apart form the living room with a screen of two-by-four-inch western wood. Spacers of one-by-fours extend to form a lowered ceiling over the sunken conversation area. Similar screen sets off the front entry in the center of the room.

As Construction Costs Increase, The New House Gives Way To Cabin

With new home costs increasing, many families are electing to remodel their present homes, and instead of a new house build a vacation cabin for leisure living.

The smaller square footage of the second home, plus the opportunity to leave part of it unfinished as a later do-it-yourself project, means a smaller loan, important and sometimes imperative at today's interest rates.

Owning a second home usually puts the family close to the recreation scene, at the beach, on a lake, or in the mountains. There's investment potential in a second home, too, with eventual use or resale as a year-around residence.

FOR THESE AND other reasons, careful planning is as important for a second home as it is for a primary residence. In addition to collecting ideas and clips from newspapers and magazines, many books and brochures are available on the subject.

One plans booklet issued by the Western Wood Products Association on second homes depicts 18 designs, some with options and several expandable starter plans. A modified A frame with 1,076 square feet of floor space is one of the plans designed for leisure or full-time living.

More than just the usual cabin, the A-frame has two bedrooms on the second level, and kitchen, dining and living rooms, bath and laundry on the main floor. Really, all the conveniences of your first home. Large storage areas are built into the eaves off each bedroom.

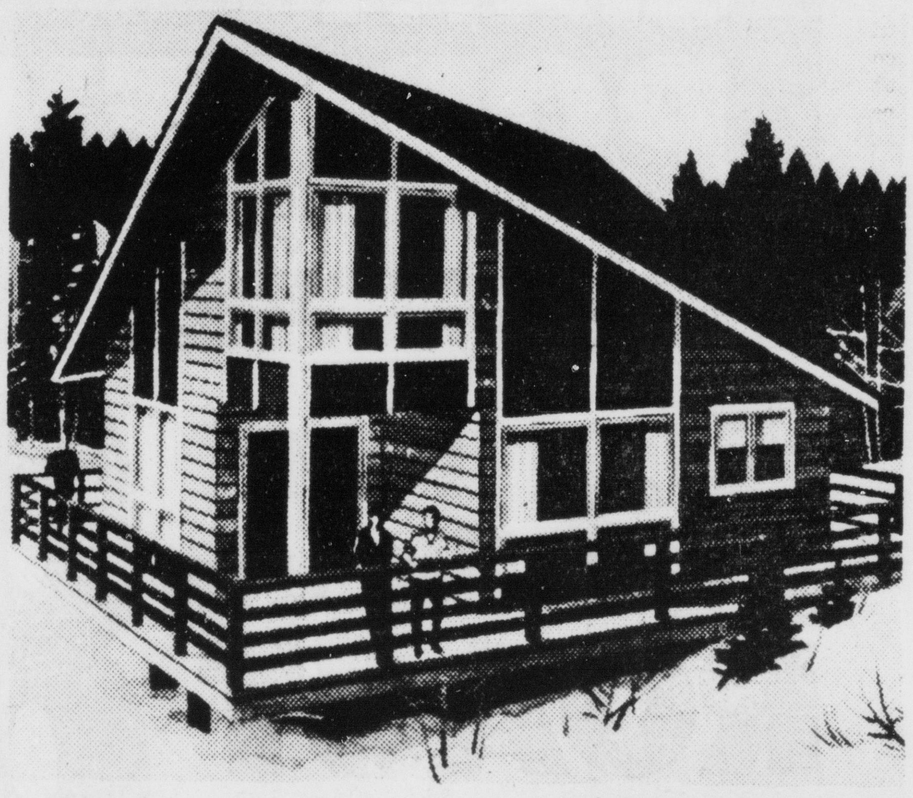
A PRE-FAB FIREPLACE warms the living room which opens onto a sitting deck sheltered by an overhang of the second floor. Walkway decks and railings surrounding the house on three sides are built of two-by-four-inch Douglas fir.

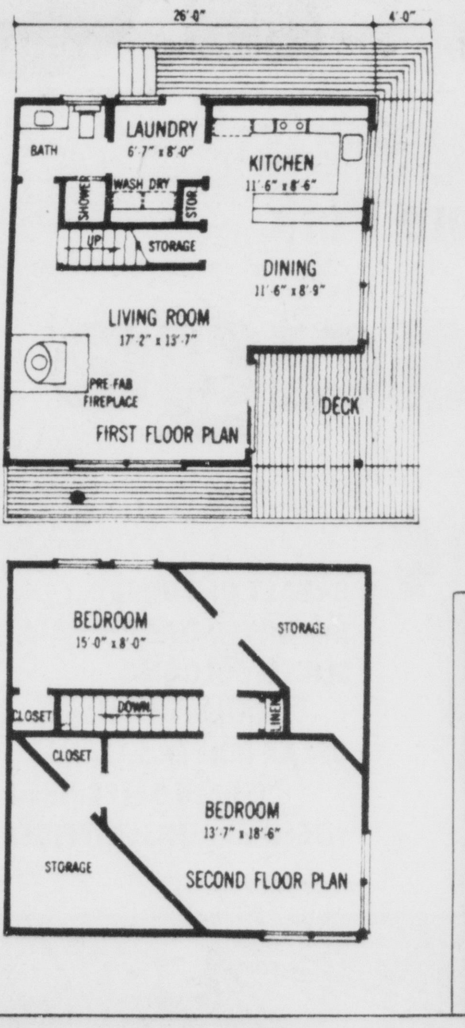
Some second homes are used by several families and others are rented when not in use by the owners. Thus builders recover a great deal of their investment, and still enjoy the use of their shelters. Rugged western wood exteriors and interiors offer long-lasting surfaces for this heavy use in units built for a lifetime.

For the 24-page booklet colorfully illustrating the A frame and other designs, plus information on obtaining working plans, send $1 to Western Wood Products Association, Department 542-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204.

Tips On Framing

For a six-page folder showing how to frame pictures with wood molding, send 25 cents in coin to Western Wood Products Assn., Department M1-P, Yeon Building, Portalnd, Ore., 97204.





THIS MODIFIED A-frame second home can accommodate either leisure or year-around living, with its 1,076 square feet of floor space, and its floor plan as shown at left that includes two bedrooms, kitchen, laundry and wrap-around wooden deck. For a new book containing 18 such designs, send $1 to Western Wood Products Association, Department 542-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204. Builders are pushing second home construction as a better-than-ever investment in the light of today's energy and materials situation. Often a smaller second home can be constructed at a fraction of the cost of a full-scale first home, and provide almost all the living amenities of the more expensive and more difficult to build main swelling. Many considering building such a full-size house are now lowering their sights to the vacation type shelter

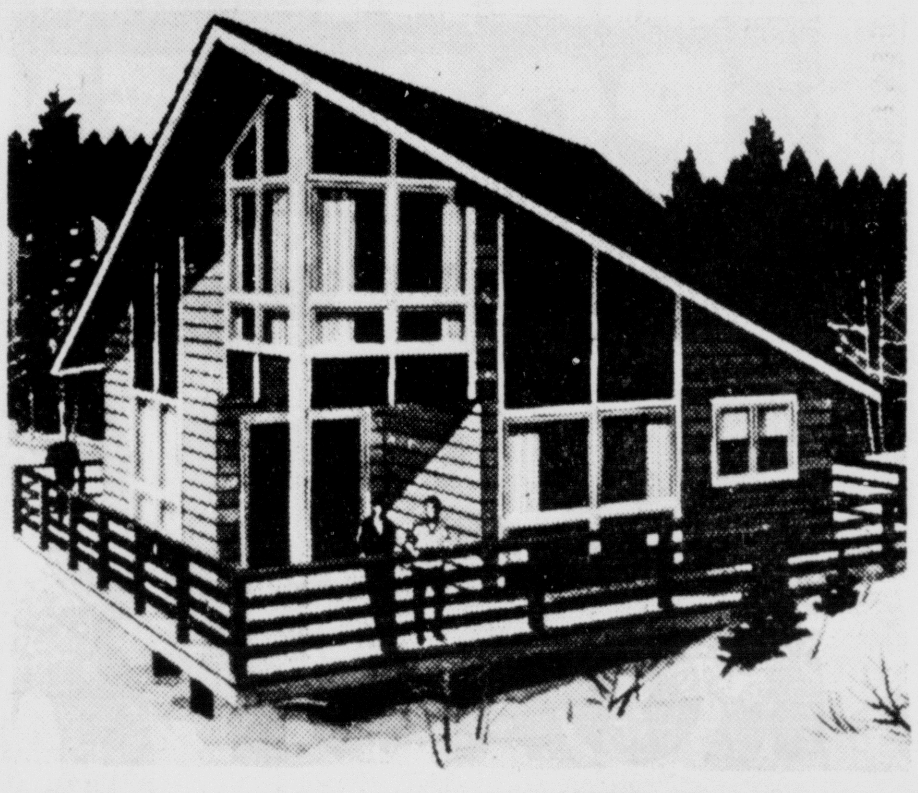
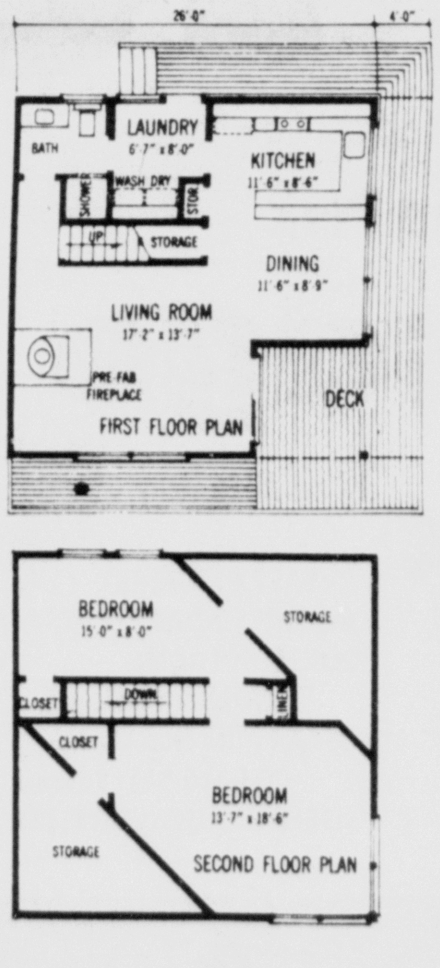
More than just the usual cabin, the A-frame has two bedrooms on the second level, and kitchen, dining and living rooms, bath and laundry on the main floor. Really, all the conveniences of your first home. Large storage areas are built into the eaves off each bedroom.

A PRE-FAB FIREPLACE warms the living room which opens onto a sitting deck sheltered by an overhang of the second floor. Walkway decks and railings surrounding the house on three sides are built of two-by-four-inch Douglas fir.

Some second homes are used by several families and others are rented when not in use by the owners. Thus builders recover a great deal of their investment, and still enjoy the use of their shelters. Rugged western wood exteriors and interiors offer long-lasting surfaces for this heavy use in units built for a lifetime.

For the 24-page booklet colorfully illustrating the A frame and other designs, plus information on obtaining working plans, send $1 to Western Wood Products Association, Department 542-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204.





THIS MODIFIED A-frame second home can accommodate either leisure or year-around living, with its 1,076 square feet of floor space, and its floor plan as shown at left that includes two bedrooms, kitchen, laundry and wrap-around wooden deck. For a new book containing 18 such designs, send $1 to Western Wood Products Association, Department 542-P, Yeon Building, Portland, Ore., 97204. Builders are pushing second home construction as a better-than-ever investment in the light of today's energy and materials situation. Often a smaller second home can be constructed at a fraction of the cost of a full-scale first home, and provide almost all the living amenities of the more expensive and more difficult to build main swelling. Many considering building such a full-size house are now lowering their sights to the vacation type shelter

Euell Gibbons Considers Himself Gourmet, Not A Food Faddist

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Naturalist Euell Gibbons has become a national joke making television commercials in which he fortifies a breakfast cereal with goodies he has found in the wilds.

Thus when a football player was asked recently if he liked playing on astroturf, he replied, "I don't like playing on anything that Euell Gibbons can't eat."

One man announced on a talk show that his 200-year-old elm tree died and he suspected Gibbons of nibbling away the bark.

GIBBONS ACCEPTS his overnight celebrity with misgivings. He has been a wild food forager most of his life. At age 65 he sees nothing particuarly humorous about his hobby.

Even the titles of his books fail to elicit a chuckle from him: "Stalking the Wild Asparagus," "Stalking the Blue-Eyed Scallop," "Euell Gibbons' Beachcomber's Handbook" and his newest, "Stalking the Faraway Places."

Ever alert for nature's bounty, Gibbons spent an hour or so before taping a Johnny Carson show to forage around in a vacant lot in Burbank.

GIBBONS IS A stocky man with wavy gray hair, seamed face and deep-set intelligent eyes. His skin shows the leathery effects of the elements and his shoulders are slightly stooped, perhaps from keeping his eye on the ground.

Two couples walked by. They were young and one of the men said, "My God, it's Euell Gibbons." He toppled over, pretending to faint.

Gibbons shook his head and prowled along. He picked up a weed, peeled back the outer skin.

"Dock," he said, "It's wild rhubarb. Sweeter out here than back East." He nibbled on it before plucking other wild plants.

HE IDENTIFIED a half-dozen unappetizing greens as being edible but he didn't taste them.

"Most of these edible wild plants are utterly delicious when properly prepared," he said. "Some are blah and some are horrible. But they all give you vitamin A and C. Keep you from getting scurvy."

Gibbons was reminded scurvy was relatively rare these days.

"I don't mean to be an eccentric," he said, "because I'm no more eccentric than a hunter or fisherman. I can't stand to kill innocent animals but I don't mind the scream of a dandelion.

"SOME ECOLOGISTS say we should fence off nature from man. No. I believe in man and nature together, involved. Man should be in conquest of nature, but intelligently. There's nothing eccentric about that.

"My image is one of a man with tough taste buds and a cast iron stomach who could eat the tailgate off a truck. One woman said she was afraid to wear a green dress around me.

"I consider myself a gourmet. I have sensitive taste buds. And in nature I can eat delicacies the richest man can't buy unless he goes out and gets them like I do."

GIBBONS DOESN'T subsist on wild foods alone. He can be found at the supermarket with his wife as often as the next guy. But almost every meal involves some wild food, even if it is just a condiment.

Frequently Gibbons takes his wife and grandchildren on three-to-10-day survival trips, living off the land. There are store-bought provisions, to be sure, in the event wild provender is scarce.

Gibbons, who makes his home near Troxelville, Pa., said, "I'm not a food faddist I eat wild foods because I like them, not because there's any particular virtue in it. It's fun.

"Foraging proves to me that a man can keep body and soul together if he can stand the taste of wild food. There are ways to make it tasty."

Euell Gibbons' middle name is Theophilus.

Regular Visitor

Joey Bishop, who hosts NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" six weeks a year, has made 15 appearances at the White House — for Presidents Kennedy, Eisenhower and Johnson.

WILD FOOD FORAGER Euell Gibbons is becoming as well known for his television commercials as he is for his books, bearing such titles as "Stalking the Good Life" and "Stalking the Wild Asparagus."

ANDY WILLIAMS, serving as host for the fourth consecutive year, will be joined by top stars of the recording world in presenting the golden Grammy Awards of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences honoring outstanding creative achievements in the music field. The 16th Annual Grammy Awards ceremonies will be telecast live from the Hollywood Palladium Tonight at 10 o'clock on Channels 5 and 10.

A Treat For Jazz Buffs

"Montreaux Jazz Festival '73: An evening of American Jazz" — featuring Gene Ammons, the Gary Bartz Ntu Troop, Dexter Gordon, McCoy Tyner and guest artists Julian "Cannonball" Adderley, Nat Adderley and Hampton Hawes — will be telecast on Channel 9 tonight at 7:15 o'clock.

The hour-long show was videotaped during an eight-hour concert last July at Montreaux, Switzerland.

The show opens with a jam session featuring "Cannonball" Adderley on alto sax, Nat Adderley on cornet, Gene Ammons on tenor sax and Kenny Clarke on drums. They are then joined by bassist Bob Cranshaw, Dexter Gordon on tenor sax, Kenneth Nash on conga and Hampton Hawes on the keyboard.

The second part features pianist McCoy Tyner, who won the 1973 Downbeat Critics' poll for the best record, "Sahara." He's joined by Azar Lawrence on tenor sax, Jooney Booth on bass and drummer Alphonze Mouzon.

Then Ammons returns with Hawes, Clarke, Cranshaw and Nash, and the next set features Dexter Gordon and sidemen Hawes, Clarke and Cranshaw.

The show closes with the Gary Bartz Ntu Troop, with Bartz on alto and soprano sax, Howard King on drums, Stafford James on bass, and Hubert Eaves on keyboard.

LARRY GRAHAM and Graham Central Station, one of the Bay Area's most popular rock and soul bands, will be featured during a jam-packed session at San Francisco's Orphanage nightspot, on "All Together Now," Sunday at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

A Treat For Jazz Buffs

"Montreaux Jazz Festival '73: An evening of American Jazz" — featuring Gene Ammons, the Gary Bartz Ntu Troop, Dexter Gordon, McCoy Tyner and guest artists Julian "Cannonball" Adderley, Nat Adderley and Hampton Hawes — will be telecast on Channel 9 tonight at 7:15 o'clock.

The hour-long show was videotaped during an eight-hour concert last July at Montreaux, Switzerland.

The show opens with a jam session featuring "Cannonball" Adderley on alto sax, Nat Adderley on cornet, Gene Ammons on tenor sax and Kenny Clarke on drums. They are then joined by bassist Bob Cranshaw, Dexter Gordon on tenor sax, Kenneth Nash on conga and Hampton Hawes on the keyboard.

The second part features pianist McCoy Tyner, who won the 1973 Downbeat Critics' poll for the best record, "Sahara." He's joined by Azar Lawrence on tenor sax, Jooney Booth on bass and drummer Alphonze Mouzon.

Then Ammons returns with Hawes, Clarke, Cranshaw and Nash, and the next set features Dexter Gordon and sidemen Hawes, Clarke and Cranshaw.

The show closes with the Gary Bartz Ntu Troop, with Bartz on alto and soprano sax, Howard King on drums, Stafford James on bass, and Hubert Eaves on keyboard.

LARRY GRAHAM and Graham Central Station, one of the Bay Area's most popular rock and soul bands, will be featured during a jam-packed session at San Francisco's Orphanage nightspot, on "All Together Now," Sunday at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Old Films Are Best, Say Movie Buffs In Warner Survey

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1930s and 1940s films aren't just getting older, they're getting better, say film buffs.

When some 200 people were asked to pick their favorites from a list of 1,600 films, 1918-1971, they selected "Casablanca," made in 1942, to top their list

Others in the top five included "The Maltese Falcon," 1941; "A Streetcar Named Desire," 1951; and "The Treasure of the Sierra Madra," 1941. Only "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" 1966, represented the 1960s.

THESE FILMS won out over more current pictures like "Bullitt," "A Clockwork Orange" and "Billy Jack."

"The overall picture to be drawn from the lists of the top films . . . is not that of an audience concerned with sex, violence or easy entertainment, but rather with the themes of idealism, moralism, the overcoming of personal problems and difficulties and social significance," says Dr. William J. Krossner of Fordham University, who conducted the survey of Warner Bros. Films.

Why did the old films do so well? Explanations vary.

Old films have much exposure from being viewed by a huge television audience. The studios are turning out fewer films today. And, some way, old movies are simply superior.

"THE FILMS MADE in the 1930s and 1940s are better than now. That's true of any classical period. After that, it's copied and repeated," says Jim Silke, chairman of film studies at the American Film Institute in Los Angeles, who helped put together Warner Bros. 50th anniversary record albums of song and dialogue.

"The 1930s and '40s were romantic. They chose to look at dreams, propelling people to a better kind of life. It wasn't until the late 1950s that film began to expose the private side of our nature.

"In the 1960s, you begin to preach about the human condition, instead of searching for a relationship, honesty, between two people. It became propaganda instead of a story.

"YOUNG PEOPLE are looking for a better world, another side of life, in the 1970s. People have responded to that since the beginning of time. There's very little of the dream in today's film," says Silke.

Leslie Harston, president of Leslee Productions, also responsible for the albums, makes another point.

"The old movies stand up because they've been seen by two generations in the theater and four generations on TV. It's probably true that more people saw 'Casablanca' than saw 'The Godfather,' " he says.

SILKE ADDS that directors like Howard Hawks had sharp personal identities, as well as control over their stars, and the strength to make clear aesthetic and philosophic statements in their films. Today, too few directors have this kind of force, he says.

"Kubrick, Nichols and Peckinpah are the only directors with track records, as opposed to some 30 in the 1930s," says Silke.

Harston says, "There's bigger money in records, today. People gravitate there, and to TV."

Silke says, "TV makes 98 per cent grade B movies. Their A films are Monday night football."

JOE FRAZIER, right, grimaces as Muhammad Ali lands a left hook during Super Fight II, won by Ali and to be seen exclusively on the Emmy Award-winning sports program, "Wide World of Sports", Sunday at 3:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11. Howard Cosell will be the blow-by-blow commentator.

MIDNIGHT

⑳ "Public Deb" (1940), George Murphy, Brenda Joyce. Glamorous heiress goes "leftist."

For Ida, Show Must Go On

Veteran actress-director Ida Lupino believes the old show business adage, "The show must go on."

Working on the very cold Stage 28 at Universal where during the energy crisis heat is a very valuable commodity, Miss Lupino was suffering from the effects of a cold and broken ribs.

"I did three shows with these broken ribs," the wide-eyed actress said. "I did a "Streets of San Francisco' episode and when I did a 'Barnaby Jones' segment I reinjured them."

She was recalling the painful moments between scenes of NBC Television Network's 'Columbo' set, where she was guest-starring in the 'Swan Song' episode, to be colorcast Sunday at 8:30 p.m. on "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie."

JOHNNY CASH guest stars as a country-western singer who fakes an airplane accident to get rid of his fanatically evangelistic wife who has been blackmailing him, in a special two hour presentation of "Swan Song," a "Columbo" drama to be shown Sunday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

THE CALYPSO DIVERS descend to previously inaccessible sites beneath the ice of the frozen Antarctic, and share a kindred danger with hundreds of thousands of other warm-blooded creatures which surface in order to breathe and which can be trapped under ice, in "Beneath the Frozen World. "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" presentation will be shown Sunday at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

ELI WALLACH stars as Leo Gordon, idealistic head of a family struck by tragedy during the Depression, in Clifford Odets' "Paradise Lost," a "Theater in America" production, Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 9.

Eli Wallach stands in a quiet corner of a 1930s brownstone set, describing the plot of Clifford Odets' "Paradise Lost" to his daughter Roberta.

"Paradise Lost," starring Wallach, Jo Van Fleet, Bernadette Peters and Cliff Gorman, is a presentation of "Theater in America," and will be televised Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

"I've been watching soap operas all afternoon," Roberta laughed, as her father recounted the final "trial" of the Gordon family.

"No, there's a difference," Wallach replied. "A difference of language. This play has such an aliveness. I call it 'The Forsyte Street Saga.' You know, Odets used to say, 'I always start my plays with a fight.' That's what I love about his work."

WALLACH STARS as Leo Gordon, a humble patriarch, living during a time of political turbulence and economic stress.

Wallach grew up in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn, where his parents owned a candy store. Unlike the Gordon family, his parents survived the Depression, sending three children to college despite financial difficulties.

Wallach attended Texas University, then returned to New York for his teachers' examination. "I failed the exam. No one wanted teachers at that time." Instead, he joined the Neighborhood Playhouse and confirmed his interest in becoming an actor.

AT THAT TIMEE, the plays of Odets were being performed in New York by the Group Theater.

"It was like a hot iron in the stage," Wallach recalls. "Until then, American theater was a leftover from the English tradition. But the Group Theater conveyed the cry of the people and what they were. Those plays weren't just about Jews living in the Bronx."

"The insights and wisdom of an Odets play transcend all periods," Wallach says, denying the notion that "Paradise Lost" is a mere period piece. "You have this great Chekhovian speech at the end of this play. It was a statement of optimism, made at a time of labor's struggle for power."

He winces at the thought of how this optimism has curdled. "I'm afraid that men today are rising to the ugliness of their lives. You think about the hard hats —."

IN THE ROLE of Gordon, Wallach must achieve a Job-like fortitude as family and fortune crumble.

His own rule as an actor: "I ask myself 'what if?' What if my son had an incurable disease; what if I'd been blacklisted . . . In those terms I can identify with a character. It's like asking 'how do you play a king?' Well, along come all these people bowing before you. So naturally you nod in a reserved way."

About his experience with "Paradise Lost," he says: "Good suffering is a marvelous feeling for an actor.

As Wallach discusses his career in films and theater,he lingers on certain works such as "Luv" ("a simple and involved statement on love; you know, we look for some kind of statement, political or otherwise in everything we do"); "Camino Real" ("it's the first trip a kid ever took. I suppose that's why audiences didn't understand it at all"); "Baby Doll" ("we were filming it in Mississippi at the time of the Till Murder case; you felt you were back in the year 1900").

IN "LUV" HE appeared with his wife, accomplished actress, Anne Jackson.

In terms of the demands made on an actor's life, especially where it concerns on-location filming, Wallach says: "Most of the time Anne and I have been able to spell each other. The one will have a role and the other will manage to be at home with our three children."

"I've enjoyed acting," Wallach says with fond reflection. "It's taken me everywhere — Yugoslavia, Cambodia, England, France."

THE DRAMATIC RECREATION of the true story surrounding the seizure of the U.S. Naval vessel, Pueblo, by the North Koreans and the life or death decision forced on its skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, portrayed by Emmy Award winner Hal Holbrook, will have a repeat showing on Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

There's Little 'Lip-Sync' On 'Music Country USA'

It is no small challenge to maintain the pace of producing a television series week in and week out from just one studio. So one can imagine the responsibility shouldered by creator-producer Greg Garrison whose "Music Country U.S.A." on NBC-TV emanates from nearly 100 locales reaching from one end of this land to the other.

"Actually," points out the well-traveled Garrison, "while the logistics of assembling some 80 top-name entertainers to do 400 songs on both coasts and at points in between is at times overwhelming, one of the most demanding factors involved is that we're doing a minimum of 80 per cent of our performances live. It is on tape, of course, but it is not all lip-sync.

"There has been a misconception about this among a few TV critics and if there is one thing I want to make clear, it is that eight out of every 10 vocals done on this show are done live on tape."

Obviously it would be much simpler, not to mention less expensive, to make greater use of the technique of lip-syncing, but Garrison feels that the "live" performance at these far-flung locales is one of the main ingredients behind the success of the show.

"First of all, we use wireless mikes about the size of a dime which is attached to a small easily concealed power pack. We use wind filters if it's necessary to prevent winds from seriously affecting the efforts of a performer but most of the time we pick up extraneous sounds such as dogs barking, doors closing and anything else that may be going on while we're taping. And, we leave 'em all in. It offers an immediacy and element of spontaneity that no studio operation could duplicate," says the peripatetic television executive.

SINGER-GUITARIST Glen Campbell stars in his second special, "Chevrolet Presents Glen Campbell and the Musical West," Friday at 10 p.m. on the NBC Television Network. John Wayne, Burl Ives and Michele Lee will be his guests on a show that explores the folklore and legends of the American West. It pre-empts the Dean Martin Show.

THE REAL RAQUEL

Her First Chance To Show Talents

Will the real Raquel Welch please stand up?

Not only does the famous beauty stand up — she sings, she dances, she does comedic monologues in "Really, Raquel," a musical revue for television, to be broadcast as a one-hour special Friday at 9 p.m. on the CBS Television Network.

"I am weary of being a curiosity — a kind of cardboard cutie," declares Miss Welch with disarming frankness. "This show gives me a chance to do something — to sing and dance and perform as a professional entertainer, which is what I am."

The glamorous star believes "Really, Raquel" is the first vehicle tailored to her performing talents. "It doesn't introduce a new Raquel," she explains, "it projects the real one, and for the first time."

The 60-minute special was adapted from the highly successful supper club production with which Miss Welch rang in the 1973 New Year in a major Las Vegas show room and continued to draw record crowds for almost a month. That show marked her debut as a "live" stage entertainer, and began a new dimension in her career.

"I want the audience to listen as well as look," she says, "and this time I believe they will."

One of the highlights of the program is a monologue in which Miss Welch reviews her life and debunks much of the gossip that has followed her throughout her career. In a lighthearted, intimate "conversation" with the audience, she offers rebuttal to some of the Raquel Welch myths.

On "overnight stardom": "When I was about 7 I was producer, director, writer and star of plays done in my garage. I once did 'South Pacific,' playing every part, including the entire U.S. Navy."

On being "born sexy": "I remember my first interviews for acting jobs. I had this one suit. It was seersucker, two-piece, with a very sexy Peter Pan collar topped off by a plastic carnation."

On wanting to play "Hamlet": "Ophelia, maybe . . . but Hamlet?"

"I want people to know me as a person," Miss Welch sums up, "to understand that I am a human being, not just a symbol."

He's Still An Actor, Despite The Roles

Dolph Sweet, who plays police Lt. Gil McGowan on NBC-TV's daytime serial "Another World," has played numerous other policemen roles, including one in the film, "The New Centurions."

Recently, a reporter asked to do an interview with him on the subject of "law and order" and Sweet said: "I am an actor, not a policeman."

THIS EARLY MORNING view of the Bund, a street in Shanghai along the Huangpo River waterfront, includes the former Shanghai Club (second building from left), now the Tung Feng restaurant. This and other scenes forming the urban landscape of one of China's oldest cities will be seen on a special news report, "Shanghai," Friday at 10 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Karl Malden Has Theory About How TV Began

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Karl Malden has a theory about television, a medium he entered reluctantly after more than 30 years in the theater and films.

Malden, star of ABC's "Streets of San Francisco," reasons that television was invented by two unsuccessful actors to wreak vengeance upon the whole profession.

"They asked, what can we do for revenge to show that we're mad?" he said. "What do actors hate most in the theater. They hate to memorize long lines. What do they hate most about radio. You have to get on and get off with split-second timing. What do they hate most about movies? Actors hate to act on marks for the camera.

"So, they invented television and said I dare you to act. You have to memorize a whole script every week. You have to get on the air and get off in a set time. You have to hit your mark. They took all the things that actors hate and put them together and called it television."

KARL MALDEN Actors Revenge?

MALDEN WAS only half kidding. On the stage and in films, he was an actor who submerged himself wholly in a role. He would not accept a part unless he had a month to study the script. He prepared three approaches to every character to give himself and the director a choice.

Now television, of course, grinds it out like so much sausage. As someone observed, "They don't want it good. They want it by Thursday."

Malden, who cut his acting teeth on the Stanislavsky method at the Actors Studio in New York, turned down series offers for years because he did not want to work in this environment. When a lucrative money offer finally forced him into it, he was acutely uncomfortable at first.

"I WAS A great one for demanding scripts three to four weeks before shooting," he said of the movies. "Now I'm back to finding out how much I do know about this business. I'm working on instinct.

"At first, I didn't know if I could do it. The big problem the first year was the scripts didn't come until a day or so before shooting. I was getting panicky. They told me to just learn that day's lines. But I couldn't. I have to learn the whole script. Now we're getting the scripts earlier. I have to work that way. Some people think it's silly, but it's my way."

Malden just a few days earlier had finished the filming for the series' second season and had moved from San Francisco back into his Brentwood home. He put in a few hours of gardening before meeting for a breakfast interview.

HE SAID, "One thing I've always hated is when you have four pages of dialogue and you learn that. All you can do is think, what's my next line. You have to know the story. You have to know the motivation. Why do I say that. Why do I come into this room? You look for the subplot.

"Once you have the truth of the scene you can go anywhere because it's fundamentally honest. After that you can decide how to make it interesting and exciting. I think any good actor works that way."

Malden was born Mladen Sekulovich 59 years ago in Chicago, but was raised in Gary, Ind., and worked for two years there in a steel mill as a "cinder snapper" at an open-hearth furnace. He soon began accompanying friends to the Goodman Theatre drama school in Chicago with the thought of learning to become a stage hand. He played professional basketball to pay his tuition.

One day the director suggested he take a small part in a production of Tolstoy's "Redemption."

HE BEGAN acting regularly after that. In New York, he changed his name to Malden, and got his big break as the aging bachelor who courts Blanche DuBois in "A Streetcar Named Desire." In the movie version he won the Academy Asward as best supporting actor in 1951.

Malden had always been a character actor. He hid his own personality behind a character.

"You can't do that week after week," he said. "I had to say, who is Karl Malden? I think 70 per cent of what you see on the screen today is Karl Malden. I never did that before."

Malden finally opted for television because good parts in films weren't being offered. He plays Lt. Mike Stone in "Streets of San Francisco."

"I WAS HAVING to go to Europe and once you have to do that it's the beginning of the end. "And the parts they were offering me I wouldn't take because of the nudity and the language. I'm a square. I'm old-fashioned. I'll do something to advance the plot but not for the sake of shock."

Malden said he made one firm decision about entering television. He said, "In the theater I started at the bottom of the ladder and worked as high as I could. In films I started at the bottom again. My agent and I decided that at this point in my career if I was going into television I would start at the top.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD

I've often wondered if a big star who is used to being lionized has trouble enjoying his or her own company. Do you enjoy your own company?—D. M., Colorado Springs, Colo.

● Yes, I do enjoy my own company, which obviously means that I take an inventory of myself quite regularly. I feel sorry for people who must be constantly entertained or be in the presence of groups or crowds. Being an indefatigable worker, moments alone are very precious to me—for reading books and improving my mind. That in itself is a great purge for my spirit.

FOR SEN. HUGH SCOTT (R-Pa.)

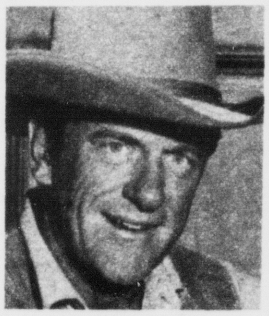
Why are you Republicans now beginning to support national health insurance?—A. Gaitely, Fernbank, Ohio

● America's health bill has doubled in eight years, more than tripled in 12 years and increased six-fold in 21 years. Without the benefit of some sort of national health-insurance program, health care will become an unbearable problem for Americans.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

In your early TV shows, you used to make jokes about really being a brunette. Are you a natural brunette?—Jeannie See, River Vale, N.J.

● No. As a child I was blonde. Later my hair turned light brown, which is really my natural color.



FOR JAMES ARNESS

I noticed that you were limping in one of your "Gunsmoke" segments. Was this part of the act, or did you injure your foot?—Mrs. Peggy Garside, Clearwater, Fla.

● You're very observant. My limp is a memento of the war and the Third Infantry's visit to Anzio. I do try to hide it, however.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

Every time we go to Las Vegas you seem to be playing there. Don't you get tired of living in hotels and not having a permanent home?—F. A. Lowry, Denver, Colo.

● I perform in Las Vegas about 12 weeks a year, and spend another three weeks in Reno. Yes, I did get tired of living in hotels; that's why I bought my first home—in Las Vegas. And the 40 weeks I'm away, I rent it to other entertainers—who are just as tired of hotel living as I was!

FOR ROD McKUEN

I understand you don't like organized religion, although you refer to God in much of your work. What do you have against churches?—J. B. Herman, Gillette, Wyo.

● I believe very strongly in God. However, much of so-called "organized religion" has let us down by not keeping up with man's changing spiritual and emotional needs. Few churches have taken realistic stands on birth control, women's rights, unfair sexual laws, the inequality of wealth in this country, and most particularly, man's need to be individual. We can't have it both ways—acknowledging the fatherhood of God without considering the brotherhood of man.

FOR CHUCK CONNORS, narrator of "The Thrill-Seekers"

Who was the most exciting thrill-seeker you have met and what was it he did?—John Little, Lewiston, Idaho

● I would say John Harding from Milwaukee, Wis., who calls himself "The Human Bomb." John encloses himself in a wooden coffin, 6½ x 2½ x 2½, with two sticks of TNT, and sets off the TNT, which blasts him out of the coffin and knocks him out. He is immediately given oxygen to be revived.

FOR JIM KIICK, Miami Dolphins' football star

When and why did people start to call Larry Csonka and you "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid"?—Tony Belich, Green Bay, Wis.

● We used to tell Bill Braucher, a sportswriter for The Miami Herald, about the funny things we did. Right after we had a good game against the Denver Broncos, he put the nickname on us. It was perfect for us—two guys out to have a good time no matter what the situation.

FOR MRS. BILLY GRAHAM

I notice your husband doesn't wear a wedding ring. Why?—F. L. Z., San Antonio, Texas

● Some men just don't like to wear rings, and I frankly never bought one for Bill.

FOR JOAN BLONDELL

I read that you were in vaudeville as a child. What was it like?—Larry Kline, Atlanta, Ga.

● Hard! When I was born, it was already going downhill. My parents knew it was dying, but I didn't. I was young and eager and happy. I thought every child grew up in the theater. Doing four or five shows a day, being in the theater from ten in the morning until 11 at night, was great. I thought it was a fine childhood.

What It's Like to Pitch to Hank Aaron

By His "Pigeons" and His Conquerors

By Larry Bortstein
FAMILY WEEKLY Sports Editor

Sometime shortly after the start of the 1974 season, Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves will send a ball screaming out of sight for the 714th home run of his career. This will tie him with Babe Ruth for the highest lifetime total in baseball history.

There seems little doubt that Aaron, 40, will surpass Ruth. And the anticipation of this event has been the biggest story of the "Hot Stove League" between the close of last season and the opening of this one. Not the least anxious are the pitchers, past and present, who have faced Aaron over the last 20 years.

FAMILY WEEKLY spoke to eight major-league hurlers, including two who have retired, and asked them to discuss their experiences against Aaron. Their comments serve as a guide to the pitchers and pitches Hank Aaron has seen come down from the mound at him during his long career.

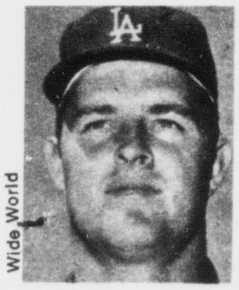
DON DRYSDALE

Now a broadcaster for the California Angels, Drysdale established a club victory record with 209 for the Dodgers in Brooklyn and Los Angeles, from 1956-69. Aaron's record against Drysdale: 17 homers.



Wide World

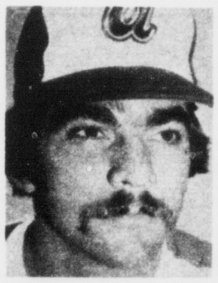
"Ever since a Braves' official came up with the figure a few years ago that I had given up more homers to Hank than anyone else, people have kidded me about it. I don't think that I have anything to be embarrassed about. I pitched in the league for 14 years, hardly ever missing a turn, and Hank played almost every game for the Braves. I was a control pitcher, and Hank waited out very few walks. So it figured I'd give up a fair amount of homers to him.

"The particular homer I remember best was one in Los Angeles that he hit so hard it curved around the foul pole into the fair part of the left-field stands before I could even look up to see where it had gone. He really belted that one! But when you face a hitter like that, you have to expect there'll be nights he'll hit everything you throw to him, including your glove."

GARY GENTRY

Gentry helped the New York Mets to the 1969 World Series title by winning 13 games as a major-league rookie. After four seasons with the Mets, Gentry, 27, was traded to Atlanta last season. Aaron's record against Gentry: four homers.

"It's better being Hank's teammate than having to pitch to him, believe me.



Most pitchers know the best way to keep Aaron from hitting the ball over the fence is to pitch him outside. There's no guarantee, of course. I mean, this guy has seen every pitch anyone could possibly throw, so you can't trick him. My strength is the fast ball inside, which I'll throw to everybody in a tight spot. I threw it to Hank, and I got him out with it sometimes, and he hit it some other times. But I figured I've got to go with the best pitch I've got. Any hitter can hit any pitch at any given time."

DON GULLETT

Only 23, lefty Don Gullett has been with the Cincinnati Reds for four years. In 1973 he helped his team win the National League's Western Division pennant with an 18-8 record. Aaron's record against Gullett: seven homers.

"Aaron has given me more trouble than any other power hitter. When we play Atlanta, the Braves tease Hank and say, 'Make sure you're ready to play – Gullett's pitching!' But I improved against him last year. He had three homers off me in 1971 and three in 1972. Last year he hit only one!

"Hank likes to hit against left-handers more than right-handers. [Only some left-handers, apparently. Not Curt Simmons, for instance – Ed.]. That's because he sees more balls inside against lefties. His philosophy seems to be that from the middle of the plate to the outside belongs to the pitcher, and from the middle to the inside is his.

"But, I'll tell you–he's hit every kind of pitch I can throw. The worst day I had against him was in 1971, when he had two homers and a double, and drove in all five runs the Braves scored. Guys have asked me why I don't just give him an intentional walk when he comes up. But I'm not afraid to throw him my best stuff. I throw him strikes. You can't just give up."

FERGUSON JENKINS

Jenkins will pitch for the Texas Rangers this year after eight years with the Chicago Cubs. The 6-5 right-hander won 20 or more games for six straight years, 1967-72. Aaron's homer record against Jenkins: three.

"I did better than average against Aaron. I think Hank didn't like to come up against me because of something I did to him a couple of years ago in Atlanta. We were leading 1-0 in the bottom of the seventh, and Hank led off for the Braves. In that kind of close game, there's only one thing on Hank's mind–to hit it out. I figured to myself, 'I've got to make him lose his concentration. I've got to throw him off stride.'

"Now Hank has this little ritual when he comes to bat–he holds the bat between his legs and puts on his batting helmet. Once he's in the batter's box, he doesn't like to step out. So I played a little game with him. Almost every time he got set to swing, I stepped off the mound. Once he tried to play along by stepping out of the box when I wanted to throw. But in the end he stayed in there and I struck him out on a curve. I think that teed him off. Whenever he faced me after that, he always looked to be in a hurry to get it over with."

Can your child read these words?

napkin	fuzzy	liquid	punch	camel
misty	chicken	velvet	whisper	zigzag

Your child will learn how to read these and more than 300 other words after working with the very first record of The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

Try out this Phonics Course FREE FOR TWO WEEKS with your child in your own home—without risking a penny. Mail the coupon below.

If your child is a poor reader, if he has not been able to keep up with his class in school—here is a way that you can help him. Many parents have seen their poor readers gain up to a full year's grade in reading skill in just six weeks with the Sound Way to Easy Reading.

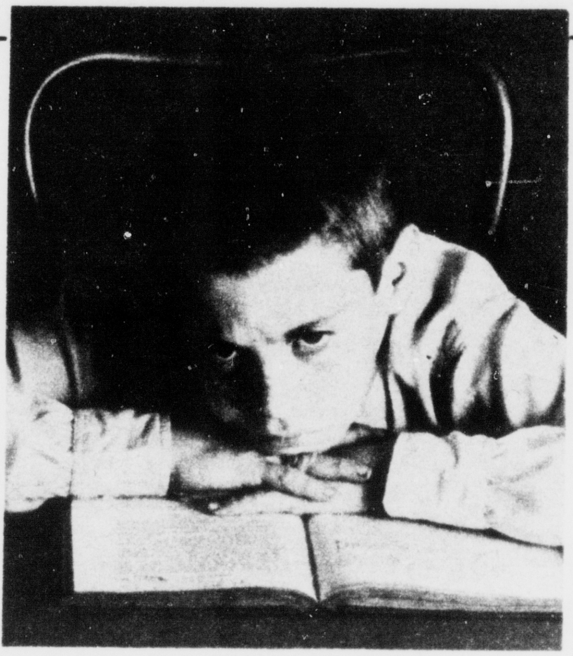
As soon as your child starts playing the records and using the charts of The Sound Way to Easy Reading you will know why it works so well. It takes the mystery out of learning to read because it teaches your child by the phonics method (the method by which most parents learned to read years ago).

Teaches with records

With this course your child discovers that letters have sounds. When he starts sounding out the letters he hears himself saying the word. He's reading!

The records drill him in the sounds of the 26 letters of the alphabet and their blends. By the time he completes the first record (about two weeks for the average child) he can read 300 words. After finishing all four records he has been taught 123 basic phonics sounds.

Once he knows these sounds he can read up to 85% of the words in the English language. It works for children of all ages—in the earliest grades and even in high school. Its records tell your child exactly what to do, so he can teach himself without any help from you.

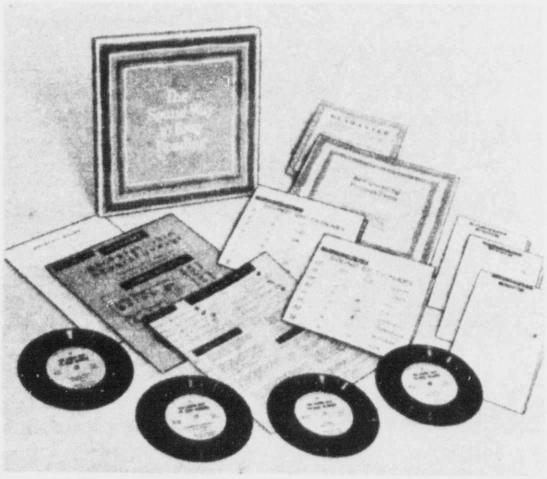


Tested and Proved

In a pilot study by university psychologists, children gained up to a full year's grade in oral reading skill after only 30 lessons with The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

A semester-long study involving 214 pupils in four Chicago schools proved that the classes given The Sound Way to Easy Reading showed marked improvement in reading and spelling over the control groups.

Don't think it's all your child's fault if he hasn't learned to read. Many of our brightest children are not able to grasp some of the current methods taught in most schools today. Many educators insist that at least 40% of our children must have formal training in phonics—that they will never master reading without it!



These are the records and self-quizzing cards that can help your child gain as much as a full year's grade in reading in just a few weeks.

Help Your Child Now

So don't wait for your poor reader to reach high school before coming to his aid. By starting your child on The Sound Way to Easy Reading now, you can change his entire attitude toward school—turn his sense of failure into the joy of success. Try it free for two weeks. You send no money—just mail coupon.

USED BY 150,000 PARENTS who send many letters like these:

Advanced two grades—"Larry was having a really hard time in second grade until he took your phonics course. Then, in two months, his grades went from D's and F's to A's and B's. I cannot give your course enough praise."
Mrs. Muriel Rich, Fairfax, Va.

Better marks—"At the end of his first semester in fourth grade, Gerald's highest mark was a D-minus. After working 6 weeks with the records his lowest mark was C."
Mrs. William Leger, Buffalo, S. Dak.

Four sons—"In twelve weeks, two of our boys brought up their reading grades from D to B. And our other two came up from D to C. I'll never get more for my money than I already have with your course."
Mr. John Gehde, Jr., Cassville, Wis.

IN 20,000 SCHOOLS
Teachers are highly enthusiastic

Recommends to parents—"We are using your course for remedial work in reading and phonics instruction. The children have been greatly helped. I recommend it to parents as a home-tutoring course for poor readers."
R. E. Pinson, Principal, Augusta, Ga.

A pleasure to hear my class read—"I am just delighted. In the last twelve weeks 22 of my 29 fourth grade pupils brought up their scores in silent reading. Their oral reading is so improved it's a pleasure to hear them now."
Mary L. Henderson, Crowley, La.

Hank Aaron

year-old left-hander, was traded to the Houston Astros over the winter. He has a career total of 180 victories. Aaron has hit 13 homers off Osteen.

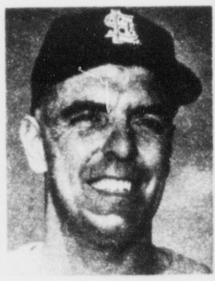
"I've given up more homers to Hank than any other active pitcher. But Hank hasn't hit any off me the last two seasons. That's because he's going more for home runs now, and against a pitcher like me, a man going for the fences is not likely to hit many.

"About the only time I remember Hank beating me in a game with a homer was in 1968, when he hit two off me in one game. One of them was with two men on, and that was the only one he's hit off me with more than one man on.

"Hank's probably hit more curve balls coming into him for homers than anything else I've thrown him. Some of those balls he's hit down the left-field line in Atlanta, one of the easier fences to reach in the league."

CURT SIMMONS

Simmons' major-league career spanned 21 seasons, 1947-67. The left-hander, who spent 12 years with the Philadelphia Phillies and six with the St. Louis Cardinals, won 193 games. Aaron calls Simmons "the toughest pitcher I've ever faced." Aaron's homer record against Simmons: seven.



Wide World

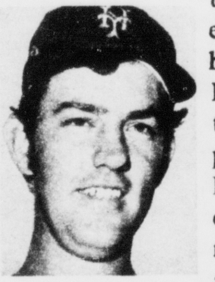
"When Hank calls me the toughest pitcher he's ever faced, that's a pretty high honor. I did have pretty good success against him. I embarrassed him a few times, but he got me a few times too. He hit one homer off me that I'll never forget – a heck of a line drive smack into dead center field.

"He says it was my slow curve that gave him trouble, but I think it was my motion. I had a herky-jerky motion with my legs and hips.

"Hank once thought he had found a way to pick up my motion. The Cardinals were playing a tie game against the Braves, and there was a man on first and two out in the eighth. Hank came up, and when the ball came in he took a step forward and a double hitch and hit the ball over the right-field fence. But the umpire didn't allow it. He said Hank had stepped out of the batter's box. There was a long argument, but of course Hank lost. I think he decided right then that there was no way he was going to solve hitting off my motion."

GEORGE STONE

Stone, a 27-year-old southpaw, helped the New York Mets to the National League pennant in 1973 with a 12-3 record, after five years with the Braves, where he won 43 games, many in relief. Aaron's record against Stone: two homers.



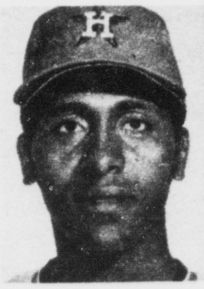
Wide World

"Because I was Hank's teammate, people thought I might be able to tell the other Met pitchers something about how to pitch to him. But no way. After the one game I pitched against the Braves last year, everyone had to admit I didn't have any secrets.

"It was a real hot and humid July day at Shea Stadium, and I felt myself getting pretty tired about the third inning. In the fourth, Hank came up with nobody on base and hit a change-up, low and outside. That was homer No. 1. Then in the sixth inning, with a man on, he hit a fast ball that was high and outside. That was homer No. 2. I don't think I gave up any other runs that day, but those were two of the hardest shots anyone has ever hit off me."

DON WILSON

A right-handed fast-ball specialist, Wilson, 29, has been with the Houston Astros since 1966. He has 93 major-league triumphs going into the 1974 season. Aaron's record against him: one homer.



"If I were as successful against everybody as I've been against Aaron, I'd be unbeatable. I guess Hank's only gotten about four hits off me in maybe 50 times at bat. His only homer was in 1971, and I was just coming off a sore arm when he hit it.

"What's my secret? Well, my fast ball moves a lot and takes off outside against right-handed hitters. Other guys on our club throw Aaron straight fast balls, and he eats them up. But he hasn't been able to handle my ball when it takes off on him.

"I faced Hank in his last time at bat in 1973, when he was trying to get one more homer to tie Babe Ruth. Dave Roberts started the game for us, and Hank got three straight singles off him. I came in late in the game, and Hank came up against me. He was really anxious to hit one out of the park. I figured he'd be looking for an outside fast ball, but I jammed him inside and he hit an easy pop-up. He was really mad!"

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

But I didn't start making big money until I did less – a lot less.

For example, this ad took about 2 hours to write. With a little luck, it should earn me 50, maybe a hundred thousand dollars.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more.

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you the world's most unusual guarantee?

And here it is: I won't even cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material.

That'll give you plenty of time to get it, look it over, try it out.

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

And I'm already going to give you the biggest bargain of your life.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K. – now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary – to prove that sending me the 10 dollars... which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied... is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $100,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid if off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it – cash.

I have 2 boats and a Cadillac. All paid for.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

And I'll show you just how I did it – the Lazy Man's Way – a secret that I've shared with just a few friends 'til now.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that – nothing more, nothing less – the results will be hard to believe. Remember – I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again – I guarantee it.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and an 8-cent stamp. But what if I'm right?

Joe, you may be full of beans, but what have I got to lose? Send me the Lazy Man's Way to Riches. But don't deposit my check or money order for 31 days after it's in the mail.

If I return your material – for any reason – within that time, return my uncashed check or money order to me. On that basis, here's my ten dollars.

☐ Please send Air Mail. I'm enclosing an extra dollar.

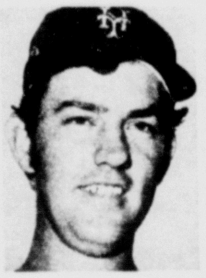
Hank came up, and when the ball came in he took a step forward and a double hitch and hit the ball over the right-field fence. But the umpire didn't allow it. He said Hank had stepped out of the batter's box. There was a long argument, but of course Hank lost. I think he decided right then that there was no way he was going to solve hitting off my motion."

GEORGE STONE

Stone, a 27-year-old southpaw, helped the New York Mets to the National League pennant in 1973 with a 12-3 record, after five years with the Braves, where he won 43 games, many in relief. Aaron's record against Stone: two homers.



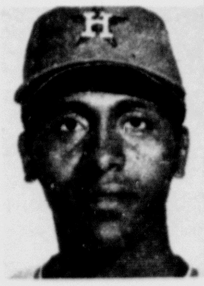
Wide World

"Because I was Hank's teammate, people thought I might be able to tell the other Met pitchers something about how to pitch to him. But no way. After the one game I pitched against the Braves last year, everyone had to admit I didn't have any secrets.

"It was a real hot and humid July day at Shea Stadium, and I felt myself getting pretty tired about the third inning. In the fourth, Hank came up with nobody on base and hit a change-up, low and outside. That was homer No. 1. Then in the sixth inning, with a man on, he hit a fast ball that was high and outside. That was homer No. 2. I don't think I gave up any other runs that day, but those were two of the hardest shots anyone has ever hit off me."

DON WILSON

A right-handed fast-ball specialist, Wilson, 29, has been with the Houston Astros since 1966. He has 93 major-league triumphs going into the 1974 season. Aaron's record against him: one homer.



"If I were as successful against everybody as I've been against Aaron, I'd be unbeatable. I guess Hank's only gotten about four hits off me in maybe 50 times at bat. His only homer was in 1971, and I was just coming off a sore arm when he hit it.

"What's my secret? Well, my fast ball moves a lot and takes off outside against right-handed hitters. Other guys on our club throw Aaron straight fast balls, and he eats them up. But he hasn't been able to handle my ball when it takes off on him.

"I faced Hank in his last time at bat in 1973, when he was trying to get one more homer to tie Babe Ruth. Dave Roberts started the game for us, and Hank got three straight singles off him. I came in late in the game, and Hank came up against me. He was really anxious to hit one out of the park. I figured he'd be looking for an outside fast ball, but I jammed him inside and he hit an easy pop-up. He was really mad!"

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

But I didn't start making big money until I did less—a lot less.

For example, this ad took about 2 hours to write. With a little luck, it should earn me 50, maybe a hundred thousand dollars.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more.

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you the world's most unusual guarantee?

And here it is: I won't even cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material.

That'll give you plenty of time to get it, look it over, try it out.

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

And I'm already going to give you the biggest bargain of your life.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K.—now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary—to prove that sending me the 10 dollars... which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied... is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $100,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid if off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it—cash.

I have 2 boats and a Cadillac. All paid for.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

And I'll show you just how I did it—the Lazy Man's Way—a secret that I've shared with just a few friends 'til now.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that—nothing more, nothing less— the results will be hard to believe. Remember—I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again—I guarantee it.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and an 8-cent stamp. But what if I'm right?

Joe, you may be full of beans, but what have I got to lose? Send me the Lazy Man's Way to Riches. But don't deposit my check or money order for 31 days after it's in the mail.

If I return your material – for any reason – within that time, return my uncashed check or money order to me. On that basis, here's my ten dollars.

☐ Please send Air Mail. I'm enclosing an extra dollar.

When I cut out this snapshot of myself, I really felt like cutting away some of my weight—178 pounds.

Now I'm 118 pounds, my husband wants to be first on the dance floor, instead of getting lost in the crowd.

I cheated on weekends and lost 60 pounds.

By Diane Gabriele—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

It was always on Sundays for me. Saturdays, too. I'm talking about the cheating I used to do when I finally decided to reduce. You see, no matter how strict I was with my diet Monday through Friday, I'd weaken on weekends. On Saturdays, visiting my folks, I would eat Pennsylvania Dutch goodies. And on Sundays with my husband's family, I would eat Italian-style. Homemade ravioli, spaghetti or maybe lasagna. Yet, believe it or not, I still went from 178 pounds down to 118 pounds. But I never could have done it just on my own. I had to have a plan for losing the weight—all 60 pounds of it.

I guess I should say here that I didn't have a weight problem until I began having children. My first three were born in just three years, so the pounds accumulated fast. And when I carried my fourth, my husband Jim was out of work five months, so I ate out of worry. Then when he went back on the job, I relaxed and stuffed myself because I was so happy.

The only person who thought I looked great was Jim's godfather. He believes in setting a table until it groans. So when we'd go over to his house, he'd say: "Eat. Eat. God bless you. You eat." Then he'd pat me and say: "You get nice and fat." It was a compliment he gave me with love, so I ate to show my thanks.

But there were others who sent darts right through me with their remarks. They all made me cry, yet each time I looked in a full-length mirror, I'd turn to my best side and refuse to see my bulges and heavy thighs.

Well, that's the way I kidded myself, until one day I borrowed one of Mom's dresses and couldn't fit into it. What a shock, since I always thought of her as bigger than I. But it was just the shaking up I needed to make me do something about losing.

Fortunately, I'd been reading the ads about people who had lost weight on the Ayds® plan, so I decided to try it. I bought a box of the vanilla carmel Ayds candies at the drug store. And since they contain vitamins and minerals, but no drugs, I wasn't afraid to eat them.

It was the month of June and two things made me want to take off weight by August. First, Jim's vacation. And second, a pair of hip huggers. He'd bought them for me in size 16, too small to fit. But I didn't want him to know, so each time Jim would ask me to try them on, I would just say, "Later...later," until he didn't ask me any more.

Well, once on the plan, I took one Ayds with a hot drink (tea for me) before each meal, and it actually helped stop my stomach growling. That doesn't sound nice, I know, but I had the kind of stomach that was always talking to me. But on the Ayds plan, I was able to cut down on what I ate and still feel satisfied.

For instance, at breakfast, I'd have one Ayds and tea, then a boiled egg and juice. At lunch, one Ayds, tea and maybe a tuna fish salad and fruit. Then at dinner, Ayds and tea followed by meat, a green vegetable, sometimes a potato and a salad. And in the evening, Ayds and tea, and perhaps a pretzel. There was no starving myself at all, and the weight came off—and off.

By August, when it was time for vacation, I'd lost 26 pounds on the Ayds plan and said to Jim: "See, my hip huggers fit!" When we got back home (to Norwood, Pa.) though, I learned the best thing of all. Thanks to the Ayds plan, I hadn't gained a pound. I'd controlled my weight even away from home.

That's when I decided to change the Ayds plan to suit my life. I stayed strict with myself on weekdays, but cheated a little on weekends. And it worked.

In the end, I lost 60 pounds on the Ayds plan and I'm the talk of every wedding and wake I go to. Not that I'm the one who brings up the subject. It's that everybody who sees me slim asks how I lost the weight and I have to tell them—the Ayds plan. And I'll tell you this: it's wonderful knowing that people notice just as much when you lose as when you gain.

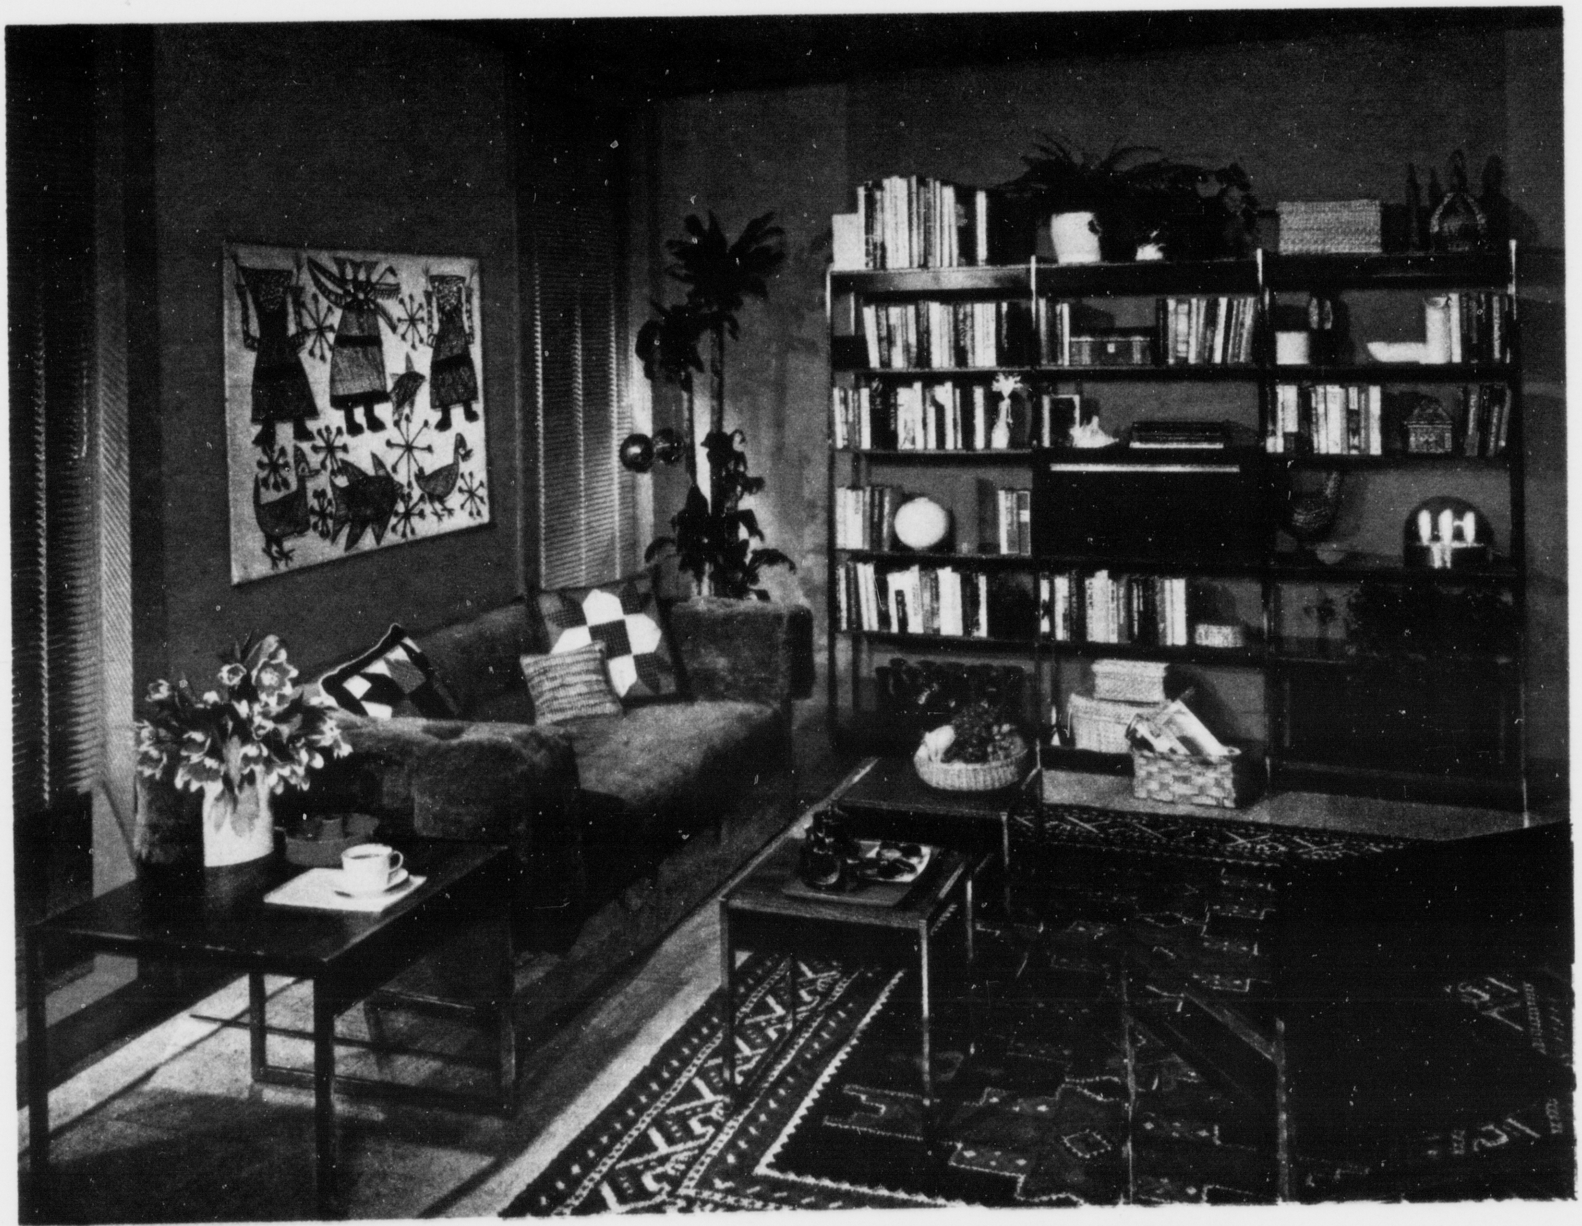
Dollar-Saving, Time-Saving, "You-Build-It" Furniture

(Take It Apart When You Move)



Why is this room smiling? It has the good sense to contain smart but inexpensive furniture assembled by its owner.

You Put It Together

A modest investment, a little elbow grease and, suddenly, a handsome room. The wall unit, tables and director's chair in this room, designed by Peggy Walker, are all from JS/Permaneer's new chrome-and-pecan ready-to-assemble furniture collection that provides an elegant, durable product, perfect for den or family room. The furniture, of pecan vinyl veneer laminated to a non-warpable particleboard base, is trimmed with chrome-finished metal frames for added strength and style. The furniture (wall unit, under $150; bunching tables, about $20 the pair; chair, about $25) is scratch, mar and moisture resistant, added assets in areas that get rough wear. Rug by Egetaepper. Blinds by Levolor.

An Oklahoma couple ordered a new dining set that the store said would be delivered in eight to ten weeks. A family in Florida decided to finish their basement and add a sofa and some chairs. Luckily, they were able to buy the furniture on sale—but it's been several weeks, and it still hasn't arrived.

What do these people have in common? You guessed it, the frustration of waiting for home furnishings—costly home furnishings—that never come!

Plant delays, trucking delays (greater now, due to the fuel shortage), all play a part. But consumers are clamoring for an end to excuses. Is there another answer?

There is, and it may shake the timbers of the whole industry. While covering the furniture market, we discovered there's a new look to "ready-to-assemble" furniture, the kind you take home and put together yourself!

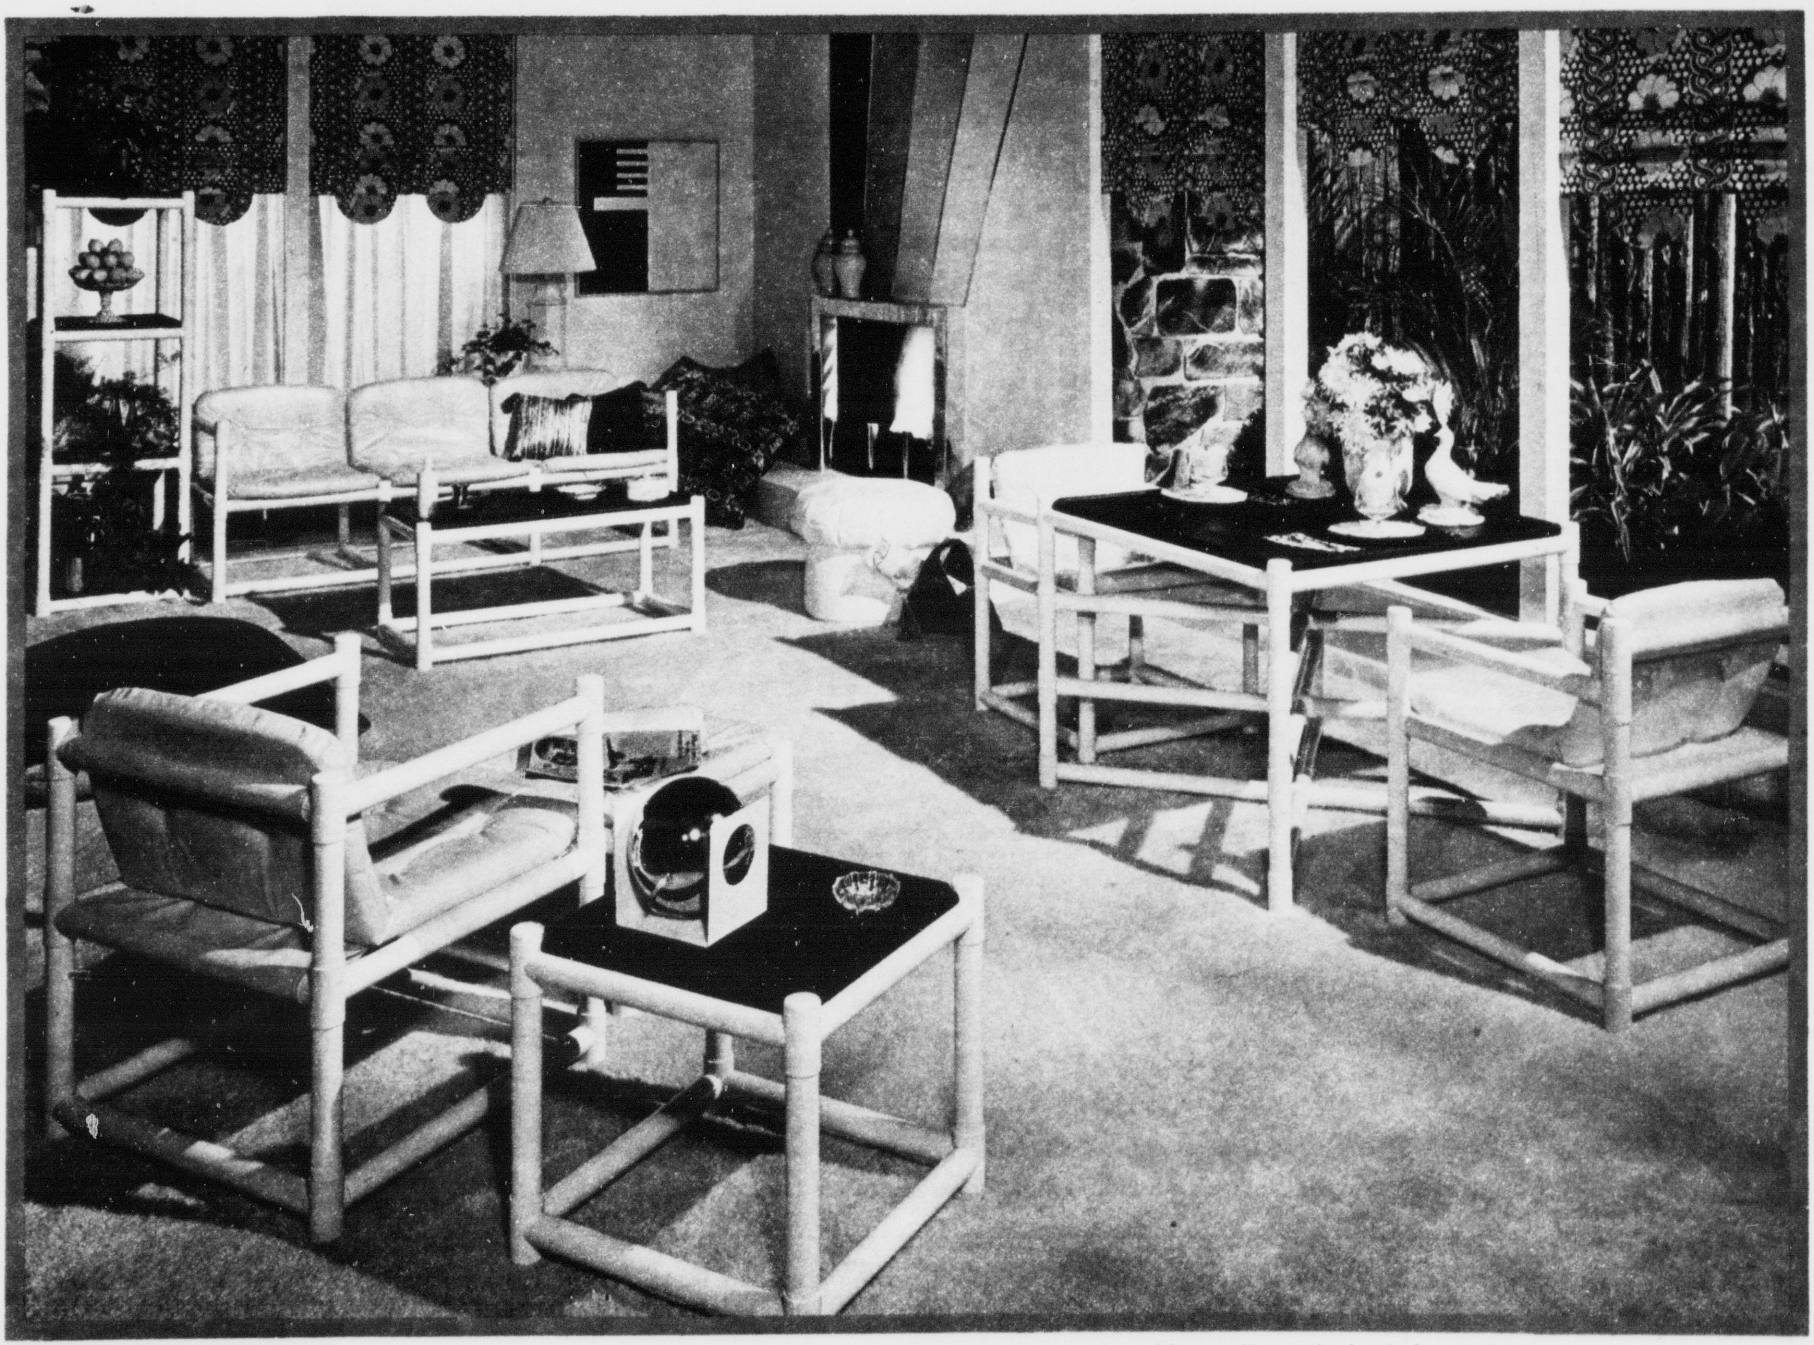
Master Carpentry With a Screwdriver appeared in the early '60's. But the merchandise was poor in design and the construction was flimsy. Within the last few years, however, major companies have been turning out really fine designs—in wood, plastic or vinyl-covered particleboard.

When you buy these new products, you do not pay for the hidden costs of assembly, warehouse storage and shipping, as you do with conventional furniture. The savings, therefore, can be from 20 to 40 percent.

Currently, firms are turning out ready-to-assemble wall units, desks, étagères, tables and cushioned pieces. Shipped in cartons to the store, they are easily transportable to your home. You provide the labor needed to assemble them. In most cases, all that's required is a screwdriver. And when you're done, there's little to suggest that the furniture didn't come from the store that way.

Because you can see it, buy it and use it within hours, economical ready-to-assemble furniture is ideal for college or country living, or as a gift to a friend. People who would most benefit from "instant" furniture might include couples furnishing their first apartment (or a child's room or vacation home) and the one-fifth of the population that moves each year (taking the furniture apart and reassembling it at the new destination could save in moving costs).

Good design, savings and on-the-spot availability are what ready-to-assemble furniture is all about. Although you may not want to rush out and buy it for every room in the house—it's a nice option to have.



Style and comfort abound in this room, which features a collection of furniture you set up with the tap of a rubber mallet or the heel of your shoe!

"Instant" Furniture for the Family Room

The warmth of solar yellow compensates for any energy crisis in this handsome room setting of sturdy ready-to-assemble modular furniture. The furniture (table tops are mar and stain resistant) is packaged in unassembled form, with each piece in a carry-out box the size of an ordinary suitcase. An entire room can be taken home in the trunk of a car and assembled in an afternoon. Furniture prices range from under $100 for the three-seater soft-vinyl sofa to less than $55 for the dining table, with complementary dining chairs under $35 each. The three-shelf étagère retails for under $40. Furniture by the Decorion division of the Stratford Company.

Just look at the wide range of recorded entertainment you have to choose from—not only the best and latest from Columbia's huge catalog... but also new releases and old favorites from A&M, Bell, Dunhill, Epic, MCA, Mercury, MGM, Parrot, United Artists and many, many other labels! And with this exclusive offer from the Columbia Record & Tape Club you may have any 12 of these stereo tapes or records for only $1.97.

To order your 12 records or tapes just fill in and mail the handy postpaid application card. When you receive your 12 selections, you will also receive a bill for only $1.97 plus a processing and postage charge. That's all you pay for your first 12 selections—there are no additional membership dues or fees for joining. (Be sure to indicate whether you want your 12 selections on cartridges, cassettes, reel-to-reel tapes or records.) In exchange...

You agree to buy 9 more selections (at regular Club prices) in the coming two years. That's right—you'll have two full years in which to buy just nine selections... so you are not obligated to buy a record or tape every month, or even every other month! And you may cancel your membership at any time after you've purchased your nine selections.

Your own charge account will be opened upon enrollment. The selections you order as a member will be mailed and billed at the regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $4.98 or $5.98—plus processing and postage. (Occasional special selections may be somewhat higher.)

You may accept or reject selections as follows: every four weeks (13 times a year) you will receive a new copy of the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest... plus hundreds of alternate selections from every field of music. In addition, about six times a year we will offer some special selections (usually at a discount off regular Club prices). A response card will always be enclosed with each magazine.

...if you do not want any selection offered, just mail the response card provided by the date specified

...if you want only the Selection of the Month for your musical interest, you need do nothing—it will be shipped to you automatically

...if you want any of the other selections offered, just order them on the response card and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make a decision. If for any reason you do not have 10 days in which to decide, you may return the regular selection at our expense and receive full credit for it.

You'll be eligible for our bonus plan upon completing your enrollment agreement—a plan which enables you to save at least 33% on all your future purchases. Here, indeed, is the most convenient way possible to build a record or tape library—at the greatest savings possible! So act now—mail the postpaid application card today while you can still take advantage of this special introductory offer from the Columbia Record & Tape Club!

This handsome, easy-to-assemble unit can be your library nook.

If Traditional Is Your Style

Curved moldings, framing an interlocking-geometric-block motif on the doors, highlight this three-section library wall unit from JS/Permaneer. A rich reddish-brown-walnut vinyl-veneer finish gives an added look of luxury to this ready-to-assemble furniture. The unit, complete with two sliding-door bottom cabinets, slanted magazine rack and seven shelves for books and display, retails for approximately $99.95.

Butcher block style is durable, has a "now" look.

The Butcher Block Look

Can you guess which pieces are the ones you assemble? Not the sofas, but the coffee table and the étagère from Kroehler's new do-it-yourself collection, all framed in gleaming chrome. The shelf and table tops, which closely resemble actual chopping blocks, are made from high-pressure plastic laminate. The étagère, under $120; the coffee table, under $70.

Which Decorating Style Is Right for You?

(Take This Easy Quiz and Find Out!)

By Marian Matthews

Which home-decorating period or environment is right for you—Early American, Mediterranean or Modern? This quiz may give you the answer:

1. Do you have a "thing" for interesting furniture designs such as (a) canopied beds, (b) carved wood edges for sofa and chair trim, or (c) the oversize rounded sofa and chair shapes of the thirties?

2. Do you feel more comfortable in a room that (a) has few accessories and no curtains, (b) has walls draped with tapestries and windows heavily curtained, or (c) has glass walls and/or many windows?

3. If someone gave you an expensive Oriental rug, would you (a) use it in a room with pine furniture, (b) sell it and buy a Morrocan rug, or (c) use it with upholstered pieces inspired by the forties?

4. Would your plan for redecorating the family room include (a) lots of maple furnishings, (b) furnishing it with wrought iron accessories, or (c) giving it a latex-foam padded sofa and chairs and several ottomans?

5. Suppose you had a choice of an accent chair—not upholstered. Would you choose (a) a sewing rocker, (b) a campaign chair, or (c) a "butterfly" canvas chair?

6. As a collector, do you concentrate on such items as (a) Sandwich glass and pistol-handled silver, (b) ornamental tiles, or (c) old radio cabinets and carnival glass?

7. Are you a pillow lover who (a) makes needlepoint and embroidered pillow covers for sofas and chairs, (b) favors crushed-velvet and colorful damask coverings, or (c) sits on the floor a lot on large cushions covered with denim, ticking or fake-fur fabrics?

8. Has renewed interest in the Orient influenced your plans for redecorating to the extent that you (a) plan an important use of the family-heirloom metal tea chest, (b) want to show off that parquet wood flooring with brilliant fringed rugs, or (c) plan to install wall-to-wall carpeting and then place an Oriental area rug over it?

9. If you found an old house with original pine planking over the fireplace, would you (a) let it remain intact, (b) rip it out and replace it with marble, or (c) eliminate the mantel completely?

10. If you had a choice of a wall hanging, would you choose (a) a primitive portrait painting, (b) a romantic court scene, or (c) a Picasso-type portrait?

HOW TO SCORE YOUR TYPE:

6 or more a's—EARLY AMERICAN
6 or more b's—MEDITERRANEAN
6 or more c's—MODERN (Furniture of the thirties and forties "Modern"? You bet! That's the style the designers are copying these days.)

If you have a combination of at least three in each category, you can count yourself as "eclectic." In other words, you like variety and enjoy mixing different period furnishings and accessories.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Can a Person's Name Shape His Destiny?

True or False: If you can trace your family name to some famous man or woman, you are likely to possess similarities in physique, personality, character and general disposition. (See number 1)

The most important word in any language—to most people—is their name. In this True-or-False quiz we name a few facts about names.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you can trace your family name to some famous man or woman, you are likely to possess similarities in physique, personality, character and general disposition.
2. There are exceptions, of course, but most parents, after racking their brains for a name for their child, settle the matter by flipping a coin or picking some name at random.
3. Whether a child's name is mother- or father-conferred provides an insight into the parents' relationship.
4. Women tend to be far more extreme than men in their likes and dislikes for people's names.
5. In most cases, a person's name has little influence on the formation of his character and general outlook.

ANSWERS

1. False—according to a study of human genetics, which has shown that a person's family name has no specific influence on his character or physical makeup. As one leading investigator observes in evaluating the results of the researchers: Although men do not usually change their names, their genes change in each generation, and do so at random. A grandson – although having the same name as his grandfather – could lose all genetic identity with his grandfather. Even a father-son relationship is linked by such complex lines that the son is genetically independent.

2. False—according to the findings of a recent study of the processes involved in the naming of children conducted by Dr. Mary V. Seeman, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Toronto. "Children," the specialist reports, "are named by parents who cherish a set of unconscious expectations for their newborn. These expectations find their symbolic expression in the form of a given name. The final choice, which may be a compromise between the current vogue, family tradition and the unconscious ideals and identifications of the parents, brands the child at birth with a tag that symbolizes what his culture and his family expect of him."

3. True. As one leading authority who has made a study of the subject observes, "Who chooses the name is always an interesting clue to decision-making within the family." It would expectably follow that children are seldom named by henpecked husbands or browbeaten wives. The best indication of a good relationship would be a mutual participation in the child-naming process.

4. True. In a study conducted at Ohio University, more than a thousand different personal names were rated by 1,380 men and women as to the degree they liked or disliked a name, considered it masculine or feminine, passive or active. Women were the most vehement in their opinions, the most extreme in their ratings—either giving a name a top rating on all points or registering extreme dislike.

5. False. A large-scale study of the psychological effect of personal names shows that "the name has a molding influence on the personality because the child learns to identify himself with the name." In effect, he is Robert, or Clifford, or Daniel, or Percy, or Elmer, or whatever. Other investigations have shown that, as early as 2000 B.C., the power of a proper name was such that it might determine the individual's destiny. FW

1. If you can trace your family name to some famous man or woman, you are likely to possess similarities in physique, personality, character and general disposition.

2. There are exceptions, of course, but most parents, after racking their brains for a name for their child, settle the matter by flipping a coin or picking some name at random.

3. Whether a child's name is mother- or father-conferred provides an insight into the parents' relationship.

4. Women tend to be far more extreme than men in their likes and dislikes for people's names.

5. In most cases, a person's name has little influence on the formation of his character and general outlook.

ANSWERS

1. False—according to a study of human genetics, which has shown that a person's family name has no specific influence on his character or physical makeup. As one leading investigator observes in evaluating the results of the researchers: Although men do not usually change their names, their genes change in each generation, and do so at random. A grandson – although having the same name as his grandfather – could lose all genetic identity with his grandfather. Even a father-son relationship is linked by such complex lines that the son is genetically independent.

2. False—according to the findings of a recent study of the processes involved in the naming of children conducted by Dr. Mary V. Seeman, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Toronto. "Children," the specialist reports, "are named by parents who cherish a set of unconscious expectations for their newborn. These expectations find their symbolic expression in the form of a given name. The final choice, which may be a compromise between the current vogue, family tradition and the unconscious ideals and identifications of the parents, brands the child at birth with a tag that symbolizes what his culture and his family expect of him."

3. True. As one leading authority who has made a study of the subject observes, "Who chooses the name is always an interesting clue to decision-making within the family." It would expectably follow that children are seldom named by henpecked husbands or browbeaten wives. The best indication of a good relationship would be a mutual participation in the child-naming process.

4. True. In a study conducted at Ohio University, more than a thousand different personal names were rated by 1,380 men and women as to the degree they liked or disliked a name, considered it masculine or feminine, passive or active. Women were the most vehement in their opinions, the most extreme in their ratings—either giving a name a top rating on all points or registering extreme dislike.

5. False. A large-scale study of the psychological effect of personal names shows that "the name has a molding influence on the personality because the child learns to identify himself with the name." In effect, he is Robert, or Clifford, or Daniel, or Percy, or Elmer, or whatever. Other investigations have shown that, as early as 2000 B.C., the power of a proper name was such that it might determine the individual's destiny. fw

ZOYSIA GRASS Plugs

Beautify "Problem" Lawns Where Ordinary Grasses Fail!

EVERY PLUG IS GUARANTEED TO GROW!

You invest in a sure thing with Zoysia Plugs! You're not spending money and time on a lawn that fades just when you want to enjoy it! And, you're not a "lawn-slave" —It stays a lush, rich green through droughts, weeds itself—chokes out crabgrass, needs less watering! In other words, you're liberated—free to go on vacation, play golf, revel on the beach! Summertime becomes funtime—not lawntime!

- Saves Time, Work & Money!
- Won't Winter-Kill . . . Survives 30° below zero!
- Won't Heat-Kill . . . Resists long dry spells!
- Never Needs Replacement!
- Thrives in 'Problem' Spots—Slopes & Bare Areas
- Resists Insects & Disease
- Needs Less Mowing, Less Care than ordinary lawn grass
- Chokes Out Crabgrass, Weeds
- Plug It In Without Ripping out your present grass

A PERENNIAL LAWN – PRACTICALLY INDESTRUCTIBLE!

Now you can own a green, hardy lawn – as luxurious as a resilient thick-pile broadloom carpet! And it's yours to enjoy without ever again raking the earth or planting a seed! Merely place the living pre-cut Zoysia Grass plugs into the ground and they'll flourish thicker and wider until they spread over your entire lawn! Once established, they become a deep-rooted "carpet" that withstands lively garden parties and children's play! With minimum mowing and watering, Zoysia thrives even on sandy or clay soil. Only following sharp frost will its color brown out, but it renews itself as green as ever in the spring! A true care-free perennial for every climate! Plant 3 square inch plugs 1-ft. apart. All instructions included.

When You Tell Your Child No, Are You Really Saying Maybe?

How Children React to Parents' "Double Messages"

By Dr. Helen De Rosis

Recently, a parent described an incident in which she asked her teenage son, for the umpteenth time, "When are you going to take out the garbage?" She was angry with him before she asked because she anticipated his refusal. So her question really gave him two messages: 1) I want you to do this. 2) I don't expect you will. Her son heard the second message more loudly than the first, and willingly fulfilled her expectation by continuing to watch TV. He also found her anger irritating and insulting and felt no desire to please her.

Elizabeth Gee

Saying no to children: "It's not mean mean. It's really only human. And that's all you are."

What drives this parent to address her son so equivocally? Certainly, one's view of oneself is revealed in the way you relate to those most closely associated with you. In business or with her friends, this woman sees herself as a successful, adequate person. She has no difficulty telling those she supervises what to do. And they do it. With her own supervisor, she can also state her position, and she can accept criticism and suggestions as she sees fit.

But at home, she finds that she cannot assert herself. She finds herself apologetic when she makes requests of her family. In a sense, she fears her power. She feels that she can be loved by her children only if she remains a self-effacing, "permissive" parent. The rule book says that children should make their own decisions. She doesn't question which ones they may make and which ones are her responsibility. She thinks firmness is meanness, so she meekly says, "Why don't you go see the dentist?" when her teenage son's teeth are rotting in his head, knowing that he'll go only when she makes the appointment.

Should she let his teeth fall out of his mouth? Maybe she should. But how many of you could stand to see that happen? So speak up. Say what you want to say. You have that right. Your child is not so fragile that he'll break if you come on directly, honestly and without malice.

The classic example of the multi-message is the saccharine-sweet question: "Don't you want to go to bed now?" It really says: 1) It's time for bed now. 2) I hope you won't give me any trouble tonight. 3) I don't expect you to go without the usual hassle. 4) I wish I didn't have to go through this every night. 5) I hope I'm kidding you as well as myself by asking you, because we both know I'm not really asking, I'm telling. 6) I'm trying to tell you to go to bed, but I can't do it. 7) I want you to take the responsibility and say you'll do it.

Of course, the child in this kind of bind is not able to assume the responsibility. Hearing Mother's voice, seeing her face, sensing her equivocal attitude—all routines familiar to him—Junior goes through his familiar routines of not wanting to go and of not getting ready. When he's eventually in bed, the charade continues, with his getting out of bed for the dozens of reasons children find to do so, and to which some parents acquiesce.

Double messages are the mark of the person who cannot state a position clearly. Such persons often don't know what their position is because they are busy trying to please all the time. They try desperately to avoid offending. These people fear they will incur displeasure by being too "mean" or "pushy." Displeasure, they feel, can lead to anger, anger to vindictiveness, vindictiveness to hurtfulness.

But the truth is that you are entitled to say no, if a no is indicated. Noes should be based on the givens of the situation. You might decide to withhold a reasonable and unequivocal no if your child wants something deeply. While inconvenient or inconsistent with your general policy, you might permit it.

For example, say your five-year-old girl is sitting with older brothers or sisters watching "Peter Pan" on TV and it's past her bedtime. If getting to bed is of crucial importance on that night (which it probably isn't), then she gets an unequivocal no when she asks to stay up to see the rest of the movie, which will run till 10:30. But if you see she wants to be with the family and see the rest of the movie, then that no might be withheld that one time.

Don't worry that she'll nag you to stay up again and again. She may try, but you can briefly explain to her that that was a special time and a special program. If you add that there might be other programs she can watch in the future, she may be quite satisfied.

At any rate, your success will depend on your unequivocal attitude. You have to believe what you say. Your decision for the moment must be unequivocal even though in your heart you may be vacillating. This is not easy to do when you've been a frequent user of double messages and the equivocal no. But practice. Think about it. Plan for occasions when you can use it. And then go ahead and act.

As far as other factors are concerned, such as convenience or appropriateness, you are entitled to use them in making your decisions. If you have been traveling with your family and everyone is tired and cranky, and the children want to go to just one more place, consider the consequences. It may seem very easy to stop in because you are so near. But if it will take another two hours, and your spouse has a headache, and everyone is hungry, then a firm no is indicated, regardless of the dissenting voices. Mean? Possibly. But it's not mean mean. It's really only human. And that's all you are.

In order to be able to convey one message at a time, you have to recognize first that two or more messages are being given. If that's what you want to do, fine. But if you think double messages are single messages, you have to find out that they are not. Here the process of identification may take place. "What am I saying that my child always bucks me? What am I doing that creates such a gap? How am I feeling when I ask my child a question? Am I feeling afraid? If so, why? What do I think will happen anyway if I come out and say, 'No, your mother and I don't want you to do that, period'?"

Answering these questions helps to identify the problem. Then you can decide if you want to, are able to, have the courage to give your offspring one straight message—unequivocally yet not unkindly, seriously yet not grimly, responsibly yet not rigidly.

What am I doing that creates such a gap? How am I feeling when I ask my child a question? Am I feeling afraid? If so, why? What do I think will happen anyway if I come out and say, 'No, your mother and I don't want you to do that, period'?"

Answering these questions helps to identify the problem. Then you can decide if you want to, are able to, have the courage to give your offspring one straight message—unequivocally yet not unkindly, seriously yet not grimly, responsibly yet not rigidly.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY WITH YOUR CREDIT CARDS

© 1974 Good News Publishing Co.

You may have more money in your pocket than you realize. A lot more. In fact, chances are that you have virtually thousands of dollars of "hidden money" in your wallet or purse right now.

Before you can spend this money you are going to have to do a little work. It will take you about 45 minutes. That is approximately how long it will take you to learn 31 legal ways to turn every credit card you have from an expense into a plastic gold mine.

This isn't exactly what the Credit Card Companies had in mind when they issued you your card. But please don't spend a lot of time feeling sorry for them. They have been making money from you from the first day you ever used any of your credit cards. Not only have they been making money from you, they have also been taking a healthy cut from the restaurants, stores, hotels, and other places where you use your cards. Credit card company profits over the years have amounted to millions, upon millions, upon millions of dollars.

So don't start feeling guilty just because you are about to learn how to use your credit cards to make yourself a few thousand extra dollars. Actually, you aren't going to be hurting the credit card companies anyway.

Just in case you are wondering, each of these money-making techniques is perfectly safe. They are also 100 per cent legal and they will not in any way endanger your credit or your standing with the Credit Card Companies. They are the result of a great deal of painstaking research. The results of this research have been nothing short of amazing. Here are some of the things you can do with your credit cards if you know how:

- You can earn interest (up to 7½ per cent) on money you have already spent.
- If you can memorize two short sentences you can flash your credit card and get sizeable discounts on even the things you pay cash for.
- You can use your credit cards to raise thousands of dollars in cash even if banks and finance companies refuse to give you a loan. And you can do this without anyone approving your credit or making a credit investigation.
- You can cut the interest rate you are paying on your credit card purchases by as much as 50 per cent.
- You can use your credit cards to keep your money at the same time you are spending it and earn interest on it all at the same time.
- You can use credit card company money for as long as 90 days without paying any interest at all.
- You can get up to 40 different credit cards and use each one of them for your own personal profit.

You can use your credit cards to do all this legally and safely. It's amazing but true! But here is something even more amazing. When you use these smart-money techniques you will actually be doing a favor for everyone involved including the Credit Card Companies themselves.

All of this is carefully explained in a brand new book titled, "How To Turn Plastic Into Gold." The book was written by Martin J. Meyer, one of the nation's foremost experts on making money and saving money for you—when you bank—when you buy—when you use your credit card. The book is easy to read, easy to understand, and inexpensive. You can get a copy if you hurry by sending your name and address and $6.95 in cash, check or money order payable to The Good News Publishing Co., 7576 Freedom Ave., N.W., Dept. 1076, North Canton, Ohio 44720. The book will be sent to you promptly by return mail.

If for any reason you should be dissatisfied, you can return the book and your $6.95 will be immediately refunded.

Plant of Life (OLIWA—KU—KAHAKAI)

Now, for those people who love and long for rare, unusual, exotic plants, The Plant of Life is an oddity of Nature, not only for its beauty but because of its ability to grow without soil or water in its early life.

Just imagine the thrill of growing a tropical plant in your home—a plant that grows and thrives on air—a plant that upon maturity can reach up to 6 feet and produce clustered cylindrical green and red flowers which dangle like jeweled lanterns.

A miracle of nature that grows forever. Each plant produces new plants. As many as 12 plants will root and grow and then produce new plants, over and over. An eternal process that is one of the oddities of nature.

Shipped directly to you from Hawaii by Air. Guaranteed to arrive in perfect condition. Only a limited supply. So order now. Money back guarantee.

QUICK SKILLET CHICKEN AND LIMAS

Put 3 tablespoons vegetable oil in large skillet. In the vegetable oil, heat ⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper and 1 clove garlic, split, until garlic is golden. Discard garlic. Brown 2½ lbs. chicken parts, turning to brown all sides. Stir in 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, 2 cans (1 lb. size) large lima beans, drained, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley or 1½ teaspoons parsley flakes and ½ cup sliced, pitted black olives (optional). Heat mixture to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer covered 25-30 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Blend 2 tablespoons flour with ½ cup water smoothly. Stir into chicken. Heat, stirring, until bubbly and thickened. Serve with a tossed green salad and crusty bread.

This exotic Plant of Life can grow anywhere in the home

3 PLANTS ONLY $3.00

AIR MAIL FREE!

Now, for those people who love and long for rare, unusual, exotic plants, The Plant of Life is an oddity of Nature, not only for its beauty but because of its ability to grow without soil or water in its early life.

Just imagine the thrill of growing a tropical plant in your home—a plant that grows and thrives on air—a plant that upon maturity can reach up to 6 feet and produce clustered cylindrical green and red flowers which dangle like jeweled lanterns.

A miracle of nature that grows forever. Each plant produces new plants. As many as 12 plants will root and grow and then produce new plants, over and over. An eternal process that is one of the oddities of nature.

Shipped directly to you from Hawaii by Air. Guaranteed to arrive in perfect condition. Only a limited supply. So order now. Money back guarantee.

BOBBY RIGGS
Should Billie Jean take up golf?

QUOTE: Shortly after World War II, Bobby Riggs took up golf and didn't touch a tennis racket for 16 years. Here's what he says about that period: "Since I took up golf so late, I never developed a really good, grooved swing. I was not a long driver—225 or 230 yards or so off the tee. But I did learn to play well around the greens. I had a 'touch' with a golf club, just as I had with a tennis racket. I was good at chipping—using a sand wedge that Sammy Snead gave me when I first started—and became a first-class putter. I was so good that sometimes tournament players such as Gary Player and Bruce Crampton asked me how I did it. My answer probably puzzled them: 'I just stare at the hole. I concentrate on getting the ball in the hole. . . . It just goes in.'" From "Court Hustler," an autobiography by Bobby Riggs with George McGann (J.B. Lippincott Company, $6.95). UNQUOTE.

Bips

If Humpty Dumpty had had one of these newfangled safety helmets maybe he could have been saved. Actually, these little ones are wearing a special type of helmet, designed by a German manufacturer, to prevent severe head injuries. The helmet is made of a plastic substance and is reasonably elastic so that it adjusts to any head size. Because of the way the headgear is designed, it protects the soft spots on a baby's head and still has open parts that don't inhibit hair growth. A word of caution, however: The helmet is not foolproof. You should still look after the baby .

CART WHEELS

I wonder when the supermarts
Will motorize their shopping carts.
Like golf carts, then, they can be ridden
And piloted where they are bidden.
The shopper need not push and shove—
The easy travel she will love,
As well as sudden bursts of speed
When there's an open stretch, and need.
Oh, shopping carts with built-in power
Will save the shopper hour on hour
And make the trip around such fun
She'll almost hate to have it done.
We only hope carts thus propelled
Will be well sirened, horned or belled
And also bumpered, for endurance . . .
The store, too, should have cart insurance.

As a safety precaution during nighttime jumps, skydiving club members wore flashing red and blue lights. One jumper parachuted to a lighted area he assumed to be his target, but which turned out to be a parking lot. Realizing his mistake, he walked up to a woman who'd witnessed his jump. His lights still flashing, he asked her where he was. The woman backed away as she replied shakily, "Earth!"

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

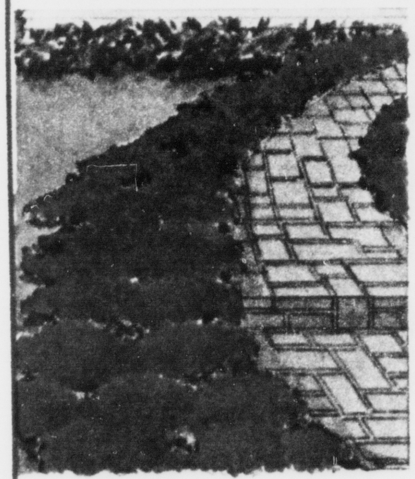
CREEPING RED SEDUM

- ✓ Grows in Any Soil
- ✓ Thrives in Sun or Partial Shade
- ✓ No Special Care Needed
- ✓ Extremely Hardy
- ✓ Brilliant Color
- ✓ Rich, long-lasting Foliage
- ✓ Neat, uniform Growth
- ✓ Quick, but Disciplined Spreading
- ✓ Guaranteed
- ✓ Inexpensive

You will receive hardy northern nursery grown plants carefully packaged to arrive in prime condition. An outstanding buy at less than 20¢ per plant in lots of two dozen!

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?



One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

Now is a Good Time to Plant RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

VOTING TOMORROW

28 Councilmen Will Be Picked

Voters in a dozen Marin and Southern Sonoma cities will go to the polls tomorrow to pick 28 city councilmen.

Four ballot measures also will be decided in the election. Residents of the Stinson Beach County Water District will vote on proposals to finance a sewage disposal system for the community. Petaluma voters will be offered bond issues to pay for a new library and park development.

San Rafael residents will not be voting because they live in a charter city that elects councilmen only in odd-numbered years. Petaluma likewise is a charter city and will not hold council elections.

All other cities in Marin, and Cotati and Rohnert Park in Southern Sonoma, will have council elections. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The Marin voters' ballots will be counted at the Marin County Civic Center by elections officer Peter C. Meyer and his staff, using small computers. The Southern Sonoma County ballots will be tallied at the county registrar of voters' office in Santa Rosa.

The Marin Living section of Saturday's Independent-Journal published information on all 62 council candidates in the 12 cities, their platforms and explanations of the ballot measures.

Here is what the voters will be deciding, by city or district:

BELVEDERE — Two council seats open with six candidates. There are 1,639 registered voters.

Gloomy Forecast For Motorists

As dawn came up today, the increasingly familiar sight of long lines of autos waiting for darkened service stations to open followed Sunday that featured perfect weather and virtually no gasoline sales.

The situation was described "as the worst since the energy shortage became severe five months ago," not only in much of California but also in many other states, according to United Press International.

The beginning of a new month, with fresh supplies of gasoline being delivered to dealers brought little hope, however, that March will be anything but gloomy for motorists.

Oil companies have cut their allocations to service stations down from last month — Shell Oil Co., for example, is only delivering 60 per cent of the gallonage to its customers that they ordered in March 1972. Standard Oil, however, has announced a 90 per cent allocation.

(All company allocations are based on the amounts of fuel that were sold in the same month in 1972.)

Mistrial Is Denied For Mitchell, Stans

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal Judge Lee P. Gagliardi today denied a mistrial in the Mitchell-Stans case, and defense attorneys in their opening statements portrayed the two former powerful figures in the Nixon administration as men of high character who had contributed their lives to public service.

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans are accused of using their political influence to try to impede a major federal investigation of the fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco in exchange for his secret $200,000 contribution to the Nixon 1972 campaign.

Mitchell's attorney, Peter Fleming Jr., told the jury of eight men and four women that the evidence would show "there's not a single speck, fragment, of evidence that John Mitchell did anything to fix, to stop, to influence an investigation of Robert Vesco."

He said Mitchell did not even know Vesco and added: "Would this man with his background with a lifetime of hard work, public servicce, fix a case of a man he didn't even know?"

Stan's attorney, Walter J. Bonner, told the jury that Stans would take the witness chair in his own defense. Fleming said nothing about Mitchell taking the stand.

In ruling against the mistrial motion made by the defense Friday, Gagliardi said he had concluded that the jury could not have drawn an inference of guilt from the opening statement Friday of prosecutor James. W. Rayhill.

The judge said that the jury had been amply instructed on the fact that an indictment is merely an accusation and that all defendants stand innocent unless proven guilty.

Only 19 Candidates Have Filed Of 67 Who Have Announced

Only 19 of the 67 announced candidates in the June 4 primary election have filed nomination papers so far in Marin and Sonoma races.

Of the 30 congressional, legislative, county, district and Board of Equalization seats at stake, the only official contest to date is for the Democratic nomination in the fifth Congressional District.

Filing closes at 5 p.m. Friday in the county elections office. The only exception will be an extension to March 13 to file for local offices for which incumbents do not file. Friday also is the deadline to file for county central committees for the Democratic, Republican, Peace and Freedom and American Independent parties.

Also on the ballot will be contenders for U.S. Senate, governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, controller, treasurer, attorney general and state superintendent of schools.

New this year is a requirement that candidates for all state offices and county supervisor file statements disclosing their income and assets.

In Sonoma, the only candidate filing for county supervisor in the Second District is William M. Kortum of Petaluma, a veterinarian. Incumbent Philip L. Joerger of Petaluma has announced he will seek reelection. Rohnert Park City Councilman Louis G. Beary, a plastering contractor, also announced he will challenge Joerger.

Sonoma County Sheriff Donald Striepeke of Sebastopol and County Clerk Eugene D. Williams of Petaluma have filed for reelection, and are unopposed.

In the Fifth Congressional District, the longtime incumbent William S. Mailliard, a Republican, is not seeking re-

Will Rogers Writings To Run In I-J

Will Rogers is back!

The pithy paragraphs of America's best-loved humorist of the 20th Century begin appearing today on the Independent-Journal editorial page.

Will Rogers' daily column was featured in hundreds of newspapers in the years before he was killed in an Alaskan airplane crash on Aug. 15, 1935.

Now Bryan Sterling has assembled bits from Rogers' writings which, although written as comments on the news of an earlier generation, fit as well the news of today.

They will appear Mondays through Fridays on the I-J editorial page under the once-familiar headline "Will Rogers Says."

Nixon Standing Behind Haldeman Payoff Story

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon stands by statements last summer supporting testimony by his former top aide, H.R. Haldeman, regarding payments of hush money to the original Watergate defendants, a White House spokesman said today.

Testimony by Haldeman before the Senate Watergate committee in which he quoted Nixon as saying payment of such money would be wrong, was specifically listed as a lie in an indictment handed up Friday against the former White House chief of staff.

Responding to questions from reporters, deputy presidential press secretary Gerald L. Warren said today the President stands by statements at an Aug. 22 news conference in which Nixon said Haldeman's version of the meeting was correct.

Warren also said Nixon had no intention of trying to keep U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ,from turning over a secret grand jury report to the House Judiciary Committee if he decides to do so.

It was not known whether Sirica had read the report—handed him at the same time as the indictments of seven former Nixon associates—or whether he had decided on the grand jury's request to turn it over to the Judiciary Committee considering Nixon's impeachment.

The sealed report is believed to detail the grand jury's views on the President's involvement, if any, in the Watergate cover-up.

Sirica returned today from a weekend out of town and one of his aides said there would be "no action on Watergate" today.

Mailliard To Resign Tomorrow

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, announced today he will resign from Congress at noon tomorrow when he is sworn in here as amabassador to the Organization of American States.

The governor will have seven days to call a special election to fill the seat until next January. He reportedly will consolidate the special election with the June 4 primary.

Mailliard, who has represented Marin since 1968, has been in Congress since 1952.

Sabotage Suspected In Worst Air Crash

345 Dead In Turk Disaster

PARIS (UPI) — Teams of French, Turkish and American aviation experts today picked through the wreckage of a Turkish Airlines DC10 and listened to flight recordings to determine if a bomb brought down the giant jetliner yesterday, killing all 345 persons aboard in history's worst air disaster.

Orly airport sources disclosed a preliminary report said an explosion may have ripped through the wide-bodied American-built plane before it plunged into a forest north of Paris, minutes after taking off for London.

Officials said the majority of the passengers were British—perhaps as many as 200. There were 49 Japanese, about 15 Turks, four Americans and some French.

"All possibilities are being considered, including sabotage," a police spokesman said.

In Ankara, Turkish airline pilots issued a statement saying the crash—which took the lives of at least 334 passengers and 11 crew—was the work of saboteurs.

Turkey's Communications Minister Ferda Gulley said he could not rule out sabotage. Turkish Premier Bulent Evecit said: "At present I cannot say whether the plane was sabotaged or not."

The hijacking of a British Airways jetliner in Beirut by two Arab guerrillas yesterday also led to speculation that the $20 million DC10 was sabotaged. The hijackers set the British VC10 afire after releasing all 102 passengers and crew at Amsterdam airport.

Turkish Airlines sources said Arab commandos had planned to sabotage a British Airways jet scheduled to fly from Paris to London.

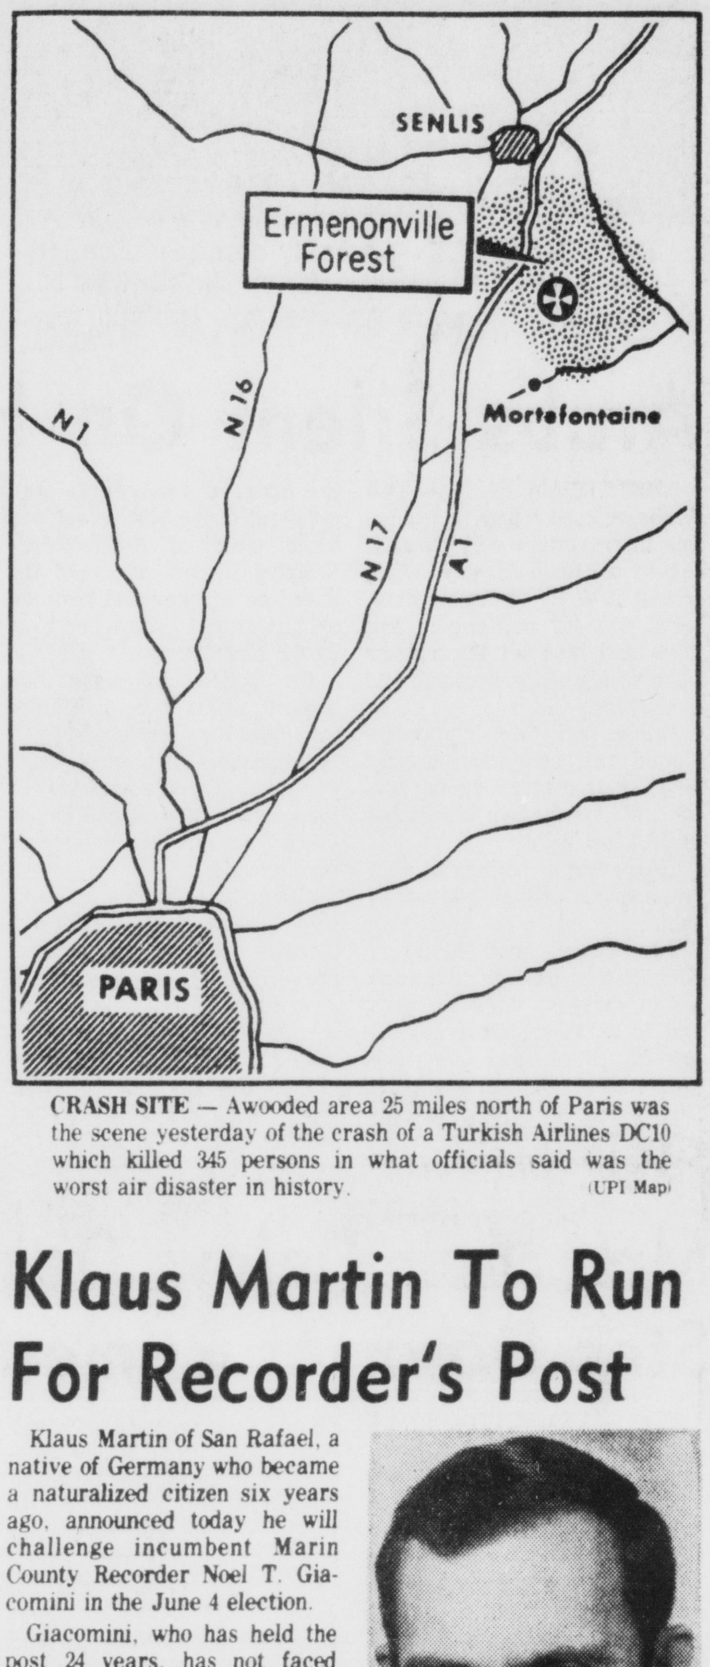
Orly sources said the commandos may have been among the 216 persons transferred to the Istanbul-London flight in Paris after two British flights were canceled by a London airport strike.

Orly sources said security officials had searched the luggage of all passengers except the 216 who were transferred. The officials only searched the hand carried bags of the added travelers.

French airport sources said crash specialists prepared a report for Orly airport director Gilbert Dreyfus, who is leading the inquiry. "The report states that the possibility of an explosion is supported by an important number of them," they said.

France's secretary of state for transport, Aymar AchilleFould, said: "Since some bodies were discovered six miles from the crash, it might seem the explosion of the plane took place in flight."

French newspapers said the scattering of bodies at such a distance only could have been caused by an explosion.



CRASH SITE — Awooded area 25 miles north of Paris was the scene yesterday of the crash of a Turkish Airlines DC10 which killed 345 persons in what officials said was the worst air disaster in history.

Klaus Martin To Run For Recorder's Post

Klaus Martin of San Rafael, a native of Germany who became a naturalized citizen six years ago, announced today he will challenge incumbent Marin County Recorder Noel T. Giacomini in the June 4 election.

Giacomini, who has held the post 24 years, has not faced opposition in the last five elections.

"I believe in the American political system," Martin said in announcing his candidacy, "and I wanted to become involved. I decided the best way would be to run for a nonpartisan countywide office. I chose to challenge the incumbent recorder because he has run unopposed for five terms."

Martin said he thinks "it is more democratic and more American to give voters a choice of candidates for every office on the ballot.

Martin added the office is "primarily one of administrative duties" which he feels capable of handling.

Martin, who is 32, is a draftsman and carpenter.

He was born in Breslau, Germany,and grew up in Lingen, Germany.

He studied at a school similar to an American junior college, graduating with skills as a brick mason and architectural draftsman. He served three years in the German Navy under the direction of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

It was while working with American servicemen that Martin decided he should travel to America. He came to Marin 12 years ago, following some of his relatives already settled here.

Martin could not speak English when he first came to the county, but he found a job as a brick mason and studied English at night classes at the College of Marin.

KLAUS MARTIN
Recorder candidate

In 1965 he enrolled at Heald's Engineering College in San Francisco and earned a degree as a structural draftsman.

Martin is a member of Local 35 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. He is a delegate to the Bay District Council of Carpenters and to the Building and Construction Trades Council of Marin County.

The candidate and his wife, Joyce, and their daughter, Karin, live at 1452 Lincoln Avenue.

HIJACKED JET — A badly damaged British Airways VC-10 jetliner sits on the runway at Schipoli Airport in Amsterdam, Holland following an aborted hijack attempt to by Arab guerrillas yesterday.

(UPI Telephoto)

Arabs Silent On Hijack Reasons

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — Two Arabs refused today to tell police interrogators why they hijacked a British Airways VC10, forced it to fly to Amsterdam, freed the 102 passengers and crew and then set the airliner afire with whisky, perfume and explosives.

Police said they had questioned the two continuously since their capture on the tarmac of Amsterdam's Schiphol airport last night.

"They told us nothing at all," an airport police spokesman said.

Two young Arab hijackers seized the British Airways VC10, carrying 92 passengers and 10 crewmen, yesterday afternoon 90 minutes after the four-engine jetliner took off from Beirut on a flight to London.

Three hours later, the guerrillas ordered passengers and crew out of the blue, silver and white plane at Amsterdam's Schiphol airport and used the duty-free whiskey and perfume aboard as fuel to burn and blow up the aircraft.

The police spokesman said airport police had questioned the hijackers until midnight. State police then took them away to a place "somewhere in the country safe behind locked doors" for further interrogation, he said.

Although the hijackers spoke only broken English with authorities, police "had the impression they were good in English but preferred to keep their mouths shut," he said.

When the Arabs left the plane, the spokesman said, "they took a terrible risk by not keeping any of the passengers as hostages. Sharpshooters sitting in armored cars had their fingers on the trigger."

A police officer "unwittingly kept them from firing by walking toward the hijackers with his hands up," he said.

The officer persuaded the skyjackers to give up their ammunition, he said.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said the case "is now in the hands of the public prosecutor of the city of Haarlem under whose judicial authority the airport is."

All the passengers as well as the two commandos slid to safety down the plane's emergency chutes before the whiskey-perfume blaze touched off plastic explosives left behind in the aircraft.

Authorities said the interior of the plane was badly damaged by the fire and explosions, but the jet was not expected to be a total loss.

The two hijackers, who identified themselves as Abu Said and Abu Ali, members of an Arab youth organization, were taken into custody when they slid down the chute after the passengers. They apparently had made no ransom demands.

The drama aboard the plane, which had stopped in Beirut on a trip from Bombay to London, began just after lunch was served. Two men with guns suddenly ran forward through the jet.

"I got that sinking feeling right then that there was going to be a hijack and then it all began," Mrs. Mozelle Holden of Houston, Tex., said.

Pilot Colin Harrison, 51, said, "Two men rushed in. They brandished guns and hand grenades and ordered me to leave the flight deck and go into the cabin."

"One of the gunmen stayed behind on the flight deck keeping the co-pilot under his control and the other one accompanied me into the cabin and then went about his own job, like putting down the explosives," he said.

Mrs. Meir Delays Decision To Step Down As Prime Minister

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir today delayed plans to announce her resignation formally and political sources said she may either be reconsidering her decision to step down or searching for a suitable replacement.

Mrs. Meir had planned to tell President Ephraim Katzir at 11:30 a.m. that she was giving up her unsuccessful efforts to form a minority government. The meeting was at first postponed to 5 p.m., then to 7 p.m. as she continued talks with party colleagues pleading with her to remain in office.

"The postponement has led to speculation that she may be reconsidering her decision," a political source said. "She's meeting with various people at the moment."

Mrs. Meir announced her decision to step down last night at a meeting of her Labor party.

The decision by the 75-year-old grandmother put the Jewish state on the brink of new elections, political sources said, and opened the possibility of a new coalition including rightwing factions opposed to Israel's postwar negotiations with the Arabs.

Sources in the National Religious party (NRP), which has refused to rejoin Mrs. Meir's government in a dispute over religious law, said the postponement could mean she is trying to find a new candidate to replace her as prime minister.

The newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said Mrs. Meir might be approaching other members of her Labor party to form a government, including deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon, Foreign Minister Abba Eban or Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir.

Allon conferred with Mrs. Meir for several hours during the morning.

"There's no doubt that she can make the best prime minister in these days," Allon said on emerging from the talks. "We shall do our best to convince her to change her mind."

Asked if Mrs. Meir still planned to resign by returning her government-forming mandate to Katzir, Allon said, "I suspect that yes, she will, but I don't know if the president is obligated to accept it."

Mrs. Meir stunned her Labor party leaders yesterday, breaking up a tempestuous political discussion about a new government by announcing her plans to step down.

"After what I heard, all this bitterness, I will take my mandate to the president and ask that someone else will take my place," she said.

The decision—if she sticks to it—would put an end to Mrs. Meir's five years as leader of Israel. She would stay on as caretaker prime minister until a new government was chosen.

Political analysts predicted either new elections or the creation of a broad coalition government, including the right wing Likud bloc if the 75-year-old grandmother turns down demands from supporters from her to stay on.

SUPPLEMENT
THE PERFECT WORD
Just for fun, we looked up the word "supplement" in a Webster's dictionary. And discovered it's the ideal word for vitamin and mineral products and the act of taking them. For example: "A supplying of what is lacking . . . or what is needed." "That which is added to (something) to make good its deficiencies, correct its errors or provide special features." That which adds "a finishing touch."
Right on target, we'd say! And may we suggest that you make certain of taking those precious supplements with meals, always. The fats, proteins and carbohydrates help your body use the extra nutrients efficiently. But if they're swallowed between meals, the body may eliminate them too quickly. (One exception could be taking vitamin C at frequent intervals during stress conditions, as many physicians prescribe.)

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Leone Readies Premier Choice

ROME (UPI) — President Giovanni Leone today began the ritualistic two days of consultations prior to selecting a new Italian premier — probably outgoing Premier Mariano Rumor who resigned Saturday in the midst of economic chaos and an oil scandal.

Leone

Leone conferred for half an hour each with two former presidents and had a day of meetings scheduled with former premiers and senate and chamber of deputy leaders to form Italy's 36th government since the fall of Fascism.

The situation was complicated in this Catholic country because Rumor set a May 12 date for a national referendum on divorce which political sources said could make forming a new government more difficult.

Officers Held

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Dissident sailors at the Red Sea naval base of Massawa held several dozen officers prisoner today despite a major concession by Emperor Haile Selassie, who fired his grandson as navy commander, diplomatic sources said.

University students in Addis Ababa held a meeting and said they were unhappy with the newly announced government. Trade unions also threatened a general strike.

Elsewhere, Ethiopia was quiet as the country's new partially completed cabinet began its task of restoring law and order after a week of military unrest.

The sources said the sailors, who joined army units in the rebellion last week, continued to hold Massawa, headquarters of the 1,700-man navy, and were keeping some 40 officers in detention.

Border Clash

TEHRAN (UPI) — Iraqi and Iranian troops exchanged artillery and machine gun fire today in a border clash west of Tehran, the government news agency Paras said.

The agency said Iranian border guards replied to "heavy firing" by Iraqi troops at the western border posts of Zeinal Khosh, Tankab, Kohneh, Amineh, Rza Abad and Khan Leila.

The fighting continued throughout the morning and early afternoon but there were no reports of casualties as yet, the agency said.

Reza Abad was the scene of border clashes between the two countries last month that took more than a hundred casualties on both sides.

Pilots' Remains

SAIGON (UPI) — The remains of 12 U.S. servicemen who died in Hanoi prison camps will be returned to their families this week, a spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation in Saigon said today.

"We hope this is a first step in accounting for all missing in action in North Vietnam and repatriation of all remains," an American spokesman said.

The official said there were 430 Americans missing in North Vietnam, about 300 in Laos and another 360 in Viet Cong controlled areas in South Vietnam.

The remains of the 12 pilots who died in the so-called "Hanoi Hilton" will be flown out of Gia Lam airport, near Hanoi, Wednesday to the U.S. Central Identification Laboratory at Samaesan, Thailand. The Pentagon presumably will release the names after next of kin are notified.

Lost Balloonist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Relatives of missing balloonist Thomas Gatch, saying they believe the bachelor adventurer has survived 11 days adrift at sea, have called for further searches of the mid-Atlantic Ocean by military aircraft.

A day-long search by two Navy jets was concluded Saturday with no sign of Gatch reported, and a Pentagon spokesman said a decision was expected today on further efforts to locate the 48-year-old Army reserve colonel.

"We wish it (the search) would continue," Jocklyn Armstrong of New York, Gatch's niece, said last night. "We're very concerned, and we do hope more can be done.

Fighter Crash

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A Cambodian Air Force T28 fighter crashed on takeoff from Pochentong Air Force Base today, killing the pilot and a young boy on the ground.

The plane's four napalm bombs exploded on impact, sending flames racing through houses northeast of the airport, which is four miles from Phnom Penh.

In addition to the fatalities, an elderly woman was injured and four homes destroyed. The cause of the crash was not immediately known.

Landmine Blast

BELFAST (UPI) — A landmine blast near Aughnacloy, County Tyrone, close to the Irish border, slightly injured a British soldier today, the army said.

Two other landmines in County Tyrone during the weekend killed a militiaman of the Ulster Defense Regiment and wounded seven other part-time soldiers.

Brandt Setback

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democratic party has suffered a sharp setback in the first of four key state elections, losing an absolute majority in one of its traditional strongholds.

Final returns in yesterday's election gave the Social Democrats only 44.9 per cent of the vote in balloting for the Hamburg state legislature compared to 55.3 per cent four years ago.

The opposition Christian Democrats increased their vote in the election from 32.8 to 40.6 per cent, emphasizing Brandt's political difficulties.

Foreign Minister Walter Scheel's Free Democratic party, a governing partner of Brandt's Social Democrats, increased its strength, however, from 7.1 to 10.9 per cent, keeping the coalition in control of the state legislature.

AMC Adds Second Auto Plant Shift

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. today expanded its small car output with 1,500 new workers while its larger competitors idled nearly 53,000 workers at big car plants for the entire week.

The one-week furloughs at General Motors and Ford are in addition to more than 100,000 U.S. auto workers who have lost their jobs indefinitely in the industry because of slumping new car sales.

Industry statisticians today were tallying up the sales results for February. The figures, when they're released tomorrow, will show February sales off about 35 per cent from last year's record for the fifth straight monthly decline.

The industry entered March with 1,735,000 unsold cars, enough to last 76 days at current sales rates. At this time last year, the inventory was almost as great, but sales were hitting a record pace and the inventory was equal to a 51-day supply.

AMC's stockpile of compact Hornets and subcompact Gremlins remained low, one reason for stepping up production from 850 cars a day to 1,100 a day. The increase created 1,500 new jobs for a second shift at AMC's Kenosha, Wis. body plant.

In sharp contrast were the 53,000 workers idled at 12 GM and Ford assembly plants that were either closed or put on reduced workloads and an additional four manufacturing plants.

GM, which suffered a 47 per cent production decline in February because its big cars aren't selling in the face of gasoline shortages, furloughed 46,000 workers this week while Ford idled 7,000. Chrysler said all of its assembly plants would operate normally this week although shutdowns are slated for two big car plants later this month.

Egger Says Ad 'Political Smear'

Fairfax Town Councilman Frank J. Egger, candidate for relection in tomorrow's municipal election, today described as a "malicious, intentional political smear" an advertisement attacking him in Saturday's Independent-Journal.

Egger noted that the full page ad entitled "Watergate West" was placed by Edward T. Duncan, who signed the candidate nominating papers filed by Fairfax Councilman Robert R. Souza, who is also making a bid for reelection tomorrow.

"I'm quite upset," Egger declared. "The ad contained a number of half-truths, innuendos, and errors of fact."

The advertisement placed by Duncan attacked both Egger and Mayor E. Ross Parkerson, erroneously describing Parkerson as being "regularly absent" from council meetings and charging Egger with a "consistent lack of integrity."

Duncan signed the ad as a "representative of concerned Fairfax merchants and businessmen," saying that names of participating sponsors of the ad were available on request.

Egger said he tried today to place a full page rebuttal advertisment in the I-J, but was unable to because of advertising deadlines and lack of time for ad production.

Egger said he would have placed the following political endorsement on a full page of today's I-J had he been able to:

"In response to Saturday's advertisement in the Independent-Journal entitled Watergate West:

"This advertisement, paid for by Edward T. Duncan, nominator of candidate Robert R. Souza, maliciously and intentionally smeared two honest and dedicated councilmen. It is a classic example of the mud slinging politics that the Town of Fairfax does not deserve or want. For example, when a request was made to examine the alleged list of participating 'merchants and businessmen' sponsoring his advertisement, Edward T. Duncan replied that the list was unavailable.

"As former mayors of the town of Fairfax, we believe it crucial that honest, dedicated, effective and compassionate people be elected to serve our town.

"For this reason, we ask you to reject those candidates who will allow their supporters to run such vicious advertising. Campaigns should be based on issues and solutions of problems — not mud-raking, lies and innuendos.

"We have assessed the issues and candidates. On Tuesday, March 5, we are voting for Frank Egger, Priscilla Gray and Randy Garrison."

The endorsement was signed by Peter R. Arrigoni, Albert E. Gately, Bill Hughes, Frank O'Connell and Edward Radtke.

Appliances Help Explain Sciences

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Liberal art majors at Union College have been successfully lured into the sciences by a new physics course that substitutes toasters for test tubes.

The course, entitled "How Things Work," uses common household devices as a way of introducing students to the basic principles of physics.

Lowered Music, Lights Ordered

LONDON (AP) — Youth leaders in the south London borough of Merton have been told to dim the psychedelic lights and blaring pop music for fear it will harm teenyboppers in local clubs.

Medical evidence shows that the music and lights together can cause fits and deafness among young music fans.

Delinquent Boys' Home To Be Eyed

An application to operate a home for delinquent boys in Corte Madera will be considered tonight by the town council at 7:30 p.m. in town hall.

Kenneth A. Anderson, former Tamalpais High School teacher whose firing was upheld in Marin Superior Court in January, has applied to operate the home at 122 Willow Avenue.

The application was denied by the town planning commission in January. The commission's denial was immediately appealed to the town council.

Bruce S. Anderson, brother of the former teacher and a director of Fern Hill School of Boonville, which would operate the home, has written a letter to the council saying Kenneth A. Anderson would not be the home's director.

But John W. Rosenberg, deputy town attorney, said Kenneth A. Anderson must be considered the home's director because he is listed as such on the application to operate the home. Any change would require that the application be refiled, Rosenberg said.

Missouri Capitol Has No Front Door

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri's state capitol is the only statehouse in the United States without a "front door."

The south side, which is most seen by the public, is the backside of the building. The front faces the Missouri River to the north and has neither entrance nor exit.

Kissinger Sees Progress In U.S.-Europe Relations

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today reported some progress was being made in two declarations of principle redefining U.S. relations with its European allies and that President Nixon might come to Europe to sign them if the declarations are satisfactory.

Kissinger met with ambassadors of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and briefed them on his just-completed tour of the Middle East. Joseph Luns, the NATO secretary general, described the talks as "very useful, lively and pleasant."

Asked at a news conference whether a trip to Europe by President Nixon had been set, Kissinger said there was "a tentative plan" that if two declarations being drawn up are satisfactory, "the President will come to sign them."

Kissinger said there was "very good progress" made on a declaration on security matters being drawn up within NATO and "we are quite optimistic" about the documents on economic and political relations being drawn up by the European Common Market.

Kissinger said he found "a considerable unity of views as to the objectives" which Western Allies should follow toward the Middle East.

Kissinger proposed the declaration in a speech last April saying it should "redefine U.S.-European relations." He proposed a new basis for the North Atlantic Alliance.

After his news conference, Kissinger went to see Walter Scheel, the West German Foreign Minister and current chairman of the Common Market Council of Ministers at the German Embassy.

Scheel briefed Kissinger on the Common Market's three-stage plan for cooperation with 20 Arab states and of its plans to begin talks with Israel.

Kissinger departed for Washington at 6:03 p.m. (1:03 p.m. EDT).

Gas Crisis Hasn't Curbed Dallas Driver

DALLAS (UPI) — A few people in Dallas may be driving on freeways at 50 miles an hour but police have been hard put to find them.

City Councilman Adlene Harrison says the fuel crisis hasn't changed the driving habits of Dallas residents at all. The council says it may consider making 50 miles an hour the top legal speed on freeways.

HOME SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION
AMERICA'S LARGEST

BE SURE at America's Largest

ONLY HOME SAVINGS IS
$5 Billion Strong

Let us remember that our country has come through many times that "try men's souls." Remember that there are enough dedicated and wise people to solve today's, and tomorrow's problems... in time.

Meantime you can help yourself by doing away with that nagging worry about how to protect what you have earned. Depend on Home Savings, "Old Dependable" since 1889.

Remember too that the higher interest accounts available at Home today start with the "Passbook" Account, which pays the current annual 5¼%, compounded daily, from day-in to day-out. Compare that with bank rates on the very same type of accounts. Also compare all you get free, with just a $1,000 deposit, with what you pay for at banks. The actual dollar differences will amaze you.

You don't even need a passbook. Use the Statement Savings plan... all deposits and withdrawals with just your Prestige Card. Home mails you a complete statement every month (not just every 3 months as others do). One of the best moves you can make is to Home Savings!

Not Enough Protests To Prevent District

Insufficient protests were received to prevent formation of a sewer assessment district in Stinson Beach at Saturday's public hearing — during which a man collapsed and died shortly after reading a statement opposing the sewage plan.

Proctor Jones, president of the Stinson Beach water board, said Winston Norman, a San Francisco resident who owned a Stinson Beach house, suffered what appeared to be a heart attack at 12:15 p.m. as the morning session was concluding.

Expressing shock over Norman's death, Jones said a doctor and ambulance were immediately called for. A spokesman at Marin General Hospital said Norman, 67 years old, was dead on arrival.

Property owners of less than 3 per cent of land within the proposed district protested its formation, Jones said. About 55 persons attended the hearing with most speakers opposing the project, he added.

Voters within the water district ballot tomorrow on two measures which would authorize a 20-cent tax increase and a state loan of not more than $1,850,000 to build a sewage treatment plant and install collection lines.

Spokesmen on both sides of the hard-fought local issue expressed sorrow at Norman's death. Harriett Crandall, a member of a group opposing the sewage plans, said Norman had come to the community for many years on weekends or vacations and was well known locally.

Only 19 Candidates Have Filed Papers

election. The district includes Northern San Francisco, all of Marin and rural Petaluma.

Already filing for the Democratic nomination are three San Franciscans: Assemblyman John L. Burton, attorney; Alan F. Reeves, management consultant, and Alan D. French, carpenter. Others who announced their candidacy but have not filed are: Terence V. McGuire of San Rafael, owner of a real estate business; Lloyd F. Harolds of Novato, consultant on public employee and union benefits, and George C. Kiskaddon of San Francisco, shipping executive. Roger Boas of San Francisco, who was the party's nominee in 1972, is considering entering the race again.

The only Republican filing in the congressional race is Jean Margaret Wall, San Francisco attorney and teacher. Sean McCarthy of San Rafael announced he will run.

Rev. Raymond Brosheears of San Francisco has filed for the Peace and Freedom party nomination. He runs a community center.

State offices at stake are:

Senate — No one has filed yet in the Second Senatorial District, which includes Marin, most of Sonoma and stretches to the Oregon border. Incumbent Peter H. Behr of Tiburon, a Republican, has announced he will seek a second term. His only opponent is Sonoma County Supervisor Robert Theiller, former owner of a real estate business.

Seeking the Democratic nomination are Gordon W. Pusser of Lagunitas, head of a firm managing agricultural land; Leslie A. Grant of San Rafael, a retired accountant, and Mendocino County Supervisor Ernest F. Banker of Ukiah, who is in the real estate and insurance business.

Toni Novak-Sutley of Penngrove is unopposed for the Peace and Freedom Party nomination.

No other candidates can file for state legislative seats because of an earlier deadline to have submitted declarations of intention to file.

Assembly — In the Ninth Assembly District, Republican incumbent William T. Bagley of Sleepy Hollow is seeking his party's nomination for controller instead of reelection. The only Republican who has filed is Mill Valley City Councilman Gerald J. Hood, a real estate investment counselor. Other candidates are: A. Alan Hill of San Rafael, deputy secretary of the state Agriculture and Services Agency; Susan A. Delaplane of Tiburon, freelance writer, and Albert J. Schloegel of Rohnert Park, business consultant.

Democratic candidates in the Assembly district are: Deputy Marin County Counsel George J. Silvestri Jr. of Novato; Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum, planner and architect; Jack R. Felson of Forest Knolls, owner of a children's camp; Harry J. Moore of Novato, school principal, and Louis D. Sasselli of Corte Madera, insurance broker and vice president of an automated management systems firm.

Nancy Gunn of Penngrove, a law student, is unopposed for the Peace and Freedom Party nomination.

Board of Equalization — Democratic incumbent William M. Bennett of Kent Woodlands, an attorney, has not announced his plans, and no one has filed for the District 2 seat. Edward Sullivan of San Anselmo, a real estate broker, has announced his candidacy.

Local offices at stake will be:

County Board of Supervisors — Robert A. Roumiguiere of San Rafael, a real estate broker, has filed for reelection in the First District and is unopposed. No one has filed in the Fifth District, but incumbent Arnold M. Baptiste of Novato, deputy director and cost analyst for Pacific Maritime Association, has announced he will run for reelection. Betty Machado of Novato, long active in civic affairs, is challenging him.

County Superintendent of Schools — Incumbent Virgil S. Hollis of Tiburon has filed for reelection, and is opposed by Joseph D. Gargiulo of Novato, principal of Novato Adult Evening High School.

District Attorney — No filings yet, but incumbent Bruce B. Bales of San Rafael is challenged by attorney Harry A. Connick of San Rafael and Edward M. Krug of San Rafael, a deputy district attorney in Sonoma County.

County Clerk — Incumbent George H. Gnoss is retiring. No one has filed yet, but three persons are running: county elections officer Peter C. Meyer of San Rafael, Asst. County Clerk John F. Musser Jr. of Marshall, and Howard Hanson of Novato, administrator for Marin Superior Court.

Auditor-Controller — Incumbent Michael Mitchell of Corte Madera has filed for reelection, and is unopposed.

Assessor — Incumbent Bert W. Broemmel of San Rafael has filed for reelection, and is unopposed.

Coroner — No one has filed, but the incumbent, Dr. Donovan O. Cooke of Belvedere, has announced he will seek reelection. He is challenged by Dr. Ervin J. Jindrich of Mill Valley, acting chief medical examiner for the City and County of San Francisco.

Sheriff — Incumbent Louis P. Mountanos of San Rafael has announced he will run again, but has not filed. He is unopposed.

Treasurer-Tax Collector — Incumbent Stanley J. Fontez of Novato will be challenged by Frank Bigley, Corte Madera town treasurer. Neither has filed.

County Recorder — Noel T. Giacomini of San Rafael has filed for reelection, and is challenged by Klaus Martin of San Rafael, a draftsman and carpenter.

Voters also will ballot in four of Marin Municipal Water District's five divisions, and contests in all are virtually certain.

In Division 1, where incumbent Jack R. Felson is running for Assembly, four candidates have announced but not filed: Winifred S. Frederick of Lagunitas, who represents the Irate Taxpayers of Marin before county supervisors; Richard J. Boylan of Woodacre, clinical social worker; Graham McPhail Jr. of San Rafael, appliance store owner, and Betty Forry of Marinwood, veteran civic leader. Division 1 includes Hamilton Air Force Base, Terra Linda, Santa Venetia, Sleepy Hollow, most of Fairfax, Woodacre, San Geronimo Valley and Lagunitas.

In Division 3, where incumbent Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. is not seeking reelection, there are three candidates who have not filed: Joan Seminario of Kentfield, a law student; Margaret Neese of Ross, who works with youth groups and does volunteer work with the elderly, and Dr. William J. Filante of Kentfield, a physician and teacher. None has filed. Division 3 includes Greenbrae, Larkspur, Ross, San Anselmo and the Oak Manor area of Fairfax.

In Division 4, the incumbent, Dr. L. Martin Griffin, is not seeking reelection. The only announced candidate is Pamela Lloyd of Mill Valley, chairman of the environmental quality committee of the City-County Planning Council. The division includes Mill Valley, Corte Madera west of Highway 101, Kent Woodlands and Kentfield.

In Division 5, where the incumbent, Dr. Ronald T. Stafford has resigned, only Willard A. Hall of Sausalito, a retired sales and consulting engineer, has filed. Others who have announced are Elizabeth Gibson of Sausalito, a psychiatric social worker, and Robert Lee Grant of Tiburon, an economist on the faculty at the University of California, Berkeley. The division includes Sausalito, Marin City, Tamalpais Valley, Tiburon, Belvedere, Alto, Strawberry, and Corte Madera east of Highway 101.

In the Tamalpais High School District, Elaine S. Brockbank of Kentfield is the only candidate to file for seat vacated by the resignation of Frank L. Miller. She has been active in citizen groups working on district matters.

Voters in four sanitary districts also will ballot in June. In Almonte Sanitary District, with two seats at stake, Richard D. Hamann, a high school teacher, is the only candidate to have filed so far.

In the Ross Valley Sanitary District, incumbent Eugene A. Ostaggi, retired savings and loan executive, has filed for reelection. No one has filed for the other two terms expiring.

In the Novato Sanitary District, incumbent Clayton D. Payne, claims manager for an insurance company, is the only candidate to have filed. Three terms are expiring.

In Homestead Valley Sanitary District, incumbent James G. MacNichols, a manufacturers representative, has filed for reelection. Two terms are expiring.

Champagne Fete Slated For Brown

A champagne reception to bid farewell to Novato City Mgr. Charles A. Brown will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday in the Novato Community House. The party will be sponsored by the Novato Chamber of Commerce, which has requested that reservations be made through the chamber office.

Brown will become city manager of Milpitas in Santa Clara County on Monday. He served five years in his Novato post, resigning last December. He also previously was city manager in Sausalito.

tions, was the San Rafael School System, which buys its gasoline from Shell. The cut to 60 per cent of the base period of 1972 will make it impossible to "operate in a normal manner," a spokesman said today.

As a result, all field trips and trips to athletic events have been discontinued, Paul W. Robinson, director of administrative services, said today.

In addition, district-owned cars will have to wait in line at service stations for gasoline, not rely on district supplies, he said. The cutbacks will allow normal busing to classes to continue, according to Robinson.

Meanwhile, it seemed likely that Marin will go to a voluntary odd-even plan next week in order to attempt to cut down on long lines of cars waiting at service stations.

The Independent Service Station Dealers Association at 7:30 p.m. today at Marin Civic Center is to discuss details of the plan, wherein motorists would be asked to buy gasoline only on their assigned days. The county board of supervisors will discuss the plan tomorrow.

Many service stations in Marin and Southern Sonoma are now open only in the early morning hours, pumping what they have set as their daily allotment of gasoline within an hour or two.

In other areas of the country, about 40 amputees in wheelchairs in New York demonstrated at the governor's office, saying the mandatory odd-even rationing plan was hindering their ability to "maintain their everyday existence."

In Washington, John Swearingen, board chairmn of Amoco, said the gasoline shortage will last another six to 12 months.

OBITUARIES

Ex-Councilman Koenig, 46, Dies

John Ernest Koenig Jr., lifelong Sausalito resident and a former city councilman, died yesterday in a local hospital after a brief illness. He was 46.

Koenig was born in San Francisco but lived all his life in Sausalito. He was the son of the late John and Anita Koenig. Anita Koenig Park in Sausalito is named for his mother, a civic leader who died in 1972.

Koenig attended Tamalpais High School, College of Marin and Stanford University.

He was an insurance broker, having taken over his father's business, Koenig and Co., in San Francisco. About six months ago the firm merged with Strong and Co.

An avid yachtsman, Koenig was one of the founders of the Sausalito Yacht Club and was a past commodore. He also was a member of the St. Francis Yacht Club.

In 1956 Koenig was elected to the Sausalito City Council and served four years.

He is survived by his wife, Patricia, and three sons, Mark, Jim and Peter, all of the family home at 37 Vista Clara.

Private family funeral has been held.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the Hanna Boys Center.

cused Haldeman of lying when he told the Senate Watergate committee last summer that when John W. Dean III told Nixon and himself that $1 million would be needed to hush up the defendants, the President said it could be raised but that "would be wrong."

Questioned about an apparent conflict in the grand jury's view of the testimony, Warren said, "If necessary we will deal with this at some point in the future in the proper way and at the proper time."

In the Senate, the two top Democrats, Mike Mansfield of Montana and Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, said the sealed document should be forwarded to the House Judiciary Committee promptly.

WINSTON NORMAN

Funeral for Winston Norman, San Francisco advertising executive and weekend resident of Stinson Beach, will be tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at St. James Episcopal Church in San Francisco.

Norman, 66, collapsed Saturday at a meeting of the Stinson Beach County Water District. He was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital. The coroner's office has scheduled a routine autopsy in the case.

Norman had lived in San Francisco since 1946 but also maintained a weekend home in Stinson Beach.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Stanford University in 1929, he worked first as a writer for newspapers and magazines such as the Saturday Evening Post and Colliers.

During World War II he was in naval intelligence and served on the staff of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

He later went into the advertising business and won awards for copy, art direction and campaign planning.

He was a member of the San Francisco Press Club and the Bohemian Club.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Frances, a son, Scott, and a daughter, Patricia Blackley, all of San Francisco; and a brother, Dr. Frank Norman of Santa Rosa.

Burial will be at the Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

The family has asked that contributions be made to Project Hope or St. James Church.

EDWIN E. BOSTROM

Funeral was today for Edwin E. Bostrom of Petaluma, who died Friday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 68.

A native of Sweden, he moved to Petaluma 30 years ago and worked as a warehouseman for the Petaluma Poultry Producers until his retirement three years ago.

Survivors include his wife, Frieda Bostrom of Petaluma; two sons, E. Donald and James Bostrom, both of Petaluma; three sisters, Julia Karlen of Sweden and Annie Hansen and Signe Nielsen, both of Petaluma; three brothers, Sven, Axel and Gus Bostrom, all of Petaluma, and three grandchildren.

Burial was in Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

MARY TRIMMER

Mary J. Trimmer of Petaluma died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness. She was 55.

A native of Los Angeles, she was reared in San Francisco and lived in Petaluma eight years. She was a waitress at Penny's Restaurant until she became ill a year ago. Her husband, Charles E. Trimmer, died a year ago.

Survivors include a son, Lance Trimmer of Powell, Wyo.; a daughter, Darce Trimmer of Petaluma; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fetta of Petaluma, and four grandchildren.

Mass of Christian burial will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at St. James Catholic Church with burial in the Calvary Cemetery, Petaluma. The Rosary will be recited in Mrs. Trimmer's honor at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Chapel.

R. C. HOETGER

Ralph C. Hoetger of Strawberry, for 25 years the director of maintenance and operations for the Tamalpais High School District, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness.

Hoetger, 83, lived with his family on the Tamalpais High School campus for more than 20 years, moving in 1971 to 31 Reed Boulevard. He retired from the district in 1962.

During World War II, Hoetger was a foreman at the shipyards in Sausalito.

A native of Detroit, Mich., he lived there 40 years and was employed at the Detroit Edison Co. Hoetger was a resident of Marin for 33 years.

In the early 1900s, he competed as a gymnast for U.S. teams. For many years, he was an official for the Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union swimming program.

Surviving are his wife, Lurana Hoetger of Strawberry; a son, Conrad Hoetger of Novato, a teacher at Tamalpais High School; two daughters, Jackie of Modesto and Vickie Good of Mill Valley, and four grandchildren.

Private funeral will be tomorrow. The family requests memorial contributions to a favorite charity.

NELLIE ORR

Funeral services were held today for Nellie M. Orr of San Rafael, who died Saturday in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 81.

A native of Healdsburg, Mrs. Orr had lived with her daughter Dorothy B. Pemble of San Rafael for 19 years. Before moving to Marin, Mrs. Orr had lived in the East Bay and worked as a nurse in Oakland and Berkeley.

In addition to her daughter, Mrs. Orr is survived by three granddaughters and two great-grandsons.

The family prefers memorial contributions to a favorite charity.

SARAH BUCKLEY

Funeral arrangements were pending today for Sarah R. Buckley of Mill Valley, a resident of Marin County for 24 years.

Mrs. Buckley, 82, a homemaker, of 233 East Blithedale Avenue, died unexpectedly Friday at a local hospital.

A native of Orland, Glen County, she was a member of the Citrus Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star in that city. She moved from Orland to Marin in 1950.

Surviving are three sons, Everett Buckley of Mill Valley, Virnor Buckley of Oregon and Alfred Buckley of Palo Alto, and a daughter, Leah Heston of Napa.

JANE HEIDEN

Graveside funeral for Jane Heiden, a Marin resident since 1908, will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Mrs. Heiden died after collapsing in her San Anselmo home Saturday.

She was born in Sewickley, Pa., and moved to Marin with her family as a young girl in 1908. She lived in San Rafael and Novato before moving to San Anselmo.

Mrs. Heiden was a homemaker and the wife of the late Alfred E. Heiden who died in 1954. He was a carpenter in Marin for many years.

Surviving Mrs. Heiden are two daughters, Betty Anderson of Novato and Doris Salvisberg of San Rafael; a son, Stanley Heiden of Novato; three sisters, Ester Camenisch of San Anselmo, Oda Mathiasen of Sebastopol and Doris Burr of Sonoma; two brothers, Erik Madsen of Phoenix, Ariz., and Arthur Madsen of San Anselmo; and 10 grandchildren.

The family prefers memorial gifts to the Marin County Heart Association, American Cancer Society or Nazareth House of San Rafael.

END TO AN OUTING

Damage is inspected to the rear end of a bus carrying 16 persons, including 12 deaf-mute children. It was involved in an accident with a coal truck over the weekend near Ebensburg, Pa. The children, pupils at the Lexington School for the Deaf in Jackson Heights, N.Y., and the Scranton, Pa., Oral School, were en route to Pittsburgh for a basketball tournament.

Contractor Identified In Kidnaping

ATLANTA (UPI) — An FBI agent today identified a husky building contractor as the man he saw leaving the site where the $700,000 ransom was left for the safe return of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy.

Agent Paul King picked out William A. H. Williams, 33, during a preliminary hearing for Williams and his wife, Betty, 26, before U. S. Magistrate J. Roger Thompson. The Williamses were charged in Murphy's abduction late last month.

King told of following a dark vehicle after the money drop was made and how he and his partner kept the car under surveillance until he pulled up beside it at a traffic light.

"I glanced over and observed the driver very carefully," he said. When asked if he could identify the driver, King said he was "sitting at the table there with the brown coat on," indicating Williams.

Another FBI agent, Gary Hart, testified that he was at the Williams home after Murphy was ransomed and that $700,000 in cash was found there. He said a check of some bills showed they matched serial numbers of the ransom money.

Attorneys for Williams and his wife hoped to get the $1.5 million bond reduced at the hearing.

Doug Johnston, attorney for Mrs. Williams, said he would argue for a reduction of her $500,000 bond. Her husband's attorney, Tyrus Atkinson, Jr., also was expected to seek a reduction in his $1 million bond.

Williams is charged with extortion and his wife with concealing a felony in the abduction of Murphy, who was freed unharmed Feb. 22 after his newspaper paid $700,000 ransom. The Williamses were arrested five hours later at their home and agents said they found $700,000 in the house.

FBI agents are attempting to determine if Murphy was taken across a state line during his 49-hour ordeal, a necessary condition before federal kidnap charges can be filed.

Assistant U.S. Attorney William Gaffney said the FBI still was investigating the case. State kidnaping charges are expected to be filed if it was determined Murphy was not taken out of Georgia.

The burly, 6-3, 250-pound Williams could get a maximum 20-year sentence and $10,000 fine for the federal extortion charge while his wife faces a possible three-year sentence and $500 fine.

Murphy has identified Williams as the man who came to his house Feb. 20 on the pretense of donating 300,000 gallons of fuel oil to charity and then abducted him. The man said he was a "colonel" in the "American Revolutionary Army" and he wanted to do something about the "leftist, liberal" press in the country.

Transmissions By Cable TV Firms Upheld By High Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled, 6 to 3, today in a major copyright case that CATV operators have the right to pick up and transmit network and other original programs any distance they wish.

The Court urged Congress however to legislate on the complex issue of copyright protection in the broadcasting field.

The decision, affirming part of a 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling, held that the long distance transmission of programs for use of cable antenna television does not infringe on any copyright held by originators of the material.

The ruling came after a prolonged controversy which arrayed the networks and conventional broadcasters against the growing CATV industry which uses high altitude antennas and microwave to transmit programs to pay subscribers mainly in remote areas.

In other major actions, the Court:

Ruled 8 to 1, with Justice William O. Douglas dissenting, that the Veterans Administration has the constitutional right to deny GI Bill of Rights educational benefits to conscientious objectors who perform non-military duties instead of serving in the military.

Agreed with lower court decisions that federal courts lack jurisdiction over union requirements that candidates for office must sign noncommunist affidavits.

Agreed to hear an appeal by a group of 62 Illinois delegates to the 1972 Democratic national convention who are threatened with contempt in a state court as a result of a seating dispute with a group led by Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

Court Will Decide In Press Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide if newsmen have a right under the constitutional guarantee of a free press to demand interviews with specific inmates in federal prisons.

The case is similar to a California case the Court has also agreed to hear in which inmates of state prisons were held to have a right to speak to newsmen when they wished.

The two cases will be combined for oral arguments next fall or winter.

The latest case was brought against the Federal Bureau of Prisons by the Washington Post and Ben H. Bagdikian, a managing editor at the time. They challenged a bureau regulation banning interviews with all individual inmates, even when requested by a prisoner.

District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ruled in favor of the Post and was upheld by the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Gesell's ruling conflicts with that of a three-judge court in a California case which will be argued along with the Post case.

The California decision held that newsmen had no inherent first amendment right to interview inmates, but that the prisoners themselves could grant interviews and prison authorities could not stop the practice unless they could show it would dangerously disrupt discipline.

The effect was to abolish a regulation in California prisons banning interviews.

'Self-Esteem Workshop' Finds Few Takers In Debut In Tiburon

By REBECCA LARSEN

First there was Norman Vincent Peale and the Power of Positive Thinking, then Dale Carnegie and How to Win Friends and Influence People. Now out of Southern California, that hotbed of new religious and philosophical thought, comes L. S. (Barks) Barksdale and the Foundation of Furtherance of Human Understanding.

Foundation president Barksdale of Idyllwild made his Northern California debut last weekend in a "self-esteem workshop" at the Tiburon Lodge.

The session drew 13 participants, some from as far away as Modesto and Vallejo and three or four from Marin. Most had paid $75 for 17 hours and 30 minutes of instruction Saturday and yesterday by Barksdale, his wife, Lisa, and a foundation worker Edward Harmon.

"Once you get this self-esteem thing figured out, then nothing else matters, then all the rest of your life takes care of itself," according to Harmon.

A middle-aged man with a ministerial air, Barksdale devoted most of Saturday's session to instructing participants in a set of 20 "realities of human behavior."

The main substance of the realities seems to be that people should not hold themselves accountable for what they do because they are acting in the only way they can, given their previous experiences and knowledge.

"We are not our actions," says one of the realities. "We are that which acts. Our actions are but the means determined by our awareness for fulfilling our needs. Any fault must therefore lie not in use, but in our limited awareness."

Intermixed with the lectures were sessions in which the group broke up into clusters of five to discuss study questions and then return to give Barksdale their answers.

Most of these question-answer periods went like this:

"Is there such a thing as a genuinely altruistic act?" Barksdale would ask.

After calling on several participants who weren't terribly sure, Barksdale got an answer from Lynn, a teen-age girl, her youthfulness notable in the well-over 30 group. "There is no such thing as a charitable act," she replied.

"That's the way I perceive it," said Barksdale. "Does anyone disagree?"

Silence.

"Then let's go on to the next question."

One of the more interesting questions was one which asked participants to imagine a situation in which a young woman worked long and hard to get her husband through college. After graduation he got a good job, had an affair with his secretary and asked his wife for a divorce.

"Should he be loaded with guilt?" asked Barksdale. "Should his wife be resentful and bitter?"

"No," said Barksdale. "After all she had a choice about whether she wanted to help her husband through college of not. We always have choices." And how could she know what her husband had in his mind, what motivated him to act the way he did, said Barksdale.

According to foundation literature, most of Barksdale's material comes straight out of his head.

Formerly the owner of Barksdale Valves in Southern California, he sold the firm in 1964 to devote his life "to what had become immensely meaningful to him — establishment of the foundation and promotion of its objectives."

Says the literature: "Having achieved notable material success but still intensely unhappy, Mr. Barksdale finally decided to do something about it — he had hurt long enough. In looking for the causes of his emotional turmoil and unhappiness, he perceived that adverse comparisons, self-accusation, shame, guilt and remorse plus nonrecognition of his own innate authority, blaming others for his problems and shortcomings, lack of self-discipline and acting against his own best interests were primarily responsible for his self-rejection and hurting."

Some admitted to a lack of self-esteem. "I just know I lack self-esteem judging from events in my own life, what has happened to me," said Carolyn from San Jose, who said she was studying to be a writer.

Others had come to pick up tips to use in working with other people like Margaret Lane, a retired school principal from Vallejo now working with gifted children. Had she learned a lot about handling people?

"Not so far. Like I keep telling Barksdale. He wants us to think about all these things, but then when he asks the questions, he doesn't want any opposition."

Fairness In Reporting Group Is Organized

A group of Sausalito citizens headed by Warren Glass met today at the Alta Mira Hotel to organize Citizens for Fairness in News Reporting, as a result of two stories in a San Francisco newspaper on tomorrow's Sausalito city election.

According to Glass, those present voted to "pursue the matter in the hope of reducing interference in future elections."

Glass said about 75 persons agreed to join the committee, which was formed as a result of stories in the San Francisco Chronicle last Wednesday and Friday which they regarded as "an attempt to influence the voters in Sausalito by publishing an editorial under the disguise of a news story."

He pointed out that the San Francisco paper merely listed the candidates for city councils elsewhere in the Bay Area while devoting two lengthy stories to the election in Sausalito.

"I think we should ask ourselves why the Chronicle, all of a sudden, having never interfered with a Sausalito election before, writes two major articles within days of the election... We don't need this kind of big city approach of influence peddling," said Glass in a statement endorsed by those at the meeting.

7½% interest is the highest rate you can get on insured savings. But, unless you're able to commit your savings for a period of at least four years, you may actually earn more in another plan. For instance, a 6½% plan which requires a $1,000 minimum balance for just one year. Or, a 5¾% plan which requires only a $500 balance for 90 days. Whichever plan you choose, choose wisely. CANNY CANINE — An electronics firm in Honolulu speeds the time for stringing wires for recording systems through cramped store attics by putting a dog to work. The dog, Eleo, has been performing such tasks for three years and his owner estimates he cuts installation time an estimated 75 per cent of what it would take men to do the job.

(UPI Telephoto)

Sound System Firm Going To The Dogs

HONOLULU (UPI) — "Eleo" —which means "active" in Hawaiian—is employed by an electronics firm to handle complicated wiring assignments, which he does capably. "Eleo" is a 4-year-old black and tan dog.

"Eleo" weighs about 12 pounds, stands a foot high and is saving the business an estimated 75 per cent of normal installation time.

He is employed by Pacific Recording, Ltd., an electronics firm headed by Chuck Allen.

For the past three years, "Eleo" has been used to perform complex wiring tasks for Allen, his owner.

Allen spends a great deal of his time installing background music systems in offices, department stores and recreation complexes. Thousands of feet of wiring must first be rigged for perfect sound systems, and that's where "Eleo" comes in.

The wiring must be placed in extremely high ceiling areas, and installing it is complicated by electrical systems, piping, air conditioning ducts and lighting facilities. There are also just a few feet between the ceiling and the roof, making it a difficult and dangerous feat for men to install the wiring.

"Eleo," however, cau do the job much faster than Allen can. The wiring is attacked to his harness, and he is called to various speakers, running toward them with the wiring trailing behind him.

"He's quite smart," Allen observed. "he won't let himself get tangled up. If he gets into a difficult situation, he just reverses and tries again."

Allen estimates his dog saves him 75 per cent of normal wiring time and has been a great benefit to his business. In fact, "Eleo" has been so benficial to the electronics firm that Allen plans soon to have him insured.

"Eleo" has performed many wiring tasks in the past three years, wiring up to 30 speakers a day. It would take a man about three days to do the same work.

Using "Eleo" was the idea of Allen's wife, Elizabeth, who has a hobby of raising canines. Before that, Allen said, "We used to do it the hard way."

Mrs. Allen said "Eleo" was the small one of the litter "but seemed very bright at an early age." When performing wiring tasks, he obeys various commands from Allen and his wife.

Off the job, "Eleo" is a family favorite, and has "his own pad" in the Allen home where he sleeps.

In fact, Allen said, "Eleo" is fed so well "that the vet told us the other day to stop feeding him so much rich food and give him some ordinary dog food for a change."

Army Engineers Curb Camping At 8 Lakes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Army Corps of Engineers today said it had increased traffic controls and curbed camping activities at eight lakes in Northern and Central California in an effort to ease overcrowded conditions.

"Our recreation areas have become so popular in recent years that at many of our projects the quality of the facilities has deteriorated because of overuse," said Col. Frederick G. Rockwell Jr., Sacramento district engineer for the corps.

"We regret the necessity for this action, but we think it essential to increase our controls to protect the health and physical safety of the using public," he added.

The lakes affected by the decision are Black Butte in Glenn and Tehama counties; Englebright in Yuba and Nevada counties; Martis in Nevada and Placer counties; New Hogan in Calaverages County; Pine Flat in Fresno County; Success and Terminus in Tulare County and Isabella in Kern County.

Rockwell said that under the new program vehicular traffic will be strictly limited to designated areas, parking areas and certain access areas.

Camping will be allowed only in developed or designated areas where the essential facilities and services can be economically provided, he said. Random shoreline camping will no longer be allowed.

Transit Board Will Consider Own System

The Marin Transit District board, meeting tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. at Civic Center, will consider hiring a consultant to study the cost of the county operating its own local bus system.

Asst. Gen. Mgr. Robert L. Harrison said two consulting firms were considered and he will recommend W. C. Gilman and Co. for the $3,000 study.

Local bus service in Marin is currently provided by the Golden Gate Bridge District through a contract with the county transit district.

Ethics Question For Bar Exam

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Beginning next year, law students will have to pass a post-Watergate bar exam question on professional ethics before they can be admitted to practice in California.

Although attorneys involved in the decision to institute the ethics requirement maintain the Watergate scandal did not inspire it, some concede the scandal may have advanced the timing.

At least nine California lawyers have been accused of involvement in the Watergate break-in or the subsequent cover-up.

Heath Coalition Try Said Failure

LONDON (UPI) — Political informants said today the Liberal party has decided not to join Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservatives in a coalition government or any other kind of alliance and that this meant he would have to resign.

The sources said the decision, agreed on unanimously at a two-hour meeting of the 14 Liberal party members of parliament, meant Heath will have no other choice but to hand his government's resignation to Queen Elizabeth and advise her to summon Labor party leader Harold Wilson to form a new administration.

The Liberal party said its decision will be confirmed in a formal statement later.

It said Liberal leader Jeremy Thorpe will inform Heath of the party's decision later this afternoon.

Political informants said the Liberals will propose to Heath formation of a "grand coalition" government of all three major parties — Conservatives, Labor and Liberals.

But Conservative party sources said Heath is "not interested."

In a further blow to Heath's hopes of carrying on an "anti-Socialist" government, 10 of the 11 hard line Protestant militant members of parliament from Northern Ireland agreed in Belfast to go it alone and not to join any government in London.

They decided to set up a "United Ulster Unionist parliamentary coalition."

Acting as spokesman for the group, Rev. Ian Paisley said it will support whichever party helps Ulster.

Labor party sources said if Wilson is summoned to form a government, he will do so with the 301 Labor party members of parliament alone, even though they do not constitute a majority of the new 635- member House of Commons.

They said he will push ahead with Labor's program, including nationalization of additional key industries, until the party is defeated in parliament and that Wilson then will call a new general election to seek a full majority.

Earlier, Heath, still clinging obstinately to power despite a stinging rebuff from the voters in Thursday's general election, held a two-hour meeting of his cabinet.

Government officials said it discussed a possible deal with the Liberals.

No statement was released afterwards.

Amid the deepening political and industrial crisis Buckingham Palace announced the queen has canceled her return to Australia, previously scheduled for Wednesday.

The announcement said it will be decided later whether she will go ahead with a scheduled state visit to Indonesia.

The queen returned Friday immediately after the general election.

Under Britain's unwritten constitution she must be on hand to accept the resignation of an outgoing prime minister and appoint his successor—usually on the "advice" of the outgoing government chief.

Wilson, waiting in the wings, summoned a meeting of his would-be cabinet ministers this afternoon to be prepared to take over if Heath quits and the queen summons him to form a new government.

In Belfast, Northern Ireland Protestant extremist members of parliament also met to discuss an offer from Heath to ally themselves with his Conservative party in the United Kingdom parliament.

Heath and Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe met for 30 minutes at the prime minister's No. 10 Downing Street residence Sunday night, continuing earlier discussions.

The prime minister also conferred with top Conservative party leaders and members of his cabinet.

Heath was reported to have suggested either a full-fledged coalition, including major cabinet posts for Thorpe and one or two other Liberals, or alternatively, a simple pledge that the Liberals would support an emergency economic program.

Heath called the national elections last Thursday in an effort to win a mandate to settle a crippling coal miners' strike that has dwindled energy supplies and plunged Britain into its worst economic crisis since World War II.

The election resulted in a five-seat Labor party edge, but both the Laborites and Conservatives failed to win a majority in the 635-member parliament.

LARKSPUR/GREENBRAE VOTERS

To those of you I haven't had the opportunity to meet personally, I am JOI LOSEE. I would like to represent YOU on the Larkspur City Council.

The people I've talked to don't want our community to be more congested, polluted, over crowded, or to grow 25% every three years.

They don't want a shopping center bigger than Northgate. Instead, they want a government that cares for people, not developers, and LISTENS to the people.

If you agree, then please vote for me on March 5.

DOUBLE WINNER — Roberta Flack won the Grammy award for best pop vocal performance Saturday night for "Killing Me Softly With His Song." She also received an award for the best record of the year for the same tune.

Winners Of Grammy Awards Flying High

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The melody of the Grammy Awards lingers todya for the winners — Roberta Flack, Stevie Wonder, Bette Midler and more.

Members of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences celebrated the year gone by with a gala show Saturday night.

They chose "Killing Me Softly With His Song," a musical tributeto music, as record of the year, and its artist, Roberta Flack, as top pop female vocalist. It was the second consecutive year Miss Flack won the record of the year award.

The prestigious "album of the year" citation went to Wonder, the blind composer-singer-musician for "Innervisions." He claimed the most Grammys of the show — four in all.

In the ceremony's most emotional moments, Wonder, wearing dark glasses, was led to the stage first by his mother, then by a brother and sister. He paid tribute to his family, insisting that his mother take one of the awards, and recalled how he almost died last summer in an auto accident.

"I thank God he's alive to accept these awards," said his mother, Loulah Haradway of Detroit.

Wonder accepted one of his trophies in memory of a singer Jim Croce, who was killed in a plane crash last year.

In addition to album of the year, Wonder's awards were best male pop vocal, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life;" best rhythm and blues vocal, "Superstition." "Innervisions" also was named best engineered album.

The flamboyant, red-haired Miss Midler, whose singing style is reminiscent of the 1940s, accepted her Grammy as best new artist of the year with the exclamation, "Isn't this a hoot!"

Miss Flack, whose career peaked with last year's winning song, "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," said she was overwhelmed at winning again. "Iwant to thank the world!" she said.

Gladys Knight and the Pipps claimed two awards as best pop and rhythm and blues group. In the country music field, big winners were Charlie Rich Rich and Olivia Newton-John for male and female vocals. The country duo award went to Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge.

Major jazz winners were Art Tatum, best soloist; Supersac, best group; and Woody Herman, best big band.

The classical album of the year was "Bartok Concerto for Orchestra," Pierra Boulez conducting the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Boulez received the conductor's award for the same record.

The Grammy for best movie score went to Neil Diamond for "Jonathan Livingston Seagull," and "A Little Night Music" was honored as best original cast album from a stage show.

Ordinances On Marine Activities On Agenda

A series of complex ordinances regulating marine activities in San Rafael will be considered by the city council at 8 p.m. today in city hall.

Proposed by the city administration are three ordinances aimed at stemming pollution created by small craft discharge and providing for boat fire safety.

One ordinance would require licensing of houseboat marinas, and require marinas to have a sewer connection leading to a permanent sewer. This measure also sets standards for houseboat occupancy.

Another ordinance would prohibit dumping of sewage from boats into city waters, and require all boats within city limits to be equipped with a holding tank to retain human wastes. This ordinance would also require commercial marinas to provide holding tanks or pump-out facilities.

A third ordinance would provide for fire protection standards at marinas, including requirements for dry chemical fire extinguishers on floating docks and a means of summoning the fire department at least 150 feet from a marine facilitity.

The city administration has proposed that the ordinances be reviewed by the San Rafael Canal Advisory Committee and the city fire department before final council action.

Woman Wins Title In Gold Panning

ROSAMOND (UPI) — A northern Nevada housewife panned eight shiny gold nuggets in less time than it takes to fry an egg and won the woman's gold panning title yesterday.

The winner was Mrs. Marie Bertles, of Fallon, Nev., the same woman who won the championship four years ago ... only a blink of an eye faster.

This year she washed the sand out of a 10-inch pan in the fastest time, 19.6 seconds, without losing one of the gleaming, pea-sized nuggets.

In the men's division, Jack Roberts of Hacienda Heights, Calif., managed to win with a time of 21.6 seconds while his dextrous teen-aged son Don, emptied the gold pan in less than 17 seconds, though he lost one of the nuggets.

The occasion drew some five dozen weekend prospectors to the Tropico Gold Panning Championships in Rosamond, a small former mining town north of Los Angeles.

Physicians Top Problem Drinkers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Physicians suffer the highest alcoholism rate of any profession in America, the California Medical Association was told yesterday.

"We lose the equivalent of one medical school class a year," said Dr. Charles E. Becker, head of alcoholic detoxification at San Francisco General Hospital.

Becker, also an assistant professor at the University of California Medical Center, urged physicians to be more alert to early symptoms in themselves and their patients.

USING MIME as a teaching tool, Joan Porter volunteers her time one afternoon a week at the Sausalito Nursery School. Here she silently puzzles over a broken toy car which the children have brought for her to fix in the play yard.

Mime Is Used As Teaching Tool For Students In Nursery School

By BETTY FROST

"I use mime as a teaching tool, not as entertainment," Joan Porter emphasized.

One day a week she volunteers her time and talents at the Sausalito Nursery School. Last week she also visited classrooms in the Bayside-Martin Luther King Schools in Sausalito.

"When I am in white face, I am strictly non-verbal. Because I am the one who is different, I carry the burden of self-conciousness, and the children feel free to express themselves", she said.

Sometimes Mrs. Porter uses the name Matilda for her mime characterization. However, the nusery school children greeted her happily as "Joan," the mother of their schoolmate, Cameron. She finds the continuity of her weekly appearances puts the children at ease. Rather than using pre-planned skits, she simply works within the structure of the school program, participating with clay modeling, pottery-making, story-telling sessions and outdoor play along with the youngsters.

"We have over-verbalized so much," she said. "Freedom to express themselves in movement is valuable to children, particularly the younger ones."

IN MIME her background in dancing, psychology and teaching has all come together, Mrs. Porter said. She is also working hard to perfect the technique and takes instruction four mornings a week with the Berkeley Mime Troupe in San Francisco.

Mrs. Porter received the bachelor of arts degree from the University of Utah at Salt Lake City, and studied at Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., for one year. She taught at the Child Guidance Home in Cincinnati, Ohio, for three years, working with emotionally disturbed children.

As a child she studied classical ballet, and later learned modern dance and creative movement techniques. She has been teaching herself how to play the autoharp, because she finds children like to move with the music.

"In mime, clarity of movement is stressed," the Sausalito woman said. "when the props are all imaginary, it takes concentration to open and close an imaginary window, for instance, and then be careful not to walk through it. Children notice all the details."

The mime is the wife of Bruce H. Porter, president of Porter, Cohen, Calnan advertising agency in San Francisco. Their children are Alissa, 10, Margot, 8, and Cameron, 5. They have lived in Sausalito for three years.

Mrs. Porter will put on her white face with the cheerful triangular accents to perform at the Sausalito Nursery School Fair, scheduled for May 11 and 12 in downtown Sausalito.

Golden Wedding Party Held For Sausalito Couple

A 50th wedding anniversary party was given to honor Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Schiemtschek of Sausalito at their home Feb. 24 by their family.

Some 30 family members and friends attended the dinner hosted by their daughter, Mrs. Herbert Myers of San Rafael and her husband and the Myers' daughters, Katherine Myers of San Rafael and Mrs. John Larin and her husband of San Anselmo.

The honored couple's son, Maruice Schimetschek Jr. of Middletown, Conn., was unable to attend because of his duties as a high school principal there.

Agnes and Maurice Schimetschek were married Feb. 22, 1924, in Sonoma County. He is now retired from his electrical contracting business in San Francisco, and the couple are managers of the Eden Roc Apartments in Sausalito.

Columnist Still On Special Assignment

Consumer columnist Josephine Ripley, who writes the Money Matters column each Monday in the Independent-Journal women's section, is devoting full-time to a special assignment for the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

Her column will resume in the Independent-Journal when her assignment is terminated.

ON THE AGENDA

Boyd Museum Guild Will Hold Dance Fund Raiser On Saturday

A gala evening of round and square dancing will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. by the Corte Madera Guild of Boyd Marin Museum of Science as its fund-raising party.

The Corte Madera Recreation Center will be decorated as an old time Western opera house for the evening, with calico, gingham and daisies as table decorations.

A chuckwagon buffet will be served and a general store will be open ith plants and handcrafted children's items and foods made by guild members.

An exhibition of square dancing will be led by Jack Olds, and Joe and Marie Angeli will be the callers for the general square dancing.

Committee members are Sammie Dunn, guild president; Carole O'Neil, chairman; Karen Weeger, food; Mariaelena, Keizer, entertainment; Elda Fanucchi, equipment; Bonne Meister, decoration; Kathy Poer, general store, and Nancy Parson, staffing.

Proceeds will go to the Boyd Marin Museum of Science in San Rafael.

AN EVENING of entertainment and refreshments will be held March 11 at 6 p.m. at Agatha Pubb's, 621 Bridgeway, Sausalito as a benefit for the Marin Association for Mental Health.

Guests may drop in during the evening for the food and entertainment, according to Barbara Burke, chairman. Dr. Martin Blinder and Emily Baptiste will entertain from 7 to 8 p.m., she said.

MARIN COUNTY Day School Parents Group will hold a gala auction to benefit its scholarship fund on Friday at St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco.

A cocktail buffet will be served at 6 p.m. when the silent auction will also begin, continuing until 9:30 p.m. The live auction of 250 items, goods and services will begin at 8 p.m.

Featured items are a 1958 Edsel, a letter signed by Napoleon, two weeks at a Sun Valley condominium, a supper sail donated by the Oceanic Society, and catered dinners and cocktail parties.

Tickets may be obtained by parents and friends of MCDS from Melody Masters at the school in Corte Madera, according to parents group chairman Mrs. Joseph Lukes.

Auction chairman Mrs. I. C. Hamilton is assisted by Mrs. Barbara Heyneman, special events and Robert Young, auction treasurer.

The school offers some $50,000 annually in scholarships, acccording to the auction publicity chairman, Mrs. Leland LaFollette.

THE FOURTH annual "Wine Shine" will be held by the Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club of Marin County Saturday from 6 to 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Anton in Kent Woodlands.

Some 150 members and guests are expected to attend the benefit for the Arrowmont School of Arts and Crafts in Gatlinburg, Tenn., a Pi Phi supported program.

Mrs. Thomas Toldrian of Ross is chairman for the evening, which will be followed by a no-host dinner at the Blue Rock Inn in Larkspur.

A DAY at the horse races at Golden Gate Fields in Albancy has been scheduled for Friday at the main fund-raising event of the Scholarship Committee of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers.

The guests will leave by bus from the Marin Civic Center parking lot at 10:30 a.m. for luncheon at the Turf Club and the races. The gorup will return to the Civic Center at 6:30 p.m.

Mrs. William J. Silvas of Terra Linda is chairman of the day, and Mrs. Vincent Van Riper, committee president, said that proceeds will go to the volunteers' scholarship awards. Last year over $7,300 was given in such awards.

A RUMMAGE and bake sale will be held Friday and Saturday by the Women's Guild of the San Geronimo Valley Presbyterian Church at the church in San Geronimo.

Sale hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m., Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, according to Betty Lindquist, chairman.

Phyllis Ann Zimmerman Is Engaged

Phyllis Ann Zimmerman of Trona and Kent Knobelauch of Novato are planning a Sept. 7 wedding at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Novato.

Phyllis is the daughter of George A. Zimmerman of Mountain Home, Ark. She is the sister of Mrs. David Bermany and David Zimmerman and the granddaughter of Knifer Zimmerman of Gibsonville, N.C. The future bride was graduated from Trona High School and will be graduated in May from Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma with a BS degree in nursing. She is a volunteer resident assistant at the Crisis Center in Tacoma.

Kent is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Knobelauch of Novato and the brother of Karl and Kris Knobelauch. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kase of Santa Rosa. He is a graduate of Novato High School and will also receive a degree in May from Pacific Lutheran University.

Beneath It All, Fashion Today Offers Contemporary Clothing

By PHYLLIS FELDKAMP
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — No matter how much you spend for your clothes, you expect them to give you the maximum mileage for your dollar. How to stretch one's wardrobe is a preoccupation these days, not only with the girl in the wash'n wear Clovis Ruffin jersey — but with everyone.

It is an accepted fact in the fashion business that the days when women threw out all last year's clothes and bought a whole new wardrobe every year (if indeed they ever did) are over.

It's more a case of adding and subtracting now and of shifting separates around from season to season.

THIS SPRING, there are some definite trends the long-range planner ought to keep in mind. Then, when she hits the shops she can avoid costly mistakes.

Skirt lengths (are they going up, are they going down?) tend to be a bore. Still, forewarned is forearmed, and you should know that it would be highly advisable to select skirts, and dresses this spring that have reasonably deep hems.

ANOTHER DIRECTIONAL signal to heed is a change in silhouette — mostly, a looser, fuller top. The shape is always easy and away from the body but takes many forms — short caftan, blouson, full-cut poet's shirt, or bolero-like flyaway top.

Although you will find a certain amount of starchy fabrics (ticking in red, white, green, navy, or bright blue and white is a favorite) in this style in dresses as well as in separates, most fabrics for spring are thin and airy — some are rather gauzy.

IN WOOLS, the sheer fabric is tops, too, nun's veiling being put to wide use.

Layering, in the sense of the layered look of shirt, shrink, jacket, or whatever, is phasing out. But layered georgette is decidedly in.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

$35 A Week For Five Mouths? Husband's Generosity Too Much

DEAR HELEN:

How many terrific meals can you fix for a family of five on a household budget of $30-$35 a week? That's what my husband gives me for the supermarket.

I manage, with the help of hamburger, beans and casseroles made from leftovers, but instead of praise for my ingenuity, I play the straight woman for his "refrigerator jokes."

Whenever we have company, he starts up. I'm the little wife who "recycles hash," and feeds him the "dog's rejects." He calls himself "the human garbage disposal," and says he's eaten so many noodles lately his tapeworm has an identity crisis. Naturally, people think he's the funniest thing since Henny Youngman, and I'm supposed to smile brightly and take it.

But I'm darn tired of hash and noodles too. His constant one-liners make me look stingy, when he's the one who insists I hold the food bill down to about one-tenth of his salary. I've tried to tell him how this feels, but . . . What do you do when your husband still plays the grandstand at your expense and you're — QUIETLY SIMMERING?

DEAR SIMMERING:

Try some one-liners yourself: like "Shell out or shut up, dear." Or, "Who are you kidding, a tapeworm wouldn't stay with a family that has to eat on $30 a week!" Or "You're terribly funny — to everyone but the cook!" (And indicate in a wifely way that you'll really embarrass him next time around.)

In other words, if your husband is so hyped on getting a laugh that he makes you look a fool, show him how it feels to look a fool.

The clincher, of course, is to let him do the shopping for you. A month of facing the high cost of everything — even beans — should convince him that a family of five can't eat well on one-tenth of his salary — H.

P.S. While you're at it, how about a push for a joint checking account and more equal rights in your family?

DEAR HELEN:

My husband just retired from a demanding executive job. Now that he isn't pushing 12 hours a day, I guess he feels he should make up for lost time.

I'm still working part time, therefore tired. His excessive ardor is more than I can take. It's like he's obsessed with something he only thought of two or three times a month, back then.

He's even flirting with other women, which he never did before. Says he may take a mistress . . . to "help restore his powers." I think he's fooling.

Could you say a few words about retired men taking up hobbies that don't have to do with the bedroom? Like golf or fishing. — NEEDS A REST

DEAR NAR:

Retired men need more than bedroom pursuits to keep them occupied.

There, I've said it.

But your husband probably won't listen — until YOU become more loving. I'd guess he's suddenly fearful about many things: old age, general "unwantedness," potency; and sexual athletics may be his way of proving he's still alive.

Couldn't you manage a vacation, plus some renewed ardor to help him prove it? Once he becomes sure of himself again, I think he'll find time for other hobbies, too. — H.

IMPROVE YOUR BEAUTY

Some Results Should Be Noticed

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate
(Eleventh in a series of 15 articles.)

This is the fourth week of my eight week Beauty Improvement Plan. If you started at the beginning, the worst is over. The first few weeks are always the hardest when dieting.

By now you have become somewhat accustomed to eating less, and your muscles have probably lost all or most of the soreness which exercise causes at the beginning of an exercise program. Also, you are beginning to get some results, a few small encouraging signs of what is to come.

Most important, you have taken that first step toward a prettier figure more energy and a more vibrant way of life. It is difficult to get started on a self improvement plan but once a woman adheres to one for as long as two weeks she is usually hooked. I hope you have been using the menus and doing the exercises I have given you.

REDUCERS ALWAYS wish to know if it matters how they divide their food instake. Most authorities agree that it is a mistake to skip a meal. Study after study has shown this to be true. The dieter becomes tired, and often irritable, and then makes up for the skipped meal by overeating at the next one. However, one study in England indicated that some women are more likely to stay on a diet if their food is divided into two larger meals daily.

The women in that program were shown a list of 40 meals, each supplying 500 calories. They chose two for each day and reduced very successfully. The theory behind this is that they were better satisfied by two larger meals than by three smaller ones. The entrants were allowed drinks without sugar or milk or alcohol.

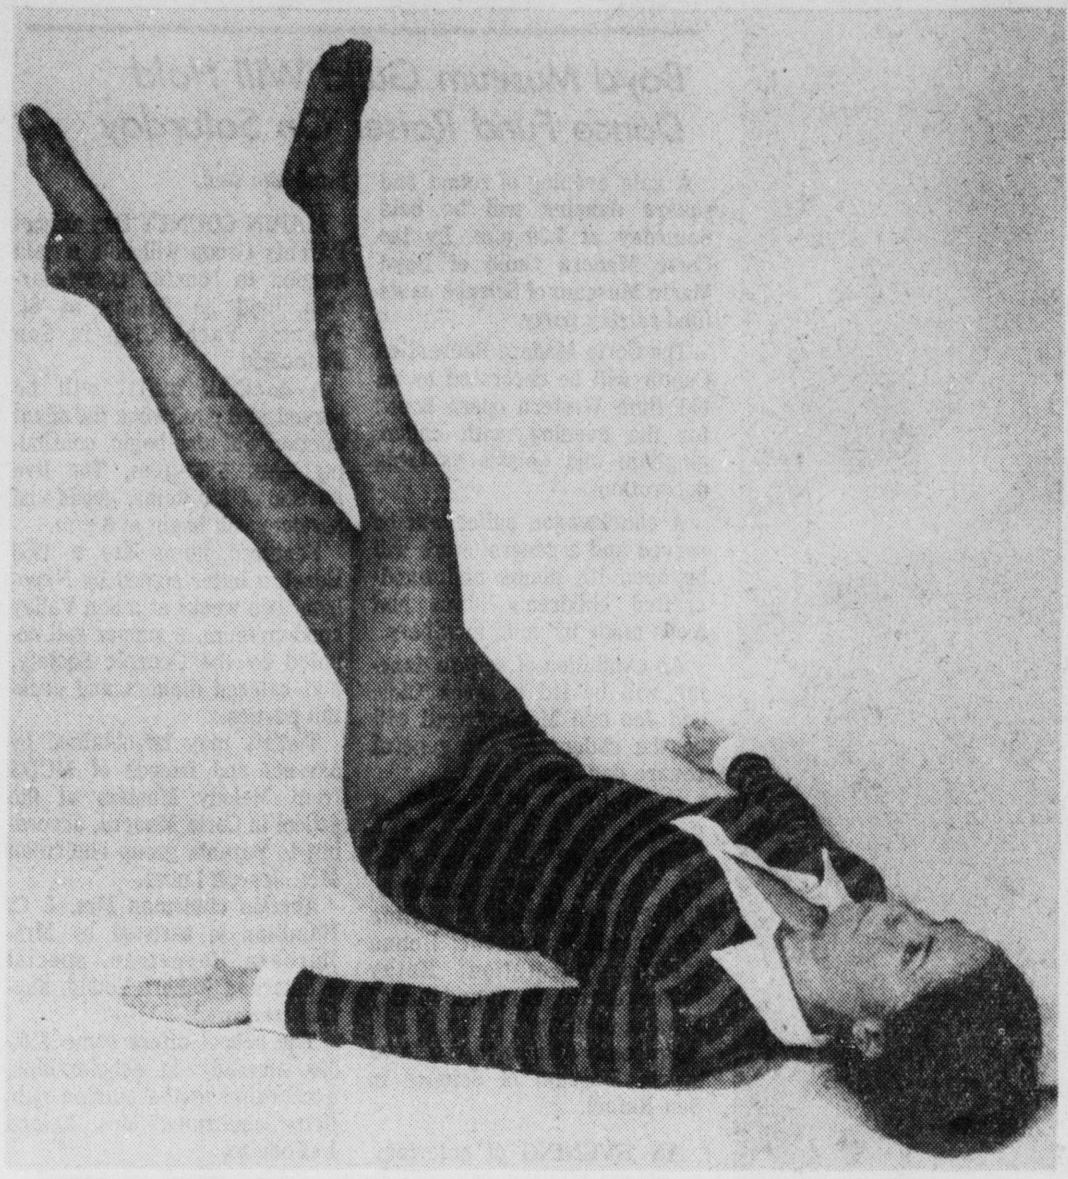
The "Nibble All Day" theory is popular with some. The allowable food for the day is distributed into four or even six smaller meals. There is some evidence that women lost most successfully with this plan. If you have been a habitual nibbler I think this might suit you best.

Danger! Be sure you do not nibble more than you should! This plan also seems to lower blood cholesterol.

YOU CAN choose a middle of the road policy. In this the food is divided into three meals daily but you can save a piece of fruit or a glass of juice or milk or some other item from the allowed menus and eat it in between meals. I suggest that you divide your daily allowance any way which seems best for you. The main thing is to be sure to keep within the daily calorie count.

If your first three weeks are not yet over, stick with it! Soon you will be so happy you did. I will be rooting for you and will be back with more help next Monday.

(Next Monday: Follow suggested tips to make reducing easy).



THIS IS ONE of the best exercises for contouring thighs. Lie on your back on the floor with your arms resting on the floor away from your sides. Lift both legs up to a position half way to right angles to the body. Keep your legs stiff as you swing them as far apart as comfortable. Swing them toward one another and cross them. Swing apart and back and across. Keep the knees stiff and cross with first one leg and then the other in front.

The demand for denim is making things rosy for cotton farmers. In 1968, the cotton farmers got $38.3 million from cotton for denim. In 1972 they got $87.5 million for cotton gone to denim making.

Hub Cooperative Nursery School Elects New Officers

Arthur Fruncillo of San Anselmo is the new president of the San Anselmo Cooperative Nursery School. His daughter, Gina, 4, attends the school as does his foster son, Joey, 2.

The school's purpose is to provide a low cost, high quality, parent participation, preschool growth environment for 2 to 4-year-olds, according to Fruncillo.

A native of Ardmore, Okla., Fruncillo attended Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., received a degree from Sonoma State College and took graduate courses in radio, television and film at Temple University in Philadelphia. He and his wife, Susan, have lived in Marin for five years.

Fruncillo is cochairman of the Marin County Foster Parents Association. His hobbies are photography, film and technology.

He is employed as a waiter at LaCasa Italian Restaurant.

Members are planning a garage sale to raise funds for the school and will have an open house for parents of prospective students.

Other officers are Mmes. Brian Wittenkeller, vice president; Russell Hill, secretary; Ted Freeman, treasurer, and Andrew Ragnes and Richard Beaver, membership cochairman.

'Little Strokes' Cause Trouble

NEW YORK (UPI) — An often unsuspected cause of mental and physical incapacity is a series of "little strokes."

A stroke occurs when the blood supply to a part of the brain is reduced or cut off. This can be caused by a blood clot or by hemorrhage — bleeding from a brain artery that has a blowout. When the nerve cells of a part of the brain don't get blood, the part of the body controlled by these nerve cells cannot function properly.

The American Medical Association says little strokes may start when a person is in the 30s or 40s, striking silently at night or passing almost unnoticed as a sudden dizzy spell.

70-Year Member Of PEO Honored

Mrs. Richard Crane of San Rafael was honored at a dinner at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio Feb. 25 for her 70 years of membership in the PEO.

Mrs. Crane, now a member of Chapter SS in Novato, became a member of PEO, Chapter E in Denver in 1904 and was a member of that chapter for two years. After her children were born she became a member of Chapter A there and then became a charter member and president of AG Chapter.

The reciprocity dinner in Ignacio for the five chapters in Marin was sponsored by the SS Chapter of Novato, where Mrs. Crane, now 93 years old, is a member. Her daughter Mrs. Barbara Carter of Novato is also a member of SS Chapter and has been a member of PEO since 1942.

Mrs. Crane is also the mother of Mrs. Mary Kaye Haynes of Redondo Beach and Richard Crane of Dallas, Tex. She has six grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Her husband died in 1961, and she moved from Denver to Novato in 1962. She was born and reared in Chillicothe, Mo.

Mrs. Crane turned 93 in December.

"1973 was the most eventful year for me. I received 15 cards in one mail delivery — I was beginning to think I was a VIP," she said.

She is a life member of the Nova Marin Grandmothers Club and Novato Senior Citizens and also a member of St. Francis of Assisi Episcopal Church in Novato.

Very alert, Mrs. Crane's hobbies are knitting, crocheting and reading. She particularly likes history, and she formerly wrote and had short stories for children published. She also sang and did solo work in the church when she was younger, she said. She also recalled hearing the great operatic voices of Caruso, Melba and Galli Curci.

The 25 members of SS chapter presented Mrs. Crane with a lap robe embroidered with their names. Mmes. Warren Clark of Novato and John Blecka of San Rafael assembled the robe, which is in the PEO colors of yellow and white.

Mrs. Winston Wishon of Novato was hostess for the dinner, and chairman was Mrs. Roy Anderson of San Rafael, president of the organization.

Mrs. Walter B. Hall Is Elected President Of Vine Village Guild

Mrs. Walter B. Hall of Tiburon is the newly elected president of the Vine Village Guild, which helps support the home for mentally handicapped adults in Napa.

Mrs. Hall said plans for the new guild include monthly lunches in members' homes through June, an April 27 sporting goods auction and two other fund-raising events. All proceeds from the events will go to the 45-acre ranch, Vine Village, which was founded by Dante Bagnani and Mr. and Mrs. George Kerson, all of Marin.

Mrs. Hall said she and her husband, chairman of the periodontology department of the University of the Pacific Dental School in San Francisco, moved to Marin from Seattle a year and a half ago because of the special education programs for their own two handicapped sons, Walter S. Hall, 8, and Gregory K. Hall, 6.

Fran Hall was born in Yakima, Wash., and is a graduate of St. Joseph's Academy and has an education degree from Seattle University Cornish Art School. She has taught school in Edmonds, Wash., near Seattle, and at the University of Washington experimental education unit for the handicapped. In Marin, Mrs. Hall often does substitute teaching for special education classes.

She is a past president of the Pobble Auxiliary which staffs the shop selling handmade articles of handicapped persons, located in Novato, and is a board member of the auxiliary. She also is treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary to the San Francisco Dental Society and a board member of the dental auxiliary in Marin.

MRS. WALTER B. HALL
Heads Vine Village Guild

She is a member of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary and a past president of the symphony and opera guilds in Seattle.

Mrs. Hall enjoys playing the piano with the family, golfing, swimming and skiing, but her favorite occupation is painting oil landscapes and still lifes. Opera star Beverly Sills owns one of her paintings.

Mrs. Hall will be installed guild president at a bridge luncheon at her home March 14, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Other new guild officers who will also be installed are Mmes. Jerry L. Good of San Rafael, vice president; Patrick Brownstone, of Novato, recording secretary; Joseph Ciatti of Mill Valley, corresponding secretary; Aaron Jacob of San Rafael, treasurer, and Wallace Sommers of San Rafael, historian.

Topic For Oriental Series Is Told

"Oriental Rugs in the Decorative Arts" will be the topic for the fifth in a series of lectures on Oriental rugs, which will be given Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Tamalpais Retirement Residence in Greenbrae.

Lecturer will be Ronald Schwarz, owner of an antique and gift store in San Francisco.

The series of public lectures is sponsored by the Marin Symphony Association and will conclude on March 13.

Spring's Rings

Rings bound to start conversations are on the assembly line for spring. These include one that looks like a gold cage made of a network of textured bars.

Friends School Sets Bay Area Reunion

A reunion for alumni in the Bay Area will be held by the Friends' Central School of Overbrook, Pa., with William T. Phillips of Mill Valley as chairman.

The informal reunion will be 4 to 7 p.m. March 21 at the Fairmont Hotel. Cocktails will be served and slides shown of the campus and school activities. Phillips, reservations chairman, said that alumni and their spouses are invited.

Notion Rings

Gold notions for fingers are going to be "in" for spring. To wit: a ring that looks like a spool of thread; a ring that looks like a zipper.

I-J OFFERS FORMS FOR ENGAGEMENTS & WEDDING STORY INFORMATION

Forms for engagement and wedding story information to be printed in the Independent-Journal are available from the I-J offices in San Rafael, Mill Valley, Novato and Petaluma.

Wedding forms should be returned promptly to the I-J office in your area and information will be printed after the wedding. No wedding story or photograph will be printed if received later than seven days after the wedding. Photographers should be urged to submit a print of the wedding picture promptly. Color photos cannot be used.

An engagement form may be accompanied by a professional black and white photograph, which may be picked up at the I-J office after its publication. Snapshots, polaroid or color photos are not suitable. Engagement announcements are not printed unless received at least 30 days prior to wedding date.

Saturday night, 10 o'clock, bumper to bumper on Fourth Street. "That's where it's going on, man."

Cruising Is Where It's At, Man!

Here they come, around the corner. Rock and roll on the radio, taking furtive tugs on a can of Coors, riding low in a car with its engine tuned so fine and its chrome bejeweled by the lights from the street, three young men in car club jackets pull out into the strip.

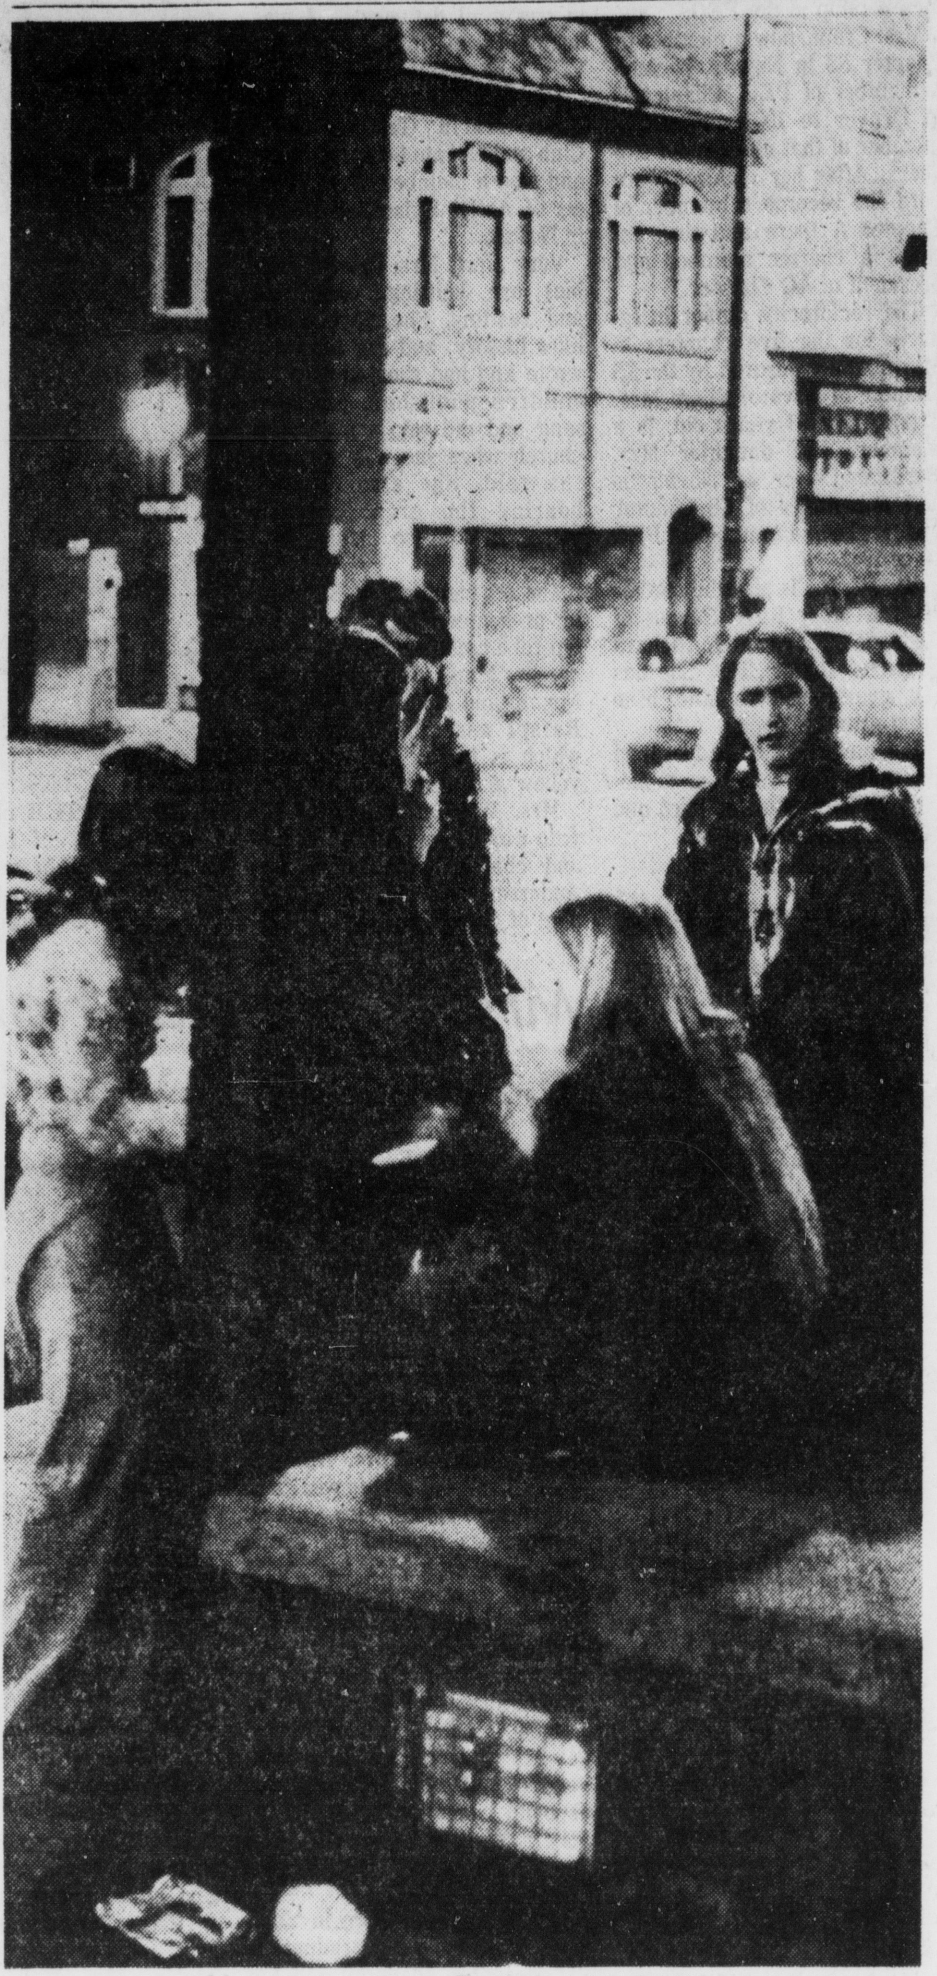
Seeking what? Freedom? Independence? Three chicks looking for same thing? Whatever the reasons for "Crusing 1974," they were the same in 1964, or 1954.

I-J photographer Alfred M. Arn, traveling to many a night-time assignment, has witnessed the decline in the last few years of cruising on San Rafael's Fourth Street.

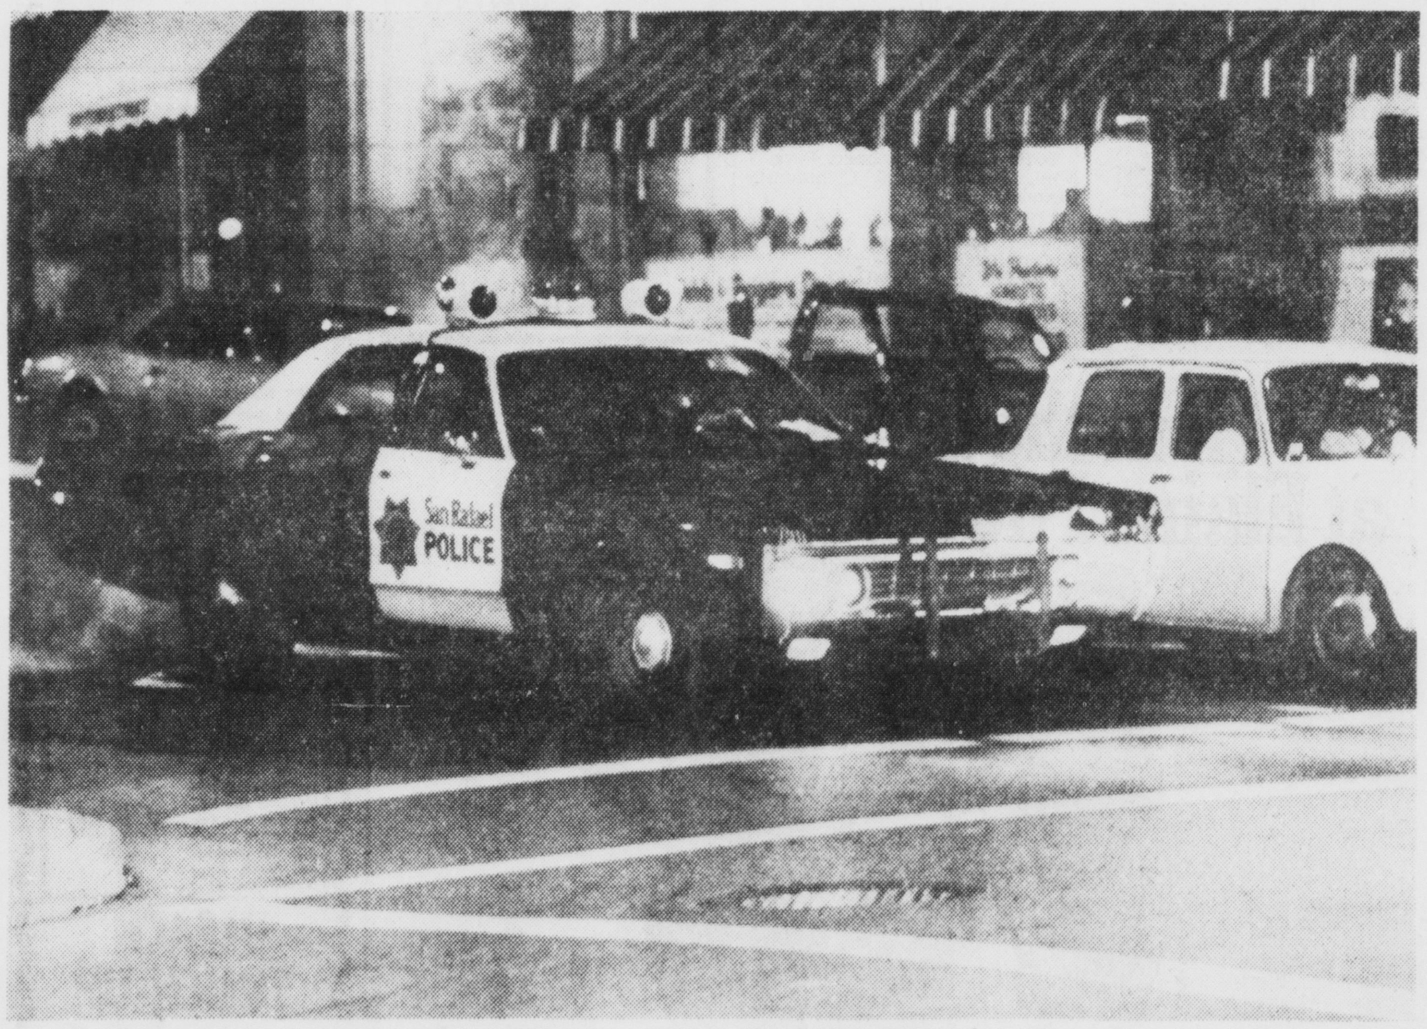
Then, most of the cruising scenes in "American Graffiti," directed by George Lucas of San Anselmo, were filmed on Fourth Street in San Rafael during the summer of 1972. And since the release of that movie, Arn observes in the photographs on this page, Fourth Street again is the place for being young and alive on a Saturday night, when, gas shortage or no, everything is right with the world.

Street corner talking, back seat necking, scoring a six pack, beating a deuce coupe out of the hole when the light turns green — are all part of the attraction, then and now.

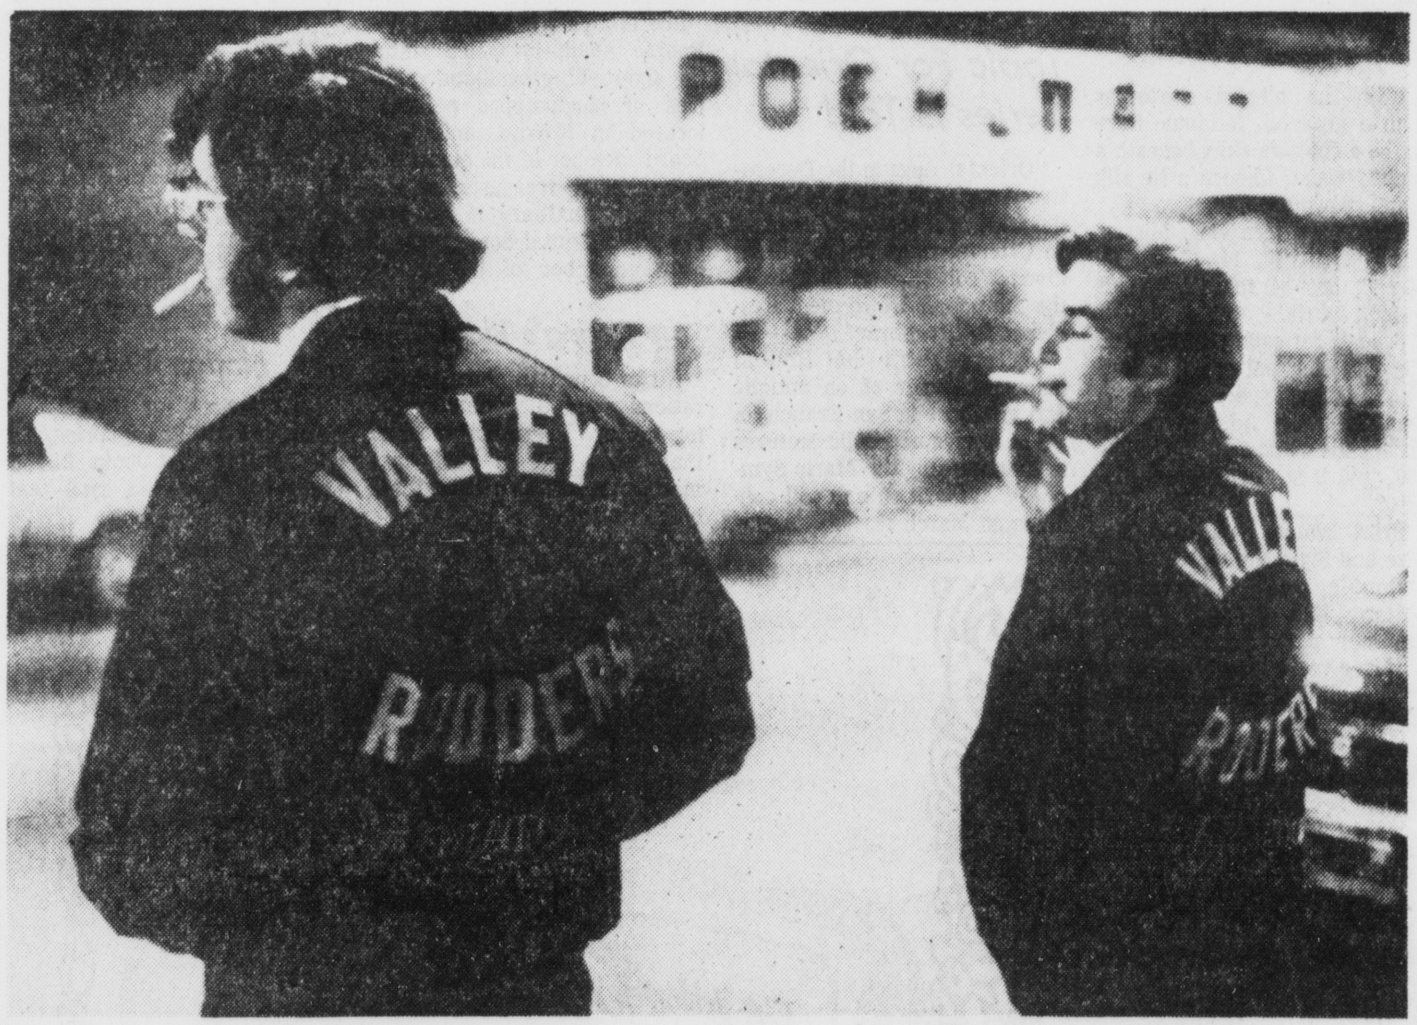
And if it all seems aimless, then maybe that's the reason for doing it when a young person is on the brink of accepting a lifetime of responsibility. So back and fourth they go, the young people in their cars, just like the Beach Boys' old song: "Round, round, get around, I get around, yeah, get around, round, round, I get around."



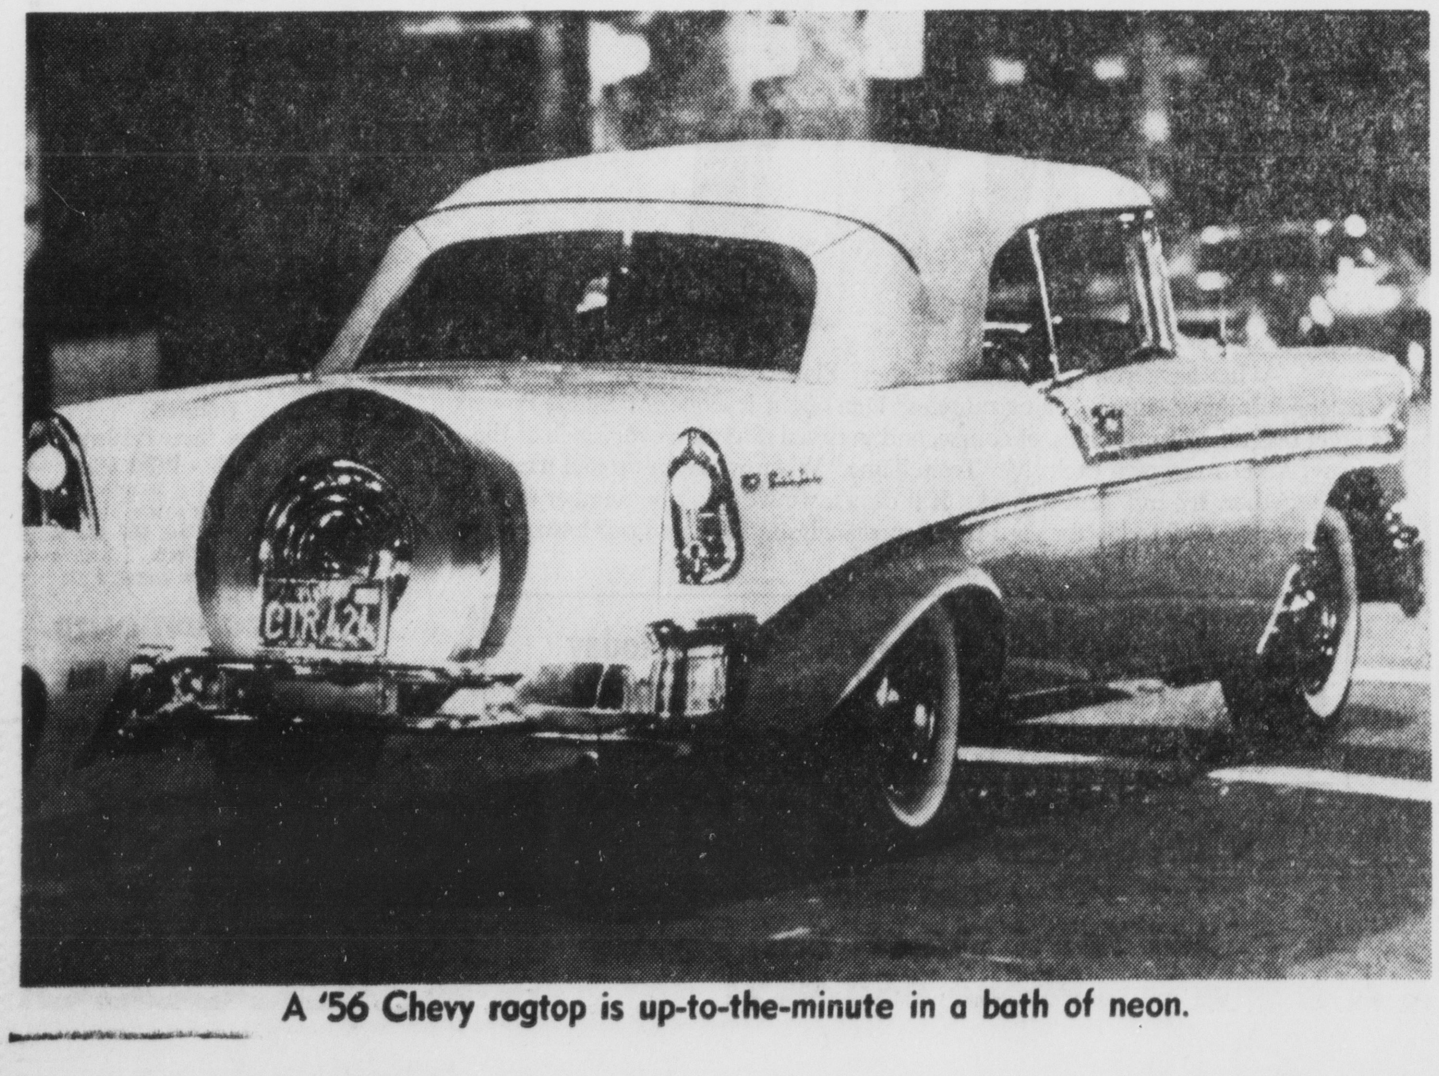
Hanging out at Fourth and D.



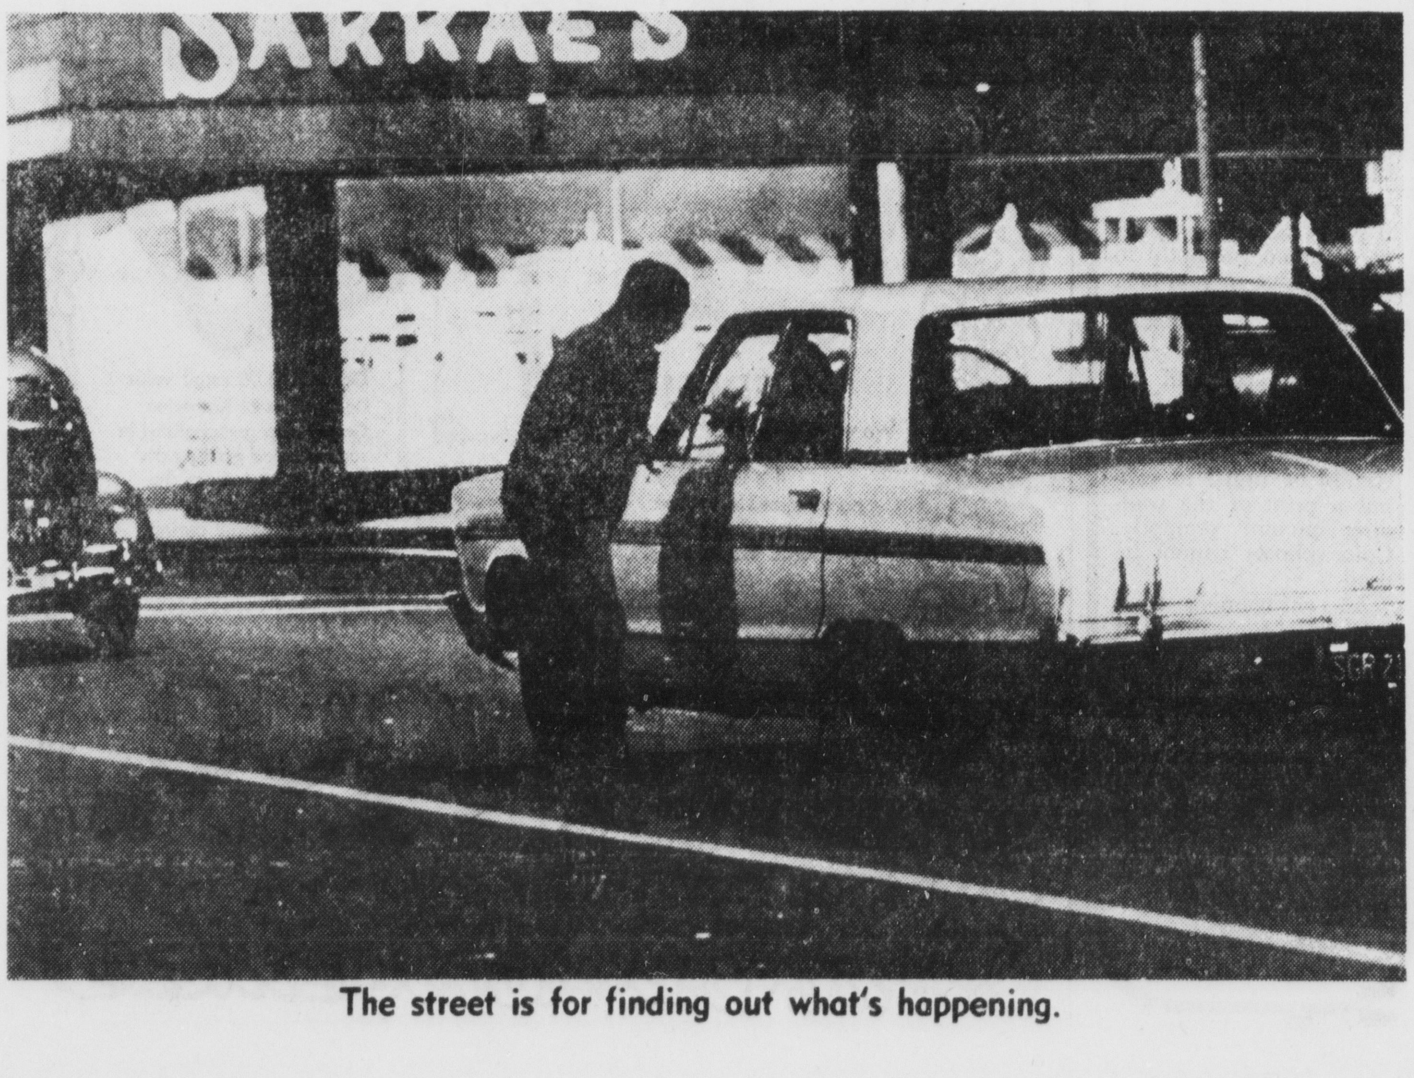
When "the heat" is around, you cool it.



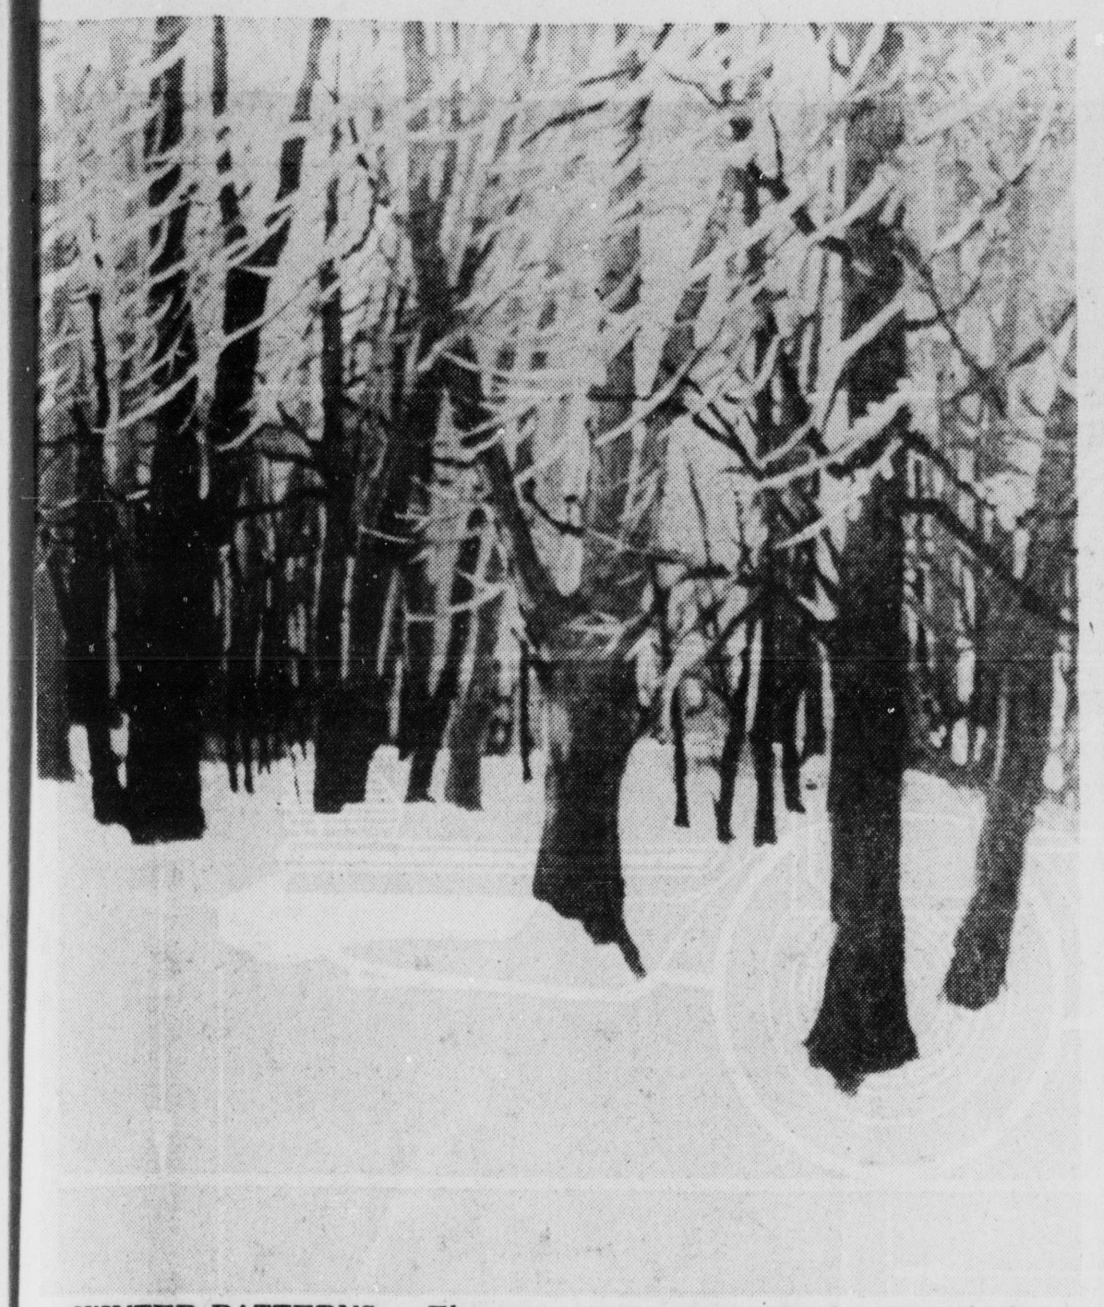
Members of the Valley Rodders, smokes in place, check out the scene.



A '56 Chevy ragtop is up-to-the-minute in a bath of neon.



The street is for finding out what's happening.



WINTER PATTERNS — Eleanor Elsocht's acrylic painting in warm browns, blues, and deep pinks defines a sparkling wintry snow scene. It is one of the award-winning paintings in the Marin Society of Artists' current "Light Show."

ART REVIEW

Society Of Artists' Light Show Continues Through March 24

By ADA GARFINKEL

Real light as a medium of expression — neon, fluorescent, incandescent, laser, holographic, and reostat-controlled — has been employed by artists for more than a decade.

In the Marin Society of Artists' "Light Show," however, the term "light" is descriptive of implied, rather than real content.

The sun as a prime source of light is depicted in Phyliis Bragdon's "Homage to the Sun," a luminous watercolor. Its full-bodied, sensuous colors are activated in a circular movement around a spinning sun. A corona of red outlines the sun's whirling, distorted form.

A silvery "Full Moon" on a midnight blue ground, an acrylic painting by Frederick Cole, and Ann Bernauer's "Planet I" rendered in lozenge-shaped dots with watercolor marking pens, are also celestial light sources.

A vaporous curtain of atmospheric dust parted slightly to reveal a sliver of clear white light is the content of Nelcy Taric's "Ray of Hope," a blueprint print.

A spiritual kind of light emanates from Lila Wahrhaftig's torch-shaped flame in her blue-and-gold aquatint-engraving titled "And There Was Light." Also from Dede Sievers' "Aurum III," a stained, unprimed, Rothko-like canvas.

Al Violante's "The Light at the End of the Tunnel" translates a psychological phrase into pictorial terms with laminated plastic discs and rectangles in receding sizes.

Plastic and glass as transparent light sources are seen in Barbara Blume's contour figure drawing on sandwiched panels of clear cast-acrylic, and in Hilda Kaster's glass sculpture. In the latter, a segment of a splintered auto windshield is augmented with small additional fragments of glass and light-catching, lozenge-shaped plastic pebbles.

The manipulated surfaces of Esther Mae Riley's found, stained-wood assemblage-sculpture is adequately described by its title — "Lights and Shadows."

A blazing furnace provides light in Hazel Stitt's watercolor, "The Glassblower," while Margaret Ward's "Red Rock Falls," and Edy Herget's "Igloo" — both done in acrylics — depict the icy cold light of winter in specific regions.

Swatches of color with white as light is used innovatively by Robert Elsocht showing a garage interior which houses his blue-and-green "Cadillac 1928."

Cash prizes were awarded to Ann Bernauer, Frederick Cole, Nelcy Tarics, and Tony Williams, and merit awards to Barbara Blume, Eleanor Elsocht, Joyce Elsocht, Joyce Livingston, and Lila Wahrhaftig.

This exhibit will continue through March 24, and may be seen daily from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. The Marin Society of Artists' gallery is located in the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Mariner May Confirm Theory About Mercury

PASADENA (UPI) — American space experts hope Mariner 10's forthcoming flyby of Mercury can confirm what the Russians recently learned—that the tiny planet may have a thin hydrogen atmosphere.

A spokesman at the Caltech Jet Propulsion Laboratory said yesterday the presence of hydrogen might remotely indicate Mercury has some form of water.

Mariner 10 is expected to fly within 625 miles of the hot planet during the the last week of this month, scanning Mercury for the elements of its mysterious atmosphere.

Russian Prof. Nikolai A. Kozyrev said last month that their spectral analysis indicated that Mercury may be wreathed in a thin ribbon of light gas, such as hydrogen.

American space ventures so far have been unable to confirm the Russian findings.

Dr. A. Lyle Broadfoot, a NASA investigator, said he thought the most likely elements in Mercury's environment would be hydrogen and helium.

Hash Smuggling Ploy Is Foiled

CHICAGO (UPI) — A 20-year old college student thought he had the perfect way to smuggle drugs into the United States, the American Medical Association reported yesterday: Put hashish oil in 26 small rubber balloons and swallow them.

But unfortunately for the youth, and fortunately for police, one of the balloons ruptured in flight from Morocco and the student became drowsy, lethargic and disoriented upon arrival at Kennedy International Airport, the Journal said.

The student made it to Baltimore, but the symptoms had become so pronounced that he was admitted to Sinai hospital.

X-rays at the hospital showed a string of small, oblong objects in his stomach. Sixty hours later, the student had successfully passed all 26 of the hashish filled balloons, the report said.

English Credit Offered Seniors

High School seniors with above average ability in English may receive college credit if they pass a test at the state college, Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke announced today.

The student must pay a $15 fee and spend three hours taking the test. They may receive up to six semester units at any of the system's 19 campuses.

Deadline for applying is April 19 and the test is given on May 11.

Students may apply at California State College, Sonoma, in Rohnert Park or San Francisco State University in San Francisco.

MUSIC REVIEW

Enthusiastic Listeners For A Baroque Concert

By VERA M. OLMSTED

There seems to be no flagging of interest in Baroque instruments; in fact, their popularity increases as more people themselves play such previously neglected instruments as the recorder, baroque flute, and harpsichord, possibly due to the availability of these instruments in reasonably authentic reproductions.

A large and enthusiastic group of listeners, including a good number of performers themselves, came to the College of Marin Fine Arts Theater Saturday evening to hear a concert by two masters, both renowned in their respective fields.

Frans Brueggen, Dutch recorder virtuoso, and Alan Curtis, harpsichordist and professor of music at the University of California, presented a selection of small but enchanting works, plus the stately and compelling sonata in B minor for transverse flute and harpsichord by J. S. Bach.

The evening was not without its distracting moments. After the footlights dimmed Brueggen stepped forward to announce a change in the program, a common occurrence, he said, during the Baroque era, when people changed their minds quite readily.

Since the Fine Arts Theater is not an intimate salon in a music patron's home, many people in the back hall had a hard time hearing, particularly when Brueggan's soft accented English had to compete with a disruptively noisy air-conditioning unit in the rear hall.

The most commanding and engrossing work on the program was the Bach sonata. Brueggen displayed his mastery of the baroque flute, an instrument quite different in sound from today's modern flute.

The transverse flute existed side by side with the recorder, but the needs of the concert hall eventually led to the decline of the recorder and the improvement of the flute, (Brueggen questions these "improvements"), and the evolution of the flute as we know it today.

The baroque flute has a very sweet sound, and certain notes are soft enough to be almost inaudible. Brueggen plays with a stylistically impeccable technique, his phrasing and articulation being beyond reproach. The cantabile second movement was especially fine. Curtis's accompaniment at the harpsichord was clear, concise, and intense.

Brueggen substituted G. P. Telemann's sonata in D minor for a suite by Francis Dieupart in order to play a work written for alto recorder. This instrument has a mellow, soft-lustered tone, not capable of strong contrast between loud and soft without the pitch being affected.

Telemann, an immensely prolific composer, was better known in his day than Bach. The fast movements were particularly enjoyable — Brueggen is able to coax more sound from the recorder than seems possible.

Curtis performed several harpsichord pieces by three French clavecinists, Jacques Duphly, Armand-Louis Couperin, and Jean-Philippe Rameau. Curtis used his own sonorous Skowroneck-built two manual harpsichord. He played with his usual clarity and style, deftly ornamenting where needed and pointing up contrasts with judicious changes of registration.

The program concluded with the charming sonata in C major by the almost unknown composer Philibert de Lavigne. The work is scored for a soprano recorder, which has a pleasing and expressive timbre.

The whole work was a delightful romp, full of cheerful melodies, runs and trills, particularly the tricky last movement "Tambourin."

Vets End Occupation Of Cranston's Office

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A small band of disabled veterans, boisterous but weak from their prolonged hunger strike, ended their 19-day occupation of U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston's office after a tense weekend meeting with the VA's national director.

Protest leader and former Marine, Ron Kovic, a 27-year-old paraplegic, said the head of the Veterans Administration assured him the vets' grievances would be given closer attention.

"We won our victory," exulted Kovic. "(VA Director Donald) Johnson came and met with us. He came to us. We have won this one and now we can go home."

Kovic and seven other dissident Vietnam vets, some of them confined to wheelchairs, left the West Los Angeles Federal Building with raised clenched fists and cheers from a small group of supporters.

The sit-in and hunger strike began in the senator's office last month to protest what Kovic and the others charges were filthy VA hospitals, measly benefit checks, inadequate treatment and lack of attention from Washington bureaucrats.

Johnson, during a crowded noisy meeting with the vets in their 13th floor encampment Saturday, assured them he would respond to their proposals within three weeks and would meet with Kovic and the other protest leaders in the coming month.

The VA chief, stung by the vets's biting criticism during the meeting, finally lashed out with controlled anger:

"I totally reject that any service-connected veteran has been turned away from any hospital. Do not tell me that I have no empathy for the veterans of this country.

"I fought in World War II," he said. "My father died in WWI ... and my foster father was disabled in that war. My son is a Vietnam-era disabled veteran.

"I am not insensitive to the needs of the veteran," Johnson told the protestors ringed around him.

Johnson strongly defended the Nixon Administration's record on veterans affairs.

Security Hiked At White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Secret Service, alarmed by the possibility of aircraft trying to hit the White House, has bolstered its armament with a shoulder launched antiaircraft missile system, according to the current issue of Aviation Week magazine.

The magazine said the new missile, called the "Redeye," is designed to be fired from the shoulder by foot soldiers.

The missile has a heat seeking guidance system which trails the hot exhaust of an aircraft.

Suddenly, everyone wants a car with sensible size, reasonable weight, good mileage and safety. The Mercedes-Benz.

For some automobile manufacturers, a car with all of these qualities is years away. Every Mercedes-Benz Sedan has them all right now.

But that is nothing new. Mercedes-Benz has engineered its products with efficiency in mind for decades. By necessity.

Sensible size, reasonable weight

An example is the 450SE Sedan. It's smaller than America's best-selling sedan outside, but inside, big car room.

What about gasoline mileage? A 450SE gets better mileage than any domestic luxury sedan. A combination of reasons tells you why:

The 450SE has a unique engine. An overhead camshaft configuration, this V-8 is smaller than any domestic example. It uses less fuel, but doesn't sacrifice performance. Its computerized electronic fuel injection measures out fuel only as it's needed and helps this unique Mercedes-Benz engine produce better than 25% more power per cubic inch than any domestic luxury car.

The engine has an easier job. The 450SE weighs nearly half a ton less than the lightest domestic luxury car. Its shape was developed in the wind tunnel to slice through the air with low air resistance.

The 450SE has radial tires as standard equipment. They help produce better mileage because they have lower rolling resistance than other kinds of tires.

A smaller, more efficient engine, reasonable weight and a low drag shape. The reasons why a Mercedes-Benz 450SE gets up to 25% better mileage than domestic luxury sedans. And all without a sacrifice in performance.

Bear in mind, all of these fuel-saving advantages are found in the Mercedes-Benz with our largest engine. Our 6- or 4-cylinder models offer even greater mileage benefits. And Mercedes-Benz Diesel owners have always been quick to report extraordinary fuel economy.

Safety

The Mercedes-Benz 450SE Sedan combines over fifty separate and significant automotive safety elements, all engineered to complement one another.

No other manufacturer makes safety a more important element in car design. And no other manufacturer has held so long a commitment to better automobile safety as Mercedes-Benz. The results of this commitment are to be found in every model Mercedes-Benz builds.

The best resale value in America

Advanced engineering and fuel economy. Two reasons why, after three years, Mercedes-Benz automobiles have a better resale value than any car made in America. And not just better—the best. Who says so? Leasing sources—and the automobile industry itself. And it's been that way for years.

All of a sudden everyone wants design efficiency in an automobile. For that matter, these days everyone needs it. Mercedes-Benz has had it for years. Perhaps it's time you experienced it.

Mercedes-Benz. Engineered for today.

BASE HIT — Ricky Shoenstein swats the ball with his crutch, during his turn at bat in the wheelchair baseball game. Standing in back ground is Robert Mathison, San Francisco State University graduate student who is one of the Easter Seal Society's staff for the play days.

CATCH — Ricky Shoenstein warms up at catching with Mike Connor, last year's Marin prep athlete of the year, who is volunteer chairman for this year's Easter Seal fund campaign. Ricky also had the task of drawing the home plate for the ball game in the St. Isabella School recreation hall.

A Crutch And Wheelchair Funfest

By JEFF GREER

Ricky the relay-race runner pokes a crutch at one of the two balloons he must pop before his teammates can take their turn.

The bright blue balloon bounces away. A teen-age volunteer helper scrambles after it and holds it on the floor in front of the competitor.

Ricky tries to pop the balloon between both crutches. That doesn't work either. It oozes away like a greased pig would if it could float in air.

The girl volunteer retrieves it again.

The chunky, helmeted player deliberately lets himself fall on the stubborn balloon.

BANG!

The noise is almost drowned in the gleeful yells of Ricky's teammates, the speedsters. He laboriously gets himself up on his crutches — then hurls himself onto the second balloon.

BANG!

Ricky grins from ear to ear. He swings his crutches in mighty arcs, racing back to where his teammates wait fidgeting for their turns.

The next runner is in a wheelchair. He can't break the balloons with his hands — so while one volunteer holds them and another pushes the wheelchair, the youngster blows the balloons into oblivion by running over them with his wheels.

The third racer bites her balloons to death. The volunteers wince each time, sympathetically feeling the explosions sting the little girl's face. But she chortles with glee.

And so it goes, the whole noisy, laughter-filled afternoon. It is a two-and-a-half-hour session of the Easter Seal Society's weekly recreation and social program for orthopedically handicapped Marin County youngsters. These youngsters have trouble making their bodies work but their minds are as sharp as any professional athlete's.

The society's trained staff and volunteers provide regular programs and special events for more than 300 handicapped persons of all ages in Marin County. Thursday afternoons, the county's yellow minibuses deliver gleeful gaggles of youngsters to the gymnasium of St. Isabella's School in San Rafael.

Last Thursday was stormy. Only a dozen youngsters arrived (sometimes there are 30). There was a one-to-one ratio with the dozen junior high school volunteers who take turns helping the society staff at the play sessions. The volunteers are members of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, mostly junior high school students from all over Marin.

Older students from the College of Marin and San Francisco State University also helped the youngsters with games and craft projects and lent a hand to child bakers who made goodies for the afternoon snack.

Periodically, adult leader La Dawn Kemp put her fingers in her mouth and whistled a resounding blast. After stilling the children's hubbub, she explained the next activity.

As she explained what the children would do next, she strolled among the clustered youngsters. Her hands moved, almost unconsciously, to touch one child on his tousled head, pat another, helmeted, one on a shoulder.

Joining in the games Thursday was Mike Connor, Marin County's prep athlete of the year for 1973. The Redwood High School alumnus took time out from his freshman studies at Stanford University to visit the youngsters.

Connor is honorary chairman of the annual Marin County Easter Seal drive that began Thursday with the mailing of 68,000 letters to Marin residents and businessmen. The society needs $35,000 from donors to operate its many programs through the next 12 months.

Connor played catch; he pushed wheelchairs in relay races; he helped referee a hotly contested baseball game. The sturdy blond athlete wasn't worried that the children weren't all that impressed with his sports prowess.

He is used to such things. He was a volunteer worker in the Easter Seal program last year.

Also helping was a part-time Easter Seal Society staffer, Robert Mathison, a graduate student at San Francisco State. He began the afternoon with a serious discussion with six youngsters, helping them choose a team name.

All the children's suggestions evoked fast-moving things — "Rockets" and "Speedsters" and "Lightning."

"Speedsters" won; the opposing team picked "Wildcats."

Their wheelchair baseball game had all the trappings of a Candlestick Park slash, even to a shouting argument with the umpires.

A girl shortstop trapped a fly ball beneath her wheelchair and sped with it to home plate, "throwing out" a baserunner on crutches.

She was physically unable to throw it, but umpire Mathison explained, "She did the best she could. That's the big rule of the game."

The players were mollified. That was a rule they could understand.

Supervisors To Hear Fire Service Request

Marin County supervisors will be asked tomorrow to form a separate county service area to finance fire protection to the Country Club subdivision near San Rafael.

Donald S. Manion of 350 Margarita Drive tendered the request, saying area residents want improved fire service but not at the expense of annexing to the City of San Rafael.

Annexation procedures failed several months ago when owners of 56 per cent of the Country Club area's assessed valuation filed written protests.

Manion said area residents also oppose being "indiscriminately lumped together with other discrete and distinctive areas."

A single county service area for all unincorporated neighborhoods was recommended last month by County Administrator John F. Barrows.

The Local Agency Formation Commission, which must approve such taxing agencies, rejected the proposal.

Besides hearing Manion's request, supervisors, meeting at 9:30 a.m. at Civic Center, also will discuss Barrows' other solutions for improving fire protection to Bayside Acres, California Park, Los Ranchitos, Rafael Meadows, Santa Venetia and Bret Harte.

The areas are currently serviced by one fire truck located in Santa Venetia and the county fire stations in Woodacre and Marin City.

Woman's Heart Is Transplanted

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A middle-aged man received the heart of a Fremont, Calif., woman in a transplant operation at Stanford University Medical Center, it was disclosed today.

The operation took place Saturday and was the 67th heart transplant at Stanford by a surgery team headed by Dr. Norman Shumway.

The recipient's name was withheld at his request.

The donor was identified as Mrs. Barbara Box, 23, of Fremont. She died as the result of a gunshot wound at her home, which may have been self-inflicted.

Canada's greatest snowfall — 880 inches — was recorded at Keman, B.C., in the winter of 1956-57

A Weekend Rampage By Vandals

Vandals went on a spree in Corte Madera during the weekend, police reported today.

Police said vandals smashed a coin laundry sign in the Corte Madera Shopping Center and a large plate glass window at the home of Verona Paoli, 530 Tamalpais Drive, sometime Saturday night.

Incidents reported on Sunday were: an Independent-Journal newspaper rack was overturned and broken at a bus stop on Tamalpais Avenue; the same happened to a Chronicle newspaper rack in the Madera Shopping Center; several small trees were uprooted in the town park; the speaker was ripped from a pay phone in the Madera Shopping Center; and ash trays were overturned, magazines thrown about and a clothes hamper overturned at a laundromat in Town Square.

Jewelry Stolen

DALLAS (AP) — Movie star Greer Garson and Mrs. L. Storey Stemmons lost jewelry and silver and gold pieces worth more than $100,000 when their homes were burglarized last week, police reported.

Rent Collections Topic For Board

The Marin County Housing Authority board, meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at 47 Paul Drive, San Rafael, will take up ways to deal with failures to pay rent.

The board also will consider amending authority bylaws and review its schedule of maintenance charges and its policy on eligibility for occupancy of public housing.

Another Suit Is Filed By Bus Company

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Another lawsuit, the third in four months, was filed today by Marin Transit Systems Inc. in its claim that the Golden Gate Bridge and Marin County Transit districts drove the now defunct company out of business.

The latest suit, filed in U.S. District Court, asks the court to halt government payment of an additional $12 million grant to the bridge district for its bus and ferry system.

According to a press release from the private company, disbursement of the money would be illegal because "it is being used to compete with their company and drive it out of business."

Previous attempts by the company to get the government to stop making grants to the bridge district were brushed aside in Washington.

The company filed a $2.9 million action against the bridge district on Nov. 12 and a $1.3 million suit 10 days earlier against the county transit district. The two public districts withdrew their support of the company after three years of subsidizing it for more than $300,000.

Akeman Auction Nets $131,000

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Personal items and a farm belonging to country music comedian David (Stringbean) Akeman have been sold at public auction for $131,000.

Proceeds from the Saturday sale will be distributed to the heirs. The Akemans had no children.

Akeman and his wife, Estelle, were shot to death after surprising burglars at their modest farm home in rural Davidson County Nov. 10.

The 140 acre farm, divided into four tracts, were sold for $110,600. A 1974 Cadillac brought $7,450.

New Minimum Wage In Effect

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The $2 minimum hourly wage went into effect in California today, bringing pay raises to about 1.5 million workers.

The increase from $1.65 an hour especially will benefit youths, employees of small retail shops, students, waitresses and workers in recreation industries.

For the first time, men and household domestic workers will be given the benefit of state wage standards.

The increase to $2 an hour was authorized by the legislature last year and implemented by the state Industrial Welfare Commission.

Costly Fertilizer Still A Bargain

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Fertilizer costs may be up as much as 25 per cent over 1973, but it still will be profitable for farmers to fertilize, according to agronomist John Box.

"It boils down to this — producers cannot afford to rish anything that might reduce their 1974 yields below their long-term average," Box said.

U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Monday, March 4, the 63rd day of 1974 with 302 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Notre Dame football coach Knute Rockne was born March 4, 1888.

On this day in history:

In 1801, Thomas Jefferson became the first president to be inaugurated in Washington. He was the third chief executive.

In 1917, Jeanette Rankin, a Montana Republican, became the first woman member of Congress when she was sworn into the U.S. House of Representatives.

In 1963, the United States Supreme Court ruled against so-called railroad "featherbedding" under outmoded rules.

A thought for the day: American essayist Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "Nothing can bring you peace but yourself."

What Was Thought A Bargain Turns Out To Be Very Costly

A lady of my acquaintance dearly loves a bargain. She'll buy anything at all if she thinks the store is losing money on it, and she always wins a trick as cheaply as possible. Like all bargains, however, a cheap trick may occasionally prove very expensive.

EAST TAKES

West opened the jack of hearts, and East won with the ace. Seeing no great future in hearts, East returned the deuce of clubs.

South had the wit to play his low club, and West was happy to win the trick with her jack. Still smiling cheerfully, West chased the ace of clubs.

The rest of the smiling was done by South, who won the rest of the tricks. No matter what West returned declarer could win, draw trumps and win the game and rubber.

TOTAL SURRENDER

How did West hope to defeat the contract? She could be sure of winning two clubs and the ace of hearts, but what other trick could she hope to win? Clearly, West's play was a total surrender.

There was a chance to defeat the contract if East had the king of clubs. West's best play is to win the first club trick with the ace rather than the jack. Not as cheap a trick, but far more effective.

CLUB ACTION

West then leads the jack of clubs to her partner's king. East leads a third round of clubs, and West wins the setting trick by ruffing with the jack of spades.

The correct play of the clubs is easy when you can see your partner's hand, as declarer sees the dummy. It takes imagination for a defender who cannot see her partner's hand.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens the bidding with one club, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 10 9 8 5 3 2
♥- 7 4
♦- J 9 3
♣- Q 6.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You are tempted to mention your six-card major suit, but it pays to resist temptation. A hand with only a queen and a jack is simply not worth a response to an opening bid of one in a suit.

NEW LISTING

We have just listed a tastefully decorated 3 bedroom home in West Novato. This newly wallpapered country kitchen has all electric built-ins, and lots of cupboard space. Decorator wallpapers enhance the entry hall, master bedroom and both baths. Located on a pie-shaped lot at the end of a quiet cul-de-sac, the lighted front landscaping requires minimum maintenance, while the huge rear and side yards provide extra room for outdoor activities. Priced at only $41,500 for a quick sale.

NOTICE OF SALE OF PROPERTY DELINQUENT FOR NON-PAYMENT OF ASSESSMENT 132 OCEANA MARIN UNIT 5 ASSESSMENT DISTRICT IN THE COUNTY OF MARIN.

State of California, default having been made in the payment of the following named coupons, Principal #1 due 1-2-73, 286.76; Principal #2 due 1-2-74, 286.66; Interest #1 due 1-2-73; 224.08; Interest #2 due 7-2-73; 140.46; Interest #3 due 1-2-74; 140.46; and the holder of said bond having demanded in writing that the County Treasurer of the County of Marin, State of California, proceed to advertise and sell the lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond. Now, therefore, I give notice that I will on the 20th day of March, 1974, at the hour of 10:00 A.M. of said day, sell at public auction, the lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at my office in the Marin County Civic Center at San Rafael, California, unless the amount due on said bond and the accrued interest thereon together with the cost of publication of this notice, are paid, and that I will so sell the same to the person who will take the least amount of said lot or parcel of land and pay the full amount of unpaid principal and interest on said bond together with the cost of publication. The lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond and to be sold, is more particularly described, to-wit:

LOT 132, AS SHOWN ON THE MAP OF "OCEANA MARIN-UNIT 5," WHICH MAP WAS FILED FOR RECORD IN THE OFFICE OF THE COUNTY RECORDER OF THE COUNTY OF MARIN, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, ON THE 3RD DAY OF MARCH, 1972, IN BOOK 15 OF MAPS, AT PAGE 11.

The amount due on said bond up to the date of this notice is as follows: Due on principal thereof $4300.00; due on account of interest $604.72; due on account of penalties $112.84; total amount due on said bond $5017.56.

In order to avoid this sale, payment of the total amount above named will be required, together with the cost of publication made before such payment and the additional interest accruing up to the date of payment. Bond may be reinstated upon payment of amounts due, principal, interest, penalties, and fees, in the manner provided by law.

In the event of sale, such sale will include interest in addition to the above total amount due, accruing up to the date of sale, the cost of publication of notice of sale, and $1.00 for the issuance of certificate of sale.

The Independent-Journal is designated as the newspaper in which this notice shall be published.

MARIN COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA
NOTICE OF CONTRACTORS INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS OR BIDS

Sealed Proposals shall be filed with George H. Gnoss, Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, Room 315, Marin County Civic Center, San Rafael, California, until 2:00 P.M., March 11, 1974, for:

Construction of underground drainage facilities, including reinforced concrete pipes, drop inlets, turning structures, retaining wall and other miscellaneous items including dredging a portion of an existing channel and relocation of an existing sewer line.

The work shall be done in accordance with official plans and specifications prepared in reference thereto which may be inspected at the office of the Department of Public Works, County of Marin, Room 304, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, and may be purchased for $3.00 per set (non-refundable). Mailed requests shall be addressed to the Department of Public Works, County of Marin, P.O. Box 4186, Civic Center, San Rafael, California, 94903. Checks should be made payable to the County of Marin.

Public Notice

Proposals will be opened and read at 2:00 P.M., in Room No. 304-B, Marin County Civic Center, on the day specified above.

The award of the contract, if it be awarded, will be to the lowest responsible bidder whose proposal complies with the requirements prescribed. The award, if made, will be made within thirty (30) days after the opening of the proposals.

The Board of Supervisors has made a determination of the prevailing rate of hourly wages applicable to the work to be performed. Copies of this determination are on file in the office of the County Clerk, Civic Center, Room 315, San Rafael, California, and are available to any interested party upon request. Copies may be obtained from the Department of Public Works, Room 304, Civic Center.

The Board of Supervisors of the Marin County Flood Control and Water Conservation District reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

DATED: February 19, 1974
GEO. H. GNOSS,
Clerk
MARIN COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS
No. 263 Feb. 25, Mar. 4, 1974

NOTICE OF SALE OF PROPERTY DELINQUENT FOR NON-PAYMENT OF ASSESSMENT 130 OCEANA MARIN UNIT 5 ASSESSMENT DISTRICT IN THE COUNTY OF MARIN.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, default having been made in the payment of the following named coupons, Principal #1 due 1-2-73, 286.76; Principal #2 due 1-2-74, 286.66; interest #1 due 1-2-73; Interest No. 2 due 7-2-73, $392.00; 140.46; interest #3 due 1-2-74; 140.46; and the holder of said bond having demanded in writing that the County Treasurer of the County of Marin, State of California, proceed to advertise and sell the lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond. Now, therefore, I give notice that I will on the 20th day of March, 1974, at the hour of 10:00 a.m. of said day, sell at public auction, the lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond, or so much thereof as may be necessary, at my office in the Marin County Civic Center at San Rafael, California, unless the amount due on said bond and the accrued interest thereon together with the cost of publication of this notice, are paid, and that I will so sell the same to the person who will take the least amount of said lot or parcel of land and pay the full amount of unpaid principal and interest on said bond together with the cost of publication. The lot or parcel of land mentioned in said bond and to be sold, is more particularly described, to-wit:

LOT 132, AS SHOWN ON THE MAP OF "OCEANA MARIN-UNIT 5," WHICH MAP WAS FILED FOR RECORD IN THE OFFICE OF THE COUNTY RECORDER OF THE COUNTY OF MARIN, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, ON THE 3RD DAY OF MARCH, 1972, IN BOOK 15 OF MAPS, AT PAGE 11.

The amount due on said bond up to the date of this notice is as follows: Due on the principal thereof $4300.00; due on account of interest $604.72; due on account of penalties $112.84; total amount due on said bond $5017.56.

In order to avoid this sale, payment of the total amount above named will be required, together with the cost of publication made before such payment and the additional interest accruing up to the date of payment. Bond may be reinstated upon payment of amounts due, principal, interest, penalties, and fees, in the manner provided by law.

In the event of sale, such sale will include interest in addition to the above total amount due, accruing up to the date of sale, the cost of publication of notice of sale, and $1.00 for the issuance of certificate of sale.

The Independent-Journal is designated as the newspaper in which this notice shall be published.

Another Rabid Skunk Reported

A skunk, killed on an Inverness ranch Feb. 21, proved positive for rabies, County Health officials reported.

There were no known human or cattle exposures to the skunk, but a dog is being revaccinated for rabies and quarantined because it had played with the dead animal.

The skunk was the fifth rabid animal reported in Marin so far this year.

Philadelphian Is Violin Winner

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Peter Zazossky, 19, a Philadelphia violinist, won the first prize of $1,800 yesterday in the finals of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation competition for violin and cello.

In addition to the money, Zazossky will also make a symphony appearance in San Francisco with maestro Seiji Ozawa.

Judges considered this year's competition so difficult to judge that two second prizes of $800 each were awarded the two semifinals.

The $800 awards went to Paul Tobias, 27, New York, a cellist, and Eugene Fodor, 23, a violinist from Morrison, Colo.

Pottery Skills Will Be Shown

Oriental pottery techniques will be demonstrated tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room at Indian Valley Colleges.

Jean Biagini and Setzuko Nagasawa, internationally known ceramicists on a one-year lecture tour of the United States, will present the free lecture-demonstration which will include slides of Korean and Japanese ceramics.

Biagini has taught ceramics in Paris and Cambodia. He has done extensive research in ceramics of Southeast Asia, Persia, Nepal, China, Japan and Korea.

Nagasawa's works have been exhibited extensively in Japan.

Watergate Said Hurting Children

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Watergate scandal is causing harm to America's children, according to Dr. Lee Salk, director of Pediatric Psychology at the New York Hospital Cornell Medical Center.

Salk said in a magazine article that many parents have written him claiming that their children are reacting unfavorably to the whole Watergate situation. This happens, he said, "because children are taught to respect the President, who has allegedly done things that do not represent the kind of standards parents are trying to teach their children.

"And the President has done them without any kind of punitive action being taken against him thus far," Salk said. "This is very frightening to children."

Underwater Photography Hints Of Monsters In Loch Ness

Monster pictures tend to be a dime a dozen and most are palpable fakes. But somebody has taken an underwater photograph of the famous Loch Ness monster that has the experts frankly shaking their heads.

They consider the picture the best evidence yet for what a growing number of investigators have come to suspect — that there really is something huge, alive and unclassifiable prowling the depths of Scotland's biggest lake.

Last year a Boston-based team of investigators who call themselves the Academy of Applied Science spent the summer camped on the shores of Loch Ness, determined to bring back, if not "Nessie" (as the monster is called), then at least tangible evidence of her existence.

They got the next best thing to the monster — a photograph of part of the anatomy.

Monster-watching at Loch Ness is a tedious business because, though there have been hundreds of sightings, Nessie is shy and its public appearances tend to be brief and furtive. Therefore, the 12-man investigating team decided to invade its watery domain with an eye that never sleeps.

Using a special strobe camera developed by Prof. Harold Edgerton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, they set a photographic trap for the monster under a large school of salmon.

On August 8, between 1:40 and 2:10 a.m., something slithered through the trap. A sonar record (made by bouncing sound waves off the target) showed what appeared to be two undulating objects, each about 30 feet long, with many smaller objects, assumed to be fish, scurrying away. At the same time the strobe camera caught an amorphous shape that seemingly was rough-textured and greenish-brown in color.

One of the photographic images looked like the huge fin of some giant fish.

Scientists who've studied the photographs and the sonar record admit to being impressed.

"The sequence appears to show the passage of a large object and the films are genuine underwater photographs," allowed J. G. Sheales of the British Museum of Natural History.

"The animal or animals in the photograph have a dimensional extent of approximately 20 to 30 feet," judged oceanographer Paul Skitzi.

"The creature has several segments or projections, such as humps," commented underwater sonar expert Martin Klein of Salem, N.H.

The president of the monster-hunting Academy of Applied Science, Boston attorney Robert Rines, says he's convinced Nessie exists — probably more than one for breeding purposes. There have, after all, been reports of the monster for at least 1,500 years and it's unlikely any creature could be that long-lived.

What could the monsters (assuming they exist) possibly be?

The most likely guess is some sort of aquatic creature from the paleozoic age whose great-great grandparents got into Loch Ness millions of years ago before it was cut off from the ocean. The lake, 25 miles long and teeming with fish, is quite capable of providing sanctuary for a respectable family of monsters.

The notion of prehistoric sea serpents surviving into the 20th Century is made more plausible by the discovery a few years ago of a live coelocanth — a fish thought to have been extinct for 30 million years. (Since then, several specimens of this "living fossil" have been caught.)

However, there are people who don't think the Loch Ness monster is really a monster at all.

There have been suggestions, apparently serious, that it's an underwater UFO lurking in the lake for mysterious purposes of its own.

An even more exotic theory comes from British writer F. W. Holiday who says the monster may be something more like a demon. In June, Holiday took a Church of England vicar, the Rev. Dr. D. Ormand, to Loch Ness to perform a rite of exorcism.

There are no further reports of Nessie having been seen.

State Will Enshrine 'Iron Horse'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A one word telegram received May 10, 1869 sent this then bustling Gold Rush city exploding in celebration.

Miners danced in the street, beer and whiskey flowed freely in river front saloons and bankers and businessmen rejoiced.

The telegram read: "Done," and despite its curtness it marked a monumental accomplishment — the completion of the "iron link" across the continent.

The message came from Promontory, Utah, where a gold spike was driven into a tie to signify the first spanning of the nation by rail track, with Sacramento the western terminus.

Now the State of California is moving to pay tribute to the Iron Horse and its rich and intricate part of Western history with a proposed $5 million museum.

The museum, planned for Old Sacramento, will present a colorful chapter of history stretching from the first locomotive in the West, the Governor Stanford, to the "death of steam" in the early 1960s.

The past two years the Legislature has appropriated $340,000 to study the feasibility of the museum under the state Department of Parks and Recreation and to prepare an interpretation of how the railroad's past should be presented.

The state has already accumulated some 40 pieces of rolling stock which Parks Director William Penn Mott Jr. said "will brilliantly illustrate a great chapter in the history of the American West."

Donated by the Pacific Coast Chapter of the Railway and locomotive Historical Society, they include Central Pacific's first locomotive, the Governor Stanford, built in 1862, and Southern Pacific's locomotive, the C. P. Huntington built in 1863. Both were shipped around the Horn and assembled on the West Coast.

There also are ancient, all-wood passenger cars, the private car "Gold Coast" once owned by the late Lucius Beebe, a connnoisseur of stylish travel, old Pullman sleepers and hundreds of feet of track.

The donated historical society stock has been described by John H. White Jr., director of industries of the Smithsonian Institution, "as one of the most valuable and significant collections of 19th Century locomotives and cars extant."

"The railroad companies themselves have come forward," said parks department senior architect Earl Carlson, who is overseeing the project. "Southern Pacific, Western Pacific and Santa Fe have contacted the department and expressed interest in finding ways they can help us with the project."

The parks department estimates that the overall cost of the project will top $5 million. Most of that will be needed to restore century-old railway related buildings in Old Sacramento, including the headquarters of Central Pacific Railroad which started the original track laying push east Jan. 8, 1863 at the foot of K Street.

California voters will decide the fate of the museum in June. Some $5 million of the $250 million State Park Bond Act, which will be on the June ballot as Prop. 1, has been earmarked for the project.

If the initiative passes, Carlson said the museum could be completed by July of 1977.

The museum is being designed by Spencer, Lee, Busse and Stypula of Menlo Park, Calif., in connection with the consulting firm Barry Howard Associates of Larchmont, N.Y.

The presentation of the stock and other items, the consulting firm said, should be an "experience" and an "adventure."

The film suggested three themes for the railroad story: History, restoration and engineering.

The story line for history would be a multi-media presentation with emphasis on specific items. Restoration would include the rebuilding of the Old Arcade Station, the Freight Depot and eventually the California Steam Navigation Co. Terminal in Old Sacramento.

Engineering would include a ride between the Old Sacramento site and another parcel of land about a half mile away on the meandering Sacramento River — hopefully on an old steam engine. At the second parcel, the visitor will be able to view the process of construction, operation and maintenance of old rail equipment.

Meany Objects To 'Plumbers'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, believes the term "plumbers," popularly used for a White House investigative team, is an insult to an old and honorable trade.

Meany, speaking in a broadcast interview (CBS: "Face the Nation") yesterday, was referring to the team working from the White House basement trying to stop "leaks" of secret material and that has been accused of burglarizing the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

"I think it is libelous against hundreds of thousands of people in this country who follow an honest, decent profession, the plumbers of this country, and I think the newspapers should have called it the White House felons, not the White House plumbers," Meany said.

Modern Guatemala Will Be Discussed

Donald Bowden and Miriam Chown, San Rafael school teachers, will present a program on the Mayans and modern Guatemala at 4:45 p.m., March 10, before the World Affairs Council at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in Mill Valley.

Bowden will show a film he made recently in Guatemala and Mrs. Chown will review several politically-oriented works of nonfiction about Guatemala.

Docking Retires From Public Life

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Gov. Robert B. Docking, 48, announced his retirement from public office during a weekend banquet, speaking before more than 1,700 Kansas Democrats who had hoped he would challenge incumbent Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., for the Senate in November.

Docking, who has been governor during the past eight years, said he would not be a candidate for any office this year. He said nothing would change his mind.

"I always had hoped that the trappings of power would never turn my head to the extent that I would not know when it was time to go home," Docking said. "We have reached many of the goals we set out to achieve. Now I wish to be with my family."

Inventor Develops Talking Tombstone

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Donald Wells says he's invented and hopes to market a talking tombstone that also shows movies of the deceased.

"People will buy it because they want to relate to people who have passed on," he says. "It's difficult to relate to a tombstone."

Wells, 44, a salesman, says he got the idea from his invention when he walked his dog through a cemetery.

"I was kind of bored reading the tombstones when I noticed that the stones just gave the name, date of birth and date of death," he says. "I thought it was a darn shame."

Wells says he has drawn up plans for battery-operated, audio-visual tombstone and is negotiating with companies in Jackson, Mich., and Pompano Beach, Fla., to market them by this spring in 16 models.

The deluxe model would include a tape recording of the deceased's voice, a movie projector and screen to show typical scenes from his life and a 20-foot scroll containing his writings.

Mechanical parts would be enclosed in an underground case.

Wells won't give the price for the tombstone but says it will be costly.

"I've had people tell me I'm crazy — I've had people tell me I'm going to be a millionaire."

Mitchell Acted Oddly To Wife

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Attorney General John Mitchell's wife Martha believes he deliberately tried to drive her "up the wall" after he was indicted last year on an influence-peddling charge, People magazine said yesterday.

For the last six months, Mrs. Mitchell has lived alone in her Fifth Avenue apartment. Her husband is living in a midtown hotel, the new weekly publication said.

"He wouldn't go out. He ate at his desk. He let his hair grow and wouldn't shave. He wanted me to cut his hair," Mrs. Mitchell told People. "John didn't want to see anyone. He wouldn't give me my phone calls. He'd say I was out. And if I answered he'd listen. He was drinking and taking tranquilizers." According to People, Mrs. Mitchell was convinced his behavior was a scheme to drive her "up the wall."

Sharman Says The Pressure To Mount

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Pressure is the name of the game in the National Basketball Association as the season heads down the stretch and Los Angeles coach Bill Sharman realizes it will continue to mount despite the Lakers' seven-game winning streak and last night's victory over the Golden State Warriors.

"It will be all uphill from here," Sharman said after a 108-104 win over the Warriors that pulled the Lakers to within one-half game of first-place in the Pacific Division for what will likely be the final Western Conference playoff spot.

"I'm sure the division will be decided by injuries and the team that is able to win the close ones," Sharman said. "This one was more important for us to win than for Golden State. If we'd have lost it we'd be four games down in the loss column with only 13 games left."

Capitalizing on the Warriors' frigid shooting in the first period, the Lakers spurted to a 23-8 lead. Rick Barry, who had averaged 42 points in his last four games, went 1-for-11 in the half.

Cazzie Russell, who ended up leading all scorers with 29 points, came off the bench in the second period to help cut the Laker lead to 57-47 at the half.

The Lakers, paced by a 26-point effort by second-year guard Jim Price, led 104-93 with 5:34 to go. The Lakers could manage only four free throws in the final 5:34 as the Warriors charged back. With the score 105-102 with 21 seconds remaining, Connie Hawkins sank a free throw to put the game away.

Gail Goodrich ended with 19 for the Lakers, while Hawkins had 17 and Pat Riley scored 15 in relief. Jeff Mullins had 20 for the Warriors, while Nate Thurmond and Jim Barnett had 16 each.

Barry, who left the game with a slightly twisted ankle in the third quarter, had only 11 points. Warrior coach Al Attles said Barry would not miss any games because of the ankle injury.

The Warriors host Detroit tomorrow night, a team they haven't beaten in three meetings this season.

Bullets 98, Cavs 93

Elvin Hayes scored 16 of his 25 points in the second half to lift the Bullets from a 44-41 85 with 3:33 left.

Suns 113, Kings 100

Neal Walk and Dick Van Arsdale with 23 points each helped the Suns break a sevengame losing streak.

Pistons 99, Blazers 95

Dave Bing, held to only four points in the first half, scored four clutch points in the final 38 seconds to lead Detroit.

Knicks 108, Celtics 102

Dave DeBusschere got a reprieve yesterday afternoon when Paul Westphal missed a potential tie-breaking free throw with two seconds left in regulation time. DeBusschere had been called for a loose ball foul. Silas, with two shots, hit the first but the second bounced off the rim into the arms of DeBusschere as the buzzer sounded. DeBusschere then hit the first basket in overtime and from then the Knicks roared to victory in the nationally televised game.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Two Titles Won; 'Biggie' On Tap

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Two West Coast college basketball races were decided during the weekend, and the "biggie" is on the line Saturday when UCLA and University of Southern California clash for the Pacific-8 crown.

USF won the West Coast Athletic Association title and Los Angeles took the Pacific Coast Athletic Association title Saturday.

Chico State of the Far Western Conference moves into the NCAA regional first round against UC-Riverside. Sonoma State, also of the FWC, enters a playoff against the University of San Diego Tuesday.

UCLA and USC, with identical 11-2 conference marks and matching 22-3 overall records, meet in Saturday's deciding contest, the same as they did last November in the fight for the league football title and the Rose Bowl berth.

USF downed St. Mary's 80-70 Saturday night to wrap up their third WCAC title. Los Angeles State defeated University of California Santa Barbara, 93-87, to win the right to represent the Pacific Coast Athletic Association in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tourney.

The Bruins and Trojans ran into all sorts of trouble before beating Stanford and Cal, respectively. The Bruins fought for their lives to gain a 62-60 triumph over the Cards and the Trojans were in deep trouble against the Bears before pulling out a 70-67 decision.

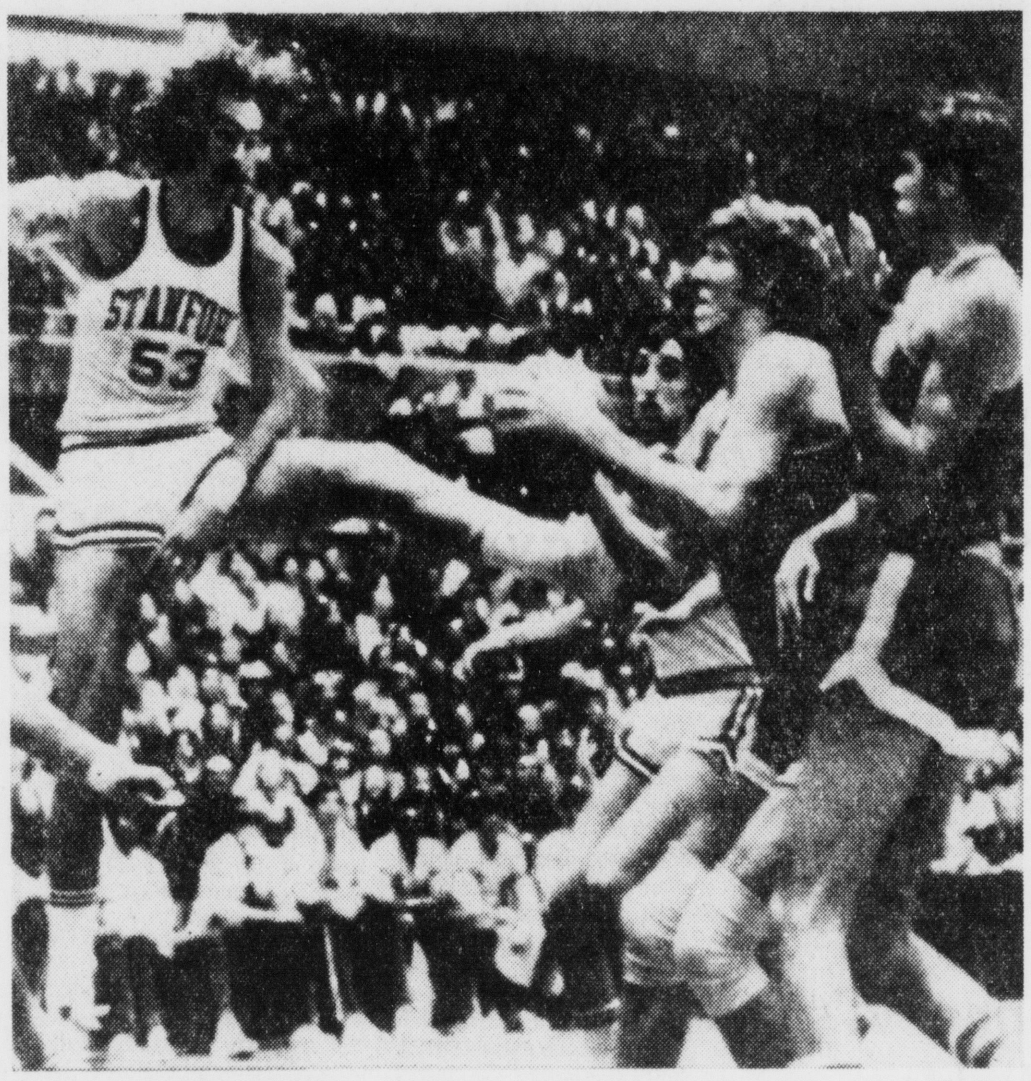
UCLA, seven times national champs, seemingly had Stanford beaten with little trouble Saturday night but the Cards started a late rally to close the gap to only one point, 58-57.

Free throws by Andre McCarter and Dave Meyers gave the Bruins their final four points and they needed them as Stanford fought back on a three-point play by Scott Trobbe.

The USC-Cal game was as close with Danny Anderson hitting a jumper three seconds from the buzzer for the winning basket.

USF, winning the crown with a 12-2 record, overcame a 43-37 halftime deficit against the Gaels as guard Phil Smith hit a career high 34 points.

By beating UC Santa Barbara, Los Angeles State finished second in the PCAA. But they won the right to play in the NCAA regional playoffs because first-place Long Beach State is on probation.



UNWELCOME FOOT — UCLA center Bill Walton held the basketball while warding off the flying left leg of Stanford's Rich Kelley in the first half Saturday. UCLA's Dave Meyers closed in.
(UPI Telephoto)

In the other season-ending games in the PCAA, Long Beach won its 77th straight at home by downing Pacific, 76-52, and San Diego State edged San Jose State, 73-71.

In the WCAC, Nevada-Reno beat Pepperdine, 75-72.

In the Pac 8, Washington edged Oregon, 84-82, to end the Ducks' slim chances for the league crown and Oregon State defeated Washington State, 76-63.

A Surprise Choice In NIT Field

NEW YORK (UPI) — The University of Maryland-Eastern Shore headed a list of seven basketball teams receiving invitations to the National Invitation tournament today.

Umes (26-1) was joined by Rutgers, Boston College, Cincinnati, Fairfield, Utah, and Connecticut, bringing the NIT field to 11, with five places still open.

The selection of the Maryland-Eastern Shore Hawks was something of a surprise as they had been expected to be passed over. The Hawks are a major college division team, but played mostly small schools and had planned to go to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament if they had not received an NIT bid.

Rutgers (18-8) is led by 6-3 Ron Sellers, a former New York high school star. BC is also 18-8.

Cincinnati (19-7), scored a spectacular 92-77 victory over Marquette Saturday, greatly enhancing the Bearcats' national stature.

Fairfield (17-8), Utah (19-7) and Connecticut (18-7) were minor surprises in being added to the tournament which opens on March 16.

St. John's, Massachusetts, Manhattan and Hawaii had received the initial bids.

Heard Discovers Signs Are Right

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — For whistling Jerry Heard the signs were right, his wife said, and a bogey on the first hole didn't shake his confidence one whit.

"I feel like I have a real good shot at the Masters now," said the 26-year-old Californian who won the $150,000 Citrus Open yesterday for the second time in three years, his first Professional Golfers Association victory in 22 months. "That's my goal, to win a major championship."

Never trailing in four rounds of golf in the sixties on the par 72 Rio Pinar course, Heard bogeyed the first and last holes Sunday, along with another, but got five birdies to finish with a 69-273, 15 under par.

Whistling and humming as he toured the 6,929-yard layout, Heard said he was confident from the start. His wife, Nancy, had told him "it was supposed to be the week" for a Taurus.

"It certainly was," said Heard, who won the Citrus in 1972, but has been winless since the Colonial Invitational in Fort Worth the same year.

The six-foot 200-pounder, who quit worrying about improving his swing and learned to relax, finished three strokes ahead of Jim Jamieson, 67-276, and Homero Blancas, 70-276.

Jamieson, who had to go to town to buy a brace for his back after the second round, had a bogeyless round yesterday, with five birdies. He said his caddy—Joe Burden—had been giving him tips on how to putt.

"I owe a lot to my caddy," he said. "He's been showing me how to hold my head when I putt."

Blancas had an up-and-down round with five birdies and three bogeys and said, "I felt great hitting the ball.

"From tee to green," he said, "I played better this week than I have in years."

Bobby Cole, a skinny South African billed as the next Gary Player, shot a 69 to end in a tie with chunky Bob Murphy at 11-under-par 277, three strokes behind Heard.

One stroke farther back were Lee Elder, Bruce Crampton, Leonard Thompson and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

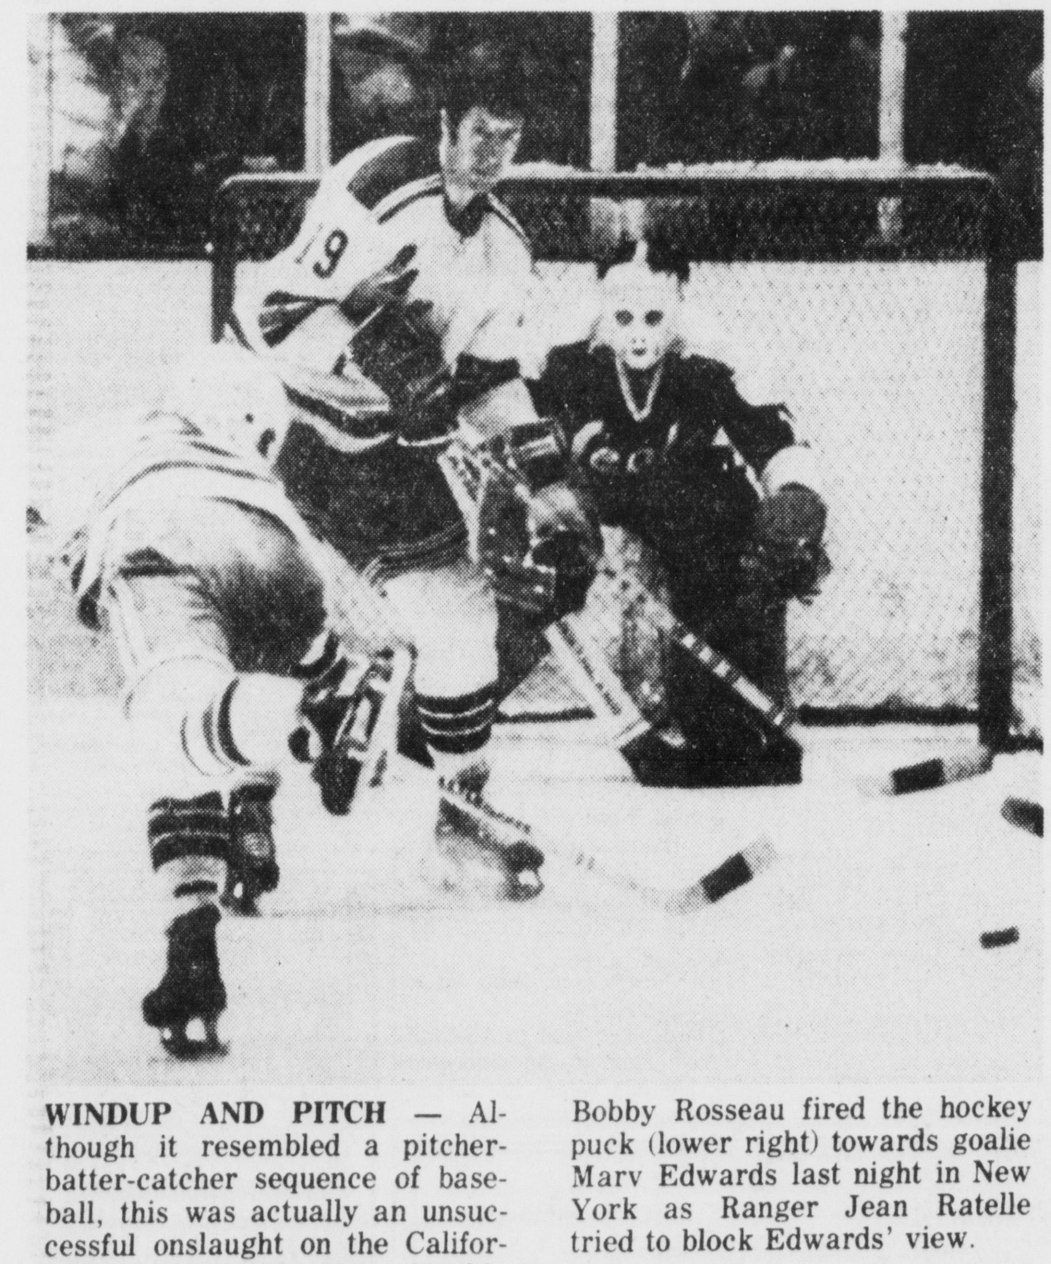
Heard said it didn't bother him when he missed a six-foot putt on the first hole for a bogey.

Banking a $30,000 first-place check—almost twice as much as he had made up to this stop on the tour—Heard said he will be humming a new tune since he found a winning swing.

It's a Frank Sinatra hit—"I'll Do It My Way."

Trout Stocking

Stafford Lake, west of Novato, Phoenix, Bon Tempe and Lagunitas reservoirs south of Fairfax, and Rodeo Lagoon near Sausalito are on the March trout planting list announced by the Department of Fish and Game. The stocked fish will be catchable-size rainbow trout.



WINDUP AND PITCH — Although it resembled a pitcher-batter-catcher sequence of baseball, this was actually an unsuccessful onslaught on the California Seals' goal. New York's Bobby Rosseau fired the hockey puck (lower right) towards goalie Marv Edwards last night in New York as Ranger Jean Ratelle tried to block Edwards' view.

Seals Suffer A Road Relapse

NEW YORK (UPI) — The California Golden Seals snapped a 24-game road losing streak Saturday, but the next night lapsed back into their losing ways.

At Montreal on Saturday, they beat the Canadiens, 4-3, but last night in New York lost to the Rangers, 8-2.

California's only goals against the Rangers came in the last period and were the work of Reg Leach and Stan Gilberston.

Brad Park scored twice for the Rangers who also got goals from Billy Fairbairn, Steve Vickers, Pete Stemkowski, Vic Hadfield, Bert Wilson and Jean Ratelle.

Stan Weir of the Seals injured his left knee in the second period and was taken to a hospital for X-rays. There was no report on the extent of his injury.

The Seals are idle today and play Tuesday at Los Angeles.

IN SPRING TRAINING

Indians Can Be Purchased If Team Stays In Cleveland

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

If you're trying to find a present for the man who has everything, how about a major league baseball team?

The Cleveland Indians can be purchased—if you're willing to leave the team in Cleveland.

Alba T. (Ted) Bonda, the executive vice president of the club, says that since the club currently has more than 40 partners, the ownership of the team is a bit unwieldly. The fact that the team has been losing—on the field and at the box office—doesn't help, either.

Bonda says several out-of-town interests have expressed a desire to buy the club but Bonda said, "I'm totally dedicated not to sell the club out of town."

However, he said he'd probably talk to Edward J. Debartolo, a Youngstown, Ohio builder and entrepreneur, about purchasing the club.

"If someone like Debartolo came along and it looked a lot better to me than what we have now and would stay in Cleveland, I'd really recommend we'd go that route."

The Indians were a power in the American League in the late '40s and early '50s but since then, they've slid steadily downhill. The team hasn't won the American League pennant since 1954 and hasn't even been in contention in recent years.

ANOTHER PROBLEM

Meanwhile, the Indians have another problem. The team got Ken Suarez in a trade with Texas. But Suarez, who had submitted his salary to arbitration, claims that his trade was made for disciplinary reasons and he's refused to report to Cleveland.

A hearing will be held Wednesday in Sarasota, Fla. to decide on Suarez' future. John Gaherin, the counsel for the owners, will meet with Marvin Miller, the executive director for the Players Association, to discuss the issue. Suarez was traded for Leo Cardenas.

AT OTHER CAMPS

In other camp news, the MVP golfed with the Veep. Reggie Jackson, the American League's MVP, got in an 18-hole round with Vice President Gerald R. Ford in Arizona.

Sparky Anderson, the Cincinnati manager, got in the quote of the day. He has a young pitcher from the Dominican Repubic named Jack Andujar, who has a sensational arm but a quick temper. Anderson said, "I told Andujar that if he no longer go loco he can make mucho dinero pitching in the major leagues. But I told him that if he continues to go loco, he might just as well grab himself a machete right now and start whacking away at the sugar cane."

YANKEE HOLDOUT

Horace Clarke, Sparky Lyle and Celerino Sanchez are still New York Yankee holdouts...-the Yanks insist they haven't made a final offer even if they don't seem too anxious to make another offer to the players.

Joe Ferguson became the last member of the Los Angeles Dodgers to sign a contract for the season...Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins is still holding out.

BELANDER, FITCHIE ON ALL-FWC TEAM

DAVIS — Sonoma State College's basketball success this year was reflected in the all-Far Western Conference team announced today, as Bill Belander and Tom Fitchie were named to the first team and Bob LeBrun and Steve Tiedeman to the second team.

Belander, the league's leading scorer, was a unanimous choice as he moved up from the second team a year ago. Tiedeman was last season's player of the year.

Joe Casteel of Terra Linda, former College of Marin star now playing for Chico State, was named to the second team.

Other first-teamers were Stan Cherry of Hayward State (unanimous) and Mike Harski and Dave Moore of Chico, which tied Sonoma for the league title at 9-3.

Other second-teamers were Don Dowling of University of California at Davis and Bruce Fernandez of Humboldt State.

Grid Coaching Seminar Slated

A seminar in football coaching techniques is being offered this spring by the Sonoma State College Department of Health Sciences and Physical Education in conjunction with the college's extension program.

The course will be held Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. in Darwin 106, March 14 through May 9. Registration fee will be $52. Signups are on March 14.

Among the speakers at the seminars will be: Don Read, coach at University of Oregon; Mike White, coach at University of California, Davis.

Sonoma Hosts San Diego '5'

Sonoma State College has been given a reprieve of sorts.

The Cossacks dropped their final three games of the Far Western Conference basketball season, which allowed Chico to grab a share of the championship with a 9-3 record.

It was originally thought there would be a playoff between Sonoma and Chico tonight to determine the conference's representative to the National Athletic Association Western Regionals at San Luis Obispo this weekend.

Instead, Chico, by virtue of its better overall record (18-8), will be seeded directly into the Western Regionals with University of California at Riverside and host Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo.

Sonoma (16-9 overall) has been awarded an at-large berth, but will have to win a first-round game with University of San Diego tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Rohnert Park to qualify as the fourth team in the regionals.

The winner of the four-team tournament will advance to the NCAA College Division Championships at Evansville, Ind.

The Cossacks were also given an at large berth in last year's Western Regionals, but fell to Riverside, 72-70. Riverside went on to win the tournament in Bakersfield and advanced to Indiana.

Sonoma is fortunate that the game against San Diego will be played on Sonoma's home court, where it has won 22 straight games the past two years. Away from home, the Cossacks have recorded a poor 5-9 mark.

San Diego is an independent school which will come into the game with seven consecutive victories. Earlier this year, it upset Washington State of the powerful Pacific-8.

Two former College of Marin stars, Neil Traub and Joe De Maestri, start for San Diego.

SONOMA SLATE

Baseball, Track Seasons To Start

Is there no rest for the wicked?

After just one week's inactivity, local high school athletes will get back into action this week with season openers in baseball plus track and field.

Petaluma and Rancho Cotate will both start their 1974 baseball seasons tomorrow at 3:30 p.m., with Petaluma hosting San Leandro and the Cougars traveling to San Marin.

Thursday, they will face each other for the first of two times this year in a 3:30 p.m. game in Petaluma.

Petaluma then completes a rugged first week schedule with a 3:30 p.m. game Friday against visiting Berkeley.

Tomales opens at home Friday at 3:30 p.m. against Cloverdale, while Casa Grande (Petaluma and St. Vincent (petaluma) wait until Saturday to begin play against Fort Bragg and Clear Lake (at St. Vincent).

Rancho Cotate and Casa Grande will get their track seasons underway Wednesday, with the Cougars traveling to San Marin at 3:30 p.m. and the Gauchos meeting host Marin Catholic at 4 p.m.

SPORTS SHORTS

Wade 'Put Off' But Triumphant

Combined AP & UPI

CHICAGO — Virginia Wade admitted that she was a bit "put off" before her championship match against Sausalito's Rosie Casals.

But she hung in until she got her game together and the result of yesterday was a convincing 2-6, 6-4, 6-1 victory and $10,000 for the 29-year-old green-eyed brunette.

"It does put me off a little when I'm waiting for television and the ceremonies like the National Anthem," she said after her victory.

Great Britain's Miss Wade, an upset winner over top-seeded Billie Jean King in the semifinals, dropped the opening set without much of a challenge as she struggled to get her serve together.

But late in the second set she started a comeback that at one point saw her score 10 straight points.

"Rosie kept hitting to my backhand in the first set, and even though I think I have a good backhand on my own, somehow it just wasn't working," Miss Wade said. "I became aggressive at the start of the second set, and when I finally went ahead 4-3, I felt that the momentum was swinging my way."

More Tennis

BARCELONA, Spain — Arthur Ashe yesterday overcame Bjorn Borg for a 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 victory in the final of a $50,000 Green Group World Championship Tennis Tournament.

LA COSTA, Calif. — Australian John Newcombe yesterday won the $50,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament with a 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 victory over Stan Smith.

MIAMI — Cliff Drysdale yesterday scored a 6-4, 7-5 victory over Tom Gorman to win the $50,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament.

Bowling

MIAMI — Alex Seymore yesterday captured his first Professional Bowlers Association title with a 214-196 victory over Larry Laub in an $80,000 Miami tournament.

Auto Racing

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — Richard Petty, driving a Dodge and leading the last 178 laps, yesterday streaked across the finish line at a record speed to win the $98,075 ninth annual Carolina 500 stock car race.

ONTARIO, Calif.— Texans A. J. Foyt and Johnny Rutherford yesterday captured the twin 100-mile qualifying races for the $300,000 California 500 auto race.

Motorcycle Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Gene Romero yesterday used a 700cc Yamaha to set a world record for a one-hour run by averaging 150.8419 miles per hour at Daytona International Speedway.

Skiing

VOSS, Norway — Piero Gros of Italy yesterday won a World Cup special slalom ski race after countryman and world champion Gustavo Thoeni, the leader after the first run, missed a gate on the second.

Golf

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Kathy Whitworth yesterday captured her fifth Orange Blossom Classic golf tournament title by shooting a one-under-par 71 on the final round for a 209 total.

LOST CONTROL — Great Britain's Virginia Wade yesterday tossed her racquet at the ball she missed in the championship match with Sausalito's Rosemary Casals. Virginia picked up her racquet and the victory in the Virginia Slims tournament at the Lake Shore Racquet Club in Chicago, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1. (UPI Telephoto)

'WE'RE READY THIS TIME'

NFL Players Have A $275,000 Strike Fund Order

CHICAGO (UPI) — National Football League players have a $275,000 strike fund and authority to call a strike should negotiations with NFL owners break down, executive director Ed Garvey told the opening NFLPA Convention session yesterday.

"We're ready for a strike this time, so maybe we won't have to use it," he said. "We do have the authorization of 800 players to call a strike if necessary."

Negotiations with the owners open March 16, and Garvey pointed out to the convention that the owners had notified the association that "all group insurance benefits will be cut off March 31."

He suggested the convention consider what course should be followed for insurance during the interim until a new contract is agreed upon.

The owners have offered to extend the present contract until the first league game of 1974, he said, continuing the insurance, but he said the bargaining committee opposed such extension because it would eliminate the players from the negotiating committee and also put pressure on the players to continue into the regular season after exhibition games have been played.

"The staff has no desire to strike" he said. "We'd be crazy if we wanted one. We're trying to tell the owners there must be some changes. We can't go on the way we have been."

The convention was expected to make elimination of the "Rozelle rule," under which NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle serves as arbitrator of disputes between players and clubs, its No. 1 objective. Sen. John V. Tunney D-Cal. who was introduced legislation outlawing the reserve clause, was the keynote speaker.

"I think it's a violation of anti trust laws to have a reserve clause in any sport," Tunney said

Tunney said that in a vote now, however, his bill "would not get anywhere. Today it doesn't have much of a chance."

Eleven Congressmen, led by John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio and Donald M. Fraser D-Minn. have introduced similar legislation in the house.

"I will do all I possibly can to get this legislation through," Tunney said. "It's a bill of rights for professional athletes. The negotiating positions have been unequal, and I want to give the free enterprise system a chance to work.

"We hope to give the professional athlete across the board the opportunity to negotiate with any team willing to buy their services after a contract is signed initially," he said. "When you get to be a man or a grown woman, there is no reason why you have to be treated like a child. There's no reason why you can't sell your services for what they're worth."

Former A's Infielder Sympathizes

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Former Oakland infielder Larry Brown says he can sympathize with Athletics players who are upset about the quality of their 1973 World Series rings.

Brown, now with the Texas Rangers, said he received his 1972 World Series ring last spring from the Athletics and it contained an imitation stone instead of the one-carat diamond his teammates received.

"I called Mr. Finley (A's owner Charles O. Finley) and asked him why," said Brown. "Mr. Finley said he paid for the rings and only those who participated in the World Series received diamonds in theirs."

Brown was on the disabled list because of a back injury during the latter part of the 1972 season and the World Series. He was released by the A's in December of 1972.

Brown continues to wear his imitation stone ring but says he has filed a grievance with the players association.

"I want either the diamond or the cash equivalence," he said. "I was a member of the team and I want just what my teammates received."

Oakland players complained last week that the 1973 rings were not up to standards established in previous rings and contained no diamonds.

Fuentes Arrives In Giants' Camp

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — Tito Fuentes arrived at the San Francisco Giants training camp yesterday, reducing the unreported players to two: Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews.

Fuentes, despite complaining of back pains, took part in an intrasquad game in which the Jim Barrs beat the Bobby Bonds, 9-7.

The flu claimed three more victims yesterday, first baseman Ed Goodson, catcher Mike Sadek, and the team physician, Dr. E. C. Sailer.

Tam Wrestler Ford Doesn't Place In Meet

HAYWARD — Greg Ford of Tamalpais High School, Marin's only wrestler in the state tournament, won his first match but lost his second Saturday and did not place in the 114-pound class.

Ford could have placed as high as third if he had taken all his matches Saturday in the tournament at Cal State Hayward. He won twice before losing in the opening rounds Friday.

Ford prevailed in his first match Saturday from Mark Muir of Mt. Miguel High in Spring Valley, near San Diego, 5-1. He was decisioned in his second outing by Bob Henderson of Overfelt High in San Jose. The score was unavailable.

Ford earlier won the Marin County Athletic League 114-pound title and finished second in the divisional meet and third in the North Coast Section.

Basketball Win By St. Vincent

The long basketball season is finally over for St. Vincent High School.

The Mustangs (10-15) ended it in Petaluma Saturday with a 69-49 victory over California School for the Deaf (Berkeley) to finish seventh in the St. Vincent Invitational Tournament.

Cloverdale won the championship, 50-39, over Point Arena; Potter Valley beat Geyserville, 57-54, for third place; and Concordia topped South Fork, 61-48, to take the consolation title.

Walker Holds Singles Lead In Bowling

John Walker leads in singles, Barry Fraser-Wayne Ziegler in doubles and Hagel Service in team standings following competition over the weekend in the 26th annual Marin County Bowling Association Tournament.

Play was scheduled to continue in teams today, Thursday and next weekend at Greenbrae Lanes, and in doubles and singles next weekend at Nave Lanes in Ignacio.

Last weekend's unofficial scores, all for three-game handicap series, found Walker with 750, the Fraser-Ziegler duo with 1,358, and the Hagel team, captained by Wolfgang Hagel, with 3,198 (four men).

Unofficial leaders to date:

Team — 1, Hagel Service (Wolfgang Hagel, capt.), 3,198; 2, Good Guys (Art Bell, capt.), 3,112; 3, Underdogs (Walt Samborski, capt.) and Leftovers No. 1 (Bernie Nerviani, capt.), tie, 3,103.

Doubles — 1, Barry Fraser-Wayne Ziegler, 1,358; 2, Mark Lehman-Jeff Bernardi, 1,345; 3, Walt Smith-Jack Martin, 1,331.

Singles — 1, John Walker, 750; 2, Pat Douglas, 730; 3, Rolf Singlemann, 724.

Sun Valley Man Takes Slalom

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (UPI) — Ken Corrack, 24, Sun Valley, Idaho, won the giant slalom yesterday in the Atomic Cup at Heavenly Valley to take $4,000 in first place money.

Dough Woodcock from Whitbey, Ontario, Canada, placed second and won $2,500 for his efforts in the ninth stop of the Benson and Hedges Grand Prix tour.

The pros were today in a quicker slalom.

Third place went to Austrian Harald Steufer who dislocated his hip just before the second jump on the 1,200-foot course.

Battle Lines Drawn For Swimming

The battle lines for this year's swimming season were clearly drawn in Saturday's Marin County Athletic League Relays, as San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools vied for the title, with San Rafael winning.

The Bulldogs compiled 108 points to Terra Linda's 100 in the relays, held at Novato High. San Marin was a distant third with 51 points.

San Rafael won four of the 10 events on the card, and Terra Linda won two. The schools finished one-two in seven events.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Utilities Offer Growth, Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Would you be kind enough to name four or five utility stocks which have high yields and a fair chance for appreciation? — R.T.

A. An important consideration in selecting utility stocks at this time is the type of fuel used by the company for generating power. Dependence on oil would obviously be a negative factor. Three Big Board-listed companies in a favorable position, with only minor dependence on oil are: Allegheny Power Systems, 99 per cent coal; Pennsylvania Power & Light, 93 per cent coal, 4 per cent hydro; and Toledo Edison, 97 per cent coal. Wisconsin Electric Power (NYSE) generate 80 per cent with coal and 12 per cent with nuclear power. Washington Water Power (NYSE), an electric/natural gas utility, uses hydro-based plants to supply the bulk of its power capacity. Future capacity needs will be supplied by a 15 per cent interest in a coal-fired plant.

A second major concern is the regulatory climate prevailing in the states served by the various utilities. In the case of each of the above five companies, the various public utility commissions involved have an open attitude and in the past 18 months have been fairly reasonable in allowing fuel adjustment clauses and granting rate increase requests. However, the Pennsylvania Public Utilities Commission is probably the most liberal. The high level of capital expenditures necessary to finance expanded generating capacity is also important in assessing the utility growth picture. Although internally generated funds cover some of these expenses, much of the capital must be raised through equity offerings and new bond issues, often diluting earnings or reducing interest coverage.

The five selected utilities are currently trading at the low end of their historic price-earnings multiples, levels at which most of the negatives have been fully discounted. Dividend policies have been liberal with payments increasing annually. In fact, four of the five companies have upped their rates within the last three quarters. Yields range from 7.3 per cent on Wisconsin Electric to 7.8 per cent on Allegheny P.S.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Medical And Dental Expenses Can All Be Lumped Together

There has been quite a change in the method of listing medical and dental expense and contributions for 1973, as itemized deductions.

You no longer have to list each doctor, dentist, etc., and amounts paid to them. These can now be lumped on line 6(a), but you should, of course, keep cancelled checks, receipts, etc., so that if you are audited you will be able to substantiate the total amounts you list here. Other items, such as hearing aids, dentures, eye glasses, transportation, etc., should be listed on line 6(c) individually.

As a practical matter, if you have very large medical expenses, it might be a good idea to list here the reason for these medical expenses. Such as li listing might possibly save you an audit at a future date.

It is no longer necessary to list every $1 or $2 contribution that you make. You simply lump them together on line 21, under total cash contributions for which you have receipts, cancelled checks, money orders, etc.

It is important that you retain in your possession the cancelled checks, receipts, etc., for these contributions so that you can prove the total amount contributed and give the detail of who it was contributed to if you have to.

Other contributions are listed on line 22, and before making that listing you should be careful to read the instructions on page 12, because contributions other than cash are subject to some very confusing regulations.

Contributions for candidates for public office can be deducted on Schedule A, line 33, or you can deduct one-half of your political contributions, but not more than $12.50 single or $25 joint, direct from the tax on page 2, line 52.

NEWEST BELL SAVINGS

Bell Savings & Loan Association's brand new Mill Valley office at 71 Throckmorton Avenue is celebrating its grand opening all this week, with free gifts and refreshments and champagne from 2 to 4 p.m. Christine Clausen of Mill Valley (not in photo) manages the office with the help of Kristin Scoville (seated) and Betsy Rick. To customers with minimum balances, the office offers free travelers checks, money orders, checking accounts at co-operating banks, notary service, and other savings and loan services. Home mortgage loans will be referred to the San Rafael office of Bell Savings.

Prices Change Little In Slow Stock Sales

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices were little changed in very slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange today, after recovering partially from early losses.

Early in the session, profit taking and concern over the weakness of numerous western governments took stocks broadly lower.

In more encouraging news, however, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat called for a meeting next Sunday of Arab oil ministers to discuss the possible lifting of the oil embargo. And Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir apparently agreed to stay on as leader of a new minority cabinet.

Stocks on the American Exchange dropped in light trading.

The stock of Weyerhaeuser Co., the lumber and paper concern, declined during the session. Executive vice president C. Calvert Knudsen told an institutional investors meeting in San Francisco his company expects lower first half earnings, but looks forward to a "rising trend during the rest of the year."

Profit taking took a number of oils lower, including Getty Ohio Standard and Murphy Oil.

In large block transactions, a 231,800-share block of Virginia Electric & Power crossed the tape at 15, off ⅛ a W. T. Grant block of 99,900 shares moved at 8½, off ½.

Building Permit Sales Decrease

In January of this year, building permits were issued in Marin County for construction worth a total of $4,357,133, which is a 76 per cent drop from the $18,327,114 recorded in January of 1973, according to figures compiled by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

The comparison is distorted because in January of last year, one gigantic project accounted for $9,360,000 of the total value.

Juice Bar And Sandwich Shop To Open Soon In San Anselmo

Campolindo Juice Bar, serving vegetable juices, sandwiches, and salad plates, will open soon, probably this weekend, on the Miracle Mile in San Anselmo at 42 Red Hill Avenue, former site of Zebedee restaurant.

Owner-operators of the juice bar will be Emilio Casanueva and Peter and Karen Bricca of San Anselmo, who also own the Campolindo fruit and vegetable store next door at 56 Red Hill Avenue. The Campolindo store has been operating for three years.

"The juice bar is basically an extension of the Campolindo store," said Casanueva. It will have all types of fresh juices from fruits and vegetables; fresh sandwiches made with whole wheat bread; plenty of avocados, carrots and mushrooms; salad plates; and a half dozen different herbal teas.

"We want it to be a family place where you can get a plate for a reasonable price, sit down anywhere you want, and enjoy the friendly atmosphere," said Casanueva.

This summer, the owners plan to use the open plaza between Campolindo store and the new juice bar as an open air market place for fruits and vegetables to be sold in bulk, just as in Europe and Latin America. "We still need city approval for this but hope to have the open air market ready by this summer," said Casanueva.

ZEBEDEE restaurant, operated by Susan G. Strandgaard for about a year, folded last September, and the premises are being remodeled for the Campolindo juice bar. Miss Strandgaard is reported to be working in another field in Southern California.

WILLIAM G. KAST of Kentfield has been named general manager of Indonesian operations for Bechtel Incorporated's refinery and chemical division. Kast has been area manager of the division's San Francisco office since September of 1972. He will eventually relocate to Jakarta.

Kast joined the Bechtel group of companies in 1948 and advanced to vice president in October of 1972.

REALTORS BREAKFAST — C. Charles Chatham, Securities and Exchange Commission counselor from Glendale, will speak at tomorrow's weekly breakfast meeting of the Marin County Board of Realtors at the Holiday Inn, Northgate.

Chatham will give a preview of his three-day seminar entitled "Professional Counseling Techniques", which is scheduled for the Holiday Inn Wednesday through Friday this week.

PAUL CASTAGNA of San Rafael has been named district manager for The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

Castagna is associated with the company's Robert L. Levin agency in San Francisco. His duties will include recruiting and training Equitable sales representatives.

JOHN CRISCI of Terra Linda has joined William Timmer Realty's Terra Linda office. Crisci has been a real estate broker for more than 10 years and was formerly manager of the Grubb & Ellis Company's Terra Linda office.

BAUMAN BROS. & Dick Miller Marine Supplies at Clipper Yacht Harbor in Sausalito was sold last week to T.F. Carter of Atherton, who has many years of experience in marine supplies and hardware.

Carter bought the marine supply store from Henry Bauman of Tiburon and Dick Miller of Sausalito, who had it for 25 years, first at the old Sausalito Yacht Harbor and then at Clipper Yacht Harbor for the last six years.

Bauman and Miller will retain their yacht brokerage, new boat sales and marine insurance under the name Bauman Bros. & Dick Miller Associates.

MARGARET ZIMMERMAN of Fairfax, a resident of Marin for 28 years, has joined the staff of Valley Realty in Corte Madera, at 101 Casa Buena Drive.

A member of the Marin Symphony Association and on the board of directors of the Marin Easter Seals campaign, Mrs. Zimmerman has done public relations work for many Marin charities.

GEORGE S. CIRCO of San Rafael, an assistant division manager for Johnson & Johnson's health care division, has won company sales honors. He was named man-of-the-year for the Pacific region.

Circo joined Johnson & Johnson in 1966 and was account manager in the Northwest division, headquartered in Bulingame. He has been promoted to assistant division manager of the border division in Dallas, Tex., and will move there shortly.

THE 'MANY THINGS' Shop at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross has been repainted and redecorated under the direction of Chairman Betty McKenna. The shop carries hand-crafted merchandise, all received on consignment, with many new items added to the varied collection.

Members of the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center volunteer in staffing Many Things, and all proceeds go to support the Marin Art and Garden Center. The new hours are Monday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Tuesday through Friday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Consignments are received on Mondays only.

CLASSES IN STAINED glass will start next Wednesday night (March 6) at The Glass Depot, the retail outlet of Cummings Studios at 193 Mill Street in San Rafael. A fee is charged for the six three-hour classes.

H. W. (Bill) Cummings and his wife Judy of San Anselmo have operated Cummings Studios in San Rafael for two years and started The Glass Depot retail store in the same location eight months ago. The class in stained glass will be taught by Chris Richards of San Anselmo on Wednesday nights and Saturday mornings. Cummings Studios was established by Bill Cummings' father in San Francisco 52 years ago.

Three Are Named Speech Winners

Three men from Bank of Marin were among top winners in a public speaking contest of the Redwood Coast chapter of the American Institute of Banking, held last month at the Holiday Inn in Santa Rosa.

John L. Ammirati, farm representative for the Petaluma office of Bank of Marin, won first place. He will go on to the California state contest in San Jose on April 27.

Placing behind Ammirati were Phil Culver and Sam Brown of the San Rafael office of Bank of Marin, who won second and fourth, respectively. The subject for all speakers in the contest was: "The Impact of Automated Payments on the Public."

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

It's Time We Ended Quota System Foolishness

Independent Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
34 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, MARCH 4, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

A long story in the Wall Street Journal last week was headlined, "Up-the-Ladder Blues: White Males Complain They Are Now Victims of Job Discrimination."

A recent story in the Jornal Portugues, published in Oakland, was headlined, "A Farsa Politica Que Vitima a Communidade Luso-Americana da California."

The two articles dealt with different facets of the same thing: the "quota system."

THE JORNAL PORTUGUES article commented on an Independent Journal story by reporter Mary Leydecker which revealed that Portuguese surnames had been counted as Spanish in arriving at a "Spanish-language minority" figure which was accepted by a visiting judge when he threw out indictments of the San Quentin Six. The grand jury which returned the indictments was unfairly chosen, the judge held, in part because the Chicano "quota" was not represented on it.

Said Jornal Portugues: "Yes, they count us 'in,' they include us, 'indeed — until you apply for the jobs which, under the label of affirmative action, have been designated for 'minorities.' Then, and only the, you realize that you are out."

In other words, Californians of Portuguese ancestry are not recognized under the quota system.

THE SAME complaint could be made by those of German, Irish, Syrian, Lebanese or any number of other ancestries. It could, in fact, be made by all white male adults — since there are quotas for women, for Negroes, for Indians and for "Spanish-speaking" people who thus are set apart as a special breed, but none for the rest.

That's what the Wall Street Journal story was about.

"Increasingly," it reported, "white males are retorting that the law also forbids reverse discrimination. In fiscal 1973 . . . more than 50 white males filed complaints with EEOC (Equal Employment Opportunity Commission), charging firms with promotion discrimination, up from just three such complaints in fiscal 1968."

The story referred to this as "white male backlash."

IT IS AN inevitable result of the "quota system," as un-American a system as could be imagined, although it has been imposed by federal law under the guise of "equal opportunity."

Such unity as we have in the United States — and there was a lot more of it in pre-quota days than there is now — is based on the principle that all are equal.

Some employers violated that principle by discriminating against those whose skin was brown or black. A few violated it by discriminating against Jews, or against Roman Catholics.

But the answer to such cases of discrimination cannot be quotas. As both the California Portuguese and the white males cited in the Wall Street Journal article have discovered, quotas constitute discrimination in reverse. To fill the quota, the employer is forced to place ancestry or skin color above job qualifications. This denies equal opportunity.

It is time we stopped such nonsense. It is time we concentrated on making opportunity really equal — for all, regardless of their complexion or where their ancestors were born.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON: Philosophy On A Bus

U.S. 321 SOUTH — Nearly a year ago, I traveled a long loop around the country by train, and started out saying I was "heading upwind" from all that was then being uncovered in Washington. Now I am off again, this time to make a rough, 8,000-mile figure eight around America, traveling mostly by bus, to talk to people large and small.

"Heading upwind" is not so apt a metaphor as it was last spring. What Washington reeks of now has blown out to every corner. But I will not try to sum up what people think about it till I have been out longer. I can tell you right away some of the things they are doing.

FOR ONE THING, Americans are riding the bus. Here in the Carolinas and Georgia, the full impact of the gasoline shortage came weeks later than it did in Washington and other critical areas, but when it arrived it hit hard. Downtown Charlotte was abandoned, the streets and throughways empty, on Sunday afternoon. Intercity bus business is up sharply.

A cliche about bus riders up till this late winter was that they all were either under 21, past retirement age, or black. Not so now. Middle-class, middle-age whites are as numerous as any other category of passengers.

Once aboard, they are sleeping, as always. Staring out the windows. Striking up friendships. I was reading — an article by Daniel Boorstin about what a fine and durable commodity the book is, which nevertheless had to it the feel of a defiant epitaph. Then I looked around and, despite all the common wisdom of this electronic age, other people were reading, too. Books.

A RED-MUSTACHED Washington and Lee student was working through Samuel Butler's "Erewhon." A black preacher with bow tie was reading "Prayer Can Change Your Life." A plump girl whose dress unaccountably was deep-cut at the neck in midafternoon was giving a try to a title about exorcism. The girl in the seat next to me pulled out Paul Gallico's "The Lonely."

What's it like out at the "grass roots"? To find out, columnist Ernest B. Furgurson is taking an 8,000-mile figure-eight bus trip across and around the United States. His columns for the next eight weeks will originate from various points en route. The first appears today.

Her name was Sheila Phillips. She was on her way from Winston-Salem to Charlotte to take her physical to join the WACs to become a nurse. Now, in the circles I normally move in, a girl on her way to join the WACs is not an everyday find. I asked her why she was going.

Her grandfather was a Baptist preacher, she said, and he like to help people. Once there was a black man he knew who was arrested for rape, and her grandfather got a lawyer and proved the charge false. He was always doing things like that. "He wasn't a big man because all the big people didn't know anything about him, but the little people thought he was big," she explained, quite satisfactorily.

She wants to help people, too. So she wants to be a nurse. The Army will train her to be one in exchange for six years of her young life. But before she could enlist, she had to lose weight. She weighed 210, and had to get down to 162. On her way to take her physical, she was at 152, which on her 5-10 frame looked just fine.

PEOPLE TELL NEW acquaintances on buses things they might not tell their old friends. Sheila told about the day last week when a fellow with a beard drove up beside her car at a stoplight. He was in a wildly painted van. He asked, "Wanna go get high?" And she said, "Sure." So they got some wine and did. Normal healthy girl.

As to the president and all that, she is wavery. She thinks all politicians do it, so he should not be barrel-whipped, as she puts it. But then he is president, and we should expect more of him. One thing that makes her mad is his jetting around when other people do not have gas to drive. "Let him take the bus," she says.

I COULD NOT get out of my mind the part about her joining the WACS. Didn't her young friends give her a hard time? The first time she talked about it they did, so this time she just upped and went, and told nobody but her parents.

Besides, she said, "I think, I live in America, you know? That's where I was born and all. I think everyone if they get called, they should think it's a privilege, just to do a little something. After all, we're living here, and it's free. If they were sent over to Russia or somewhere like that and came back, maybe they'd respect it more, instead of putting it down."

About that time the bus pulled into Charlotte, and passengers changed for all directions. Then it headed south down U.S. 21 and 321. By the time you read this, Pvt. Sheila Phillips will be in basic at Fort Jackson, and the bus will still be rolling, and all kinds of Americans will be getting on and off.

The Season's Here For Pollsters; It Depends On Whose You Read

A predictable plethora of polls is being promoted by politicians running in the primary election. The conclusions, however, depend upon whose press releases you read.

The California Poll reported last week that Sec. of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. was leading San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto by more than a 2-1 margin in a statewide survey of voters.

Alioto's campaign, however, issued a statement the same day proclaiming that "a political poll shows Alioto leading major rivals." The poll, it turned out, was taken only in Santa Clara County. Even the press release acknowledged it was the state's first largest county for Democratic registration, exceeded by Los Angeles, Orange, San Diego and Alameda counties.

Santa Clara, in fact, has fewer than 270,000 of the five million registered Democrats. Only 621 persons were polled, or .10229 of one per cent of California Democrats.

The lead was narrow even there: 31 per cent for Alioto and 29 per cent for Brown. Hardly worth crowing about.

THE WORLD HAS one too many Fluornoys from the point of view of Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael. The best known is his friend, State Controller Houston I. Fluornoy, who is running for governor and vacating a seat being sought by Bagley.

Then there is James L. Flournoy, who is competing with Bagley for the GOP nomination. He won his party's nomination for secretary of state in 1970, aided in some large measure by confusion with the "other" Flournoy.

Some figure it will cost Bagley at least $75,000 extra just to defeat Flournoy.

Then there is James I. Flournoy of San Rafael, Houston's cousin. He is not running. Besides, he is a Democrat.

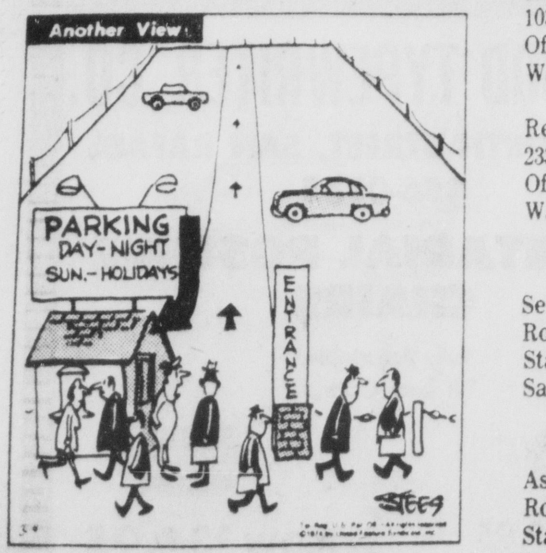
Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Rafael, topped it off by suggesting he change his name to Milton I. Flournoy and run for controller.

BAGLEY'S SAN RAFAEL office got a telephone call last week from an Alioto worker to see if the assemblyman would put an Alioto sign in his window. The mayor's campaign had been sold a computer list of people who might be favorable to put up his signs. They got stung.

GOLDEN GATE TRANSIT officials report the 500 or so standeees on commuter buses are cutting 10,000 to 20,000 miles off the life of tires and brakes. Normal use would allow roughly 100,000 miles on tires and 70,000 miles on brakes, they said.

Another cost of the energy crunch.

MALE CHAUVANISM is alive and well on the Marin County Republican Central Committee. It has both a "vice chairman" and a "women's vice chairman."



"Out of gas, both of them."

Crises In Western Governments May Have Some Advantages

Does it matter that the major governments of the western world are weak and uncertain?

Of course it does. But the results are not all negative. For instance, a powerful majority for Harold Wilson's Labor party in Britain might have resulted in British withdrawal from the Common Market, which would have produced far more uncertainty than a continuation of the status quo.

And the uncertainties which surround President Nixon's administration do not seem to have weakened its capacity to conduct a strong and useful foreign policy. Rarely has American diplomacy been more effective than in this period of darkened national leadership.

Nor does the doubt which hovers over President Pompidou in France inhibit his government from taking an abrasively nationalistic line in its foreign policies. The fact that Chancellor Willy Brandt in the West German Republic has to walk a domestic tightrope may have somewhat moderated the vigor of his improved relations with both the Soviet Union and his East German brothers, but it has not negated them.

THE ITALIAN governmental coalition is tottering; the Greeks have had a fairly recent coup; the problem of the Spanish succession is unresolved; there have been dramatic political shifts in Denmark and Sweden. So it goes, throughout much of the western world.

But all this uncertainty has not reduced the West to shambles. It may even have intensified the responsibility and sober caution of the regimes that are seeking to survive and strengthen themselves. It does not seem to have encouraged adventurism anywhere, which is the principal danger. If President Nixon felt, for example, that to save his administration he could take the risk of precipitating an international crisis, there would be trouble indeed. But no such recklessness has appeared.

We have less information about what is happening to the power structures of the two Communist giants. There obviously is some kind of struggle going on in China. It seems to involve extremists elements challenging the gerontocracy of Chairman Mao and Premier Chao. But it has clearly not produced any reversal of the opening of China to the West, although it has closed the doors somewhat. Visitors are not welcomed as they were a few months ago.

Nor do we know the status of the rather endless power maneuvers inside the Kremlin. It is the nature of police states that there should be battles for power around the throne. It does not seem to be an intensive period of domestic rivalry within the Soviet Union, although rumbles of opposition to detente are heard and there could be radical explosions at any time.

OBVIOUSLY, TO DEFEND or extenuate weakness in government is carrying optimism pretty far. But the mitigation of unlimited power is no bad thing. Nor does it harm the morale of one government to know that other governments also are having trouble. And there are some values in a government having to develop consensus programs instead of partisan ones. The need of an American executive to conciliate Congress is not without its advantages. Sometimes it prevents the abuse of power.

And in Great Britain, the nation may now have to learn some of the lessons of divided and balanced power — at least between the parties — which is inherent in the American political system. Weakness can be carried too far, and the British will have to have some kind of parliamentary majority before very long.

Of course, conditions in the nation and the world (and in many nations) are such that governments of national union would seem to be highly appropriate if they can possibly be worked.

This calls for imagination, sacrifice of partisan selfishness, and dedicated leadership — in any country. But I believe that public opinion would rally to some such solution, particularly in Great Britain and the United States.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

White House insiders say Richard Nixon's 18½-minute imitation of Judge Sirica is a scream.

The Israelis haven't given Henry Kissinger their full confidence. They're not quite sure they can trust a man who speaks English with such a peculiar accent.

As soon as Clifford Irving's latest work is published, we'll probably learn that his prison term was just a hoax to gather material for a book.

In Congress, consumers are now being given the same kind of respectful attention they used to get when they were known as voters.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

That Wasn't All The Councilman Said

I wish your reporters would quote more completely or not at all. My comment, as quoted in tonight's (Feb. 28) paper is shortened seriously, so it doesn't make sense.

What I told the Council of Mayors and Councilmen was that, if the entire nation is looking to Marin County's efforts toward growth control at their greatest example, (as reported by two supervisors who returned from a national conference on growth control in New York City), I found it rather depressing. I had thought that other areas were having success to which we could look for guidance, you see.

Skin Color Not Key To Hearst Kidnaping

To Albert D. West, whose unfortunate open letter to "all black people in Marin County" appeared in the Feb.27, "Reader's Say" column regarding his willingness to establish a reward fund for the capture of the KHearst kidnapers — and further, suggesting that blacks alone are responsible.

We blacks, Mr. West, who reside in Marin County and, I am sure all over the San Francisco Bay Area and the country, decry the Hearst kidnaping and also label it a crime — as it obviously is. We should like to see the painfulness of it come to a speedy conclusion, the same as you would. We detest the presence of such a happenstance in our society, for it sits as a cancer sits —a malignancy in our societal body.

We also would contribute to such a fund as you propose.

But you, Mr. West, have committed a quasi-crime in your letter. Its implications are dangerous and are the kinds of implications that all of us, black and white, should avoid. It seems that you somehow suffer from an intense case of myopia in your sad conclusion that all the people behind the SLA and the Hearst kidnaping are blacks . . .

The SLA claims credit for the murder of Marcus Foster — a dedicated man. Two whites are currently detained for suspected implication in that affair. Review of the Hearst problem will yield evidence that whites are also involved.

We cannot but wonder how many uninformed people — both black and white — mistakenly believe what your letter implies. That's the danger, Mr. West! That's the quasi-crime!. . .

You are right to say let's all hang in there and put up reward loot —but you are wrong, wrong, wrong to intimate that blacks are solely responsible for it.

Toll Hike And Triway A Double Insult

Now we have Triway.

Those of us who will now enjoy a 50 per cent hike in the daily extortion we pay for the privilege of driving to San Francisco. Those of us who made the final payment on the Golden Gate Bridge in July 1971. Those of us who are buying a fleet of busses for our friends who don't require a car in their work. Those of us who are buying a fleet of jazzy ferry boats for Admiral Stevie Leonoudakis and First Mate Dale Luehring, neither of whom has yet demonstrated the ability to command a crew of painters. Those of us who anted up half a million bucks for the fanciest set of offices in Marin county and almost five grand for the table they sit around while they plan new things for us to buy.

Yeah, when we hit the holdup men Wednesday morning there was an extra guy in each lane — a painter, orange hard hat, jacket and all. Instead of painting, Stevie and Dale had the boys working as newsies. A copy to every lucky customer.

Triway is a four-page, expensively printed, lousy journalistic piece of garbage that is neither newsy or entertaining. It says its printed on recycled paper. Even recycled paper shouldn't get this treatment. Besides all us four-bit, soon-to-be-six-bit customers, the format shows it was designed for mass mailing. Lord knows where all Stevie and Dale had it sent; what they spent on printing, mailing, postage, or all those other things big shot publishers do.

Now that we're in the publishing business, what next? We took over the Greyhound. How about the IJ? . . .

Yeah, folks, the guy with the car is rich. And dumb. He is the original Golden Gate Goose. He makes all the wheels and propellers and swivel chairs turn.

Golden Goose. Wasn't there some old story about a Golden Goose . . .

Lack Of Ramps Makes Shopping Difficult

Your idea of reviving a plan to install ramped curbs in downtown San Rafael is much appreciated. Confined to a wheel chair, I and several friends find it exceedingly difficult to shop in San Rafael. In the Northgate area they even have a few stalls in the parking lots served for handicapped an entrance to Sears. Wish there were a few more in other areas. Your intentions are a step in that direction.

Thank you and may it be fruitful.

Wants 'Action Line' In Independent Journal

While in Detroit some time ago I noticed the daily newspaper carried a column each day called "Action Line" in which the average citizen could be helped solving problems. The paper's sources of information and clout solves many problems, particularly those frustrating kinds which involve tackling the various bureaucracies and getting some action.

This seemed like such a great idea that I wondered if we couldn't have something like it in the I-J. This is something that could really be of service to your readers —to which a newspaper has an obligation —and would make interesting reading besides.

Corte Madera Election Not 'Just Replay' As Some Expected

Corte Madera voters selected three new town councilmen in December and many people thought March municipal elections would be an instant replay to reinstate those three incumbents.

But with few hours left before voting begins tomorrow, it appears that four candidates may be in for a tight race for three open seats.

December winners and incumbents Jana G. Haehl, Albert A. Kostelic and Joel A. Shawn have put on different types of campaigns. And challenger Larry P. Weingarth has put in plenty of leg work in his second try to gain a council seat. A fifth candidate, John C. Reed, has dropped out of the race even though his name will appear on the ballot.

THE REASON for the candidates' continued efforts is that December's election really didn't produce clear-cut winners.

Weingarth was 153 votes behind third-place finisher Shawn, but there were six additional candidates in that special election who received 2,131 votes or almost one-third of the total cost.

Haehl, Kostelic and Shawn received over half the votes in that election. But because of the extra 2,131 votes from other candidates, Weingarth figures he has a good chance to vault into a council seat this time around.

Of those 2,131 votes, losing candidates who supported limited growth and opposed the Hahn shopping center tallied 1,177. Shopping center supporters received 954.

Playing mind games with all these figures can be a dangerous business. But the figures point out there is an unknown element in tomorrow's election which could have a significant impact on the outcome.

VOTER TURNOUT also could be an important factor in determining which of the quartet of candidates will not attend future council meetings as a council member.

Recall advocates were largely responsible for a 56 per cent voter turnout in the September recall election. That figure dropped to 48 per cent for the December vote and Haehl predicts the figure could fall to 35 per cent tomorrow.

"People are electioned out," she said.

Corte Madera voters may be fed up with elections, but they have not experienced a dull race in any of the three most recent ones.

AN INTERESTING prospect looms for the Tamalpais High School District board: a majority of female trustees.

Two women presently sit on the board and another female has already declared her candidacy in the June election to fill a board vacancy.

Maybe a female majority wouldn't be surprising to some women's libbers. But all those male chauvinists who say "boys' sports should be for boys" had better watch out.

State Again Headed For Sales Tax Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state sales tax will increase by one penny per dollar next month, costing Californians an extra $1.25 million a day, unless the legislature suddenly reverses itself.

The up-and-down sales tax is scheduled to go up again from 5 to 6 cents on the dollar April 1 in most of the state. The exception would be in Bay Area Rapid Transit counties, where it would be raised from 5 ½ to 6 ½ cents.

The hikes, which would raise about $650 million a year for the state treasury, would be the third rate change in the sales tax rate in nine months.

Sen. Ralph C. Dills, D-Gardena, is waging an uphill battle to delay the increase for six months. He contends the state is collecting more money than it needs and the legislature would look foolish if it later voted to lower the levy to 5 cents again.

A Dills bill (SB1490) delaying the tax hike until Oct. 1 has cleared the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee and is awaiting a hearing by the Senate Finance Committee.

But Gov. Ronald Reagan's finance chief and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti said in separate interviews there was virtually no chance the penny increase will be delayed.

"We see no possibility of delaying it (the hike) further," said Verne Orr, director of the state Department of Finance.

"We can't do without the money," asserted Moretti, a Democratic candidate for governor.

Both warned the state's current surplus, which Orr has projected will be $272 million at the end of the next fiscal year, could be wiped out overnight by the potential economic impact of the energy crisis.

"We underestimate our income around here," countered Dills, who noted the state might reap more than $200 million from the sale of tidelands oil at higher prices spawned by the energy crisis.

He predicted the state will wind up with another fat surplus, and added: "The fair thing would be not collect the money from taxpayers in the first place. It's much better than collecting it and than trying to give it back later."

"If in three months we find we're in deep trouble financially, then we can do it (impose the tax increase)," Dills said.

He also charged that Moretti was going along with Reagan's conservative budget estimates because he would like the benefit of starting his administration with a big surplus if elected governor. "No one can blame him (Moretti) for that," Dills added.

The penny increase was authorized by the legislature in 1972 to finance a sweeping measure providing property tax relief and massive new school financing.

Although the state had a $850 million surplus at the time, the sales tax hike went into effect unnecessarily July 1, 1973, because of a dispute between Reagan and the legislature over how the surplus should be returned to citizens.

The final agreement called for one-time income tax rebates —which taxpayers are enjoying now—and a six-month delay in the sales tax.

The six-month respite began Oct. 1, 1973, and will end April 1 unless the legislature and Reagan agree on a further delay.

Ford Combines Business, Golf

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford packed three rounds of golf and a handful of political appearances into a three-day working weekend vacation in Phoenix before flying to Denver, Colo., today.

Ford conferred Saturday with 600 Arizona Republican committeemen and dined with the state's Congressional delegation and newspaper publisher Eugene Pulliam.

In between, Ford and Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., his successor as House Minority Leader, played golf.

WHITE HOPE OR WHITE ELEPHANT? — The droop-nosed Concorde, French-British version of the supersonic airliner, was hailed as a white hope when it came off the drawing boards. But production has been cut back as airlines reject it as unpractical.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Europe's Version Of SST Goes Begging For Buyers

By JIM BROWNING

PARIS — Can a huge white elephant be transformed into a great white hope?

With its slim, almost antiseptic-looking droop-nosed fuselage, the British-French supersonic airliner Concorde has all the trappings of the plane of the future. But buyer disinterest and technical problems have forced France to propose to the British that production be kept to four or five planes a year. That is about half the cadence of eight a year Concorde was supposed to have reached several months ago.

IN HOPE of improving Concorde's sales record, the French have proposed a relatively low-cost modification in the plane: extra fuel tanks to improve Concorde's flight range. But Reinhard Abrahams, technical director of Germany's Lufthansa, one of the airlines whose interest was supposed to be sparked by the proposed modification, already has told the Times of London that his company is still unimpressed.

"The possibilities of improving the aircraft are very limited," he said. "If Concorde was not dead in the last year, it was definitely killed by the rapid expansion of fuel prices."

Sixteen Concordes already are on the assembly lines in England and France. Only nine are sold — all to the national airlines: Air France and British Airways. The world's other major airlines all have cancelled their options to buy. Only Iran and China are left, with five options between them. Labor union opposition may prevent the official scrapping of the plane, but neither France nor Britain can afford to continue to build Concordes unless some buyers turn up.

THE DEVELOPMENT costs to be shared by the two nations have sprouted from a projected $360 million when the project began in 1962, to a current total expectation of nearly $3 billion. Only part of that can be blamed on inflation. The developers are caught in a squeeze. The plane must be improved, but neither the French nor the British government appears willing to spend much more money.

The airplane's problems are legion. Expected to be a first-class-only plane, it will carry only about 108 passengers, but burn two or three times the fuel of a conventional jet. Tickets will be more expensive than in conventional first class.

Moreover, the high-speed plane emits an ear-shattering roar on takeoff, and poses the same theoretical threat to the stratosphere that helped kill the American supersonic transport.

Of key important to buyers, the current plane's range is under 4,000 miles. Transatlantic flights are possible from Paris and London, but airlines operating long flights from Tokyo, Rome, Frankfurt and Sydney face the problems of routes that require stopovers or are simply impossible.

THE BUILDERS HOPED that with an increased range, Concorde's speed would again outweigh its faults. At twice the speed of sound, the plane crosses the Atlantic in about half the time it takes a conventional airliner.

The increased range was expected to renew the interest of such companies as Japan Airlines, Italy's Alitalia, Germany's Lufthansa, and American Braniff International. Oil-rich Saudi Arabia also is rumored to be interested in two planes.

The builders insist that once British Airways and Air France show what Concorde can do, other lines will want it. Nevertheless, the modified aircraft's almost immediate rejection by Lufthansa's technical director was a severe blow to French plans.

Approves Cabinet

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — The People's Assembly today approved an 18-member cabinet headed by Prime Minister Sein Win, the 54-year-old former construction minister.

War Threat Proposal Is Disclosed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger says the Pentagon is working on emergency plans to evacuate millions of Americans from 250 urban areas if the threat of war arises with the Soviet Union.

The proposal, the first major civil defense initiative since the home bomb shelter program in the early 1960s, was part of a massive annual report presented to Congress yesterday on the military posture of the United States and the Soviet Union.

The report also disclosed that the Soviet Union would have more submarine launched missiles than the United States by this summer. However, the United States will still have three times more bombs and warheads, the report said.

The 250 metropolitan areas which would be affected under the new civil defense plan were not named, but Schlesinger said pilot projects would begin in eight to 10 areas this summer.

"Since it is quite possible that a period of intense crisis would occur before an attack, it may be feasible to relocate nonessential personnel from cities and high risk areas during such a period," he said.

He gave no other policy reasons for instituting a massive new civil defense plan.

Intelligence estimates contained in the report said the Soviets would be able to send 660 missiles to sea by this summer, a 110 more than last year. The Russians surpassed the United States in numbers of land-based missiles more than two years ago.

When individual missile warheads and bomber loads are totaled, the United States will have 7,940 strategic nuclear weapons by summer and the Soviets only 2,600, according to the estimates.

Metric Decision Due Tomorrow

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

It's probably furthest ahead in Maine schools, where it already is taught in elementary grades and high school science classes.

The Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico, where the world's first atom bomb was produced, changed over this month.

And now the House Rules Committee is expected to decide tomorrow on a bill which could lead to the United States switching to voluntary use of the metric system of measures over the next decade.

The bill would establish as national policy the gradual and voluntary introduction of the metric system now in use throughout most of the rest of the world.

Under the measure, metric would be the predominant system of measurement, but the commonly used methods adopted mostly from Britain would still be in effect, according to L.E. Barbrow of the National Bureau of Standards.

A board would be a appointed by the President to plan the changeover in the world's only major industrial holdout from the metric community.

Barbrow said the conversion could take about 10 years.

The proposed voluntary switch is favored by many government and business leaders because it could be made at only small or no extra cost, rather than the tens of billions of dollars that would be involved in a speedy, mandatory change.

Ford, General Motors, International Business Machines, Honeywell, Caterpillar and International Harvester are among the corporate giants already switching to metric measurement.

Much of the aerospace industry with its big export business, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and pharmaceutical companies have used the metric system for years.

Ohio has even changed about 40 signs on its interstate highways to carry distances in kilometers as well as miles, and some public works are undertaken using only metric measurements.

Although most state have been slow to begin at the school level, California, Hawaii, Minnesota, Ohio, Maryland, Maine and Delaware have taken positive steps to include the metric system in school textbooks from now on. A bill is making its way through the Virginia General Assembly to lay down a metric development program in schools.

The two-year-old state metric committee in Maine has asked the legislature for $100,000 to promote it in other ways.

However, many other states have the same attitude as Connecticut where no action has been taken because, some officials say, a change is too far in the future.

Larry Roderick, director of a fifth grade metric experimental training program in Danville, Ill., said: "Our biggest problem is educating the teachers themselves so they can educate the kids."

Catholics, Lutherans Take Step Toward Unity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a possible major step toward unity, a group of American Roman Catholic and Lutheran theologians have declared the issue of papal primacy may no longer be a major barrier to reconciliation of the two churches.

The theologians, in a 5,000 word "Common Statement," called on their respective church bodies to take "specific action toward reconciliation." They addressed a series of questions to each body suggesting Lutherans could move toward a greater degree of acceptance of the primacy of the Pope.

"There is growing awareness among Lutherans of the necessity of a specific ministry to serve the church's unity and universal mission," the theologians said, "while Catholics increasingly see the need for a more nuanced understanding of the role of the papacy within the universal church."

The role of the Pope has separated the two churches for nearly 500 years since the reformers, despairing of changes in the office, went so far as to brand the papacy "antichrist."

At the heart of the agreement is the development of the idea of a "Petrine function" to describe a "particular form of Ministry exercised by a person, office-holder or local church with reference to the church as a whole."

WIN WITH McGREGOR CONTEST

at your Big E

11 additional prizes of McGregor Drizzler jackets

Imagine! You tooling around town in a good-looking McGregor Drizzler® Jacket, sitting behind the wheel of Toyota's Top-of-the-line 1974 Mark II two-door hardtop. You can, if you're the grand prize winner in The Emporium's Win-With-McGregor contest. There'll be one winner of a McGregor Drizzler jacket at each store. This jacket is a popular classic with us because it's so lightweight, easy-to-care for, and made of a comfort blend of 60% rayon-40% cotton that's treated to resist stains. From the eleven Drizzler winners, one name will be drawn to win the grand prize: a Toyota Mark II, the logical alternative to the Big Car, with six cylinders, power steering, and deluxe interior. Of course you can write, phone, or come in to your nearest Big E and purchase a McGregor Drizzler in navy, tan, pewter, brown, gold or yellow. Sizes 38 thru 46—$20. Sizes 40, 42, 44 long in navy at $21. The Emporium Men's Sportswear

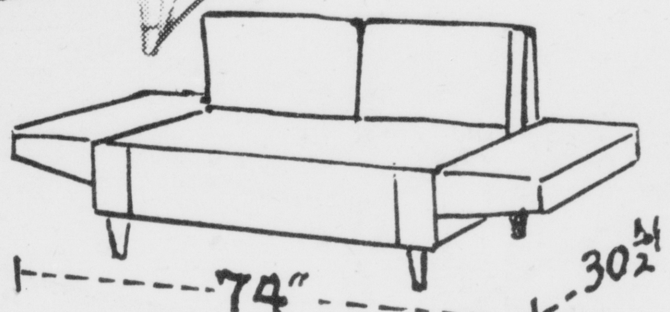
Serta



TV LOUNGER DOES TRIPLE DUTY —IT'S A LOVESEAT, A LOUNGE OR BED

We made a special purchase of this popular lounger from Serta. They used bolt end fabrics usually sold at much higher prices. Use as a 55" wide loveseat — either side drops to several locked positions for TV viewing or reading. Drop both ends and it opens to a 30" wide x 74" long bed to sleep 1 person. Built for enduring comfort with strong wood frame, spring base and tufted seat.
